Civil Liberties Union Plans Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union says it will sue to reinstate two FBI file clerks who claim they were forced to resign because of off-hours work for a peace group.

Philip J. Hirschkop, an ACLU lawyer, said Wednesday the suit will seek to enjoin FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover from "interfering with the constitutional rights of any other employee."

Hirschkop commented at a news conference where Linda Janca, 21, and Christine Hoomes, 18, said they were given an ultimatum last Friday to stop part-time volunteer work for the National Peace Action Coalition or quit the FBI.

The girls said they held non-sensitive jobs filing fingerprint cards in the FBI identification branch.

Hirschkop said a third girl, Janie Bush, 19, had been given a similar ultimatum but her status is unclear.

The FBI declined comment on the latest assertion.

Miss Janca and Miss Hoomes, said they had worked for the peace group two or three nights a week for the last two months stuffing envelopes in preparation for peace demonstrations scheduled April 24 here and in San Francisco.

They said they were questioned by superiors March 31 about their off-hours work and their views on the war, then given the ultimatum Friday.

GREAT PLANES by James Gilbert

Perhaps no other discovery of man has advanced so quickly as the science of aeronautics. From the first powered flight in 1903 by the Wright brothers, to the jet and rocket flights of today, a mere 70 years has passed. This book tells the story behind 25 of the planes which have helped make aeronautic history, of the men who experimented and flew these planes, in many instances risking injury and death. Beautifully illustrated throughout.

TERROR FROM THE SKY by Edward Jablon

The history of aviation appears to have made its greatest advance during the Second World War. This is the first of four volumes collectively entitled "Air War," which tells of this evolution. During the Second World War, various methods of utilizing aircraft as weapons of war were conceived, such as the German "blitzkrieg" and the terror-bombing with which the Luftwaffe attempted to beat Britain into submission. This is an account of these struggles for supremacy, and the bravery of the airmen involved. Many of the more than 200 photographs are from official archives and personal collections, some never previously published.

THREE-EIGHT CHARLIE by Jerrie Mock

To make a solo flight around the world takes a person with courage and a spirit of adventure. Such a person is Jerrie Mock who was the first woman to complete this flight although others have tried. When she took off in her single engine Cessna, affectionately nick - named Three Eight Charlie, she was headed for an incredible adventure and her account of this feat is told with humor and warmth.

HELICOPTERS and OTHER VTOL'S by Hal Hellman

According to the author of this book, the helicopter may one day take the place of the family car for safe economical vertical flight. However, the early helicopter was slow, hard to fly and expensive to operate. Igor I. Sikorsky the pioneer builder of the first chopper" persisted in his endeavors after the first test flights in 1939, as he felt vertical flight was the transportation of the future.

MOSQUITO! by Joe Halliday

When plans were first drawn up for a wooden fighter-bomber during the Second World War, the experts scoffed, but without the versatile Mosquito, the German rocket base at Peenemunde might never have been discovered. The Mosquito took part in such daring missions as the Dambuster's Raid, the Amiens Prison Raid and the raids on Gestapo Headquarters in Copenhagen and The Hague. A small de Havilland plant at Toronto was put into mass production, turning out hundreds of Mosquitos to help turn the tide of the air war. This book is written as a testimony to the Mosquito and the brave men who flew her.

THE SKY'S THE LIMIT by Arch Whitehouse

Today air travel is taken very much for granted, but it was only in 1927 that the United States was finally spanned by passenger flights operating on a regular basis. Few believed in those early days that the airplane was anything more than an expensive toy, but the few who did believe in its potential gambled their lives to make the dream a reality. This is the exciting story of the history of Aviation, starting from the beginning at Kitty Hawke to the sleek new Boeing 707 super-jet.

WINGED LEGEND by John Burke

This is the story of Amelia Earhart, the first woman flier lost in an attempt to fly around the world. This book does not deal with speculations on her mysterious disappearance, but rather on the 39 years of her life. She seems to have been a woman of that rare breed to whom everything yet unaccomplished is a challenge. This then, is the story of Amelia's girlhood, the environment that helped shape her and sent her to meet her destiny over the Pacific in 1937.

Five Cities Prizes In Bengal Battles

In Sunny Jerusalem...

Jews Mark Passover And Christians Easter

JERUSALEM (AP) — Warm hazy sunshine bathed the Holy City today as Jews celebrated the beginning of their Passover and Christians their holy Saturday.

Jerusalem was crowded with pilgrims and tourists—the largest crowds since the 1967 Middle East war. All hotels, even the small ones in the Arab section, were reported booked.

Toe de facto Middle East ceasefire and the absence of the usual threats by Arab guerrillas against such celebrations were credited for some of the large turnout.

Thousands of Jews prayed at the Wailing Wall in the old city today—the first day of Passover, the feast celebrating the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt.

Other Israelis drove into the countryside for picnics or visited friends and relatives.

The Latin, or Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. G. C. Beltrit, gave the blessing of the baptismal font today in the rotunda of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, marking the traditional site of Jesus' entombment.

This was followed by a pontifical high mass attended by dozens of devout.

In Rome, Pope Paul carried a six-foot cross for 15 minutes and led a re-enactment of Christ's final journey.

After the ceremony, the Pope appealed for help and protection for Christians in the troubled Holy Land.

Catholic Easter celebrations will climax in Jerusalem Sunday morning with a pontifical high mass sung in the old Crusader Church by the Latin patriarch and in other parish churches by local priests.

Protestant sunrise services will be conducted in various churches and from vantage points overlooking the Holy City Sunday.

One of the main services will be in the garden tomb outside the old city wall where many Protestants believe Christ was killed.

Jordan Is Prepared To Pardon Guerrillas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Jordanian government has prepared an amnesty law which would pardon about 900 Palestinian Arab guerrillas now in jail for illegal possession of weapons, informed sources in Amman said today.

The sources said the law would become effective as soon as all guerrillas leave the Jordanian capital. Jordan was reported Friday to have accepted an agreement with the commandos providing for thier speedy withdrawal from Amman to "posts best suited to their activities."

Along with the new amnesty law, the government plans to make the death penalty mandatory for illegal possession of arms. The current sentence is life imprisonment.

Ceylon Rebels Still Active

COLOMBO (Reuter) — Ceylon emerged today from a two-day curfew with a pledge from Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike to fight a wave of terrorism that has swept the country since the middle of March.

Mrs. Bandaranaike appealed in a broadcast to the people to maintain law and order.

She said terrorists in the last few days attacked police stations killing a number of loyal and innocent officers and destroying public property worth millions of rupees in foreign currency. Many terrorists were killed in the attacks.

The government has not released details of casualties but informed sources in Colombo said about 125 insurgents were killed and several hundred arrested during the last four days.

The government announced Wednesday that air force planes and armored columns had smashed bands of insurgents.

Mrs. Bandaranaike in her broadcast said as prime minister it was her duty to make the people realize the gravity of the situation they faced.

Ceylon has been under a state of emergency since March 16 with the army reported to be mopping up bands of armed insurgents.

The prime minister said in her broadcast that her government would fight terrorists everywhere.

"No government worth its name can succumb to criminal force," she said. "No government can bow down to thuggery and intimidation.

"No government can afford to look on and let a gang of power-hungry, blood-thirsty and treacherous adventurers come to power on the dead bodies of our innocent young men and women."

The government imposed a curfew at 3 p.m. local time Thursday.

People were not allowed to leave their homes—even for Good Friday church services—and there were no newspapers because of the curfew.

Army Is Reinforced For Crucial Fighting

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — East Pakistani secessionist forces and the Pakistani army are engaged in heavy fighting for at least five key towns in East Pakistan, the Press Trust of India news agency reported today.

There was no confirmation of this report from any other source.

Press Trust, quoting authoritative reports reaching Calcutta, said the fighting came after fresh reinforcements reached the army Friday.

The Pakistan Air Force has been in action in support of ground troops in Rajshahi, Rangpur and Jessore, the reports said.

Fighting broke out when thousands of civilians attacked an armored column on the move from Bogra to Rajshahi, where the Pakistani Army was reported to have been forced to withdraw Friday, Press Trust reported.

The "Liberation Army" of East Pakistan political leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman said Friday it captured Rajshahi.

The Press Trust reports said fighting was also in progress in Sylhet, in the far northeast corner of East Pakistan, and in Comilla, east of the provincial capital of Dacca.

The reports said thick smoke and fire could be seen for several miles away after intense bombing raids on villages near Jessore in the southeast.

The Pakistan radio, monitored here from Lahore, accused the Indian press and radio Friday night of issuing "blatant lies and mischievous propaganda" about the situation in East Pakistan.

"An official spokesman said in Dacca today that the Indian reports had no relation with the real situation in East Pakistan," the radio said.

"The fact of the matter was that the infiltrators (from India) had received crushing blows at the hands of the Pakistan Army operating against them in close co-operation with the patriotic people of the province," he said.

Quoting reports reaching the Indian town of Krishnagar near the East Pakistan border, Press Trust said West Pakistani forces retreated from Rajshahi and took up positions six miles south of the town's military base area.

The Liberation Army claimed complete control of Rajshahi, the agency said.

The reports said the Pakistan Air Force made 15 strikes within 48 hours on Rajshahi, 125 miles northwest of Dacca and only 12 miles from the Indian border.

North West Pakistani pullout from the military base area, in the face of heavy attacks by the so-called "Mukti Fouj" (freedom fighters), probably was the prelude to a heaviest phase of air force bombing, the reports said.

Press Trust, quoting reports reaching Shillong, said secessionist forces also captured the airfields at Lalmonirhat, in the far northwest of the province, and at Shalutighar and Samshernagar, in Sylhet district in the northwest.

Pakistan Faces Financial Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior official of the Pakistani finance ministry is in Washington seeking financial aid which would prevent bankruptcy of his strife-torn country.

The Evening Star and the Washington Post quote diplomatic sources as saying the envoy is attempting to gain more time for repaying debts due June 30 to the World Bank, the United States and other countries.

The country's international debt is said to be about $4,000 million including $1,300 million owed the United States.

Because of the war between the central government of West Pakistan and rebels in East Pakistan, exports have fallen far below imports.

The Post says: "Officials representing Pakistan's creditors say their agencies do not want to open themselves up to the charge of financing the Pakistani central government's civil war against East Pakistan."

The Star says experts agree that unless Pakistan is given more time to pay, and unless Washington continues aid shipments to support vital imports, "Pakistan will be virtually bankrupt in 3½ months. . . ."

The newspaper says the Nixon administration "is quietly threatening the Pakistani government with bankruptcy" in an attempt to end the civil war.

Tradeaus In Caribbean

BRIDGETOWN (Reuter) — Canadian Prime Minister and Mrs. Pierre Trudeau arrived in Barbados by plane about midnight Thursday night to begin an Easter vacation in the Caribbean.

They were met by a small group of officials and left the airport for an undisclosed destination.

The holiday had been described as a second honeymoon for the Trudeaus.

The prime minister is not expected back in Ottawa until April 18, the day before the House of Commons reconvenes.

Bomb Burns At Airport

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Police arrested a man from nearby Brampton Friday after finding the remains of a homemade bomb in a public locker at Toronto International Airport.

Ricardo Joseph Giorgi, 22, has been charged with being in possession of an explosive substance and with mischief.

Police were called to the airport Friday afternoon after a fire broke out in the locker. They found a charred six-volt battery, a timer and a glass bottle filled with a liquid chemical.

The fire was confined to the locker and no injuries were reported. Mississauga is just west of Toronto.

Quinte Mall Creates Problem

Traffic Movement on North Front Concern to Area Businesses

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Safety - oriented roadway construction made necessary by expected heavy traffic movement into the new Quinte Mall could force some existing North Front Street commercial enterprises out of business.

This is the claim of businessmen people located north of Bell Boulevard and east of North Front Street, who are objecting to proposals for a solid centre line roadway median which they say will cut them off completely from southbound traffic.

The massed objections to the solid-median were raised at a special meeting of the city traffic committee on Thursday when the North Front St. businessmen were invited to look over roadway widening plans drawn by Toronto consultants Damas and Smith.

Previously, Elliott Motors, on the west side of North Front Street, expressed concern over the width of proposed driveway entrances to their property which were claimed to be too narrow to accommodate turning movements by 65-foot tractor trailers.

Driveway entrances into Elliotts have a proposed width of 30 ft. which company sales manager Bryce Philp says is too narrow to allow right lane turns by the big tractor trailers without rear trailer wheels mounting the curb.

Plans for the widening of North Front Street at Bell Boulevard call for the provision of turning lanes so that all four present lanes may continue to be used by through traffic.

The proposed median running from just below Highway 401 to the south line of Elliott Motors property would be solid except for the break at Bell Boulevard and one opening opposite Elliotts.

Dennis C. Szecthy, Damas and Smith engineer, said projections indicated that at peak period up to 500 northbound cars per hour would be making the left turn at Bell Boulevard to enter the new shopping mall.

The solid median on North Front Street, he said, was a safety factor designed to prevent left hand turns across the stream of traffic.

But business operators on the east side of North Front said it will prevent direct access by southbound cars into two gasoline stations and the Trudeau Motors used car lot.

Representatives of the businesses concerned said that up to 50 per cent of their trade was derived either from traffic off 401 or otherwise entering the city from the north.

But Mr. Szechy and Mayor J. Russell Scott didn't feel the picture for the east side businesses operators was quite as gloomy as painted.

Mayor Scott felt the eventual increased northbound traffic volume would compensate for the decline in business from traffic entering the city.

"But what do we do in the meantime?" asked the Spur gas station operator.

He said he employed five men, some of whom would have to be laid off until business volume again increased.

Several business operators, and also Alderman E. A. Orr questioned the need for a raised median, asking whether a raised rumble strip or hatch painted lines would not serve the same purpose.

But to a question by Mayor Scott as to what the result would be if the raised median was eliminated, Police Chief Douglas T. Croshie said he could see a sharply increas-

Pole Rental Review Taken

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission will receive a report from Cablevue (Belleville) Ltd. in time for a review of present rental rates for use of the utilities pole by the cable television firm.

Lyle Langabeer, PUC commissioner said "I don't think there will be any change in the rates . . . this review is being done simple to see if we're getting a fair share, not losing money."

He explained that Cablevue's lines as well as Bell Telephone lines are strung on PUC poles. "We just want to determine how much money we're getting out of it. . . it's approximately $5 per pole," the commissioner said.

This review, required every five years under the Cablevue Ltd.- Public Utilities Commission contract, is being conducted for the first time this year. The report will be tabled before the next monthly meeting of the PUC, he said.

Town Gets PEI Shield

TRENTON (Staff) -- Earl Jesse, skip of the curling team from Branch 110, Canadian Legion that represented Ontario in national Legion Charlottetown last month presented Mayor Duncan McDonald with gifts from his counterpart in the PEI capital here Thursday.

A set of cufflinks for Mr. McDonald was received from Mayor Dorothy Corrigan as well as a shield bearing the Charlottetown coat of arms to be hung in Trenton's municipal offices.

Three Generations of Defenders

Veterans of the Boer War and both world wars came together Thursday in the Legion Hall to formally remember the 54th anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge. Shown are Jack Rashotte, Charles Keeble, veteran of South Africa (1899-1901); Major A. C. Oxley, WW I, and Earl Brant veteran of WW 2 and guest speaker for the evening.

Maintain Ideals, Veterans Told

Veterans were urged to take a strong united stand in maintaining the ideals for which their comrades fought and died, at the Royal Canadian Legion Vimy Ridge banquet Thursday night.

"Are we being led down the primrose path by a small minority?" asked Legion district deputy commander Earl Brant guest speaker at the function. "We should list things seriously as they happen, freedom of drugs, cheap abortions and a section of people who flaunt laws and have no respect for their fathers who carry lunch pails."

"We are turning armories into hostels for wayward youth who roam the cities looking for support," he said. "But all young people are not bad. The majority would add their voices to yours to preserve the freedoms forged in battle."

The war veterans of Canada have a challenge, he said. "Tell your commands and branches how you feel about the slipping away of our ideals. Tell the Great White Father in Ottawa."

"Veterans of all ages have this responsibility. Some 700,000 veterans of Canada could voices . . . we do not have to wear purple pants and long hair to attract attention.

"Our freedom was paid for and earned but as long as we sit on our hands the 'majority will lead," he concluded.

Some 70 veterans of Vimy Ridge and other World War I battles were special guests at the banquet. The "colors" and the "vacant chair" as mute symbols of remembrance, formed a background of memorial tribute.

Branch president Jack Rashotte and banquet chairman Jack Laney formally welcomed the "old soldiers". They were toasted by Sid Scott, with C. H. Carver responding.

Brief addresses were given by His Worship Mayor Russell Scott, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, vice president Bill Dorothy Howes with humorous notes injected by Comrades Laney and "Scotty" Brough-ton.

Other head table guests included Fire Chief Leo Culhane, Padre Bram Humphries, Phay Wills branch president Ina Rollins, Hank Ford, vice president ANAF, zone commander Bert Basteds, zone colmmander Dorothy Rashotte, Edna Semark, president Branch 99 Kokesh, Belleville Vets Commission, Captain Foley, Air Force cadets and Ed Korchevsk president Air Force Wing 418.

TV News Bias 'Hurts' Veterans

TRENTON (Staff) — In a speech here Thursday, J. K. Bradford, former president of Loyalist College, contended that a television "tide of half information" on military actions may be eroding North America's capacity for resistance and defence.

He told his audience at the Legion's annual Vimy Dinner here that at times, TV news film is "accompanied by editorial, carefully phrased, to interpret what is happening according to the bias of the narrator. . . It could just as easily have been written by a public relations staff in Hanoi."

It is fashionable today, he said, "to talk about the beauties of peace and the nastiness of war. . . but it is regrettable that running commentaries and editorial give a distorted interpretation of what is happening.

"I am afraid we can be led into a position of indoctrination, where we become so broadminded we become nothing more than a continent of devil's advocates," he added.

Mr. Bradford stressed it is "the tide of half information that has made it possible for the public to accept circuses like the My Lai trials." He called the happenings there "one psychotic instant in the middle of a desperate defence against a determined and unprincipled enemy."

The trial, he feels, has been reported in such a way that it becomes a means of staining the reputation of all those others who have served . . . someone must find a way to bring the whole thing back into perspective quickly."

Researching Took Over a Year To Produce Copy of Last Supper

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON — "And as they did eat Jesus took bread and blessed and brake it, and gave it to them and said, Take, Eat, This is My Body." This haunting table grace spoken softly in the apple craft tableau, The Last Supper, carved by Wellington artist Elizabeth Hind. A detailed copy of the Leonardo DaVinci painting, the miniature tableau will be displayed next month in the Wellington Museum.

Mrs. Hind, who describes apple craft as "a lost art most-ly done by the Indians" devoted more than a year to researching and carving her latest tableau. To gain a fuller understanding of DaVinci's painting Mrs. Hind studied the lives of the 12 disciples. She learned that Bartholomew, not in itself a first name, is a distinguished second name. This apostle probably could have been identified as the son of Tolmai since "bar" means "son of". Mrs. Hind added that bible studies have convinced her that Bartholomew was "a man who intimately knew his Lord and who loved and died for his Lord."

She termed Judas Iscariot "the supreme enigma of the New Testament" because she found it difficult to understand how one so close to Jesus could betray Him.

Her research showed John as "the son of Thunder who became the apostle of Love". He was one of the first followers of Christ and deserved his fisherman's trade to become one of the 12.

Simon's character was summarized simply by the artist. "The man began by hating and ended in loving," she remarked.

Mrs. Hind has translated her knowledge of each of the 12 to a tableau conveying strong emotions. Each disciple has been painstakingly carved from a dried apple and draped in a bright cloak sewn by the artist. The hands of the apostles have been reproduced in minute detail, some resting on the table and others spread above it. The feet, shod in tiny leather sandals have been crafted by hand. Mrs. Hind fashioned dyed wigs in a variety of colors for each of the 12. Jesus' wig is Jesus and his followers were sewn from scraps of bright satin and are identical with the clothing of the disciples portrayed in the DaVinci painting.

The tableau is striking because it lives through the expressions radiating from the faces of the men who followed Christ to the cross. Although she has worked in a difficult medium, the artist has succeeded in creating expressions of concern, devotion, and contemplation in the eyes of the apostles. Jesus, seated in the centre of the group, wears a scarlet cloak. His eyes look downward and there is a moving sadness in this figure. Judas Iscariot, His betrayer, clutches a purple money sack and his expression is one of uneasiness.

The trestle table, laid with an ivory cloth, is set with Lilliputian dishes, which in reality are buttons covered with clay. Wine goblets were fashioned from tooth paste caps and painted in silver.

The artist has combined research with imagination to reproduce food dishes served at the Last Supper. She noted that the meal could have consisted of Charoseth, a paste made from apples, dates, pomegranates and nuts. Herbs such as chicory, horseradish, endives, and horehound also might have been placed at the table. Loaves of unleavened bread were named in the Bible as part of this significant meal.

The table, which stands on a bare wooden floor, is placed before windows admitting the last rays of sun.

Mrs. Hind, a self-taught expert in apple craft, uses Delicious apples most often in her work. She explained that this variety has less juice than others and is well shaped for craft work. Other varieties such as the Cortland and the Ben Davis can be successfully used.

The dried apples are peeled and the faces of each figure carved with a mi p l e k. The stem end of the apple remains in a down position as the artist works. Apples must be dried for about two weeks before they can be carved. At this stage they feel "rubbery" and can be manipulated to any profile the artist wishes. After the face has been carved it is hung to dry for an additional six weeks. If properly cured apple craft will last indefinitely.

The Last Supper is the second tableau recently carved by Mrs. Hind. In 1967 she constructed The Fathers of Confederation as her Centennial project. This carving attracted country-wide recognition and was included in a special display at the Prince Edward County Fair.

Curator of the Wellington Museum, Mrs. Hind appeared on a panel this winter on a television talk show broadcast from Kingston. She discussed the history of apple craft and The Last Supper was used as a demonstration of this unusual art.

Mrs. Hind is now readying the museum for its spring opening on May 24 and is making preparations to display The Last Supper as an example of apple craft, the last art. The tableau, carefully sealed until the museum opening, will be, for all time, an exhibit of perhaps the most dramatic gathering of men in the world's history.

Ahepa Chapter Formed By Greek Community

Men of the local Greek community here have organized themselves into a fraternal organization to promote good citizenship, community responsibility and a better understanding of the ideals of Hellenic culture.

About 22 members will be installed tonight in the Mike Constantinou Chapter of the International Order of Ahepa at a banquet at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Chris Tsoukalas will be the charter president of the local chapter.

It is named after a prominent local member of the Greek community, Mike Constantinou who died in an automobile accident Nov. 11 on Highway 2. Mr. Constantinou was noted for his contributions to the community and to individual fellow countrymen in the Belleville district.

The Order of Ahepa was founded in 1922 in Atlanta, Ga. and is now extends into 40 states, Canada, and Australia with 430 local chapters.

The secret fraternal organization is non-political and non-sectarian, its name an acrostic derived from the first letters of Anglo Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. Membership is open to men of good moral character who are citizens of Canada or who have declared their intention to become citizens.

Local Ahepa chapters have always given generously and vigorously supported undertakings in the service of education, charity and civic improvement. It has contributed to disaster victims here and abroad, championed the cause of education and successfully fought for the freedom and self-respect of minorities in its Justice for Greece and Justice for Cyprus programs.

About 40 officers of other Order of Ahepa chapters from as far away as Washington, D.C. will be in attendance at the installation services tonight to start the fledgling local chaper on its way towards a productive contribution to Belleville community life.

This Art Grows on Trees

Mrs. Walter Nind, Wellington woman widely-known for intricate apple carvings, has completed tableau of Last Supper which will be displayed in village museum. Snow to Go (Again) by Sunday

Old Man Winter simply refuses to let go.

Just when Quinte area residents were all set to at least enjoy some fine spring weather Jack Frost crept back and plummetted the mercury more than 20 points to below the freezing mark.

City filtration plant officials reported that the thermometer Good Friday crept up to an official 60 degrees with even higher readings being registered downtown.

Then last night the mercury dropped to 27 degrees — five points below freezing — turning forecasted rain into snow and ice.

This morning motorists had to again get out their windshield scrapers before they could get under way.

But at least sunny weather is going to be on hand for the Easter weekend.

The Armed Forces Base forecaster at Trenton said sunny weather would prevail today and over the holiday.

Today the temperature will get back into the low 40s but again drop below freezing tonight. Sunday the temperature will reach the mid 50s and possibly higher on Monday.

Residents File Objection To Seven-Storey Tower

TRENTON (Staff) — Plans to construct Trenton's first apartment tower on the site Senator Fraser's Dundas West estate are meeting with objections from homeowners in the immediate area.

One group of six Henry St. residents submitted a brief to the municipal offices Thursday, containing a wide range of protests. The objections may prompt Ontario Municipal Board to call a public meeting on the matter.

Town council here March 22 approved an application for rezoning the site, located between Gladstone and McClelland Streets, to permit building of the seven storey, 60-unit structure.

Developer Stan Klemencic indicates the building would have elevator - equipped, electrically-heated, and have balconies for each apartment. On the grounds would be parking for 73-80 cars and a playground for children.

The building will block the trees and sky and a view of the bay from his windows, says John Rowe of 162 Henry Street, a signatory of the protest letter.

He refers to the area as "a quiet backwater" of "very gracious homes.

"We like birds, trees and squirrels," he says.

He explained that the letter results from the pooling of the ideas of those signing it. Included are references to the fact that youngsters use the roadway past the site to go to their schools and the contention that cars going to and from the new building will "disrupt traffic on Re way to the hospital."

Cars of residents and their guests will contribute to the community's noise pollution, air pollution, and will jam the streets, "changing the traffic flow pattern that we are used to and like."

Mr. Rowe says that people in the neighborhood have welcomed children of families living in the small apartment buildings already there into their homes, basements and lawns, knowing "they do not have adequate facilities."

However, he adds "we have all (the apartment residents) we can handle. It has reached the limit."

The letter - writers offer some options to Mr. Klemencic. They suggest he give the land to the town for use as a park. Failing that they propose he sell it to the town or break up the property into building lots for "superior - type homes."

Mr. Rowe feels apartments are better suited to the east side. "We know the town needs rental space but this is not the place for it," he says.

The new building does have its supporters. In a letter to The Trentonian this week, two former mayors, Orlof Alyea and Ken Coach, state that Trenton citizens are pleased to learn of the proposed apartment building and feel it is regrettable that objectors to the proposal are already being recruited. It seems to be possible in Trenton to find opposition to every progressive opportunity."

They ask "are we going to be leaders and take a progressive step forward or influenced by mythical objections?"

"THE RESURRECTION" . . .

But Mary stood outside the sepulcher weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulcher, And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know no where they have laid Him. And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus saith unto her, Woman why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, said unto him, Sir, if thou have borne Him from here, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto Him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master. Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father. But go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God. Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that He had spoken these things unto her.

Home Needs Neglected

Canada boasts one of the highest standards of living in the world — and this despite our unemployment problem and consequent loss of productive capacity, despite our increasingly permissive society, despite the drug scene and our often reckless and unproductive youth.

But how many questionable situations exist such as the information that mentally retarded patients, most of them children, are being kept in crib cages at the Ontario Hospital School for the Retarded at Orillia? The conditions at Orillia were observed recently by NDP members Dr. Morton Shulman and Patrick Lawlor and admitted by hospital administrator Richard Wilson.

Dr. Shulman, however, attaches no blame to the hospital staff or administration. Rather he attributes the problem to lack of funds to hire the necessary staff. Administrator Wilson concurs with this view. He would prefer to ban the cages, saying if additional staff (an estimated 250 to 300 are needed) were provided there was no medical reason to confine the patients, ranging in age from five to 90. While some must be kept in cage cots for their own protection, Dr. Shulman observed patients who were so bad they were unable to stand up. He was told that patients were thus confined 24 hours a day, except when being removed briefly to be washed. Some had been kept in cages for years.

This is a responsibility of the provincial government, yet according to Mr. Wilson requests for additional funds had been turned down because the matter was not that high a priority. Only last year did the hospital receive additional funds to hire 150 more people.

Lack of staff is not the only problem. Aging buildings, lack of adequate plumbing and sanitary facilities have also been mentioned in connection with the Orillia and similar institutions.

Sometimes we wonder if this country is really part of the 20th century. On the one hand the federal government is handing out interest-free loans amounting to billions of dollars to Indonesia and countries of black Africa, while on the other we can neither provide jobs (with people out of work) nor necessary funds. If the provincial Government needs money for this and other necessary projects it should ask Ottawa for help, for if Ottawa can support people overseas it can also support its own.

Non-Violent

Radical and racist as she has become as an Indian civil rights spokesman, Kahn-Tineta Horn has repudiated the use of Red Power or Indian militancy as a means to achieve her people's goals.

"If we started challenging the Government," she told University of Manitoba students recently," we would be exterminated. The population of Canada cannot be opposed by one per cent of the population."

This is a refreshing change from the Che Guevera credo, adopted by the wilder extremists in our midst, such as the Maoists, that governments can be toppled by a handful of determined activists and/or guerillas. And ,of course, if the Indian population were so inclined, they would be too easily recognized anyway.

No, we cannot see our Indian friends returning to the militancy of the old days. Political action is something else again; everyone is doing his thing in this regard and Miss Horn, a Mohawk, former Indian princess and fashion model, has been at it longer than many of her generation, since about 1963.

Easter Traffic

Easter traditionally brings out the motoring public, and it is appropriate to warn drivers once again to take extra care, for the Dominion Automobile Association predicts that 68 Canadians will die in traffic mishaps during the weekend.

Last year there were 63 deaths. Don't be a traffic statistic this weekend. Use your seat belts, rest often on long distance trips, leave early so you do not have to rush, drive defensively, and make sure your car is in top mechanical condition.

Is Ottawa Encouraging Anarchists?

State Secretary's 'Social Activators' Spark Party Row

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — As was said just the other day in this column, something has to be terribly wrong these days in Ottawa.

And not just the one specific thing previously explored — the feud between the financial-industry community and the federal Government, pin-pointed by respected Ottawa mandarin, long-time senior civil servant Dr. O. M. Solandt, Chairman of the Prime Minister's Science Council, with his statement that there was "no communication nor understanding" between the two antagonists.

But other things, all of them out of common-sense whack.

Like your tax dollars being spent by State Secretary Secretary Pelletier's department on what he calls "social activators."

These "activators" — they have been termed trouble-makers, even revolutionaries — in stormy sessions of the Liberal Party Parliamentary Caucus are among the odds and sods in that strange bag of so-called "social services" Gerard Pelletier has filled with such star-crossed agencies as the Company of Young Canadians.

There is trouble in the Cabinet, and in the rank and file over Mr. Pelletier's "activators."

They are described by the State Secretary's department as "problem solvers".

Their assignment "activate" civil liberty groups, organise what are described as the "disadvantaged," beat up protest situations, encourage and assist demonstrations.

Gerard Pelletier's "activators" have broken cover four times according to the loud objections of what seems a majority of Liberal MP backbenchers and perhaps even Cabinet.

They were blamed for the barracking of Justice Minister John Turner in an appearance at the University of British Columbia recently when disruptors raised such revolutionary ruckus as to prevent him speaking.

They have been said to have been among the young fanatics who tried to break up a meeting at Montreal's Loyola University when Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey (not most sympathetic and understanding member of the Cabinet of the "disadvantaged" or "underprivileged" — was the scheduled speaker.

Too, the finger was pointed at them as the suspected "activators" of the young hoodlum agitators who threatened to "smash up" — not physically, with violence — Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette when he spoke at Montreal's Sir George Williams University.

And they were among those present when Welfare Minister John Munro faced the "professional poor" at a government-financed conference here in Ottawa, distinguished by the young extremist who urinated in a waste basket but a few feet from where their invited guest from the federal Cabinet was sitting on the floor.

The "activators" are mobile, some of them on the State Secretary's grants list, some merely drawing "volunteer allowances" from his department, with provision for travel, communication and other assistance coming under the vague heading of "support".

The Company of Young Canadians, which in all, costing an annual $1,800,000 in taxes, even after having been identified by Quebec Premier and Quebec Liberation Front FLQ activities, seems indestructible. Indifference to criticism is one of the hallmarks of the Pelletier department and Parliament alike.

So, too, are their allied "social activators."

When hell is raised in the Liberal Caucus — and it has been more and more frequently — Mr. Pelletier's explanation is that "all is well," that the strange program of social "provocation" is in good well-managed hands.

But you can bet that Justice Minister Turner, Labor Minister Mackasey and Welfare Minister Munro, among others, have different ideas.

Maybe you missed it, but the other day in the Commons Justice Committee, Liberal MP Harold Stafford who represents the Old Ontario riding of Elgin, asked RCMP Commissioner W. L. Higgitt if he was aware that, 900 in federal funds had been provided a Toronto-based agency for the specific purpose of promoting social "disruption" and whether the RCMP ceased him "concern."

The "riliease" that was promoted at a rally of Toronto's "professional poor" included resolutions in support for the FLQ and demanding the immediate release of terrorist "political prisoners."

"Of course I am concerned," Commissioner Higgitt told the Justice Committee, "I am as concerned as if every Canadian."

And while Mr. Pelletier's "activators" are busy socially "activating" at your — yes, YOUR — expense, the cries of separatism - by - violence - if - necessary as Rene Levesque, Michel Chartrand and Jack Layton-Langlois cruise the country busy with their special brand of "activism".

Something terribly wrong in Ottawa, you wonder?

Apple blossom time is still some time away in these parts. In Ireland though Spring is well advanced, and if orchards like this one in County Armagh are not fully matured yet either the scene nevertheless is typical of the British Isles in April and May. Here a pretty visitor savors the atmosphere of Spring days in rural Ulster when daffodils, snowdrops, cherry and apple blossoms carpet the land. (Northern Ireland government picture)

Canteen Outlets In Recreation Areas Would Provide Student Jobs

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is to be hoped that the Belleville parks board will reconsider its decision to lease canteen operations at Zwick's Island, the city fairgrounds, and at Alemite Field to private enterprise.

It has been reported that the canteens at the arena and Ben Bleecker auditorium have shown a profit. City council is involved in finding ways to employ students for the summer, using provincial grant money. The proposed projects are positive and encouraging but some local tax money will probably be needed also to implement them.

The canteens provide a ready-made work area for students in which a minimal local investment would be necessary.

The comment has been made that the Parks Board is against "getting into the food catering business" but refreshments and recreation seem to be closely related — so surely operating the canteens is not completely out of context when considering the Parks Board's function.

Responsibility to private enterprise if a consideration here, should be secondary to responsibility to the taxpayer — and both the expected material profits and the benefit to students should not be overlooked.

No doubt students would be employed by a private lessee but having the young people working directly for the city would be a step toward good future civic relationships.

Calley Trial Brings To A Head the General Uneasiness of America

Ottawa Journal

The public reaction to the trial and sentence of Lieutenant Calley may with good fortune assume the significance of one of those turning points in a people's customs and concepts.

Calley appears to have been brutal in carrying out orders that were not clear. Conversely, he might have been convicted if he had refused to carry out orders. But this "incident" is bigger than Calley.

The man erred, as did his seniors all the way up. But it is not the tragedy of My Lai nor the trial that has provoked the American public to cry out "enough". It is a sense of uneasiness in much of the conduct and principle of the war in Vietnam. The plea "get our boys home" has been born of not just a desire to save American lives but of wide - spread questioning of whether the war they are fighting is either wise or realistic. It was, we think a war America entered with good intentions — but history alone will tell of its rightness.

Calley has been given a temporary release not because Americans and their President feel he did no right thing at My Lai. He is released because Americans and their President are conscious-stricken a bit many misjudgments in this war — in popular opinion, Congress and the White House. The unwillingness to ask young Lieutenant Calley to carry alone the burden of that uneasy conscience is compassionate and honorable.

We, all of us, in matters of war or of civil unity and human companionship have a lot to learn about how man's inhumanity to man can lead us from individual wrongs to great tidal sweeps of prejudice and error.

Pensioner Seeks TV Time So Senior Citizens Can Promote Their Interests

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently the CRTC through Mr. Juneau invited the public to write to the commission with ideas for CRTC programs.

I wrote the following letter to him:

Please forward a copy of available information and the booklet in the cable TV hearings.

As Mr. Juneau has asked for suggestions here goes.

I would like to see more Canadian public affairs programs at the national and local levels where individuals or groups could have time alloted to air their problems on TV and radio. Specifically, as a pensioner, I would suggest time be allotted weekly to air our problems through panel discussions with representatives of municipal, provincial and federal authorities.

According to D.B.S. figures there were 905,000 retired persons in Canada in 1969 out of a total of 1,648,100 persons over 65. It is evident therefore a program of this nature would attract a large and interested audience.

The objective is to get the three levels of government to do something now for pensioners.

Suggested topics for discussion follow:

(a) How inflation and taxes are eroding our income

(b) Pensioners should be exempt from educational taxes

(c) Costs of health services and Medicare should be reduced

(d) The three percent surtax should be eliminated

(e) Exemption should be allowed for property tax and homeowner grant purposes

(f) Elimination of sales tax for pensioners

(g) Higher exemptions in income tax for pensioners. In this connection I wrote to Mr. Benson in Dec. 1969 also in Dec. 1970 and he replied to both letters stating that the White Paper makes provision for married pensioners over the age of 70 who would not pay tax unless their income exceeded $5,000. As the White paper is now redundant the question is when will it take effect?

I hope the suggestions made in this letter will bear fruit with the CRTC at the National and Local levels. The objective, of course, is to improve the status of the pensioner on a fixed income.

I also invite all pensioners to write to their representatives regarding these problems at the municipal, provincial and federal level.

Remember that 1,649,100 persons over the age of 65 in Canada represents 8 per cent of the total population.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 10, 1971 . . .

Lester B. Pearson, then external affairs minister, made public 14 years ago today—in 1957—the sharp diplomatic note delivered to the U.S. state department. The note said that unless Canada was assured that security information passed on to the U.S. government was withheld from committees or other organizations outside executive circles, the Canadian government would in future refuse to supply such information where Canadians were involved.

1963—The U.S. nuclear submarine Thresher sank.

1959—Japan's crown prince Akihito married commoner Michiko Shoda.

1956—Paul Robeson, left-wing baritone, was denied permission to leave Canada from the United States for a concert tour of 11 Canadian cities.

1945—Gen. Eisenhower announced that German resistance had collapsed.

1944—Russian troops captured Odessa.

1932—Gen. von Hindenburg defeated Adolf Hitler in a run-off election for the German presidency.

Salaries of the Clergy

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I see that Gordon Sinclair, who seems to have opposed everything including religion in his long and colorful career, has now come out in favor of the clergy. Whether this is because at long last he is aware that he is mortal and may need one, I don't know, but somehow I don't know. But I do heartily agree with him in this matter. I cannot think of where you will find any professional group of people with University degrees working without question, not going out on strike, with the salaries that are paid to the clergy.

There are, I believe, two reasons for this terrible state of affairs. The clergy are usually ministering to two groups of people. If it is the rich people then they are subject as servants to every whim of those people who probably never earned their wealth in the first place but inherited it. There is the other group, equally stingy, who are working class (so called) who think they have come into a lot of money this way and don't want their clergy to have anything more than they have. I believe this is the result from this, that is of value, is that only the tough clergy survive. Maybe this is a some merit, but I do feel as Gordon Sinclair does, that if we are going to get men to go to University and go into the ministry we will have to start being as militant-minded as the rest of society. Let's face it, many of these men are head and shoulders over most of us, why not give them a living wage.

Isle Amid Mexican Catholics, 'Lost Tribe' Clings to Judaism

VENTA PRIETA (Reuter) — In this dusty central-Mexican village, a 100-strong community claiming descent from one of the lost tribes of Israel forms an island of Jewish worship in a surrounding sea of Catholicism.

Amid wooden and adobe shacks and the occasional brick-built house stands a new synagogue with an wrought-iron Star of David over the entrance. It symbolizes the community's determination to survive despite the disdain of the established Jewish community in Mexico City 80 miles to the south.

The "Jewish Indians," as they have become known, are the cause of some controversy among Jews in Mexico and the United States. Many critics deny the authenticity of their claimed Jewish origins, but few doubt the sincerity of their belief in Judaism.

The Venta Prieta community, presided over for the last 10 years by Ramon Tellez Olvera, now 33 and an employee of a chain drugstore in nearby Pachuca, dates its foundation to the 1830s. That was when prohibitions against the practice of the Jewish faith, imposed under Spanish colonial rule, were formally lifted.

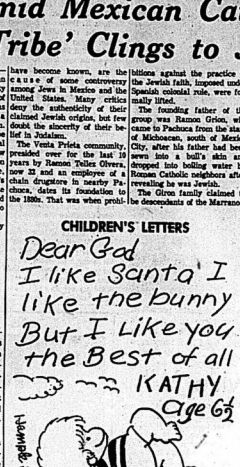
The founding father of the group was Ramon Grion, who came to Pachuca from the state of Michoacan, south of Mexico City, after his father had been sewn into a bull's skin and dropped into boiling water by Roman Catholic neighbors after revealing he was Jewish.

The Grion family claimed to be descendants of the Marranos, Spanish Jews who formally converted to Catholicism under the threat of the Inquisition but secretly retained their Jewish faith. Among the early conquistadors in Mexico were many Marranos who emigrated to escape the Inquisition's secret police.

In Mexico, many of them married Indian women and initiated their children into their faith. One Marrano, Luis Carvajal, became a leading official in new Spain in the 17th century but was burned at the stake together with his family when it was discovered he practised Judaism.

Rules Set For Priest Training

NEW YORK (AP) — Revamped, countrywide guidelines have been set for training men for the Roman Catholic priesthood in the United States, emphasizing greater personal responsibility, more involvement in modern problems of life and closer links with other Christians.



The new standards, called a "Program for Priestly Formation," were worked out in three years of consideration by experts under supervision of American bishops, and recently were ratified by the Vatican.

They're effective immediately, as law, on a five-year trial basis in the country's 118 diocesan seminaries, and also are recommended by superiors of men's religious orders for 383 seminaries run by various orders.

The program marks the first time that over-all directions have been set specifically for seminaries in the United States, based on the particular needs and conditions in the country.

It carries out a "principle of subsidiarity" espoused by the 1962-65 second Vatican council, allowing for diversity of approaches in different nations in line with their special situations.

Indian Girls Make Fine Aides

THUNDER BAY (CP) — A group of Indian girls from Northern Ontario reserves, displaying an "affinity for the old," have turned a one-year pilot project into a successful program faced now with expansion.

The Lakehead board of education last September initiated the program which puts 35 Indian girls into senior citizens' homes three days a week where they receive supervised training on the care of the elderly.

The program was initiated to teach the girls duties of registered nurses' aides so they could return home and pu their training to beneficial use on the reserves.

"They would be prepared to help the older people back home and would have acquired better health habits," said James Smithers, special programs coordinator of the board. "We were not trying to put them on the work market."

Officials of the board agree things have worked out better than expected and plans now are being studied to expand the program into a two-year course.

The girls, between the ages of 16 and 20, have proven so adaptable to the environment and work patterns in senior citizens' homes that some of them should be able to get jobs as nurses' aides by this summer, Mr. Smithers said.

"Indian people take care of their elderly—they don't have senior citizens' homes to send them to. These Indian girls have an affinity for the old, and it's probably cultural."

The girls have learned their responsibilities so well and enjoy the work so much, board officials say, that many of them are planning to attend nurses' aide courses or to return to school to receive sufficient education to enter the one-year course for registered nursing assistants.

THE CEDARS OF LEBANON

"The cedars of Lebanon should be a symbol for conservation — a story old but ever new." — Deni Seibert.

* * *

Easter time with its bright promise of hope, rebirth and life anew, takes on a deeper meaning this morning as we pass Miss Nichol's Quinte Book Shop noting a slim volume of poetry by Kahlil Gibran (1883-1931), displayed in the window. A work which found birth in Mount Lebanon, a mount once entirely covered with magnificent 120 foot-high cedars of the "prehistoric forest of enormous magnitude."

The imagination envisions the cathedrals of inspirations such towering branches shaped, with awe and wonderment. Amongst trees, which kind were so prized for their lasting quality, aside from their fragrance, verdure and great shade, that King Solomon had King Hiram of Tyre in Bible times, (around 1000 B.C.) send his men along with 30,000 laborers of his own, to hew cedars for the temple.

Which gives some idea of cedar consumption — not to mention those felled by the early Phoenicians to build ships and to export timber. Or cedars wantonly burned for fuel by invaders, or cleared by settlers. All of which caused erosion, altering the climate; and goats it is said brought about the final destruction.

The destruction is so complete that today among the high peaks of the Lebanese Mountains on the eastern Mediterranean one green dot of color, alone, stands out on the bare snowy slopes. This includes a small group of 400 (2,000 year-old) cedars of Lebanon enclosed by a stone wall.

These cedars are considered sacred by a Christian group that comprises over half of the people of Lebanon, whose patriarch in 1833 built a little chapel in the forest's midst and forbade any harm to the "holy cedars"). A watchman guards them day and night and a yearly festival honors them in August. Until recently there was no reforestation but now, it is said, the Government is replanting these mountainous areas. A source of national pride the cedar appears on Lebanon's flag.

The living museum is north of Beirut, near Bsherri, (a little town at 6,200 feet that clings to the side of the gorge) the birthplace of the poet Gibran, who admits:

"I think I've never been without the Prophet (name of volume of poetry) since I first conceived the book back in Mount Lebanon. It seems to have been a part of me. . ." and described by one "as cadenced and vibrant with feeling which "brings to one's ears the majestic rhythm of Ecclesiastes. . ." in which he notes that "... thought is a bird of space, that in a cage of words may indeed unfold its wings but cannot fly," and in his wisdom reminds us.

"Let today embrace the past with remembrance."

Due to the illness of Mrs. Vincent, Mrs. Bowers is to be delegate to Guelph conference the last of April.

The Pennies for Friendship for the past year amounted to $25.29. Mrs. Bowers convener for Health conducted the following program. Mrs. Meale opened with a poem. Mrs. Bowers read an article on "Emphysema" stating this is a fast growing disease due to smoking and air pollution. Men are more likely to have it than women. Asthma is now on the decrease.

Another paper was read on "How to give your apartment room that turned on look."

Ann Landers

Teener Worried Sick About His Parents

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've read many letters in your column from parents who don't know what to do about kids who are hooked on drugs. This letter will be a switch. I'm a 16-year-old boy who started blowing grass when I was 14. I went the whole route — pills, LSD then the combo trips, a little of this and a little of that, just to see what it would do. A very special friend miraculously got through to me and made me see that I was slowly killing myself. It was two weeks of raw hell, but I got the monkey off my back and haven't touched a thing for eight months.

But my parents are hooked and I'm terrified about them. Mom is an alcoholic. The doc told him two years ago if he ever took another drink it would kill him. So he's on pot — spaced out every night. Mom is on pills and booze. Her hands shake so bad she can't hold a newspaper. Some of my friends say it's groovy to have parents who turn on. I think it's lousy and besides I'm worried sick about them.

Please, Ann, can you tell me what a teen-ager can do about parents like mine? I want to help them and I don't know how. — FORMER HEAD.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR FORMER: Maybe that "special friend" who was able to get through to you can lend a hand with your parents. Obviously they need professional help but nothing is so futile as trying to help people who don't want to be helped. I can offer very little advice, but I do hope you will keep trying. You just might succeed.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a career girl who lives alone. I've been up four nights straight — answering obscene phone calls. It's the same person, I'm sure, but I have no idea who in the world is doing this sick thing. I need my rest and these calls are beginning to affect my health.

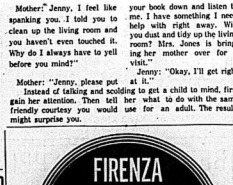
Don't tell me to take the receiver off the hook or have the phone taken out. I don't want to miss any calls from my boyfriend who lives in another city, or from my parents who are elderly and not well. I need your help, Ann, and I hope you will hurry. — STYMIED.

* * *

DEAR S.: The best way to discourage an obscene phone creep is to hang-up. It's as simple as that. These oddballs get their kicks when women react. What they want is for you to moralize, sermonize, scream at them, threaten, become angry, shocked and upset. If you just hang up they will receive no satisfaction from the calls and soon you will be crossed off the list.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I have been married ten years and have saved enough money to build a small home. Two years ago my wife's brother who is a successful architect offered to draw up house plans as a gift. We thought he had forgotten about it but alas, he had not. Last night he presented us with a gift-wrapper blueprint, tied with a red ribbon. My wife and I were deeply touched. He must have spent days on those plans.



But unfortunately my brother-in-law's plans to do reflect our taste nor our needs. His very thoughtful gift has created a serious problem. He is a super-sensitive person and we'd hate to offend him. How do we unwind, with grace? — HE OF HE AND SHE.

* * *

DEAR H AND S.: Buy brother-in-law a gift for his trouble and tell him you've decided to draw up your own plans, since you are a couple of nuts who have crazy ideas of your own.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: Jenny, I feel like spanking you. I told you to clean up the living room and you haven't even touched it. Why do I always have to yell before you mind?"

Mother: "Jenny, please put gain her attention. Then tell her friendly courtesy you would might surprise you.

Instead of talking and scolding to get a child to mind, first what to do with the same use for an adult. The results your book down and listen to me. I have something I need help with right away. Will you dust and tidy up the living room? Mrs. Jones is bringing her mother over for a visit."

PERSONALS

Before her marriage on Saturday, April 3 Mrs. Dean Digby (nee Janice Faye Vesterfelt) of Marmora was honored at four showers. A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Harold Dopking, Mrs. Gordon McFarlin and Mrs. George Green. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. A. Marriott, entertained at a pantry shower. A personal shower was arranged by Mrs. W. Tasker and Mrs. Don Andrews. In Belleville, the bride was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. John Hanna and Mrs. Bruce May.

WEDDINGS

DIGBY — VESTERFELT

A wedding ceremony held at the Marmora Free Methodist Church on Saturday, April 3 united in marriage Janice Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vesterfelt of Marmora and Dean Charles Digby, son of the late Mr. Digby and of Mrs. Bruce May of Belleville.

Rev. K. Bauder of Kingston was the officiating clergyman. Organ music was played by Miss Mary Hardy and the soloist was Mrs. K. Bauder.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length white gown of crystal peau acetate lined with taffeta. Swiss lace accented the stand up collar, skirt and cuffs. Her train and veil were of lace and she carried a cascade of red roses intermingled with ivy.

The maid of honor Miss Sharon Wright of Actinolite was in a floor-length gown of yellow nylon sheer with a satin underlay and embroidered daisies on the skirt. The bridesmaids Janet and Kathy, sisters of the bride, were identical floor-length gowns of pink and yellow nylon sheer with satin underlay and satin streamers. Gidget-like hats trimmed their stand up collars and cuffs. They carried bouquets of carnations and yellow roses and wore pink roses and daisies entwined in their hair.

At the reception held in the United Church hall, guests were greeted by the bride's mother who was in a dress and cost ensemble in nylon and acetate lace over rayon taffeta with a matching blue hat, white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was in a light turquoise suit of brocade with white gloves and hat and a corsage of yellow carnations.

For their trip to Niagara Falls and the United States, the bride chose a two-piece knit mauve suit with black accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations. They will reside at 17 Monroe Ave., Belleville on their return.

UCW MEETINGS

ROSLIN UCW
PLAINFIELD UNIT

Mrs. Charles Beatty was hostess for the April meeting of the Plainfield Unit of Roslin UCW held on Tuesday with nine members and four visitors present.

The leader Mrs. Kerr opened the meeting in the usual manner and Mrs. Hodgen convened the devotional using Easter as the theme.

During business, regular reports were read and an invitation to visit Thomasburg UCW on April 14 was received. The date for the salad tea was set for June 2. Plans were also made for "A Young at Heart Club".

The study book entitled "Man's New World" was dealt with by Mrs. Albert Wright. Mrs. Kerr conducted a contest and at the time reminded members of the bale-up be packed in May.

Refreshments were served and it was noted next meeting will be May 18 at the Roslin hall.

Successful Living

Daughter of Alcoholic Helped by Alateens

By DORIS CLARK

Before joining Alateens, a teen-ager said she experienced self-pity because she was scared to ask her father to drive her and her friend on an outing as her friends did. Her father was an alcoholic.

With the understanding she has gained by meeting with young people who share her problems, she reports: "I did not have self-pity any more."

Not wanting to believe her father was a no-good drunk, she learned to accept the fact that what he had done was a disease.

Dear Doris: I am haunted by my husband's past romances. Both girls played him for a fool. Now he says he loves me, but when we happen to be where the second one is, he keeps staring at her.

I think he married me because I never cheated; I gave him true love. Even in making love I feel I am a substitute—that he wishes it were her.

I am insanely jealous of him and think I have every right to be. He says it is all my imagination. — Second-Best Fool

Dear Fool: Look, he fell for you like a ton of bricks. You are the girl he married. He has told you his past loves mean nothing to him now.

Exercising a right to be insanely jealous never really solved a love triangle — even though it might have kept a husband scared skinny to look sideways and generally miserable with his mate. Jealousy is based in your own feelings of inadequacy.

Better start a new trend. Make something wonderful of your love-making by showing him complete and trusting affection. Herein lies sanity, as well as happiness.

Dear Doris: My fiance's parents want everything Central European about the wedding. This I'm against. Can't afford it.

We don't plan to have a real wedding; only four of us in the church, and a party after we come back from our honeymoon. — Canadian Born

Dear Canadian: The one way to keep other people from taking over is for you and your parents to organize something. If you don't want a big wedding, but a party after the honeymoon, make your fiance's parents comfortable to invite some of their friends and relatives to the party.

MARMORA — Mrs. Dennis Ayler, Regent, and four other members of Marmora Chapter IODE attended the annual dinner meeting of Peterborough Municipal Chapter on March 31.

The guest speaker, Mrs. E. P. McKay of Hamilton, 1st vice - president of the Provincial Chapter IODE of Ontario, showed slides of the Indian settlement at Attawapiskat, on James Bay, where the provincial IODE is building a community hall.

This presentation was of special interest to the Marmora members as one of the similarities to the Davis Inlet settlement in North Labrador, where the Marmora Chapter "adopted school" in 1968.

Entertainment at the dinner was provided by the Octonaelles, the Peterborough Municipal Chapter choir of Mrs. Hector Gould, nee Jennie Gray, a former Marmora girl is a member.

A table bouquet of flowers was won by Mrs. Ayler in a lucky ticket draw at the close of the meeting.

A Self-Portrait Done in Year 1837

The gentleman illustrated is Theophile Hamel. It is a self-portrait done in 1837 which now hangs in the Universite Laval. Hamel was born in 1817 in Saisde Foy, Quebec, and died about 1870 in Quebec city.

Hamel was apprenticed to Antoine Plamondon, another distinguished Canadian painter born 13 years before Hamel, who survived 25 years longer to live almost the entire 19th century.

Hamel studied in Rome, Florence, Bologna, Venice, Paris and Antwerp. He returned to Canada in 1846 and established studios, first at Quebec, then Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton, the United States then returned to Quebec in 1852.

All this information is taken from "Early Painters and Engravers in Canada" a recent book by J. Russell Harper, one of the most distinguished authorities on Canadian painting, published by the University of Toronto Press.

The reason for writing about the book is to advise anyone who has an unidentified painting with a decipherable signature to go to the nearest library or bookstore to look it up. The book lists all known painters and engravers who were born before 1867 and worked in Canada and all artists whose works were exhibited or names mentioned before 1900. The work of anyone listed will automatically go up in value, simple because there now exists a standard reference on the painter.

Trying to identify a painting is a difficult business. In the late 19th century a Dundas, Ontario clothing firm, J. B. and J. S. Gilson gave away paintings as premiums. They had branches in Dundas, Woodstock, Brantford, Peterborough, Hamilton, London and Owen Sound. The firm started in 1853 and was probably the largest and most diversified retail and mail order drygoods outlet in Canada.

Graftons gave coupons with purchases, which could be redeemed for merchandise. Framed oleographs, chromiolithographs and oil paintings were among the most popular choices and they gave away large numbers.

Many of the Ontario families who dealt with Graftons moved on to homestead in the west and took their pictures with them. Almost all are in heavy wood and gilt frames with a picture about 18 inches by 24 inches. The frames alone sell now for about $20. Chromolithographs and oleographs are not valuable in probably will be. Oil paintings are valuable, whether signed or unsigned. The paintings given as premiums are usually on cardboard, not canvas, and were done in large quantities by itinerant artists. The artists peddled their paintings door to door as well as selling them to Graftons.

The quality of the work is not a patch of Hamel but neither is the price. Most are Canadian scenes, usually a lake with an island, pine trees, a canoe and Indians, deer, a mountain together or separately. In oil, even in bad condition a painting may bring as much as $100 — a tidy return on what was originally a giveaway.

Mock Maple Syrup For Easter Breakfast

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: You mentioned maple syrup in a column. Have you tried the enclosed recipe? It is economical and the taste is recommended. My friends and I also are on limited budgets think this fills the bill very well. Thanks for the shortbread recipe — It really worked! — Patricia F.

ANSWER: Patricia we have just finished testing your mock maple syrup and think you have an excellent idea. It is so easy to make that some of our readers may serve it on pancakes or waffles or French toast for Easter morning breakfast.

MOCK MAPLE SYRUP

(Courtesy Patricia F.)

2 cups granulated sugar
¼ cup hot water
1½ cups boiling water
½ cup corn syrup
¼ to ½ tsp. maple flavoring
¼ tsp. vanilla

In a heavy pot combine the granulated sugar and ¼ cup hot water, mixing well. Place over high heat and cook with out stirring until pale caramel color. (It starts to change color in about 10 min.) Remove from heat and at arm's length slowly and carefully stir in boiling water until bubbling subsides. Stir in corn syrup. Return to low heat and stir for 2 min. (If a small sugar lump forms fish it out and discard it.)

Remove from heat and add maple flavoring and vanilla. As soon as it cools down enough pour into jar and cover.

Patricia adds that this can be frozen. I do not know what advantage freezing would be unless it is to prevent the sugar from crystallizing on the bottom.

Thank you Patricia.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Doctors' Opinions On Drugs Differ

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor is different. He rarely prescribes medicines. He believes in nature taking its course and doing most of the healing. Last year my husband almost died of pneumonia, but our doctor refused to use penicillin when we complained later he said, "He got well, didn't he?" What do you think? — Mrs. T.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When ever anyone in our family sees our doctor we're not so much worried about medical bills as we are about what we'll have to pay for medicines. Even if we have something apparently trivial he looks up with prescriptions to buy. Can't that be overdone? Is it necessary always to take so much medicine? — Mrs. E.

• • •

COMMENT: Mrs. T., your doctor is what is sometimes known as a "therapeutic nihilist." He prefers to make as little use of drugs and other treatments as possible. Some become so fanatical about it that they stand on the sidelines like a spectator observing the winning battle between disease and nature. It's evident that this way of practice can be overdone to the detriment of some patients. If ever in doubt about your doctor you can always ask for the opinion of a consultant.

And Mrs. E., your doctor is at the other end of the medical spectrum. Some are so absorbed in trying to get their patients well that they bring to bear inordinate amounts of medical armament to destroy the illness before the illness destroys the patient.

I suppose one test of being a good doctor is to know when to let nature take over and when to use medicines in abundance. Many years ago a British physician who prescribed hardly at all, [illegible] rather be the executioner myself than suffer the disease to kill the patient."

My own way of practice has been to try to walk the middle road between the two either edge. To practise moderation until an emergency came up that required massive medical attack, and to cut down on medicines as soon as I believed the patient would do as well (or better) without them.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is over 6 feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. He says he feels as strong as an ox. He is only 38. And he looks it. But I think he drinks too much. And recently his doctor discovered that he has sugar and acetone in his urine. But he won't go on a diet and won't even consider taking insulin. Is he in any danger? — Mrs. G.

COMMENT: Just feeling well doesn't guarantee that one is in good health. Your own husband is an example. Drinking probably produces his euphoric feeling that all is well with the world. In his case, it isn't. Sugar and acetone in the urine indicate that, without proper treatment, it's possible he may lapse into diabetic coma one of these days. He is in danger on at least two fronts — diabetes mellitus and alcoholism. If he does not get to the doctor again and follow his advice, he will be committing slow suicide. Too many people who "feel well" are already on the skids to oblivion. Nag him until he takes good care of himself.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband has diverticulosis. He loves smoked ham but a friend says it is very bad for him. Would it hurt? — Mrs. P.

COMMENT: Let him try it. I don't see why ham should have any bad effect on the small intestinal pouches.

Guinzberg said the two men will split the fee and future royalties equally.

North Vietnamese Will Vote Sunday

AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

North Vietnam is holding a National Assembly election Sunday, three years late. The fact that it can be held now suggests substantial North Vietnamese recovery from the effects of American bombing.

It also suggests that the government now wants to reflect confidence in the outcome in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. It came close to calling the prospective new assembly the legislature of complete victory.

Hanoi is still having trouble, pre-election propaganda shows. War-weariness is a fact of life. People still are being warned against internal enemies. They are still being told they must produce to the limit of their capacity. They are still led to believe, by implication, that their country is in danger both from invasion and air attack.

The decision to hold this election was not announced until one day after the South Vietnamese had invaded Laos. Thus, Hanoi suddenly chose a moment when the South was making its big bid to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail and a time when Saigon leaders were jalking of invading the North. That could be a deliberate show of confidence.

There is no particular reason for an election at this moment. By statute it should have been held three years ago, but North Vietnam and other Communist countries tend to hold elections whenever they choose. As usual in such countries, it is a one-slate, no choice balloting.

The "fourth legislature" of the assembly will be chosen. The first was named in 1945, the second in 1960 and the present one in 1964, dubbed "the assembly of national salvation's resistance."

North Vietnamese are being told in effect that their armed forces have been sufficiently successful to permit the luxury of elections. But Truong Chinh, powerful member of the politburo says there is need to increase "revolutionary vigilance, to firmly maintain order and security, reinforce people's air defence system and make comprehensive preparations for the defence of the capital."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 11

Your birthday today: A moderately paced year begins of normal growth. Several decisions have to be made during the first two months or so, in what may seem a awkward sequence, but once past this balance-catching act, your daily life should settle to a steady pattern. Today's natives are seldom called upon to manage heavy responsibilities, but manage those very well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Safety first, caution and sincere good manners save the Sunday peace for all.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You are likely to have considerable energy and perhaps tension today. Get an early start.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Whatever direction you take may bring you into say-what-you-feel meetings. The simplest approach is best.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Even where it isn't asked, your advice could be valuable. Just be brief and to the point.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Bright and early and with a big smile do the diplomatic thing today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Let others take up the job of management. Go along for the ride if one is offered, and if not, rest and refresh your soul with prayer and meditation. There is knowledge to be gained, and tomorrow to plan for.

LIBRA Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take your accustomed share in the Sunday activities. Make the rounds among your friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You can pursue elusive knowledge that has intrigued you for some time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Impulse guides your actions today more than plans or logic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you can distinguish intuition from wishful thinking, you know what to do and where to begin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Enough questions and problems already exist without your bringing any others.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Escape is the thing to do, symbolically if not physically. Visit places strange to you and see people you haven't met before.

For April 12

Your birthday today: It is all up to you and what you want to do this year. You can achieve better results in activities that are done alone or with very little direct collaboration. Your general attitude toward life tends to be more philosophical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Begin your week with a demand for something new; settle pending affairs or write them off and get moving in a fresh direction.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): This is an excellent day for putting two and two together for later reference, but not for spreading the word.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Truth is far stranger than ordinary fiction, as secrets emerge.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Events and conditions now show whether you are ready to move with the times. Progress and fulfillment are promised according to what you've been doing about your potentials and skills.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): An impression of personal pride, arrogance is definitely too easily projected, particularly onto people who do not know you very well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Rest assured there are various strings attached to anything concerning money today. You lose nothing by staying out of a complicated transaction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Personal relationships are an area of stress at present, perhaps favorably, according to what you make of them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be sure you are allowing people enough freedom to be themselves, that you are not thinking mainly of what they can do for you shortly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Nearly every bargain has a flaw — if you can find it and decide how you can work around it, good. Get busy; there is no excuse for slack work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Concentrate on precise meanings and simple statements now, so that others are more likely to hear you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Stay in touch and discussion, even where you find it rather troublesome going. Your persistence and tact bring better results later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Step right up and ask for the raise you've earned, or for any special deal that is being handled.

Four-Month Fire May Be Near End

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oilmen move in today to try to strangle the last oil well in an offshore oil fire which has cost four lives and about $36 million since it started Dec. 1.

Fed by 11 wild wells at its height, the once-great inferno had been reduced to a gush of flam resembling a king-sized blowtorch when the drilling rig Margaret heaved for the final kill.

The fire started 121 days ago when an explosion ripped the Shell Oil Co.'s 22-well control platform which stood on stilts in 55 feet of water 10 miles off the Louisiana coast, south of New Orleans.

Two workmen died in the blast and two died later of burns.

Since then, Shell has picked off the wild wells one by one, smothering them deep beneath the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico with the slow and expensive "killer-well" technique.

The method was adopted to avoid any sea pollution which could have come from efforts to blow out the fire and try to cap the wild wells at the surface.

Instead, th egushing oil — thousands of barrels a day — was allowed to go up in smoke while five big drilling rigs were called in.

A Shell spokesman said each of the 11 "killer wells" cost about $1,250,000 to drill and were sunk to a depth of 12,500 feet beneath the sea floor.

U.S. Ping Pong Team in China

LO WU BORDER STATION (Reuter) — A United States table tennis team arrived in China today at the start of a historic visit as the first U.S. athletes to visit the Communists took over in 1949.

Uniformed Chinese officials greeted the Americans and shook hands with them as they walked across the border at Lo Wu after travelling by train from Hong Kong.

The team of eight players, accompanied by four officials, two wives and a sports writer, were escorted to a waiting train for the 45-mile journey to Canton, their first step on the tour. They will fly to Peking later.

On the 1½ mile journey to Canton, a military band played softly over loudspeakers on the Chinese side as the Americans, led by 38-year-old Graham B. Steenhover, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, crossed the bridge.

Steenhoven, an employee supervisor of Chrysler Corp. at Detroit, said as he approached the border: "It's good to get started and be on the way. We are really very comfortable about going. We have no apprehensions."

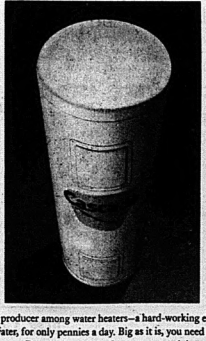
The visit, which is seen as a significant breakthrough in Sino-American relations, resulted from an invitation extended by the Chinese table tennis team during the world championships which ended Wednesday in Nagoya, Japan.

A 16-man Canadian table tennis team has arrived in Peking for a series of exhibition matches.

The New China news agency reported the Canadians were given a warm welcome when they arrived in Peking Friday. Leading sports officials were at the airport to meet the Canadians. The welcomers included the former world women's champion, Wang Chuan-yao.

Margaret Walden of Toronto, head of the Canadian team, told Chinese officials at the airport that although her team had only been in China for a short time, "we are deeply impressed by the warm and friendly hospitality the Chinese people have shown us," the agency reported.

The Americans did not have details of their program in China when they left Hong Kong and they did not know how long they would stay there. But some of them have to be back in Tokyo by April 18.



Although many observers and newspapers see the visit as politically significant, the players and officials emphasized today that they are going to China as athletes, and are not concerned with politics.

Flyers Add to Playoff Fireworks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last year when Philadelphia Flyers missed the last playoff berth in the West Division by a hair, Vic Stasiuk had a ready excuse—it was his first year as a National Hockey League coach.

The Flyers made the Stanley Cup playoffs this season—even moving into third place with a win on the second-last regular-season game.

But criticism of Stasiuk by some of his players broke into the open after the Flyers dropped their, second straight playoff game to Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night.

The Black Hawks dumped Philadelphia 6-2 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven West Division semi-finals.

In other Stanley Cup action Thursday, Montreal Canadiens handed Boston Bruins a stunning 7-5 defeat, Toronto Maple Leafs blasted New York Rangers 4-1 and St. Louis Blues nipped Minnesota North Stars 4-3.

The Montreal and Toronto wins tied their best-of-seven East Division semi-final series at one game each. St.—Louis' win also evened the best-of-seven West semi-final with the North Stars at 1-1.

All four series continue tonight and Sunday with Chicago at Philadelphia, Boston at Montreal, New York at Toronto and St. Louis at Minnesota.

Some of the Philadelphia players spoke out against Stasiuk's coaching methods last month when the Flyers found themselves struggling for a playoff spot.

At the time, one veteran forward who spoke on condition of anonymous, said he felt like "I'm on a checkerboard."

"Apparently he doesn't understand the logic of keeping the same players together," the player said. "I'm not saying he shouldn't make line changes once in a while but to do it so often is stupid. . . . A lot of guys on this team feel he's wrong."

The anonymity disappeared after Thursday's loss, however, when a piece of strategy by Stasiuk to contain Chicago's Bobby Hull backfired.

Stasiuk, using wing-flip he learned "from my coach back in junior days," put right wingers Simon Nolet and Lew Morrison against the right wing of Chicago. To compensate for this, left wingers Bill Lesuk and Rick MacLeish became right wings.

The move failed in obvious fashion as left winger Bobby Hull, and centre Stan Mikita each scored twice to give Chicago a 4-0 lead that the Flyers couldn't overcome.

Nolet, who drew Stasiuk's criticism for allowing Hull's two goals, saw the picture differently.

"That second goal I took a run at him (Hull) and almost knocked him over," Nolet said. "He got the puck while he was falling and shot on nothing. So, body can stop a guy like that."

Andre Lacroix, a 20-goal scorer headed to the minors in mid-year when the Flyers trailed 5-0, also had words for Stasiuk.

"He tries everything on us but he keeps 20-goal men on the bench," Lacroix said. "He's too busy thinking of other things. And he can only think of a few things at a time."

But Stasiuk, who put in 13 seasons as an NHL player, didn't appear concerned about his players' attacks.

"I got a couple other ideas," he said Friday.

At Boston, it appeared for 40 minutes that some player juggling by Al MacNeil, Montreal's rookie coach, might have backfired too.

MacNeil chose netminder Ken Dryden to start his second consecutive playoff game against the powerful Bruins and Boston, who nipped the Canadiens and Dryden 3-1 Wednesday, jumped on the rookie goaltender for five goals in two periods to lead 5-2.

But the Canadiens came back in the final period with five consecutive goals under the leadership of veteran centre Jean Beliveau.

"There's no doubt this win will help the spirit and morale on the team," Beliveau said. "although there was plenty of both before we started here."

Boston coach Tom Johnson refused to put the blame on Bruin goalie Ed Johnston who stopped 30 drives while Dryden blocked 31.

Johnson said Montreal's tying goal by Jacques Lemaire "was a breakaway from centre ice, in all alone."

"You can't blame a goaltender for that. We just quit working and we just let down. We thought we had the game won."

However, the Boston coach issued a warning to his team.

"We haven't played well yet in this series and it better come pretty soon."

Bruin centre Phil Esposito, who set an NHL regular-season record with 76 goals, plans a change in his personal strategy for tonight's encounter.

"I'm going to shoot every time I get the puck," said Esposito, who has failed to score so far in the series.

"I was trying to get fancy and I shouldn't be. I won't do it anymore."

plans to start goaltender Bernie Parent in the Maple Leafs' third game with the Rangers—if Parent gets a new face mask.

Parent's mask ended up among the spectators at New York during a third-period free-for-all.

Vic Hadfield, in his third fight of the night, was working over Toronto's Jim Harrison when Parent came to Harrison's assistance. Parent's mask was thrown into the crowd and Jacques Plante finished the last four minutes and 42 seconds of the game.

But shortly after Plante entered the net another brawl broke out, this time clearing both benches and penalty boxes.

Penalties assessed by referee Lloyd Gilmour included game misconducts to Harrison, Hadfield, New York's Brad Park and Toronto's Darryl Sittler.

NHL president Clarence Campbell, who will fine the teams involved for their actions, said he received only verbal reports of the fights and refused to comment further until he has viewed the game films.

"We knew this was going to be a tough series," Hadfield said, "but I'm surprised."

"They're playing us man to man, the checking is very close and they're not letting us play our style. . . . You get frustrated and you have to do something to change things."

Of his mask-flinging, Hadfield said:

"He (Parent) jumped me from behind. Then I saw the mask sliding here so I just threw it. Somebody threw a glove of mine into the stands."

"I thought we played a tremendous game," said McLellan. "It now is a three-out-of-five series and we have two home games coming up."

Minnesota coach Jack Gordon, sumpling up his team's chances against St. Louis, said:

"We still got to win one in our building. We have to play just as tough if not tougher in our building Saturday and Sunday night. They like to use the body . . . but we showed them that we can play that game too."

The Blues, who held a 1-0 lead after 40 minutes, outscored the North Stars 3-2 in the final period to even the series.

Bob Gassoff, one of the key figures in the numerous scuffles during Thursday's game, said hard checking is the way to snap a good skating team like Minnesota.

"You keep hitting them and make them stop and start and the war is on."

Doubtful starters for Minnesota in tonight's game are winger Bill Goldsworthy, who missed the regular-season goals, and centre Ted Hampson. Both suffered knee injuries in Thursday's contest.

Major Incident

Boston Bruins' Don Awrey is dragged down as he fought with Montreal Canadiens' Marc Tardif in first period of their Stanley Cup playoff game of the Montreal Hockey League at Boston Garden Thursday night. Both Awrey and Tardif received major penalties.

Rebound Amazes Dryden

BOSTON (CP) — Newcomer Ken Dryden, it was a huge surprise, but to the oldtimers on the team it seemed like a resurrection of former days.

That was the reaction in a brilliant Montreal dressing room Thursday night after the Canadiens' 7-5 come-from-behind victory that sent Boston Bruins reeling to Montreal for games Saturday and Sunday night with the Stanley Cup quarter-finals tied at one game each.

"I couldn't believe what we were doing out there," said rookie netminder Dryden. "It was just fantastic."

Dryden referred to the fact that Montreal scored five unanswered goals in the final 20 minutes for the victory.

The lanky netminder had lost the opener 3-1 to the bustling Bruins Wednesday night after winning six straight in his late-season NHL debut.

Jean Beliveau, veteran centre and captain who scored two of the Canadiens' five third-period goals and set up a third scored by John Ferguson, saw it as a resurgence of Canadiens' spirit of former years.

"This has to be one of the good series for me," 39-year-old Beliveau said. "I just hope the legs can stand up for a couple more weeks."

Ashley Missed Orr Twice

KITCHENER (CP) — Star defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins escaped game misconduct penalties twice in the opening game of their Stanley Cup playoff series with Montreal Canadiens Wednesday night because referee John Ashley didn't see him commit the infractions.

Ashley said in a telephone interview Thursday he did not see Orr shown lineman Ron Ego, nor did he see the 23-year-old Orr leave the penalty box at the time. Boston took the East Division semifinal game 3-1.

"I didn't see him do it," said Ashley. "I've been told it happened but I didn't see it."

Just prior to the alleged offences, Ashley had assessed Orr a minor and then tacked on a misconduct when the All-Star defenceman argued the call.

The infractions were called at 9:05 of the third period.

Orr was restrained from approaching Ashley by his teammates and then retired to the dressing room.

Bobby Orr scored a goal and three assists to take the lead in the National Hockey League Stanley Cup's individual scoring race, but his efforts proved in vain as Montreal Canadiens dumped Boston Bruins 7-5 Thursday night.

Orr, who tied a record for most assists in one period of a playoff game, now has two goals and four assists, for six points.

Parent Needs Mask to Play

NEW YORK (CP) — In a game that may well go down in National Hockey League annals as the Case of the Vanishing Mask, Toronto Maple Leafs checked New York Rangers into the ice in their 4-1 victory here Thursda ynight.

Bernie Parent, the Toronto goalkeeper, retired from the contest with four minutes 42 seconds to play in the game because he no longer had his favorite face covering and after unsuccessfully trying to find the brawl of the last period.

The $150 mask was somewhere in the stands, flung there by Ranger forward Vic Hadfield. And the fans wouldn't give it back. So the Leafs finished the game with Jacques Plante, the original masked goalkeeper, holding the fort.

"Parent will play Saturday if he gets a replacement mask," said Leaf coach John McLellan. Both McLellan and Parent were confident they would have another mask by then.

Hadfield did not directly admit that he was the man who got rid of the mask. He said Parent jumped him from behind while he was engaged in fisticuffs with Jim Harrison.

"If he stays out of there, then he doesn't lose the mask," said the blonde Hadfield, long noted as a practical joker.

Hadfield said he also suffered a loss from the brawl—one of his gloves disappeared into the stands and it didn't come back.

Ed Giacomin, the Ranger goalkeeper who was beaten on three of the first five shots the Leafs took at him, disagreed with the Leafs' strategy of putting Jacques Plante in the nets to finish the game.

I would have played the four minutes without a mask rather than share the glory in the victory," said Giacomin wryly, is among several players who will pay fines to the NHL treasury for participating in the last-minute fisticuffs.

"They got the jump on us again," said general manager-coach Emile Francis.

"They played a very close-checking game after they got the two-goal lead. We couldn't take advantage on our power plays because their checking was very good.

Asked to comment on the referring by Lloyd Gilmore, Francis said:

"He called the penalties as the offences occurred. He could hardly stop the two goalterders from leaving their crease."

Asked whether he approved of goalkeepers getting involved in brawls, Francis replied:

"When one goalie leaves the net the other has to go. That's the code of the hills."

Petes Exit Early Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros have earned a berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-finals, but will have to wait a couple of days before their opponent is unveiled.

The Marlboros advanced to the semi-finals Thursday night with a 4-4 tie against the Petes at Peterborough. Toronto won the eight-point quarter-final with three wins and two ties in the five games played.

But a great goaltending job by Mike Veisor of Hamilton Red Wings Friday night kept the Marlboros guessing about the identity of their next opponent.

Veisor stopped 40 shots as the Red Wings edged Ottawa 6?s 3-1 at Hamilton. Ottawa leads hat quarter-final with three wins, two losses and a tie.

The seventh game will be played in Ottawa Sunday and the eighth, if necessary, in Hamilton Tuesday, the winner advancing against the Marlboros.

Montreal Junior Canadiens play the Black Hawks at St. Catharines Sunday in the opener of their eight-point semi-final.

Scoring for the Marlboros Thursday were Dave Gardner, Bill Harris, Steve Vickers and Paulin Bordeleau. Replying for Peterborough were Skip Foster, Doug Gibson, Craig Ramsay and Jim Mahon.

The Marlboros had to hold on desperately to gain the tie.

They lead 4-2 with less than seven minutes remaining, but Gibson scored for Peterborough with 6½ minutes left and Mahon evened the score in the final minutes of play.

Rick Kehoe, Larry Gould and Terry Ryan scored for Hamilton Friday night. Blake Dunlop picked up the Ottawa goal to prevent Veisor from gaining his first OHA Junior A shutout.

The Red Wings had suffered three consecutive shutouts at the hands of Ottawa goalie Jimmy Larocque. But Kehoe tallied at 5:25 of the first period, snapping Larocque's shutout string at 183 minutes and 18 seconds.

Referee Bob Nadin handed out 23 penalties. Hamilton's Jerry Butler received a minor, misconduct and game misconduct in the first period. Teammate Ron Leblanc suffered the same fate in the third.

The loss was especially tough for Ottawa because Larocque suffered a wrist injury late in the final period.

Galt Draws First Blood

GALT (CP) — Ron Smith scored three goals and set up goals by Bruce Reier and Cec Hoekstra to lead Galt Hornets to an 8-4 win over Thunder Bay Twins in the first game of the Allan Cup eastern semi-finals.

Second game in the best-of-five series will be played here tonight, with the last three games next weekend in Thunder Bay.

Galt scored four times in less than two minutes early in the second period to open up a 6-1 lead, then coasted to the victory. Thunder goaltender Bob Kilgour gave up the first three goals to Howie Dietrich, Smith and Tom McCarthy, on loan to Hornets from Orillia Terriers.

Pete Bettiol scored the fourth goal in the Galt flurry 10 seconds after Thunder Bay player-coach Eddie Kachur replaced Kilgour with Bill White, on loan to Twins from Sault Ste. Marie Canadiens.

Allen Shows Dodger Rooters Why He Never Won Golden Glove

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was the 1971 opening at Dodger Stadium before a wildly enthusiastic crowd and the first ball struck by a visiting batter was misplayed by Los Angeles leftfielder Richie Allen.

Allen, never a Golden Glove winner in his eight-year career, showed the hometown fans why as his miscue triggered three unearned San Diego Padre runs in the first inning. And the Padres didn't quit there, going on to a 6-3 victory.

The fans gave Allen a long ovation when he went out to start the game and didn't say boo after that—as was the custom of his Bronx-cheering tormentors in Philadelphia.

"I didn't have any special reaction to the ovation," said Allen. "To tell the truth, I didn't even hear it. I was thinking of only one thing—hitting the ball."

Allen, acquired from St. Louis to add long-ball swat, isn't doing his real thing, either. After going 0 for 7 this season, Allen got his first hit in a Dodger suit — a 60 foot infield roller in the sixth.

Dodger shortstop Maury Wills defended Richie's first-inning error.

"We simply didn't communicate," said Wills. "The fans were yelling and I didn't realize until it was too late Richie was telling me to take the ball."

Despite the excuse, it was a bad scene all around for the 31,413 faithful who were expecting better things from their new-look, power-packed Dodgers.

After the misplay of Dave Campbell's fly ball, Larry Stahl followed with an RBI single, Ed Spezio knocked in another with a bases-full ground out and Chris Cannizzaro drove in the third run with another safety.

It didn't matter that Los Angeles came back with two runs in its half of the first, because Nate Colbert chased Dodger ace Bill Singer with a bases-clearing double in the second.

Only two other games were played in the National League. Chicago Cubs beat Houston Astros 6-0 and Pittsburgh Pirates belted Atlanta Braves 8-2.

Pittsburgh also spoiled Atlanta's home opener as Willie Stargell delivered a two-run home run and Jack Hernandez capped a four-run fifth with a two-run double.

There was some pitching fireworks to go along with the hitting as the Pirates' Bob Moose and the Braves' Ron Herbel exchanged shots in a minor bean ball war.

Moose Stargell's homer, Herbel hit Al Oliver with a pitch. In the next inning, Moose turned on Ralph Garr, brushing him back twice.

"I didn't think he'd throw at me once, let alone twice," said Garr. "I think he nicked me the second time, but I don't blame him. It's just a matter of protecting his own hitters."

After the second throw, umpire Vic Stello walked toward the mound and warned Moose that he was too close for comfort.

"I don't know if he fined me, all he did was come out and point," said Moose, "but if he did, I've lost $50 better than that."

Moose, sting for 11 hits, picked up the victory with ninth-inning relief help from Dave Giusti as the undefeated Pirates won their third game.

Veteran Milt Pappas shackled Houston with three singles and Chicago unloaded a six-run second inning off Tom Griffin. Only once did Pappas allow two runners on base in the same inning.

Griffin came unraveled at the start of the second, issuing a walk and hitting another batter. J. C. Martin singled home the first run and Pappas double to make it 2-0. Don Kessinger singled in another before Glenn Beckert got the fourth run home with a fielder's choice and Joe Pepitone knocked in the closing two runs with a double.

Fate Smiles Again on Denny

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fates are smiling again on Denny McLain.

Baseball's foremost prodigal pitcher, who spent most of last season under suspension for various indiscretions, labored through 10 innings Friday night in his debut for the Washington Senators, then reluctantly bowed out for pinch hitter Tom McCraw.

McCraw, newest member of Ted Williams' legion of castaways, promptly crashed a home run, giving McLain and the Senators a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Joe Foy and Elliott Maddox, two other Washington newcomers, combined to get McLain off a ninth-inning hook before McCraw, acquired a week ago in a trade with the Chicago White Sox, struck the winning blow off Lindy McDaniel.

Elsewhere in the American League, the White Sox edged Minnesota Twins 3-2 for their third victory without a loss, Oakland Athletics trimmed Kansas City Royals 5-0 in a rain-shortened 5½-inning game and Baltimore Orioles nipped Detroit Tigers 6-5.

DENNY McLAIN

McLain, the tarnished former Cy Young Award winner who went from Detroit to Washington in a multi-player trade last fall, gave $5,079 of his new fans a run for their money—with the help of Foy, Maddox and McCraw.

Foy, picked up by the Senators in the minor league draft after being cut loose by New York Mets, drilled his second double of the game in the ninth, Maddox, obtained in the McLain trade, then sent the game into overtime with a run-scoring single.

McLain was tagged for 11 hits and blew a ninth inning lead when run-scoring singles by Gene Michael and Horace Clarke sent the Yanks ahead 4-3.

But the controversial pitcher put up an argument when manager Ted Williams yanked him after McCraw's lead off the bottom of the 10th.

"I had my batting helmet on," McLain said. "I wanted to stick it out. But he said, 'No, we're going to win it right here.'"

And the Senators did just that —on McCraw's drive off the right field scoreboard in his first trip to the plate this season.

"It was a great decision," said McLain.

Oakland prodigy Vida Blue, beaten by the Senators on opening day in Washington, struck out 13 Kansas City batters in six innings and blanked the Royals on three singles before the rains came.

Openers Packed

NEW YORK (AP) — The major leagues set an opening-day attendance record of 430,638 this year despite a chilling forecast that cut the New York Mets' attendance in half, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Thursday.

The total for 12 games over three days was an average of 35,800 and broke the mark of 401,316 set in 1969.

Largest crowd was a sellout of 54,089 in Detroit, the most ever to see the Tigers.

Other sellouts were 51,732 at Cincinnati, 45,061 at Washington and 41,121 at the Chicago Cubs' opener.

President Never Played

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Will Harridge, who rose from a railroad ticket clerk to preside over baseball's American League through the storied eras of Ruth, Dickey, Cobb, Williams and DiMaggio, died Friday. He was 85.

As league president for 27 years, the man who never played a game of baseball in his life guided the junior circuit with unruffled determination through the reign some of the sports most famous names enjoyed their prime seasons.

He ended 47 years in baseball with his retirement in 1958, having become known as the most able and highly regarded figure in the history of the national game.

He died Friday night in a nursing home where he was recuperating from surgery.

January Hot at Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Don January shot his second consecutive 69 Friday in the Masters golf tournament to lead fellow Texan Charlie Coody and Bob Murphy by one shot.

Tom Weiskopf charged in with a 69 to pull within two of the lead with a four-under-par 140 total. Jack Nicklaus' expected assault on the Augusta National course continued to sputter and he was at 141, three back.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., the only Canadian entered, had a 75 for 158, missing the cutoff of 150.

January's success on Augusta National's four par-five holes has rocketed the 1967 PGA king into the halfway lead. He was eight under par for two trips around the longest holes, one under par on six holes, two under on one and one par.

The 33-year-old Coody, leader of the opening 18 holes, managed to scramble in with a 73 to stay close to January.

"Some day you'll get up the course," said Coody, "and some days it gets you. Today, I was hit a few times."

Nicklaus was frustrated, not even his three-under-par total of 141, but the fact that it wasn't much better.

"I've thrown away six, seven or perhaps even 10 shots," said Nicklaus. "If you keep hitting one ball a day in the water and not making any decent-sized putts, you'll never get on top."

Arnold Palmer saw his usually pipeline driving desert him.

Palmer's 73-72—145 left him tied with defending champion Billy Casper for 17th place, seven blows behind the six-under-par 138 total of January, Burly amateur Steve Melnyk of Jacksonville, Fla., stayed within striking distance with a 73 for 143, best non-pro total by six shots.

Knick Likes Pressure

Dick Barnett insists the playoffs are nothing to get excited about, that he plays one game no more enthusiastically than another. But his own statistics tell a different story.

Barnett, old man of New York Knickerbockers at 34, averaged 15.5 points a game during the National Basketball Association regular season but in the playoffs his average has soared to 22.6.

"I'm probably taking more shots and so I'm scoring more," the sleepy-eyed guard said after scoring 22 points to lead the Knicks to a crushing 107-89 victory over Baltimore Bullets Friday afternoon.

The victory gave the Knicks a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series, with Barnett accounting for 48 points.

In Friday's other NBA playoff action, Milwaukee Bucks beat Los Angeles Lakers 105-88 in the first game of the best-of-seven Western Conference finals. There were no games Thursday.

Willis Reed, whose shooting shoulder has been aching along with his knees, took 18 shots from the field Friday and hit only four, so Barnett gunned 23 times, made 13 and added six rebounds.

His drive and free throw pulled the sluggish Knicks within one point of Baltimore and he added two more baskets for a 65-59 lead as the New Yorkers ran off 16 points to Baltimore's three for a 71-59 advantage.

With the injured and foul-plagued Bullets stubbornly hanging close at 85-77, Barnett's two baskets helped another run 12 consecutive points for a 97-77 bulge that proved decisive.

Milwaukee started doing the right things in the third period, while the Lakers stopped doing the things that had given them a one-point advantage.

"We just stopped doing the things that had us on top at the half," said injured Laker star Elgin Baylor. "We stopped moving the ball; we stopped going in to Wilt Chamberlain, who was having success against Lew Alcindor, and we started to go one-on-one."

McGill Back

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University will be able to field a football team next season thanks to support from an alumni association, it was announced Thursday.

A joint statement from McGill Principal Dr. R. E. Bell and Roy Heenan, president of the Martlet Foundation, said the foundation will be responsible for securing the coaching, medical and other staff needed by the football team and raise additional funds for its financing outside the university.

McGill will apply for a place in the football league of the recently-formed Quebec University Athletic Association.

The university announced in September that it would drop all financial support for intercollegiate sports in 1971 as part of an economy drive.

New Pitcher Champion Every Time

Rollins Hope Reid's Luck Rubs Off

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

If Scott Reid's luck rubs off on Rollins Construction, the remaining Commercial Softball League teams may as well settle for second fiddle for the 1971 season.

Reid, who says he will be pitching for the second-year Rollins entry, has been on three city champions in as many summers in the Commercial League.

Only 19, Reid already has championships with Stinson's Construction (1968), and the Ellis Juniors (1969,70) under his belt going into his fourth Commercial League campaign.

In announcing the addition of Reid, Rollins coach Garry Alexander also revealed the club has been accepted as an Intermediate 'A' entry for OASA competition, marking the first time in five years Belleville will be represented in provincial softball playdowns beyond the junior level.

Also signed with Rollins for the 1971 season is centre-fielder Ralph Plane, whose .386 batting average last summer was second-best in the league. Plane led the Commercial loop with 11 doubles, and 15 runs, and was among the pace-setters with 13 runs batted in.

Reid was one of the big reasons the Rollins entry missed out on a championship in their freshman Commercial League season.

The right-hander threw a 1-0 no-hitter at the Builders in a game that clinched first place for the Ellis Juniors, and was on the slab for all four Ellis wins as the Juniors beat Rollins 4-2 in the league championship series.

Reid was 7-6 in the regular schedule, striking out 101 and compiling a 2.17 earned run average in 96 innings.

In addition to Rollins, three other entries have so far indicated they are returning to Commercial League action.

The Ellis Juniors, Point Anne, and Stinson's Construction were also represented at the league's opening meeting last week, although only the Juniors and Rollins filed entries.

While neither Corby's Distillery or City Hotel indicated they would be back, new entries Quinte Hotel and Howard - Radford Printing could keep the league on a six-team basis.

The entry deadline has been set for Monday, April 26.

Election of officers will be the main item on the agenda when the league convenes another organizational meeting Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Pinnacle Street Recreation office.

Tries New Team for Size

Scott Reid, one of the city's most successful softball pitchers over the last three summers, tries on a new uniform for size. Reid, seen here with Rollins Construction outfielder Ralph Plane, says he will join the Rollins team for his fourth season in the Commercial Softball League.

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP)— A total of 41 of the original 64 teams still were in contention for championships in novice, peewee, bantam and midget groupings after play Friday in the annual Burlington Golden Horseshoe Invitational Hockey Tournament.

In midget play, Burlington blanked Waterloo 5-0, Barrie shut out Brampton 2-0, Timiskaming edged Winnipeg 3-1, Oshawa nipped St. Catharines 3-2 and Kitchener took Riverside 2-1.

Peewee results had Kingston downing Peterborough 5-1, Belleville topping Nor-anda 4-1, Burlington trouncing Kitchener 6-1 and Riverside defeating London 6-1.

The Towers Food City win-on an overtime goal by Danny Duffy, kept the Belleville novices alive in consolation round play.

They lost a 3-2 overtime decision Thursday in their opening game with London.

Danny Jacques and Andy Plane also scored for Belleville in their win over Barrie. Randy Cox accounted for the goals in the opening loss to London.

Tonight Towers play Winnipeg at 7:30.

Lions Survive Toughest Test

PETERBOROUGH — It was their toughest test of the Junior B hockey season, but Peterborough Lions retained their winning ways here Wednesday by beating Orillia Travelways 3-2.

The come - from - behind win gave the Lions — Eastern Ontario Junior B League champions — a 4-3 verdict in the series over Orillia, champions of the Mid-Ontario B loop.

The Lions now advance to the OHA semi-finals against first game of the series being played tonight in Peterborough.

Jim Johnston, brother of Belleville Mo-Hawks' Ray, scored at 7.47 of a 10-minute overtime period to give the Lions their deciding win.

Johnston actually saved the day twice. His goal with 1:21 remaining in the third period kept the Lions hopes alive. Rick Sobes scored the first goal for Peterborough, who were playing without the services of goalie Paul Eldred and Bob Gainey, called up for action with Peterborough's Junior-A Petes. The Lions were also missing the services of Len Powers, sidelined with mononucleosis, and Doug Murray, who had quit the club.

The game was played before the Memorial Centre's largest Junior B crowd of the season.

Runner-up Judy Rollich of York-Simcoe shot a total 2,250 over the eight games

Sport Briefs

ATLANTA (AP) — Rico Carty, the National League batting champion last year and Atlanta Braves' perennial hard luck case, has been felled again, this time by a blood clot, his doctor said Friday.

Dr. Harry Rogers, the Braves physician, said Carty was proceeding well toward recovery from a crushed knee when he contacted phlebitis which caused clotting in the bad knee.

The doctor said it will be two or three months before the big left fielder can rejoin the Braves.

LONDON (CP) — Jimmy Greaves scored a goal four minutes from time Friday and sent the West Ham soccer team another step nearer to safety in the First Division of the English League.

Greaves's goal, scored from a scramble in the goal area, gave West Ham a 2-1 victory over West Bromwich.

West Ham now has 39 points from 36 games, eight points more than Burnley and 12 points more than Blackpool. The two bottom teams drop to the Second Division at the end of the season.

GLASGOW (AP) -- Police are worried about plans to let 134,000 soccer fans watch next month's Scottish Cup final between Rangers and Celtic at Hampden Park.

They fear a repeat of the Ibrox disaster of three months ago. Rangers and Celtic, traditional Glasgow rivals, were the opponents in a game which ended in 66 people being crushed to death as they left the stadium here.

James Anderson, Glasgow police chief, said he will ask that the crowd at Hampden be limited to 110,000.

LO WU BORDER STATION, Hong Kong (CP) — Fifteen Americans, members of the United States table tennis team, crossed the Lo Wu Border Bridge into Communist China today--the first delegation of Americans allowed to enter the mainland since the Communists took over in 1949.

The eight players, accompanied by five officials and two wives of officials, walked across the covered bridge and were greeted by Chinese officials at the Chinese end of the bridge.

The New China News Agency reported earlier that the 10-man Canadian team had arrived in Peking and was welcomed by Chinese officials.

Teams from Canada, the U.S. and three other countries will take part in a series of exhibition matches against Chinese players.

Ruby Cooper Says:
Golf's Million Dollar Winner
"LAY THE COURSE

It's a great temptation to try to match your opponent's shots rather than playing your own game. We're all guilty of this from time to time and it takes great mental discipline to avoid it. But since no two golfers play exactly the same way, either in method or strategy, it is best to stick to your own devices.

There are two pitfalls in this regard. One comes up on par-3 holes particularly. Where the temptation is to use the same club a normally longer-hitting foe does. Don't. Play the club you know will do the job.

The other concerns strategy. For instance, you might want to "show up" rival by cutting off more of a dogleg corner than is sensible. Don't. Play "your" shot.

Season All Over For Mulroney B's

KINGSTON (Special) —The season ended for another Belleville minor hockey team Friday.

Mulroney Sunoco Novice Bs packed up their gear for the year after being eliminated from the Kingston Township tournament by a 4-2 loss to the host entry.

Earlier Friday, the Belleville entry blanked Picton 4-0 on goals by Bob Hedge, Mark Crawford, John Henry and Billy Rowe, and the shutout goaltending of Donald Cook and Garth Scully.

It was a costly win, however, with centre Kevin Meagher suffering a broken collar bone when he was checked along the boards in the final period.

More goes into a Volkswagen than just hard work.

No, this picture isn't a cheat.
The luggage in the photograph will go into the VW in the photograph.
How?
First of all, that's no ordinary Volkswagen up there. It's a Super Beetle. With a trunk that carries twice as much as any beetle ever.
(That takes care of 1 suitcase, 2 overnight bags and an attaché case.)
And in case you'd forgotten, every Volkswagen comes with a rear seat that folds down to create a cavernous 14.1 cubic feet of luggage space.
(That takes care of the other 4 suitcases, 5 overnight bags, 4 travel bags, and 3 train cases.)
Alas, all these years we've been known mostly for our uncanny dependability. Not for our uncanny luggage story.
But, as you can see, more goes into a VW than just a fierce attention to detail.
A good deal all around, considering you only have to put $2,249.* into one in the first place.

Brass Band Can't Give A Toot

TRENTON (Staff)
The Crown Assets Disposal Corporation thwarted plans for a final tribute to the Yukon Thursday.
Plans had called for the CFB Trenton Brass and Reed Band to be on the flight line, while scores of maintenance personnel observed as the last of the planes left here to go into storage at Saskatoon.
However, they came at the last minute that Crown Assets wanted the plane to stay here — not for military operations, but to be shown to prospective buyers in the east.
Six of the aircraft were ferried to Saskatoon this week following five others phased out in the last year. Some have been sold to air cargo firms plying South American routes.
The last Yukon will be kept in working order for demonstration purposes and may be taken to various points to be shown to potential customers. It is no longer the property of the department of national defence and no Yukon crews will be kept together to fly it.
No announcement has been made for the departure of the plane but it is expected the band and cheering servicemen will be called on again when the time finally arrives.

Riders Need Cash

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a $150,000 contribution from a commercial sponsor, the Canadian equestrian team is still short of funds.
"We are still seriously in need of contributions for team training and expenses," said chairman Denis Whitaker in announcing dates of a cross-country series of show jumping and dressage events.
The series, beginning May 14 in Edmonton and ending Nov. 13 in Halifax, is backed by the $150,000 from Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd.
The cigarette company announced the pledge last December but Whitaker noted that all the money is to be used for prizes and other expenses related to the country-wide Grand Prix tour.

Stocks Rise

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets pushed moderately higher in active trading this week.

A round of price increases by three major oil companies and two pulp and paper companies were dominant factors for the price increases.

The Toronto market's all-inclusive index jumped 2.28 points, closing at 168.82.

General market tone was firm throughout the week.

At Toronto prices were higher for three of the four trading sessions. The Toronto exchange's industrial index, a broad indicator of market movement, rose 1.58 to close at 186.61.

At Montreal, the Montreal and Canadian exchanges' composite index rose .65 during the week.

Observers said Canadian markets were generally marking time, adjusting to trends set with New York. Generally Canadian markets in recent weeks have been outperforming Wall Street.

At New York, the Dow Jones industrial average was up in industrial issues jumped 17.35 points, closing at 920.39. Trading continued active.

Trading on Canadian markets was heavy. At Toronto volume for the four trading days totalled 13.37 million, down from 15.34 million last week.

Volume at Toronto reached a record high Wednesday when 3.74 million shares traded hands.

Total volume at the Montreal and Canadian exchanges was 6.59 million and 1.08 million, 8.31 million last week.

Speculation trading in mines and oil issues continued strong during the week.

Analysts attribute the recent strength in oil issues to a shortage of fuel in the United States and anticipation by Canadian investors of an increasing demand for Canadian gas and oil.

The Toronto stock market's western-oil index rose 3.40, closing at 211.75.

Mining issues continued strong. The Toronto market's base-metal index gained 2.31, closing at 102.41, the highest level since May 7, 1970.

Golds dropped moderately due to a lack of demand and sagging prices on international markets.

Toronto's gold index dropped 1.89 to 191.44.

Canadian markets will be closed Good Friday, but open the following Monday.

Students Ready Proposals For Summer Work Plan

Students at local secondary schools have been working overtime for the past few weeks on submission to the federal government's Opportunities for Youth.

They have been swift to pick up the challenge thrown out by the Prime Minister. Now their suggestions for summer jobs to improve their community and its services are ready to go to the government by the April 15 deadline.

Moratorium Plans In Early Stages

If there is a word that would not describe the moratorium scheduled for Belleville on April 24, it would have to be "protest," said Wayne Ridsdale, co-ordinator and first year student at Loyalist College.

The moratorium, said Mr. Ridsdale, is not anti anything. It is pro-peace. "We are not demonstrating against anything, but rather showing remorse for the people who are emotionally wounded by the war."

The plan, which was only in the mind of Mr. Ridsdale two weeks ago, is now under the control of a committee of 18 people who will form the administration of the march.

Included in these 18 committee members are Louanne Smirke, manager of Studio 10, and Bruce Marten, lawyer from Trenton.

Meetings, up until this time have been held in Christ Church but this is no indication that the church will allow its facilities to be used on the day of the moratorium, said Mr. Ridsdale.

The committee currently running for the presidency of the student's council for Loyalist College had said that the march goes as planned there will be no loud cheers and high political statements but rather a subdued crowd that will travel to one of the projected industrial sites. These sites include the cenotaph, parking lot and St. Thomas' Church grounds. They will hear a professional speaker talk of peace and its implications without touching on the complexities of politics.

Mr. Ridsdale seems confident that there will be no problem in getting permission from the city council to hold a demonstration of this sort.

Mr. Karten, who will be representing Mr. Ridsdale, in the city council meeting, is taking no part in the march other than handling the legal technicalities.

No plans have been made on the route of the parade or the location of the gathering.

Audience with city council will give the committee something to go on and then plans can be made of a more solid nature.

Two Firms Are Entered

City police have reported two cases of break and enter Wednesday night. Entry of the Upper Canada News Agency, 47 Oak Street, was gained through a skylight in the roof. The roof sheathing shelf or shelves entered the staff kitchen and did extensive damage to a coffee and a soft drink machine. Three cartons of pens and one carton of sunglasses were taken. Estimated loss was given at $200.

No estimate of loss has yet been received from Motorland Chrysler following a Wednesday night break in in which three machines were ransacked.

A pry bar was apparently used to break open a coffee, a cigarette and a soft drink dispensing machine.

School Bus Overturns, All Okay

TWEED — A Tweed man is in Belleville General Hospital with injuries to his hip and neck as a result of an accident Thursday on South Victoria St. in this village.

Edward Dunn, 19, was injured when the car in which he was a passenger collided with a telephone pole about 3.30 p.m. Driver of the car was Andrew Shalla, 19 of Stoco. The driver and two other passengers were uninjured. The car was a write-off.

All its passengers escaped with only a shaking up when a school bus overturned at 4 p.m. April 8 at the junction of Highway 37 and the Stoco Road one - half mile south of Tweed.

The bus was driven by Harold Teupah, 54, of Marlbank. He collided with a half - ton truck driven by Neil Henry Morton, 21, of Thomasburg. Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and to the bus $200. Charges of making an improper left - hand turn have been laid against the bus driver.

Paul McMurray 23, of Ottawa sustained $200 damage to his car when he struck a deer on Highway 62 between Bannockburn and Millbridge Friday. The driver was able to continue on his way despite the damage to his car, but the deer was killed and was sent to the department of lands and forests for disposal.

Mall Has 28 Stores Rented

Stores at the new Quinte Mall are being rapidly taken up with only five of the 33 total still to be rented.

The new multi-million dollar mall in North Belleville is scheduled to open next September.

Principal tenants at the new mall will be Simpsons with 90,000 square feet, and Steinburg's as the food supermarket outlet in the 240,000 square foot enclosed mall plaza.

Plaza builders, Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., plan at least five women's wear shops and two men's wear outlets.

There will be a Shoppers Drug Mart, two banks, two camera shops, a record bar, a Cole's book store, bakery and two movie theatres.

Douglas Grant, local realtor in charge of local rentals said that by far the largest percentage of stores rented have been to chain organizations with only two local business firms so far having signed leases.

These are a local men's and ladies' hairstyling establishment now located in a smaller plaza and a downtown television sales and service outlet.

Rev. P. Fitch To Address Methodists

Zoning Requests Await Plan OK

TRENTON (Staff) — Faced with two rezoning applications Wednesday, the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board decided not to consider them until the town's new official plan is approved by the municipal affairs department.

Stalled is an application from Ross Swan of Trenton to build a mansard - roofed sixplex at 185 Byron Street near Elmwood Drive.

A letter protesting spot rezoning to allow the building was received by the board during the meeting from 15 Byron Street residents.

Decision on an application from Austin Scott and other town businessmen for a tract of land southwest of the old Matthews Mills site off Trenton Street to permit a housing development, was also put off by the board.

Chairman of the TSPB, Dr. Robert Patrick, indicated that there will be no action taken on spot rezoning applications until the board has established firm zoning structures from the official plan.

Nixon is Afraid of Chicken War With Quebec

THE LITTLE WOMAN

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1971, World rights reserved.

"I know how you hate having me call you at work, dear, but . . ."

TORONTO (CP) — There have been threats of reprisals from Quebec if Ontario enacts legislation against farm products from other provinces, Opposition leader Robert Nixon told the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart replied during the question period that he had no knowledge of reprisals.

"I give you knowledge," Mr. Nixon retorted.

The Ontario legislation, a bill to amend the Farm Products Marketing Act, was given first reading Monday.

It would allow local marketing boards to seize produce imported into the province without marketing permits.

One product the bill is aimed at is broiler chickens, which Ontario producers say have been imported from other provinces in such large numbers as to glut the market.

Mr. Nixon asked whether Mr. Stewart had discussed the situation with the Quebec agriculture minister. Mr. Stewart replied that the deputy ministers of the two provinces had held talks.

The minister said Ontario had to take some action because the province cannot absorb the "incredible numbers" of broiler chickens brought in from other provinces.

He said that during one week there was a backup of some 800,000 birds produced in Ontario.

Mr. Stewart said the Ontario bill would put the province in line with proposed national marketing procedures.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Donview) said the legality of national marketing procedures is in doubt because of an appeal against the regulations to the Supreme Court of Canada by the Manitoba government.

Mr. Stewart said there is no doubt of the legality of the legislation because Ontario now restricts margarine products in a similar manner.

In other business, Education Minister Robert Welch said Ontario will likely be faced with a surplus of teachers this fall. He told New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis "there may be an excessive supply of this profession. . . . When I have an opportunity to see what the situation actually is . . . I could make some comments."

Provincial Secretary John Yaremko, who is responsible for the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario, said refreshments may be served outdoors at Ontario Place, which got its liquor license Thursday, when it opens in May. Mr. Yaremko said he hopes to see more open-air drinking establishments in the province.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence told the house he will present a number of bills intended to protect civil liberties in Ontario. He expects to have legislation protecting individuals before public inquiries, tribunals and the courts.

Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, announced creation of three new wild-river parks for canoeists in Northern Ontario, where two already exist.

Allan Grossman, minister of trade and development, defended Ontario Housing Corp. against charges that it was enticing industry away from Quebec with financial assistance to Bio-Research Laboratories of Montreal. He said the company's new toxicology division in Gloucester Twp., near Ottawa, is a branch plant, not a transfer of its entire operation.

Premier William Davis told the Legislature the government has no plans to intervene in a faculty dispute at Lakehead University in Thunder Bay. He was replying to New Democratic—Party Leader Stephen Lewis, who asked whether government would consider intervence of appeal for three faculty members without tenure who were dismissed by the university.

Teacher Surplus Stories Doubted

TORONTO (CP) — J. R. McCarthy, Ontario's deputy minister of education, says he believes there is a healthy balance between the supply of teachers and the demand for their services.

The deputy minister said in an interview Friday he believes this balance will remain at least until 1980.

The deputy minister said he thought published reports of a job shortage for new teachers trying to enter the profession this year will prove relatively unfounded.

"This sort of thing happens every year," he said.

"We get word of a job shortage right after the hiring date, and by the beginning of the next school year it's disappeared."

Dr. McCarthy said his department's projections indicate elementary-school enrolment in Ontario will start to drop beginning next September. Secondary-school enrolment will continue to increase for "three or four years," then it too will start to decrease.

These trends would continue until about 1980, when enrolments would become stable.

Hoffa Released From Prison To Pay Visit to Ailing Wife

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James R. Hoffa has been released from a federal prison in Pennsylvania to visit his wife, seriously ill with a heart condition in San Francisco.

The United States justice department announced Friday in Washington that the Teamsters Union president was granted leave Wednesday to travel without supervision after Mrs. Hoffa's doctor said Hoffa's presence "is urgently required."

Hoffa's lawyer, Morris Shenker, said: "As a result of the visit, her doctors report she is much improved. They are very hopeful."

The justice department said no time has been set for Hoffa's return to the U.S. penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa., where he has been confined since 1967 but his leave "is not expected to last more than a week."

Shenker said Hoffa would remain visiting his wife, Josephine, 50, until Monday.

Mrs. Hoffa was admitted to the University of California Medical Centre March 18 for treatment of what doctors describe as painful heart condition.

She had come to San Francisco from her Washington, D.C., home to attend a testimonial banquet for Jack Goldberger, a West Coast Teamster leader and friend of her husband.

A patient on the fifth floor of the hospital, where Mrs. Hoffa is being treated, said Hoffa has been smuggled daily into the hospital since Wednesday. The patient said Hoffa would wear a long white coat, such as is worn by doctors, and a walkie-talkie system was used to make sure hallways were clear before he arrived and departed by a side entrance.

Teachers Ballot On Strike Plans

Dayan Would Leave Suez

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan says he favors withdrawal of Israeli forces along the Suez canal provided there is a permanent ceasefire agreement with Egypt and "no Soviet or Egyptian troops will cross the canal.

Speaking at a televised news conference Sunday, Dayan refused to say if the cabinet is discussing how many miles to retreat, saying: "I am not free to answer that." But he said any partial pullback "must lead to the kind of comprehensive settlement for which we are willing."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat proposed in February that Israel withdraw from part of the Sinai Peninsula to permit reopening of the canal and then relinquish the remaining Arab territory occupied during the 1967 war. The canal has been blocked since the six-day war, with Israeli forces entrenched on its east bank and Egyptian troops on the other side.

Dayan said he was opposed to total withdrawal and cited a clause in a resolution passed by last week's Labor party convention demanding "substantial changes" in Israel's pre-war frontiers.

The defence minister said he believed Sadat spoke "in sincerity and without guile" when he suggested a peace settlement with Israel.

"But Sadat speaks of two stages—partial withdrawal, stop for a drink of juice, and then get out of the entire area," Dayan said.

Dayan also said he could not contradict reports from Washington that Moscow was equipping Egypt with MIG-23 warplanes, reputed to be the world's fastest fighter-interceptors.

"Apparently warplanes of higher quality have reached Egypt," he said.

Pakistani Soldiers On March

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Press Trust of India news agency reported today that Pakistani military forces had gone into action against towns held by East Pakistan's so-called Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) Liberation Army.

PTI said that Pakistani troops captured Pabna and Ishurdi in widespread fighting Sunday, while the secessionists took Lalmonirhat and strengthened their hold on Sylhet, in the province's northeastern tip, by overrunning its radio and railway stations.

None of these reports could be confirmed by any other source.

Two leading members of the "liberation forces" made contact with PTI and said Pabna had fallen to the Pakistan army.

Maj. M. A. Osman, who claims to be the southwest commander of the "liberation army," speaking on a trunk telephone call from the East Pakistan town of Chaudanga to a PTI reporter in Calcutta, said heavy fighting was continuing around Pabna, on the River Ganges 75 miles west of Dacca.

Ashabul Huq, who claims to be the adviser to the "liberation army's" southwest command, in a phone call to Calcutta from Kushtia, said he could confirm that Pabna had been occupied by government troops.

Vote Delayed Until Deadline

Belleville secondary school teachers are waiting until the deadline date, April 22, to vote on whether to take strike action.

Ballots will be counted by April 24, and at that time the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation's executive council will meet to decide what action should be taken.

If teachers pursue their threats to the limit, secondary schools across Ontario could be closed for at least a one-day protest.

But don't count on it for certain yet, a spokesman for OSSTF said on the weekend.

"The minister of education has promised to meet with the teachers before the deadline and that may clear up the entire issue. We're hoping so, anyway," said J. A. Slater, president of the Hastings county branch of the OSSTF this morning.

The teachers, joked by the provincial government's restrictions on education spending, have threatened a one-day walkout, a prolonged strike or a work slowdown to protest the issue.

The majority of the 300 delegates attending the federation's annual meeting here last month authorized their executive to call strike action May 3, leaving it up to the executive to determine what form it would take.

At the same meeting they decided to seek legislation giving them the right by statute to go on strike if contract negotiations with school boards break down.

At present, teachers are excluded from terms of the Ontario Labor Relations Act which governs strike action by most groups. However, there is no legislation, which specifically prohibits teachers from going on strike.

"We take the position that the statutes are silent on this issue," said D. S. Felker, general secretary of the federation, at the convention. "There's nothing that really says we can and there's nothing that says we can't."

The teachers are complaining because the government has limited secondary-school spending in 1971 to $1,000 a student compared with $1,000 in 1970. They say the 1971 figure does not meet estimates by various school boards on what they will need to spend next year.

The $1,000 figure does not include certain subsidies and grants.

Premier William Davis, who had been education minister until he assumed the premiership this year, said recently the government has no intention of changing the grant system and added that he was not anxious to get involved in the teacher dispute.

But J. W. McCarthy, deputy minister of education, also was adamant on the grant issue. He said the teachers have misinterpreted the restrictions and he emphasized that the ceilings do not mean a reduction of budgets from 1970.

He said essential school services and budgets would not have to be cut. For example, he said, $150 million was budgeted for secondary-school purposes in Metropolitan Toronto last year but only $146 million was spent.

Just how much support the teachers can generate from their colleagues at other levels remains uncertain.

The Ontario Teachers' Federation, which encompasses all teaching groups in the province while leaving each one autonomous to negotiate privately, also has had no comment.

Fourteen Soldiers Injured In Rioting in Londonderry

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — A bomb was thrown early today at a group of British soldiers in Londonderry following fierce rioting Sunday night which left 14 soldiers wounded.

No one was hurt in the bomb attack.

The injuries occurred in fighting that broke out in the Roman Catholic Bogside district after a crowd of youths commandeered a bus and stoned troops who moved in to stop them. The soldiers retaliated with rubber bullets.

Sudden and scattered attacks against the security forces took place in other parts of the city after traditional Easter republican marches commemorating the 1916 uprising in Dublin against British rule.

Elsewhere in Northern Ireland the 1916 celebrations ended peacefully. The parades, which continue until Wednesday, have been sanctioned by the government. But as a precaution one of the most extensive security networks seen in Ulster has been mobilized, involving 10,000 British troops, 4,000 police and 2,000 members of the Ulster Defence Regiment, a civilian force.

The trouble Sunday began after two separate republican marches, each by rival factions of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, passed through the Bogside without incident.

Canadians Toasted

Chinese Welcome American Guests

PEKING (AP) — The warm welcome extended by the Chinese to the visiting U.S. table tennis team and three American reporters admitted to China to cover their tour offers encouraging prospects for wider people-to-people contacts between the Chinese and the Americans.

The Chinese warmly toasted the Canadian table tennis team at a banquet Saturday. The program for the Canadian visitors include inspection trips to factories, schools and "people's corporations."

The Canadians arrived Friday after competing in the world championships in Nagoya, Japan. Peking radio said that at the banquet the Canadian and Chinese players toasted the "constant growth of friendship" between the Canadian and Chinese people.

The radio said John MacLeod Fraser, charge d'affaires of the Canadian embassy in Peking, told the banquet that the Canadian team's visit definitely would promote mutual understanding between the people of Canada and China.

It said Li Ching-chuan, leading member of the All-China Sports Federation, declared that establishment of Canadian-Chinese diplomatic relations last year "showed the common desire of the people of the two countries."

The American table tennis team is the first U.S. group of any kind invited to the Chinese mainland since the People's Republic was proclaimed in 1949.

It is too soon to say that the barriers which have kept Americans out of China and Chinese out of the U.S. for so many years are coming down. But a hole has been made in the once impenetrable wall.

Not that official relations have changed or are about to do so. The Vietnam war and U.S. backing of Chiang Kai-shek bar the way to rapprochement. But the springlike warmth in U.S.-China contacts at this unofficial level cannot fail to melt some of the ice that has congealed in the long winter of hostility.

From the border to Peking, it was all smiles and handshakes.

AHEPA Comes to Belleville

Members of the Belleville Greek community filled the banquet room of the Sun Valley for the inauguration of the AHEPA Lee Grills M.P., Dr. R. T. Potter and Mayor Russell Scott all were on hand to congratulate the commencement of this group. A silver service, won by Socrates Kelpis, was raffled in honor of the evening's festivities. Alex Manjuris, (left), was elected vice-president and president, (right), is Chris Thoucalas.

City's Greek Community Forms AHEPA Chapter

The Greek community of Belleville met at the Sun Valley on Saturday night to inaugurate the Belleville chapter of the AHEPA organization.

Throughout Canada and the U.S.A. there are 400 existing groups, whose prime functions include education of members in the ways of their country, government, and, to some lesser extent throughout members both with themselves and with the rest of the community and, first, to promote loyalty to the country in which they live.

AHEPA, which stands for Anglo Hellenic Educational Progressive Association, is now in its 50th year of service throughout the world. It has contributed, in these 50 years, to such causes as relief of Florida hurricane victims, relief of Coolith earthquake victims, Kansas City flood relief and the Truman Library.

Support to local undertakings is of benefit to the organization, in charity, education and civic improvement.

The AHEPA family is composed of four groups including itself; the daughters of Penelope (senior women's auxiliary), the sons of Pericles (junior men's auxiliary) and Maids of Athena (junior women's auxiliary) are the other sub - groups which when all placed together involve every member of the Greek family in the AHEPA family.

A stipulation placed on an AHEPA member is that he becomes a citizen of the country in which he lives.

The AHEPA organization encourages all newcomers to Canada to become citizens and helps them toward this goal.

Of the 75 chapters in Canada, there has been an increase in enrolment of approximately 30,000.

The chapter was christened as the Mike Constantinou C. J. 28 in remembrance of the death of Mr. Constantinou.

The four cousins of Mike Constantinou, Harry and Angelo Tsaparilis, Gus and Ted Christopher, were all selected as officers of the organization.

President of the chapter is Chris Thoucalas.

Mayor J. R. Scott, one of the dignitaries present explained that although he was an Irishman, he knew these Greeks fairly well. As a matter of fact, he said, I know many of them from the bare facts having brought many of their babies into the world.

Lee Grills, MP, reminisced of his days as a milkman and how he had kept at least one Greek in the country in his earlier days as a politician.

Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP, gave his best wishes and said that in the light of past achievements of the AHEPA organization, that he was sure that only success could come from the newly formed Belleville chapter.

Supreme vice - president John Hadzipetros of Montreal was one of the guest speakers for the evening, giving sincere best wishes for the chapter.

Also in his address he included that the convention for AHEPA chapters will be in Ottawa this year.

Mr. Tsoucalas, president of the Belleville chapter, replied that the delegates representing Belleville at the Ottawa convention would be bidding for the next convention to be in Belleville.

He explained that the convention would bring $11 million worth of business to the host town.

At the close of the evening's festivities, a draw was held for a silver tea service inscribed with the name of the chapter.

Socrates Kelpis, winner of the raffle, admitted that it was the best five dollars he ever spent.

"THE COST OF LIVING IS DOWN"
Ordinarily making the above statement would leave us open not only to strong criticism but also to doubts about our sanity. However, what we means is — "The cost of staying alive," is down. And, this is very true. Hospital stays are usually very short, even for surgery and child birth, compared to just a few years ago.
Another reason the "Cost of Living" is down is that the new medicines that we are now stocking in the pharmacy are more potent and more specific. This means that with most illnesses your doctor can prescribe drugs that will help you to recover faster and lose less time from your regular work routine. We anticipate that the cost of staying alive will continue to decline.

To Air Suggested Changes In Urban Renewal Plan

Comments and amendment proposals for the city's downtown and Foster Ward urban renewal study plan will be heard at a special meeting on April 15 in the auditorium of Centennial Secondary School.

The meeting, sponsored by the citizen's advisory committee, is called for 7 p.m.

Since the urban renewal report was received more than a month ago from town planners Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, the proposals recommended in the plan have been closely considered by members of various citizens groups in the city.

These groups, as well as private individuals, are invited to the April 15 meeting to outline any amendments or thought advisable.

Following the meeting the amendments will be considered by the town planners for possible inclusion in the final report to be submitted for approval by city council.

Expert Suggests Hosing Lawns

Lawn areas that were buried under mountains of snow by street clearing crews during the past winter should be hosed thoroughly as soon as the snow disappears, according to the Canada Department of agriculture's plant research institute at Ottawa.

A specialist on the matter, W. E. Cordukes, says that a thorough soaking of these lawn areas will speed recovery of the grass by flushing away the salt left by the melted snowbanks.

The water soaking treatment, he says, can make the difference between a normal greenup on one hand and a prolonged recovery-period—or possibly even death of the grass — on the other.

"Chances are that the greater snowfall and increased street clearing operations will mean a more - than-usual amountof salt left on lawns from the melted snow banks," says the lawn specialist.

There may be more sand, too.

Clean up the sand and other debris first and then soak the lawn, advises Mr. Cordukes.

Following his advice can be a big step toward having a lawn that greens up quickly and evenly.

River Rising To Peak

With water levels gradually rising as the current is fed by melting snow from the northern limits of the watershed, Belleville area parents were warned today to keep their children away from the Moira River.

John Wuite, field officer for the Moira River Conservation Authority said creeks and smaller streams north of Belleville were badly swollen and the river level was rapidly rising as the water finds its way into the Moira.

"There is a heavy depth of snow still to melt in the northern part of the watershed and the river level is not expected to peak for another few days." Mr. Wuite said.

Rising spring flood waters in the lower reaches of the Moira River have forced suspension of the search for the body of Brian Talle Carter, 11 - year - old Corbyville boy who was drowned last Wednesday at Canifton.

Police scuba divers discontinued their search Saturday when the strengthening river currents made conditions too dangerous.

Police said the search will be resumed as soon as the spring flood waters abate.

"We'll take another look at the river on Saturday," stated a police spokesman.

Here We Go

For the third year running, the students of Loyalist College braved the waters of the mighty Moira River Sunday afternoon in their homemade rafts. Rubber innertubes tied together constituted a raft. Equipped with canoe paddles all rafts made it safe and wet to the harbor for celebration.

Traditionalist Is Dead at 81

He had developed a style and technique that holds an honored place in Canadian art and made a lasting mark, especially as a "colorist."

Mr. MacDonald created a lasting record of many aspects of Canadian life although he had a special preference for rural settings. This record caught such disappearing facets of Canadian heritage as the village smithy, horse-and-oxen-drawn implements and water-powered grist and lumber mills.

But he also recorded accurately, with perception and feeling, the transition of life today.

The Quinte-born artist for years headed a group of traditionalist painters who repeatedly attacked the modernist influence in Canadian art. This led to his resignation from the Ontario Society of Artists in 1931.

His paintings, The Barn, Winter and Fisherman, and Lake Ontario, hang in the National Art Gallery in Ottawa.

Mr. MacDonald was the centre of criticism just over 10 years ago when he was chosen by the Toronto Board of Control to paint the Toronto skyline for presentation to The Queen during her royal tour in 1959.

Opponents to the selection felt his style was too old-fashioned to suit the Queen's tastes.

In 1965 he claimed modernists blocked the showing of his canvases at the Canadian National Exhibition and that young artists who failed to subscribe to the modernist trend were being denied exhibition facilities.

He studied at the Albright Art School, Buffalo, at the Boston Museum of Fine Art, and at the Ontario College of Art. He was commissioned by the Imperial Government in 1918 to do a series of canvases for the Canadian war memorial.

His canvases are represented in private collections in Canada, the U.S.A. and abroad, including Great Britain, Australia, India and South America.

The two-hour presentation begins at 7 p.m. and features a new selection of songs and a greater accent on solo performances. There will be no admission charge.

Room Gutted By Fire

TRENTON (Staff) — An Easter Sunday fire gutted a single room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Matheson at 23 Mercia Street.

Trenton Fire Department had two trucks on the scene minutes after an alarm call at 10:15 a.m. The duplex residence is almost across the Trent River from the fire hall.

Damage to the home was not extensive, because doors and windows of the bedroom where the blaze erupted were closed, helping to contain the flames, a department spokesman said this morning.

He said firefighters stayed on the premises for an hour and the blaze is still under investigation. No announcement has been made as to the cause of the incident.

Political Action Topic

TRENTON (Staff) — The Quinte District Labor Council meeting here tomorrow night is scheduled to discuss whether it will throw its weight behind the New Democratic Party in the upcoming provincial election.

There is a feeling among some of the membership that the council should endorse the party," Bob Andrus, president of the QDLC said today.

He indicated it is not possible now to gauge the extent of the support and how far members would like to go in giving assistance to political groups that it favors.

William Menzies, a labor council member and president of Quinte Liberals, says a request will come from the floor during the Tuesday meeting at Canterbury Hall that political action fronts be divided among the political parties in proportion to their support from the membership.

Hellp!

Looking for help or possibly inspiration, these Loyalist College students were hanging on for dear life yesterday as they entered the swirling waters past Lazier's Dam. All six teams on the Moira River Rapid Run managed to make it to Victoria

Rapid Runners Reach Goal

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Looking somewhat like drowned rats but grinning from ear to ear, 35 Loyalist College students yesterday emerged triumphant from their third annual Moira River Rapid Run . . . the first year all participants arrived at the Victoria Park destination.

Plans for the 1971 event came on with a rush Friday and Saturday as amateur carpenters and scavengers prepared the six rafts for the onslaught. Large truck inner tubes, gathered from area garages, were strapped on the wooden frames to provide not only a more buoyant ride, but a safer one as well.

Launched at the Highway 401 ramp just west of Canniffton road, the first raft got under way at 1.15 p.m. yesterday.

"We didn't start at Canniffton this year, in deference to last week's tragedy," organizer Mike Barrett said this morning.

"The OPP were wonderful in keeping everything organized at the 401 ramp where the launch took place," he said.

Only bumps and bruises were experienced by the team members of which seven were girls. Apart from a thorough drenching, even in wetsuits, only two students went for a swim.

On the first raft, Barry Woo took to the foaming waters, but eventually caught up with his raft, pulled in before any of the 25-man college rescue teams were called in. Second swimmer of the day was Mike Johnson, flung off at the CNR railway bridge below College street, he too was pulled back onto the raft.

Most dangerous portion of the route was Lazier's Dam. The higher the water, the less chance of hitting rocks, explained Mr. Barrett. However, a dangerous whirlpool at the rapids required some mad paddling by crew members to avoid being sucked into the trash. With legs, arms, and those two previously mentioned instances . . . bodies, the students made their way among the dips and gullies of the rapids.

It was at this point in 1969, first year of the run, that near - tragedy occurred. Unfamiliarity with canoes resulted in all but two of the vessels cracking up on the rocks or overturning. The only girl to participate in the first event, Dianna Wales, got dragged under the water's surface at the rapids. According to one member of the 1969 rescue team, "it was pretty close."

Only male students tackled the river last year, all but one team on similar rafts. The single canoe capsized. However, the seven girls riding the waves this year were in a safer situation. "This trip will be a lot of fun . . . a challenge," commented one aspiring raft - rider in an interview last month.

Another explained her desire for the trip. "I'm going because I've never done it before."

Although not a race, the event held a certain amount of competition for the participants. Each craft crew worked as a team to ensure proper equipment was provided and the eight-by-ten foot rafts were properly constructed.

It was all a matter of hustling - to obtain the 80 inner tubes required for construction of the rafts.

Every vessel arrived safely, crews intact but much the worse for wear from the battle of the 42-mile-an-hour river and the constant spray of 34-degree river water. Heated cars, warm blankets and coffee greeted the travellers as they emerged from the river at Victoria Park.

Th event was all over by 2.15 p.m., each raft released at 10 - minute intervals. More than 1,000 people lined the shores, including a movie team from Loyalist which recorded the trip.

"It couldn't have been arranged better," concluded Mr. Barrett.

Lessons of the Rail Dispute

Collective Bargaining Procedure Seen as 'Archaic'

The Globe and Mail

Canada has narrowly averted the costly and damaging effects of a nationwide rail strike, thanks largely to the indefatigability of Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey and some of his senior staff.

It was only because of the direct intervention of Mr. Mackasey that negotiators for the country's two major railways, and their 4,300 engineers were able to reach an agreement a scant five hours before the deadline set by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

But while there is a measure of relief in viewing the results of Mr. Mackasey's efforts, surely the events of this past historic weekend provide proof that the mechanisms for solving such disputes are hopelessly archaic.

Here we are presented with the spectacle of a Minister of Labor in far from robust health forced into a situation that demands he spend three sleepless nights attempting to bring together two sides in a dispute that's been going on for well over a year?

Meanwhile, the third party in the dispute — the thousands upon thousands of other workers who would be thrown out of work or lose the markets for their products — are given no voice in the bargaining. Walkoffs before the strike deadline make certain that the third party will be the loser in matter what agreement is reached by labor and the railways. No wonder there are signs of relief when round-the-clock talks bring an end to the strike threat — even at the cost of pay increases of nearly 25 percent over three years.

What must be remembered, however, is that Mr. Mackasey conceded long before the settlement that the Government would have to order the men back to work if the strike occurred. In other words, the Government had recognized its responsibility to the voiceless third party but not to the point of preventing suffering to the innocents in the first place.

When will the Government find the courage to set down in law those services which are so essential they cannot be dislocated to assert the rights of the few? Hydro workers, hospital staff, police forces already fall in this category and so should railway workers.

Procedures must be devised that take account of the worker's right to a reasonable agreement if such agreement cannot be achieved by negotiation but, at the same time, provide some protection to the vast majority of Canadians who have no place at the bargaining table but whose livelihood is at stake.

Ottawa Journal

The railways and their unions with Labor Minister Mackasey as co-producer, or at least stage manager, have put the country through another one of their "Perils of Pauline" routines. The grinding down of rail service, the all - night bargaining, the red-eyed and hoarse-voiced negotiators, the settlement hours before the strike deadline: it is a familiar scenario, and one that does not say much for the level of sophistication which the collective bargaining process has reached. A year has gone by, after all, since the last contract expired. It is a little hard to hail the whole thing as a great triumph of sweet reason and mutual statesmanship.

But the feeling of relief across the country is genuine.

A question which cannot be answered immediately is how much the settlement has set back the fight against inflation.

A contract giving annual pay increases of eight per cent for the first two years and seven per cent for the third is considerably lower than 20 per cent over two years, the original union demand.

But the railways and Mr. Mackasey have bought their peace for a price.

Last week Dr. John Young, chairman of the Prices and Incomes Commission said that if the country was going to achieve price stability and "if there is to be any relief at all from the current squeeze on farm incomes and profits, it is difficult to see how wages and salaries can increase at an average rate much in excess of four to five per cent."

Eight per cent is 100 per cent more than four per cent; if the railway unions rightly say that their eight per cent is no more than professors or nurses or other groups of wage-earners received last year and will probably receive again this year, that simply underlines the failure of the nation's policy of incomes restraint.

Dr. Young made the fundamental point which many Canadians cannot seem to accept: if prices are to rise less rapidly, 'someone's income will have to rise less rapidly' as well — that of employees, management, the self - employed farmers, shareholders, property owners, investors, or the incomes of all these groups at the same time."

Dief Hits Out

John Diefenbaker made some telling points in the Commons recently with regard to Mr. Trudeau's Government reorganization measure which would create additional ministries of state and parliamentary secretaries. It is a move which Mr. Diefenbaker says smacks of political patronage and is being taken "in order to keep in line back bench members in supporting the government."

The former Conservative leader and Prime Minister said if the bill became law and the additional departments were established, since such appointments were for a two-year period then 110 of 155 Liberal members would have held a position of some kind from cabinet minister to minister of state to parliamentary secretary.

"In other words," Mr. Diefenbaker continued, "Parliament is being asked to provide jobs for hungry members who are desirous of holding some title or place, not forgetting that various amounts up to $15,000, in the case of ministers of state will be available. There is every opportunity to appoint ministers without portfolio, but to positions only paying $10,000, and therefore the government decided it would set up another group known as ministers of state."

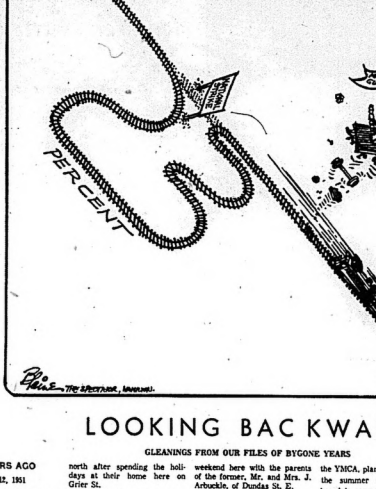
* * *

Having needled the government side, and the absent Mr. Trudeau, in characteristic fashion, Mr. Diefenbaker heaped further coals on administration heads with quotes from Voltaire to whom the Prime Minister had also referred some days previous. "The explanation," he said, for what is being done is that it will provide flexibility and efficiency.

This causes me to quote the words of Voltaire . . . who said: 'There are some men who use thought only to justify their wrong doings, and speak only to conceal their thoughts.' That is what is happening here. . ."

Continuing, Mr. Diefenbaker then quoted from a Penguin classic book entitled Machiavelli The Prince: "The fact is that a man who wants to act virtuously in every way necessarily comes to grief among so many who are not virtuous one might reflect here that princes can be influenced by the lowest common denominator in matters of morals, drug abuse and all the rest of it). Therefore, if a prince wants to maintain his rule he must learn how not to be virtuous, and to make use of this or not according to his need." Then again, "he should not deviate from what is good, if that is possible, but he should know how to do evil, if that is necessary." And this: "a prudent ruler cannot, and should not, honor his word when it places him at a disadvantage and when the reasons for which he made his promise no longer exist — a prince will never lack good excuses to color his bad faith. . ."

The cabinet, said the veteran member for Prince Albert, deserves to be mentioned and Machiavelli says: " . . . a shrewd prince should adopt a middle way, choosing wise men for his government, and only to them only, 'the Prime Minister did not follow that principle.' Then came this pointed Machiavellian observation: " . . . allowing only those the freedom to speak-freely to him, and then only concerning matters on which he asks their opinion, and nothing else."



* * *

Well, Mr. Diefenbaker was having his usual fun, to the Government's discomfort, for who would deny that Dief's shafts were finding their mark. The quotations could be applicable to many other situations in life too, as we suggested at one point.

The theme has occupied considerable debating time in the House, with Mr. Diefenbaker and George Hees, the member for Prince Edward-Hastings among others, spearing the Government with like-minded barbs. The Liberals, said Mr. Diefenbaker, would be choosing as their axes "to cut out the Barrel," for over the years there had been nothing to equal the clauses before the House " in respect of the interest they provide for members of the Liberal party." Next day Mr. Hees took up the "barrel" theme, and noted that if the legislation passed, the government "would be quite justified in establishing, without further reference to Parliament, five new departments, and without demonstrating any need whatsoever for any of them."

"We see this proposal," he said, as a colossal waste, justified by the government's great desire to expand its patronage and the power it has in its hands. . ."

Which of course is what governments tend to do when they already have power. Would things be apy different whatever the party in power?

In Praise of Small Communities

Ottawa Journal

Small towns, the cynics say, are great places to be from. They think every out of the way village rolls up its streets at 10 each night. Maybe so. But there is fun to be had in finding out where they put them.

Mackenzie's magazine is advising readers planning vacations this year to think small. The magazine selected one small town in each province, visited each and has provided some pretty good reasons why we should.

Places like Salvage, Newfoundland, where the writer observed: "My wife started pricing real estate before we'd even been there two hours."

Stanley Bridge, Prince Edward Island:

"You're driving along High way 6 near the north coast of Prince Edward Island, between the soft green wheat fields, up a curving hill, and suddenly you turn a corner and come upon a view of such heart-wrenching beauty that you almost put the car into the ditch."

Bloodvein, Manitoba:

"and strangers are greeted with 'Well, where are you folks from?'"

Armstrong, British Columbia:

"You find yourself stopping for a flock of chickens in your path . . ."

When vacationers can board a jet and be in Paris in six hours what's so attractive about a dot on a concession road?

Charm, beauty, honest folks, clean air, clear water, main streets abuzz on a Saturday and the absence of cynics. The cynics all left for the big city.

Mercury Pollution Issue Placed in Perspective

Letter to The Montreal Gazette

There have been several articles in the newspapers recently on the subject of mercury pollution that have been adding to the already confused situation. It is misleading to imply that the ban on fishing in the St. Lawrence River was caused by mercurial contaminants from the pulp and paper mills on this river.

No pulp and paper mill on the St. Lawrence River has used mercurial slimicides since 1968. About a half of the pulp and paper mills in Quebec never did use mercurials and the amounts used were very small and the amounts in the effluents were much smaller still. The pulp and paper industry does not wish to whitewash itself at the expense of others but there are mercurial contaminants from other sources in addition to those which occur naturally.

There has been close co-operation between the pulp and paper industry and the officials of the Regie des Eaux of Quebec. The mills individually report regularly to the Regie so that the staff is aware of the position of each mill.

It is our opinion that nothing is really gained by damning whether by implication or innuendo, an industry that is trying to be a responsible corporate citizen. Similarly, in the long run, nothing is to be gained by playing one provincial department against another, as is done in The Gazette article.

The quotation from a "highly placed official in the Quebec Health Department" is in itself pure "nonsense," because if you do a census of the pulp and paper operations in the river system, you will learn that none of them is "dumping" mercurials.

With open flippers the University of Guelph has welcomed eight new seals to its campus.

The new seals, like their relatives already at the university, will be subjected to extensive experimentation under the direction of Prof. Keith Ronald, Guelph's noted scientist who was recently appointed dean of the new College of Biological Science at the university.

The new "Guelph eight," six females and two pup seals, arrived on campus about 11 p.m. after leaving the cool comfort of an ice floe in the Gulf of St. Lawrence at 10 a.m. and flying tourist on an Air Canada jet via Moncton, N.B., and Montreal prior to settling down at Toronto International Airport.

At present, the university has a team of 15 scientists studying everything from the seal's organs to its life cycle, using a variety of experimental techniques.

Experiments which will begin soon at the university will be directed at determining how oxygen is utilized in the seal's brain during a dive.

The study of seals could yield valuable information. According to Prof. Ronald, the ability of the harp seal to regulate its heart beat and blood circulation could have application to open heart surgery.

These extraordinary abilities would also help humans adapt to moving under the ocean.

To date, seal studies at Guelph have already spawned some interesting observations.

Experiments involving training seals to open a simple indicate that seals have extremely sensitive hearing — much more so than humans. They also indicate that seals are very sensitive to light, however they are less so since the iris of their eyes — similar to a cat — in order to protect the sensitive retina from bright lights.

Studies of the anatomy show that seals have specialized structures for balancing and pressure equalization.

To conduct his experiments on the ice, Prof. Ronald and his crew have assembled a complex array of electronic equipment and during its studies on the Magdalen Islands, the team works with the federal department of fisheries.

The scientists travel by helicopter to seal breeding grounds on the ice floes from the islands.

This year the on-the-ice projects include the making of air and underwater sound recordings before, during and after the birth of pups.

At this point Guelph scientists have identified 24 distinct underwater calls including a strange high - frequency click.

1971 B.C. Dollar

In 1871, the province of British Columbia joined Confederation. This commemorative nickel dollar bears part of the coat of arms of the province plus B.C.'s floral emblem. This particular coin can be obtained, in limited quantities, from area banks but the numismatic section of the Royal Canadian Mint has also released Canada's first silver dollar since 1967. This silver coin, available only through the mint, also commemorates the 100th anniversary of B.C. entering Confederation. The special coin, available by money order from Coins Uncirculated, P.O. Box 470, Ottawa, is being sold for $3.

ANAF News

From Sunday April 18 to Saturday April 24 has been designated Air Cadet Week and the local squadron, 608, sponsored by Unit 201, will be joining cadets all across Canada to celebrate the corps' 30th anniversary. The lads will be out in force Friday and Saturday selling their tags. Please give generously as the cadets are worthy of your support.

The Sergeants' Mess Ladies' Darts are finishing their season with a banquet at the Sun Luck Gardens and returning to the mess for the presentation of trophies and prizes. It was a very successful season.

Close to 150 guests and veterans attended the annual Vimy Banquet held in the Legion Hall and, besides enjoying a real good roast beef dinner, heard a very stirring address from the guest speaker, Cde. Earl Brant, Deputy District Commander, RCL. He advised that the veterans' organizations should quit being a silent majority and raise their voices to do whatever is possible to combat the growing use of drugs before it is too late; especially among the youth of Canada.

The Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 will be hosts to 50 members of Montreal Unit 308 on Sat. Apr. 17. In the afternoon there will be a sports program for both ladies and gents followed by dancing and entertainment in the evening. The president is looking for a good turnout of members and their ladies to help welcome these guests in the club's first inter-provincial meet, a forerunner to many more, it is hoped.

On Thursday April 22 the members will get the chance of seeing and appreciating those fine young folks who so splendidly upheld the honor and prestige of Belleville at the Canadian winter games at Saskatoon. The Apollo Barbell Club can be justifiably proud of the combined efforts of their champions and the tireless efforts of their manager and coach, Keon Carr-Briant.

The four medallists, two gold, one silver and one bronze, will give demonstrations of the strength and coordination that enabled them to win.

Results of the Saturday dart matches are as follows: No. 1 doubles winners, Doug Hall and Russ Bland; runners up, Ted Newman and Dick Burns. No. 2 doubles winners, Bill Totten and Bill Salter; runners up, Pat Boyle and Chuck Lloyd. No 3 doubles winners, Ron Mansfield and Chuck Lloyd; runners up, Jim Asselstine and Reg Workman.

In the evening the last Mr. and Mrs. matches were held before the playoffs. Winners: Linda and Fred Lundrigan; runners up, Ruth and George Woodhouse. The sports chairman has all the winners and runners up names for the season and asks them to be on time for the playoffs on Saturday, April 24. There should be plenty of fine dart throwing and excitement. Join the group and root for your favorite couple. It is hoped that Cde. Marion Dracup will be at the playoffs and present the Harold Dracup Memorial Trophy o the winning pair. There will be a number of other awards also.

No. 49 Ladies' Auxiliary Darts League had their banquet and presentation last Monday and President John Browning and 2nd vice Hank Ford were guests and presented trophies to the winners.

The following comrades are in the Belleville General Hospital: L. Vance, 724, A. Austin, 661, H. Dunphy, 613, J. R. Boyle, 726, A. Glew, 729 and J. Lazenby, 606. A Semark and R. Woods are resting at home.

Rash of Weekend Break-ins

A total of seven break-ins reported over Easter, contributed to "a bad weekend," said Belleville Police Chief Douglas T. Crabbe this morning.

Worst in the series appears to have occurred at Hillcrest Public School. Chief Crabbe said all of the school's classrooms had been ransacked sometime before 11.52 a.m. Saturday. Entry, gained through a broken door at the southwest of the school, netted the thief or thieves several chocolate bars, apparently all that was taken.

At Centennial Secondary School, sweet - tooth culprits made a bee-line to the cafeteria refrigerator. Several ice cream bars were removed subsequently smeared on the face of several windows. The broken west side door was discovered shortly before 4 p.m.

Most costly of the weekend break-ins appears to be a $300 loss from an apartment over the Shrine Club, 81 Highland Avenue. Between 7.30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday, a person or persons unknown entered the apartment through a rear window, and expropriated the $300 in cash.

Another supply of cash, $60 in all, was reported missing by Mrs. Raymond Thibault, 168 Wright Avenue. A window of the residence was opened sometime between Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Nothing else was reported missing.

Paul Warrington of 87 Pinnacle Street, reported a shotgun and approximately $12 in cash removed from his home late Saturday or early Sunday.

The Belleville Family YMCA wasn't overlooked. A door on the north-west corner was sprung. Less than a dollar was removed from the soft drink dispenser.

Police looked with special disgust on the entry of the Standard Church on Coleman Street sometime between Thursday and Saturday. A window on the north side was opened . . . no damage reported, but "several pennies were missing from the collection box," said Chief Crabbe.

Soviet Culture Ruled by Woman

MOSCOW (AP) — At the centre of the Soviet Union's latest culture crisis is a sometimes sweet, sometimes acid, blue-eyed grandmother whom many a literary Russian knows as "Nasha Katya"—Our Katie.

Most of the foreign flak flew in her direction when Soviet officialdom recently punished its finest cellist for defending the right of its greatest living novelist to be read.

The culture crisis is a matter of urgent concern to the ruling Soviet party.

Yekaterina A. Furtseva, Soviet culture minister, is used to foreign blasts. She has been in her post a record 11 years and her background has taught her how to answer.

"You live the way you want, and let us live our life," she has told foreign critics of Soviet censorship. "But let us have mutual respect."

Once a powerful official, close to former premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, Mrs. Furtseva now takes her orders from party culture overseers and serves as the personal link between them and Russia's writers, artists and musicians.

Thus it was her unpleasant task to try to persuade cellist Mstislav Rostropovich, "Slava's to her, to reinstate a Paris concert after the Kremlin had humiliated him by ordering it cancelled."

The Kremlin order, which was intended to punish Rostropovich for his friendship with and defence of banned novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, had offended the French so deeply that Mrs. Furtseva was told to try to see to rescheduling.

Rostropovich made himself "unavailable" for three days, then finally told her by telephone he would not co-operate.

The Rostropovich-Solzhenitsyn affair probably brought more telegrams and letters of protest into Mrs. Furtseva's ministry than anything since she took office in 1960.

She could afford to ignore the letters, confident that Soviet performing artists are so much in demand that they will draw packed houses whatever their domestic troubles may be.

She can also afford to tell foreign correspondents to stop "poking your noses" into her country's internal affairs—as she did when one asked her about the Rostropovich-Solzhenitsyn affair recently.

Mrs. Furtseva is a true believer in the system that made her what she is today. Her volatile personality and her taste for publicity have set her apart from the dullness of most Kremlin leaders.

She holds forth at news conferences, her favorite forum, at least twice a year, capitivating foreign journalists with her charm, or exploding into violent indignation, depending on whether she considers the question friendly.

She rarely makes herself available for private interviewing, probably because she is smothered in administrative work covering that theyion's libraries, theatres, movie houses, museums and performing artists. Her diplomatic duties take her abroad more than most government ministers and she defends "Socialist realism" to Communist admirers and sometimes incredulous Western culture figures alike.

She became so agitated at one American correspondent last December that she apologized for "answering so heatedly" after she had delivered a withering attack on him and the West in general.

Now grey-blonde and slightly stooped, she is still coquettish enough to bat television lights and cameras when she is using her glasses. At 60, her face is deeply lined but she still has traces of the beauty of her younger years.

She is part of the Soviet government's only husband-and-wife team. The other half is Nikolai P. Firyubin, a deputy foreign minister who specializes in Asian affairs such as relations with North Vietnam.

She is the only woman ever to be culture minister, and the only woman ever to rise to membership in the party's elite Presidium—now Politburo—where she served Khrushchev in 1957-61.

Yekaterina Furtseva was trained as a weaver. In 1924 at the age of 14, she became a Komsomol member—a young Communist. Six years later, accepted as a full party member, she plunged into party work.

French Women Now Taller And Slimmer

PARIS (AP) — French women are taller and slimmer than they used to be and have lower and flatter bust lines.

These are some of the preliminary conclusions Sunday of a survey by the women's apparel industry.

Compared with 10 years ago, the French woman under 35 is about a centimetre taller. She also has lost a centimetre from each of the vital statistics, bust, waist and hips. A centimetre is .39 of an inch.

Compared with 1900, the waistline is down by five centimetres, or 1.97 inches.

Women over 35 have gained one centimetre around the waist, however, compared with 10 years ago.

Generally speaking, the survey said, the French woman has a rounder back, better developed shoulders, thicker ankles and longer feet than before.

While no average figures were given, the survey quoted dress designer Pierre Balmain as describing "the most elegant" figure this way: Height, five feet seven inches, and the bust, waist and hips respectively 34½ 21¾ and 34½.

Feelings hurt? Don't sulk, but smile ... especially if the one who has said the ungry words apologizes.

This Nigerian Dish May Be A Hit with Guests

By MARY MOORE

Deirdre is the wife of the former High Commissioner to Nigeria and served this curry at a luncheon attended by Marianne, my daughter. Marianne praised it so much that when I met Deirdre later I asked her to describe it to me and she graciously did.

I have made it twice and had guests the second time, one of whom had visited Nigeria and pronounced it the "real thing".

DEIRDRE'S WEST AFRICAN CURRY

(Serves 8

4 cups chicken broth (see below)
3 lbs. boneless, skinless raw chicken (see below)
¼ cup butter
2 med. onions chopped finely
2 tbsps. flour
2 to 2½ tsps. curry powder (or more)
1½ tsps. salt
¼ tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. turmeric
2 tsps. sugar
1½ tbsps. lemon juice
½ cup salted, skinless peanuts (optional)
8 hard-cooked eggs

Put all chicken bones on to cook in soup pot with 5 cups water to produce broth for later.

Hard-cook and chill and peel the eight eggs.

Your butcher may do the boning of the chicken for you. If not buy at least 4½ lbs. breasts and settle down at a board with a sharp knife and bone the breasts and cut the flesh into large chunks.

In a very large frying pan melt the butter and in it saute the chicken pieces for about 10 min. over med. heat. Transfer chicken pieces to a holding bowl or plate.

To the butter in pan add the onion, flour, curry powder, salt, ginger, turmeric, sugar and lemon juice and blend into butter. Stir in the 4 cups chicken broth until it thickens a little. Return chicken to pan, add peanuts (if used and I recommend them). Cover and simmer 1 hr. Add the whole peeled hard-cooked eggs. (I am told these symbolize a welcome to each guest and they are a unique conversation maker and delicious addition for they absorb the curry flavor.) Cover and simmer ½ hr. longer.

Serve with rice and 5 or 6 of these SIDE DISHES: 1) 1 large unpared Soy apple chopped and moistened with lemon juice; 2) 2 oranges chopped, white membrane removed; 3) 2 bananas chopped and moistened with lemon juice to prevent browning; 4) 2 tomatoes chopped skin on; 5) 1 cup unsweetened (preferably fresh, raw) grated coconut; 6) chopped green pepper; 7) chopped green onion; 8) chopped grapefruit (white membrane removed).

NOTE: I served ours in the shallow dish with the sides chalking resounding success because of its flavor and novelty. Everybody wants the recipe now.

Successful Living

Books Can Be Like Helpful Friends

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Do you know something? I like people easily but I don't like being with them. When someone comes to our farm I sometimes run and hide. I had a boy friend several months ago but that's over. I'd much rather sit and talk than neck and pet. I'd like to talk about things like life, God and people.

My parents never once talked to me about life or sex or anything and I'm scared to bring problems to them. Please don't advise any books. All I want is someone to tell me straight out the truth about life.

Who am I anyway, and what am I doing in a place like this Earth? Sometimes I wish I wasn't born. I want somebody to talk to and tell me they feel the same about things as I do.

We had play practice today and everybody ignored me so I sat there all the time and felt sorry for myself. — Nobody Loves Me

Dear Nobody: God loves you. Your parents love you. Your schoolmates would like you if you let them — but they are accepting your obvious desire to clam up. With your ideals, I think you would be a pretty nice girl to know.

Thoughtful young people everywhere ask questions about God.

You can't dodge the questions and you can't dodge life. Try again to talk to your parents and if this doesn't work find an aunt, uncle, doctor, lawyer or teacher to help you grapple with these things.

As for the facts of life, what is different about reading what someone put down in book form and having me put something in a letter to you? Books can be warm and helpful friends. Choose something from the list I am sending you and get started on it.

Dear Doris: I met a nice gent. As he is 200 miles from where I live, we have been corresponding. He hinted in one of his letters he would like to visit me, so I invited him to my home.

We spent a lovely evening together. Since he came such a long distance, I thought I should ask if he would like to stay overnight, but he said if I would sleep with him, then he would! When I said I was not a loose woman and it was against my principles, he did not stay too long but put on his coat and left.

Perhaps it was not proper for me to make the suggestion, but coming all that way to see me and just staying about four hours — I was disappointed, but he did say he would see me again.

Do you think he just wanted to see if I was a loose woman? If he really was interested in me wouldn't he have suggested seeing me the next day; and have stayed in a hotel? — Disappointed

Dear Disappointed: Your habit of hospitality was misplaced this time. It's ok with lady friends, but not with the boys!

Either he was: (1) too embarrassed at your reaction to turn up again, or (2) disappointed in an anticipated soft berth.

If he is made of the right stuff, he'll come again.

* * *

Confidential to Fifteen and In Love: Don't ask the boy you like for a date! Let him do the asking.

You'll scare him off if you try to take over. For a reply to a berry, you should have sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

(If something is troubling you, there's help to be had. Write to Doris for another slant on your difficulty.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I always take a sack of toys along when Grandmother babysits. She doesn't have room in her small apartment or we could leave some of the children's playthings there."

Grandmother: "I don't have any toys, but there are plenty of things we can do. We could make some dolls out of clothespins and doll clothes with some pretty scraps of fabric I have."

An afternoon without toys can be an adventure. Use your imagination and introduce children to some of the old-fashioned creative fun of an earlier time.

Ann Landers

Berated for Opinion On Homosexuals

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I resent your consistent portrayal of homosexuals as an immoral, antisocial, obnoxious segment of society. I especially take exception to the letter from the Arizona homosexual. Why it is you would not allow the words "kike" or "nigger" to get into print, yet you let the word "queer" appear in your column, even though it is offensive to 20 million Americans. (Kinsey's statistics.) Furthermore, your conclusion that the straight student was approached often because he was "prettier than most guys" is a stereotypical fallacy — pure fiction.

ANN LANDERS

Why do you treat 10 per cent of your readership as though there is no good side to their life style? Your low opinion of homosexuals is apparent from the selection of the letters you choose to print. Get with it or give up. — MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL GAY LIBERATION ALLIANCE.

* * *

DEAR GAY LIB: The letter below might be of interest to you since it deals with the same subject.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is one of the sincerest thank-yous you'll ever receive. I've always believed that only a homosexual could understand what it is like to be persecuted by ignorant people, but you, Ann Landers, have displayed unusual understanding. As a 23-year-old homosexual, I can tell you it's a rough life to be rejected and humiliated, but for boys 15 and 16 it's pure hell.

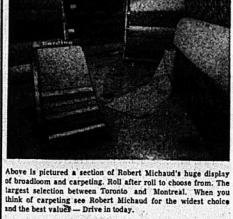
I appreciate your compassion. You are one person who prints the truth about homosexuality. Please keep reminding your readers that the trouble with the world is not that some people make love differently but that they don't love at all. — Love to you, Ann Landers. — EVANSTON.

* * *

DEAR EVANSTON: Everyone likes to be appreciated. Thanks for writing.

And now, a word to Gay Lib who says I am misinformed. Sorry, you're wrong. It is no stereotypical fallacy that pretty males attract homosexuals. "Pink Tea Queens" (as they are called) are well aware of their girlish good looks and they use it to an advantage. This information comes to me from the homosexuals themselves and not from third-party researchers.

* * *



DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am nearly 17 and have had this problem for over a year. Whenever I am asked for a date I get real excited about it and I look forward to having a good time. So what happens? About ten minutes before the guy shows up I get a stomache ache. By the time he arrives I feel rotten. I have these pains the whole evening and it's all I can do to force a smile and pretend I'm having fun. It kills me to see other girls laughing and enjoying themselves while I'm in pain — wishing I was dead.

Please tell me how to get over this ridiculous thing. I am SICK OF GETTING SICK.

DEAR S.O.G.S.: Go to a doctor and learn whether or not an organic problem is causing the pain. Chances are that the trouble is not in your stomach but higher up — like in your head.

People who are uptight, fearful and unsure of themselves often develop physical symptoms. Stomach aches and headaches are the most common. Hopefully the doctor will give you some medication or suggest counseling. Maybe both.

Che Guevara Rebels Outnumber Ceylon's Army

"I know it's too tight, but it will give me a goal to shoot for in my dieting."

KEGALLA (AP) — "We'll be killed tomorrow," said the policeman in this district centre 40 miles from Colombo, Ceylon's capital. He chuckled, but nervously.

The police post at Kegalla is the only one in a district of 700 square miles that hasn't been burned or abandoned since young ultra-leftists went to war against the government a week ago.

Nearby, a few officers rolled out a single strand of barbed wire between the post and a rice paddy over which officials said they were sure an attack would soon come. In front of the post were a few sandbags and an ancient decorative cannon rooted in cement.

Twelve of the 120 policemen have deserted. Another 170 soldiers were in the district also.

The rebels, called Che Guevarists for the Cuban revolutionary, occupy hills across the length of the island. They are estimated to number about 80,000, while the government's forces are believed to total about 25,000.

The rebel positions are in temples and schools running from Anuradhapura, the ancient Buddhist capital 134 miles northeast of Colombo, to Galle, the old Portuguese stronghold 70 miles south of Colombo.

They attack at night, fighting government forces by day only when attacked, as in a pitched battle Saturday in which they lost an estimated 200 men.

Total deaths range near 1,000, best estimates available say, running perhaps 10 to 1 against the insurgents.

Villagers report the insurgents are well fed by rural dwellers, either voluntarily or at gunpoint. Some say rebel leaders have raided villages and have taken every youth between 14 and 16 to join their ranks.

"They take our young girls," sobbed one bus driver at the police post. "Look at what is happening. Please do something."

Government aircraft have strafed some insurgent positions but apparently caused few casualties as the rebels disperse, guerrilla style, and regroup later.

The government forces are bolstered, and many have gone sleepless since the crisis started April 5.

"Look at me," said one official. "I haven't slept in six nights. I'm at the end of my tether."

Intelligence sources say the rebel movement began in 1964, but was not uncovered until two years later. The youths trained secretly in the jungle with homemade weapons and bombs.

When the insurrection started, they had lists of civilians with gun permits, went around to each and seized thousands of weapons.

They overran some police posts, taking ammunition and then setting fire to the posts. A number of police burned to death.

Defences are light in this lush little tea-growing isle at the tip of India. The security forces were caught by surprise and had little time to organize.

Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike and some of her ministers are under heavy guard at her official residence in Colombo.

Occasional communiques report the situation is under control, with only pockets of resistance left. But informed sources said the government had asked the United States for six helicopters. The sources said Washington had agreed to supply spare parts for four helicopters already owned by the Ceylonese air force but was still pondering the request for new machines.

The sources also reported that "friendly" countries had reinforced the air force with some planes, and four Indian and Pakistani pilots had come to Ceylon to fly against the rebels.

In Colombo, life outside of curfew hours is hectic, with people forming long lines at government co-operatives for rice and other foodstuffs. Banks are jammed when open.

Foreigners are not believed in danger.

Hellyer Would Fire Top Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP) — Paul Hellyer, former transport minister in Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet, says "probably fifty per cent" of the top two or three echelons of the public service should be replaced.

While many of the top public servants were well-motivated and brilliant, "some of them have been in Ottawa for 30 years and you get out of touch with what is going on in the real world."

Mr. Hellyer said the "Liberal elite" tends to inflict its point of view of society, "often not realizing what the real needs and aspirations of many less privileged members of society really are."

UN Experts Predict 6½ Billion in 2000

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations experts predict that there will be more than a billion people in Communist China by the year 1990 and more than a billion in India by the year 2000, when the world's population will total almost 6½ billion.

Those and other projections by the UN population division are in the latest issue of the monthly Bulletin of Statistics, circulated here during the weekend.

The latest comparable UN estimates of actual population, for mid-1969, are 740 million for Communist China, 537 million for India and 3½ billion for world.

The projections show that the world's population will top four billion by 1975; nearly five billion by 1985, 5½ billion by 1990, six billion by 1995, and 6.49 billion in 2000.

Between 1975 and 2000, they indicate, the population of the world's more developed regions will go from 1.14 billion to 1.45 billion and that of the less-developed regions from 2.87 billion to 5 billion.

The number of people in the Soviet Union—the world's third most populous country with an estimated 240 million in mid-1969—is figured to increase to 316 million in 1990 and 329 million in 2000.

The fourth-ranking United States, with an estimated 203 million people in mid-1969, is expected to have 219 million in 1975 and 252 million in 1985, the last year of projections for industrialized Western countries.

The world's annual population growth rate is projected to be two per cent in 1980-85, just as in 1975-80.

Orr Evens Bruins' Keel; Rangers Restrict Leafs

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston defenceman Bobby Orr got back into the record groove and New York Rangers finally discovered a successful formula in their National

BOBBY ORR

Hockey League quarter-finals Sunday night.

Orr scored three goals, the first time a defenceman has accomplished the feat in Stanley Cup play since 1927 when playoff marks were first recorded, to propel the Bruins to a 5-2 win over Montreal Canadiens and a tie in their best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

New York's persistent forechecking stymied Toronto Maple Leafs and the Rangers skated to a 4-2 win to even their series at two games each.

It was the first time since 1968—a span of 15 games—the Rangers had won a Stanley Cup game on the road.

The two series resume Tuesday night in Boston and New York.

Boston, the East Division schedule winner, and runner-up New York fell behind in their respective series Saturday, losing in Montreal and Toronto by 3-1 scores.

Orr, 23-year-old superstar from Parry Sound, Ont., who rewrote NHL scoring records for defencemen in each of the last two seasons, opened the Bruins' scoring Sunday, offsetting an earlier Montreal score by Frank Mahovlich.

His third went into an empty Montreal net after Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil removed goaltender Ken Dryden for a sixth attacker late in the game in a vain effort to tie the score. Boston's Don Awrey was serving a penalty at the time.

In Toronto, the Rangers' forechecking kept the listless Toronto club off balance and the New Yorkers capitalized with two power-play goals and another with one of their men in the penalty box to open a 4-0 lead before the Leafs could respond.

"I thought our club played very well, in fact a great game," said Boston coach Tom Johnson, "one that could compare to our best efforts during the season."

He gave full marks to Canadiens' rookie goaltender Ken Dryden,whose play had sparked their two playoff victories over the underdog Montrealers in the Bruins.

"The Canadiens got phenomenal goaltending from Dryden, and they made us work for everything we got," Dryden was called on to make 34 saves, all but five of them in the first two periods.

Phil Esposito, Bruins' record-setting scoring champion with 152 points during the regular season, called Dryden's first-period save on him "the most unbelievable stop I've ever seen made in hockey."

He said he had the former Cornell University star set up for an easy backhand score, only to have the goaltender's arm shoot out at the last instant to trap the puck.

It was a different story Saturday as the Canadiens seemed bent on upsetting the heavily-favored Bruins by taking their second straight playoff win behind Frank Mahovlich's two goals.

Despite the loss, Johnson said Saturday's effort was the best put out by Boston in the series, including their 3-1 win in the playoff opener at Boston Wednesday.

After Sunday's game, he said Boston had finally reached the calibre of play it exhibited best during the season on its way to shattering at least 35 single-season records.

Ranger coach Emile Francis got vocal support from his Toronto counterpart, John McLellan, when he said the key to winning their series will be a team's ability to score first in the game.

But that's where togetherness ended.

Francis said the Rangers exhibited in Sunday's game the sound positional skating that made them the most respected team in the East — outside of Boston.

The former NHL goaltender who is also general manager with the Rangers, said the big difference Sunday was that his players "weren't standing still."

"We know where we gotta beat them: forechecking them right in their own end."

Rangers No. 1 line of centre Jean Ratelle, flanked by Rod Gilbert and Vic Hadfield, the line many observers said Toronto had to stop to win the series, did their own stopping in Sunday's encounter.

They buzzed the Leaf goal almost unmolested throughout the game and only brilliant back-stopping by goaltender Bernie Parent early kept the sluggish Toronto club from folding in the first period.

BOB NEVIN

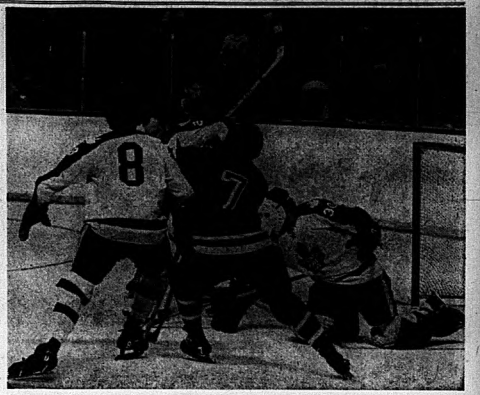
Although Rangers outshot Toronto by only a 32-29 margin, the New Yorkers carried the play throughout with the exception of a few minutes in the third period when rookie Daryll Sittler counted both Leafs' goals.

Rangers capitalized on their own errors as well as Toronto's as Bob Nevin and Vic Hadfield counted while the Rangers held a manpower advantage and veteran Ron Stewart notched his first goal in 50 games while the New Yorkers were shorthanded.



"The key to our win tonight is we got the first goal," said Francis. "That's the cure for your ills in this series, that first goal."

He noted that Toronto had an edge in the previous three games after scoring the first goal although the Rangers did rebound to win the series opener.

Nevin, the Ranger captain, concurred. "Before we were playing catch-up. . . . Tonight it was our turn and Leafs just didn't have it."

After Toronto turned power-play goals to their advantage Saturday night, Francis said outside the New York dressing-room:

"You make your own breaks. Power plays win you games; penalty killing saves it. They cashed in on the opportunities they got."

Campbell Goes to Movies

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, spent about an hour Saturday viewing films of the fights in the Toronto Maple Leafs-New York Rangers Stanley Cup game at New York Thursday.

"I wanted to get a general impression of what this affair looked like to the people who saw it there and on television," Campbell said.

"I can say that the official reports I received were very accurate."

Campbell will likely announce fines today. All players on both teams are in line for fines for leaving their benches, goal creases or penalty boxes to join the last big melee late in the third period.

The fight featured Toronto's Jim Harrison and Vic Hadfield of the Rangers, both of whom collected game-misconduct penalties.

Hadfield also was accused by the leafs of throwing Bernie Parent's goalie mask into the New York crowd. Campbell said there is an automatic $50 fine for throwing equipment over the boards but the incident was not shown in the films he saw.

Referring to a different incident last Thursday in the Montreal Canadiens-Boston Bruins series, Campbell said nothing more will be done about Bobby Orr's famous fit of temper.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Orr shoved linesman Ron Ego in attempting to approach referee John Ashley. The referee said later he didn't give Orr a misconduct penalty because he didn't see the pushing incident.

"There's nothing more to be done about Orr at all," said Campbell, "not about this at least."

Hull's Helpers Not for Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's Bobby Hull began setting them up instead of banging them in and Minnesota's Charlie Burns matched his previous year's scoring as the Black Hawks and the North Stars registered wins Sunday in their National Hockey League quarter-finals.

Hull picked up three assists at Philadelphia as the Black Hawks dumped the Flyers 6-2, sweeping their best-of-seven West Division Stanley Cup series 4-0.

Burns, who scored only one goal in his first Stanley Cup series last year, fired the third-period winner at Minneapolis as the Nc..s Stars won 3-1 to even their best-of-seven series with St. Louis Blues at two games apiece.

In Saturday's games, Chicago edged Philadelphia 3-2 and St. Louis blanked Minnesota 3-0.

The North Stars travel to St. Louis Tuesday, then return to Minneapolis Thursday. Chicago will meet the winner of the Toronto Maple Leafs-New York Rangers East Division semi-final series, now tied 2-2.

Hull, who has scored six goals in the series, set up one of Jim Pappin's three markers Sunday and both of Cliff Koroll's goals.

Pappin gave the Hawks a 2-0 lead before the game was 10 minutes old, the first goal at 29 seconds and the second with Philadelphia's Brent Hughes in the penalty box.

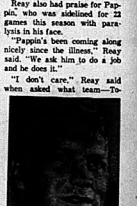
Serge Bernier cut the margin to 2-1 before the period ended but the Hawks made it 3-1 in the second.

Then Koroll notched his pair before the third period was nine minutes old to make the score 5-1. Simon Nolet scored the second Philadelphia goal midway through the period but Pappin rounded out the scoring less than two minutes later.

Hull whipped in a pair of third-period power-play goals Saturday night to lift the Hawks from a 3-1 deficit.

At the end of Saturday's contest, Hull and Philadelphia's Jimmy Mair exchanged punches, touching off a brawl in which all the players on the ice joined.

Hull and Mair picked up minor penalties for their involvement but the Chicago player and the game officials—referee Bill Friday and linemen Matt Pavlich and George Ashley, were forced to leave the ice under police escort.



The Black Hawks overwhelmed Philadelphia with 20 goals in the four games while allowing Philadelphia only two goals a game.

Chicago coach Billy Reay said his defencemen "were the key to the series. They kept the Flyers off."

Reay also had praise for Pappin, who was sidelined for 22 games this season with pancytosis in his face.

"Pappin's been coming along nicely since the illness," Reay said. "We ask him to do a job and he does it."

"I don't care," Reay said when asked what team—Toronto or New York—he'd rather face in the semi-finals. "It makes no difference. We'll just go out there and try to play our best."

BOBBY HULL

Garry Unger put the Blues ahead 1-0 early in the first period at Minneapolis Sunday when he connected on a breakaway seconds after stepping from the penalty box.

"He was coming away from the play and the puck went right to his stick," said Minnesota goaltender Gump Worsley. "If I had a size 33 arm instead of a 32, I would have stopped it."

But Bobby Rousseau tied the score early in the final period when he counted on a backhanded shot, ending Minnesota's scoreless streak at almost 112 minutes in the last three games.

Burns broke the tie with three minutes and eight seconds left in the game when he scored on a two-on-one break.

"I had my mind made up to shoot," Burns said. "It wasn't a very good shot. Maybe that's why it went in."

Frank St. Marseille, Noel Picard and Terry Crisp each scored Saturday as Ernie Wakely became the firs goalie to register a playoff shutout this season.

After a scoreless first period, St. Marseille put the Blues ahead 1-0 with each team a man short. With less than a minute left in the second period, Picard connected on a screen shot with Doug Mohns of Minnesota sitting out a penalty.

Midway through the final period, Crisp took Barclay Plager's pass and banged it home.

Record Time Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston's Bobby Orr set a modern-day playoff record for a defenceman Sunday, scoring three goals in the Bruins' 5-2 win over Montreal Canadiens.

It was the first time a defenceman had scored three goals in Stanley Cup play since records were kept starting in 1927.

Orr trails Bobby Hull of Chicago by one point in the National Hockey League's play-off scoring race.

Hull scored up three assists as Chicago beat Philadelphia Flyers 6-2, ending their quarter-final series in four straight games. Hull has 10 points on six goals and four assists while Orr has five goals and four assists.

Charlie No Choke

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Golf fans can't call him "Charlie the Choker" any longer. Now it's "Champion Charlie."

Texan Charles Coody won the 1971 Masters Sunday and healed personal scars from his Augusta National collapse of 1969. He also destroyed Jack Nicklaus' dream of sweeping the Big Four championships this year.

"I was jittery from the first tee," admitted Coody. "Beating a great golfer like Nicklaus in the stretch is a big order for an average fellow like me."

Coody not only outgunned the sputtering Nicklaus, but withstood a stirring charge by 23-year-old California pro John Miller, the nerveless kid who was six under par after 14 holes Sunday and leading the Masters by two shots.

Coody rolled in birdies on the 15th and 16th holes and made clutch pars on the final two to finish with a two-under-par 70 and a 279 total. Miller finally misfired and settled for a 68 and 281, the same as Nicklaus mustered with a closing 72.

"My goofup in 1969 ate up my inside for two years," Coody said. "That's all over now."

Nicklaus' face mirrored his unhappiness.

"I gave it my best," he said, forcing a smile, "but it wasn't enough.

"Charlie Coody will be a great Masters champion."

Coody's back-to-back birdies on the 15th and 16th put him into the lead, but a clutch par four on the 400-yard 17th "was the thing that won the Masters for me."

The former Dallas Open and Cleveland Open king, never a major winner before, drove into a sand trap on the 17th, but made a fine seven-iron shot to the green's fringe and chipped within 30 inches to save the par.

Coody earned $25,000 for the victory.

Behind runners-up Miller and Nicklaus were Gene Littler and Don January at five-under-par 283 on the 6,980-yard course. Ken Still and Gary Player rallied with windup 69s to deadlock Tom Weiskopf for sixth place at 284.

Defending champion Billy Casper was in with a 72 for even par 288, nine strokes poorer than the 279 he needed to tie Littler a year ago before winning the Masters in an 18-hole playoff.

Four-time champion Arnold Palmer never really made a run this time. His 73 Sunday gave the 41-year-old millionaire a 289 total, good for a tie for 18th place.

Arsenal Takes Bite of Leeds Lead

LONDON (CP) — Arsenal captain Frank McLintock rammed home a goal in the 56th minute Saturday to give the London soccer club a 2-1 victory over Southampton and reduce the lead of Leeds United to three points at the top of the English League First Division.

Leeds, held to a 1-1 tie at Newcastle, has played two games more than runner-up Arsenal.

Leeds has 57 points from 37 matches and Arsenal 54 from 35. The two clubs have the championship race virtually to themselves in the final stages of the schedule in which each team plays 42 times. Wolverhampton is third with 47 points.

Arsenal had to battle hard for its victory at Southampton. John Radford angled the ball into the Southampton net in the 34th minute, but Terry Paine got the equalizer two minutes later. The Arsenal winner came from a Radford throw-in which George Graham headed back for McLintock to run in and score.

Leeds struggled back after a Newcastle United goal at 65 minutes and equalized in the 82nd minute on unusual style. Peter Lorimer took a corner kick and swung the ball directly into goal.

Knicks Wounded Bad by Bullets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was almost unbelievable what Baltimore Bullets did to New York Knicks.

Given up for dead by almost everyone after losing the first two games to the defending champion Knicks in their National Basketball Association playoff series, the injury-ridden Bullets executed an about-face Sunday and walloped the Knicks 114-88.

It was the worst drubbing the Knicks have absorbed since their 22-point licking, 115-113, by Los Angeles in last year's playoffs.

"If we play up to our potential with the players we have left, we can still win," declared Baltimore coach Gene Shue after the Bullets had cut the Knicks' lead to 2-1 in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

The Bullets, with stars Gus Johnson and Kevin Loughery still sidelined with leg injuries, now can even the series by winning the fourth game at Baltimore Wednesday night.

Form stood up in the NBA Western Conference final Sunday as Milwaukee Bucks again trampled Los Angeles 91-73 for a 2-0 lead in their series. The third game will be played Wednesday at Los Angeles.

Led by Earl Monroe's 31 points and Wes Unseld's 26 rebounds, the Bullets virtually blew the Knicks off the court in the second half at Baltimore.

Veteran Will Chamberlain outplayed youthful Lew Alcindor, but the Lakers couldn't overcome the all-around team work of the Bucks at Milwaukee.

Big Wilt was the game's high scorer with 24 points and dominated both boards, Alcindor led the Bucks with 22 points.

Reds' Fireman Burned 3 Times

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you think Cincinnati Reds are off to a bad start, consider the plight of Wayne Granger, their ace relief pitcher.

The Reds, defending National League champions, have played four games so far this season and they've lost them all. They've called Granger out of the bullpen three times and their No. 1 fireman now has an 0-3 won-lost mark.

Granger's latest setback was Sunday when Jerry Grote lined his first pitch into the left field seats for the only run in New York Mets' 1-0 victory over the Reds. Saturday, Granger's two-out bases-loaded wild pitch in the 11th inning allowed the Mets to score the winning run and started his last weekend, 3-2.

In other National League action Sunday, Philadelphia Phillies shelled Montreal Expos 11-4, Atlanta Braves trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1, Houston Astros downed Chicago Cubs 7-4, San Diego Padres whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 9-7 and St. Louis Cardinals split a double-header with San Francisco Giants winning 4-2 before losing 7-2.

In Sunday's other games, Boston trimmed Chicago 2-1, Philadelphia topped Montreal 4-1, Atlanta nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 10 innings, Los Angeles bombed San Diego 9-2 and San Francisco defeated St. Louis 6-4.

Granger was the fourth pitcher used by the Reds against the Mets with Greg Garrett, Milt Wilcox and Clay Carroll matching shutout serves with New York's Tom Seaver for the first nine innings.

Seaver left for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the ninth and Tug McGraw took over in the 10th and was the winner.

Los Angeles fell victim Sunday to Nate Colbert's big bat. Colbert walloped two home runs and drove in six runs as the Padres saddled the Dodgers with their fourth loss in six games.

The two homers gave Colbert five in six games and the big first baseman has driven in 14 runs. Colbert unloaded a three-run shot against Don Sutton in first swing and then tagged Sutton for a two-run homer in his next at bat.

Willie Mays' home-run streak ended but the veteran star belted a double and triple to drive in two runs in San Francisco's second game victory over St. Louis. Juan Marichal earned the victory.

Mays, who homered in each of the Giants' first four games, sat out Sunday's opener and Bob Gibson limited San Francisco to six hits to gain th Bob Gibson limited San Francisco to six hits to gain the victory.

Rookie Roger Freed rifled his first major league homer—a grand slam—and drove in five runs to lead the Phillies past Montreal. Freed hit the first pitch from reliever Howie Reed in the fifth inning breaking the game wide open.

Orlando Cepeda's seventh inning homer tied the score and then the Braves scored two runs in the eighth to beat Pittsburgh.

Brewers Get Rise Out of Pattin

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Marty Pattin, a 5-foot-11, 170-pound right-hander, notched his second American League victory for Milwaukee Brewers Sunday with a three-hit 3-0 blanking of California Angels. That put the Brewers atop the West standings with a 3-1 record.

After a 7-12 record and 5.60 earned-run average with Milwaukee's Seattle predecessors in 1969, Pattin posted a 11-12 mark last season and lowered his ERA to 3.40. He credited a diet which requires at least eight glasses of water a day and helped him shed 15 pounds.

Elsewhere Sunday, Minnesota Twins whipped Chicago White Sox 6-0, Kansas City Royals scrounged Oakland Athletics 10-5, Baltimore Orioles dropped their opener to Detroit Tigers 5-4 in 11 innings but won the nightcap 9-3, Cleveland Indians trounced Boston Red Sox 7-2 and New York Yankees split with Washington Senators, winning 1-0 and losing 4-3.

In Saturday's play, Cleveland outslugged Boston 11-10, Baltimore edged Detroit 2-1, New York blanked Washington 4-0, Milwaukee defeated California 4-3, Oakland downed Kansas City 5-4 and Minnesota clipped Chicago 5-3.

Pattin got the only run he needed against California in the first inning when Dave May doubled off Tom Murphy and scored on a single by Andy Kosco.

Jim Kaat, a good hitting pitcher, scattered 11 hits as the Twins blanked the White Sox. He also collected a single and double, drove in two runs and scored one while boosting his lifetime mark against Chicago to 26-9.

Kaat put the Twins ahead in the third when Jay Johnstone lost his fly ball in the sun and it fell for a double.

Kansas City erupted for four runs in the first inning and went on to pound four Oakland pitchers for 15 hits. Loser Jim Hunter was tagged for first-inning singles by Freddie Patek, Joe Keough, Lou Piniella, Ed Kirpatrick and Cookie Rojas and Paul Schaal's double.

Just when it was beginning to look as though the Orioles might never lose a game, Bill Freehan's 11th-inning home run lowered the boom in the opener despite a homer, double and two singles by Brooks Robinson. The Birds then broke loose for five runs in the first two innings of the nightcap and coasted behind Dave McNally's seven-hit pitching.

'Pro' Track Meet to Aid Trenton Team

Track and field will hold its first "professional" meet in the Quinte area, Monday April 19.

Despite the "play-for-pay" format of the competition, athletes taking part will be in no danger of losing their amateur status as proceeds from the proposed Run-A-Thon will be used to aid the Trenton Track Club.

Each of the athletes is currently attempting to collect sponsors who will donate a specified amount for each lap which the runner is able to complete in one hour. A maximum of 30 laps around the quarter mile track has been imposed so that sponsors will have some idea of the amount of money they will have to donate.

The proceeds from the competition will be used for items such as transportation costs and entry fees for the Trenton Club, which is the only one in this district affiliated with the Central Ontario Track and Field Association.

Runners from Trenton, Brighton, Quinte, Moira, Centennial and Prince Edward Secondary schools will be competing for the three prizes donated by the Adidas company, which include a track suit, spikes and an equipment bag.

All prospective sponsors are asked to have the runner produce a paper impression seal and signature of a Trenton Track Club official on his pledge sheet, before turning over any funds.

The Run-A-Thon will be held at 2 p.m. on the Centennial Secondary school track. Information may be obtained from Peter Delany, Brighton (395-1657); Peter Howe, Trenton (392-8878); Dave Grant, Belleville (962-6213); Peter Mewett, Stirling (395-3051) or Paul Cory, Picton (476-6000).

Towers Spoil Hamilton Soup

BURLINGTON (Special) — It took just one Cook to spoil Hamilton's broth in the consolation round of the Burlington Novice Tournament, Saturday.

DONALD COOK

Towers Food City netminder Brian Cook turned in an outstanding effort against the Hamilton Red Wing novices in the Consolation Championship to give his team a 1-0 win and the championship.

Nelson Frederick provided Cook with all the support he needed against Hamilton counting the only goal of the game.

Towers had faced an even tougher battle in the semi-finals as they played to a 2-2 draw with Port Huron, Michigan. The Belleville team received the victory because of more shots on goal as neither team could score in a 10-minute overtime.

Danny Duffy sparked Towers with a goal and an assist, while team captain Gary Fredericks picked up the other counter.

Belleville's only loss in the tournament was a 3-2 overtime setback in their opening game against London. They won their second 3-2 over Barrie, also in overtime.

Hornets Win on Second Rally

GALT (CP) — Rallying from behind twice, Galt Hornets defeated Thunder Bay Twins 4- Saturday3 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five Eastern Canada senior hockey semi-final series.

The series, also the Allan Cup quarter-finals, resumes Saturday in Thunder Bay.

Pete Panagakos, a playoff addition from Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, scored the winning goal for Galt with just over five minutes remaining in the third period.

Bruce Reier scored twice and defenceman Steve Hunt once to complete the Galt attack. Vern Compagnotto scored twice and defenceman Rick Barefoot once for the Twins.

A crowd of 2,056 watched the United States Hockey League entry from Thunder Bay move ahead when Compagnotto scored his first goal midway in the opening period. Reier tied the score less than five minutes later and Hunt put the Hornets ahead with one second of play to spare in the first period.

The Twins reclaimed their lead in the second period. Compagnotto scored his second less than three minutes into the period and Barefoot struck at the midway point. Reier tied the score 3-3 29 seconds later.

The winner by Panagakos came off a faceoff in the Thunder Bay zone.

The Twins fired 33 shots at Galt netminder Harold Boat Hurley while Bill White in the Thunder Bay nets faced 30 drives.

Referee Blair Graham called nine minor penalties, six against the Twins.

The game ended on a wild note when Barefoot leaped into the stands after heckling fans. A number of Thunder Bay players followed and punches were exchanged with spectators before police were called to escort the visiting players to their dressing room.

Unions in NDP Plan To Beat Off Waffle

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates from various trade unions will try to prevent the Waffle group from dominating policy decisions at the New Democratic Party's national convention in Ottawa later this month, union leaders say.

The 1,800 to 2,000 NDP delegates scheduled to gather April 21 for the convention will include 700 accredited from the locals of various unions.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said in a weekend interview that a concerted trade-union effort to shape policy is necessary or the new NDP leader could be "stuck with an impossible program."

The UAW will have about 60 to 80 delegates at the convention to oppose the Waffle group, a wing of the NDP that favors economic nationalism.

"I once felt it (the Waffle group) might emerge as an intelligent left in the party," said Mr. McDermott. "But it has turned out to be a national haven for every social misfit in the party.

"It's just an ego trip for many of the Waffle leaders."

Larry Sefton, an official of the United Steelworkers of America, said he sees no support from his group for the Waffle policy on nationalization as espoused by James Laxer, a leadership candidate, and by Melville Watkins, the economist whose ideas shaped the Waffle manifesto.

Do-it-yourself Bellevillian Is Told How Clutch Operates

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I am about to install a new clutch in my car. I have been doing my own mechanical work for a year or more, but this is the first attempt at repairing any component as complicated as a clutch.

"After studying the manual, I have a pretty good idea of how to remove and reinstall it. However, before starting the job I would like to know just exactly how the clutch functions and would be thankful if you would explain it in your column." — Mr. R. G., Belleville

Attached to the flywheel at the rear of the engine's crankshaft, the clutch assembly consists of a pressure plate and disc. The disc is positioned between the flywheel and pressure plate and there are asbestos facings riveted to both sides of the disc.

When the clutch pedal is right up, or in the engaged position, the spring-loaded pressure plate forces the disc hard against the face of the flywheel. When the engine is running, this causes the flywheel, disc and pressure plate to rotate as one.

With the clutch pedal pressed down to the floor, or in the disengaged position, the pressure plate is pulled away from the disc, allowing the flywheel and pressure plate to turn without the disc rotating. The pressure plate is operated by a release bearing which is controlled by linkage that is attached to the clutch pedal.

After selecting low gear, the driver gradually engages or raises the clutch pedal and at the same time depresses the gas pedal. The rotating flywheel then transfers its energy to the disc, which in turn is connected to the transmission by a steel shaft, and the vehicle is set in motion.

Each time the gears are shifted when the car is moving, the engine's driving force is disconnected from the transmission by disengaging the clutch — otherwise, the transmission gears would be destroyed.

It costs about $2 to adjust the clutch, while, depending on the make of car, replacing one could come to over $100. Unless the garageman suggests it be done, motorists seldom think about having the clutch checked for adjustment.

In much the same way as brake linings, the asbestos facings inside the clutch assembly wear out as they are squeezed between the pressure plate and the whirling flywheel.

All clutches wear out in time and the faster they wear out, a lot faster if the clutch is out of adjustment, causing it to slip because proper contact is not made with the flywheel and pressure plate.

The clutch must have "free pedal", which means the pedal should move down toward the floor should then require three-quarters to one inch. To push it all the way down to the floor should then require more pressure. Even when your foot is not touching the clutch pedal, without this free pedal the clutch is partly disengaged and ultimate failure soon occurs.

The clutch release bearing is meant to operate only when the clutch is disengaged, and if there is no "free pedal" it revolves constantly, and burns out, making a grinding noise. It may then be difficult to get the car into or out of gear.

And unpleasant burning odor or an engine that revs up ineffectively as the clutch is engaged are clues to a slipping clutch.

The face of the flywheel may be scored by continuing to use a clutch which needs repairing. To avoid premature wear to the new asbestos facings, plus the possibility of grabbing or chattering when the clutch is engaged, when replacing a clutch a scored flywheel must be machined to a mirror-like finish. The teeth on the flywheel ring gear that engage with the starter motor gear should also be checked for possible damage.

With good maintenance, a clutch may be expected to last for as much as 50,000 miles. Even so, I have seen some worn out at 3,000 miles and others still going strong at 100,000 miles.

Floods Hit Regina

REGINA (CP) — A heavier-than-usual spring runoff from Wascana Creek caused major flooding in several areas of the city Sunday and turned other areas into quagmires.

Citizens are battling to control the flooding, regarded by some observers as the worst in the city's history. The peak flow in the creek still is expected.

The flood-swollen creek poured over its banks early Sunday and as many as 100 houses in the River Heights residential area were believed flooded. There was no immediate estimate of damage. Families were evacuated. By Sunday night the creek had affected three other residential areas but not as many homes were involved.

At one time Sunday more than 525 persons joined the fight but the numbers had dwindled to 450 early today.

Among the volunteers were 200 private citizens, 100 men from Regina militia units and 125 men from the RCMP barracks.

About 150 of the workers were at the city yards Sunday filling sandbags with the others working on dikes. About 125 men from the Moose Jaw Canadian Forces base swelled the ranks later Sunday with others en route from the base at Dundurn, 130 miles north.

Flood forecasters with the Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission said extreme warm weather and a sudden thaw across much of western Saskatchewan caused the unpredicted flow.

Dave MacLeod, head of hydrology division, said Sunday a change in the 6 feet of water a minute was powerful into man-made Wascana Lake, in southeast Regina, from the creek.

At 6 p.m. Sunday the level was still rising.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Doctors' Prognosis Not Always Right

We call it prognosis: prediction as to the duration, course and outcome of a disease. Unfortunately, some of us doctors become too presumptuous seers.

We think that experience and knowledge make us little gods — who are able to look into the future and say to Mr. Smith or to Mrs. Jones, "You will not last out the year."

Personally, I've always tried to realize my limitations prognostically — and otherwise. There's so much we simply do not know about the future.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I suppose you've heard the old joke about the patient who was told he'd be dead within the year and outlived his doctor by 30 years. Well, I recall it especially because my own doctor just told me that chances are I'll get a heart attack some time in the near future because my cholesterol is so high.

Now how can he be so sure? I'm doing everything to help myself. I keep my weight normal, don't smoke or drink, and stay away from fats. I repeat: how can he be so sure? — Mrs. N.

* * *

COMMENT: If a doctor has real humility, he will not be so sure about what will happen to each one of his patients in the future.

Nature plays tricks. I have seen many patients with normal blood cholesterol readings come down with heart attacks. Conversely, I recall those with high readings who never had an attack.

Recently I had dinner with a husband and wife who have had extremely high cholesterol levels for 25 years — both are in their late 60s and both are healthy.

When I told them a quarter of a century ago that it was not inevitable that either would suffer a heart attack or stroke I could see disbelief written all over them. Although they are now alive and well, I think they are still concerned that they are likely to have a heart attack "any minute."

I am in no position to make any specific prognosis in your case, Mrs. N. I can't guarantee you are not a candidate for a heart attack in near or distant future. All I've been trying to say is that no doctor can be "sure" of what will happen to any of his patients within the year. Prognosis is an art — not a science. I have become a skeptic. Prognosis is a luxury many doctors can not afford. We must avoid playing God.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've been hearing that it's patriotic to donate blood. I'm 18 and an athlete. I'd like to help. Where do I go? — Mr. T.

COMMENT: Your offer is appreciated and deserves commendation. However, I believe you're too young to be acceptable as a donor. Unless regulations have been changed recently, I think you'll have to wait until you're 18 before you can help with a donation. Meanwhile, thanks again for trying.

* * *

For Mr. C.: It's not impossible to walk around with a "fractured spine." Many persons with back pain (or without) are not aware they have a compression fractures of a vertebra.

In fact, some patients with osteoporosis for example, keep treating themselves with aspirin for relief — without realizing it's possible that the persisting pain is due to compression fracture of one or more vertebrae.

For Mrs. G.: I believe there is a hereditary factor in myopia (near-sightedness). Your child should be examined before he enters school because both you and your husband have myopia. Nervous tension is not a factor.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Language Presages Change

One of the best ways to predict the success of any movement is by evaluating the extent to which its language has permeated the popular culture. For a change in language always precedes a change in behavior and response, and always presages he form of new relationships.

Shortly before he died, Sen. Everett Dirksen, that monumental practitioner of the establishment, delivered a talk on "Telling It Like It Is." Not long afterward, I came upon a little marmoreal figure ended an address with the rousing call, "Right on!" Both were plagiarizing subversive sources.

These phrases, and dozens more like the, were lifted bodily out of lexicon of "movement". The "hang-up", the "cop-out", the "put-on", are more than instances of current slang; they have sprung out of the new consciousness of the young, the alienated, the militant, the poor, the black, the loose confederation of all disaffected elements in our society.

What is significant is that the things has been generally adopted by people who differ 180 degrees from the original users — the upper reaches of the establishment. In all its dimensions, is "telling it like it is" even when telling it like it ain't.

This does not necessarily mean that the country as a whole is becoming more "radicalized" in any concrete political sense. Changing use of language does not foretell political positions as much as general attitudes. And the general attitudes are shifting toward the modes of the "movement".

What this implies is that even when the substance is conservative (as it often was with Dirksen), there is sensed a new mood that is impatient — a mood that is impatient with fancy rhetoric skeptical about official versions, resentful of the impassivity of public life, suspicious of the self-serving bromide, the pious or patriotic proclamation, and demanding that we all stop camouflaging the content with the packaging.

In this general sense, the movement has succeeded, even though in its particulars it may have failed. Americans are not more radical, or revolutionary, or even libertarian, than they were a decade ago — but they are definitely turned on to the possibilities of life, to personal effectiveness against existent assumptions. And the implications are grudgingly, but inevitably, recognizing it and adjusting to it.

The words we use, and unconsciously adopt, presage a shift in attitudes long before we can see the material results: they are like the white caps that accurately foretell a change in wind to the experienced mariner's eye. When a few young hot-bloods around Boston began to call themselves "Americans" instead of "colonials," the revolution had begun.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 13

Your birthday today: You have an opportunity to realize your strength and limitations. Any success here promises to be translated immediately into improved material prosperity as well as less tangible gains.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your tendency now is to make demands a bit harsher and more aggressive than need be. Strive for diplomacy, tact, even discretion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Advice and assistance may come in unpalatable form, but make use of it anyway. Your turn comes along a different path another day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Accept in others the need for dignity, fulfillment, and feelings at least as strong as your own. Don't try to be the whole show.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The shoe is on other foot — instead of your alibis, it's excuses from others. Accept them at face value and make the best of things.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Continue your effort to be receptive, self-possessed but not overly aggressive. You stand to make serious progress by just attending to business normally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You drift into a bare spot, feeling exposed or let down. Some of it is your doing, most of it not.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Pile on the pressure for completion of personal plans. There is much to do in all directions: Just don't leave yourself and your own welfare out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Assume nothing from the amenities of the moment; instead take advantage of any chance to present your views and projects in important people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Double check your facts and figures; information is almost sure to be incomplete if obtained informally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Come out of your busy tower now and join your fellows for group expression. You may be surprised at how many your community musters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Start early with some definite schedule and an idea of which things are to be attended first.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Home conditions limit your perspective about the world and what you can achieve. Bring love of ones kind if you can include them on your travels.

Ontario Probe Into Book Publishing Has Everything But Time

TORONTO (CP) — Time appears to be the only thing which the royal commission on book publishing in Ontario lacks as it prepares to begin hearings Tuesday.

The sales last fall of two of Canada's major publishing firms to United States interests created a controversy that resulted in a flood of information and ideas from various sources about the troubled industry.

The commission will have access to this material plus the suggestions in an expected 100 or more briefs, but it's also concerned about other possible foreign takeovers before it completes its work.

Chairman Richard Rohmer, a Toronto lawyer, has said the commission intends to make interim reports to the Ontario government if a foreign company attempts to take over any major Canadian publisher before the commission makes its final report.

When then-premier John Robarts announced the commission's formation in November, William Clarke, vice-president of Clarke-Irwin and Co. Ltd., said, "I have never heard of a royal commission that reported in less than six months and the problem of survival for Canadian-owned (publishing) houses is more immediate than that."

In March, a group of publishers asked the federal government for emergency legislation to prevent further sales of Canadian publishing houses to foreign firms.

The action was taken after McClelland and Stewart Ltd., a major company, was put up for sale in February. However, president Jack McClelland said it would be sold to foreign interests as a last resort only. It is still on the market.

Mr. Robarts announced the inquiry Nov. 30, a day before the United Church of Canada sold Ryerson Press to the U.S.-controlled McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd. Earlier, W.J. Gage Ltd. of Toronto sold a controlling interest in its textbook division to Scott Foresman and O. of Illinois.

Those sales reduced the number of large-scale independent Canadian publishers by 50 per cent—from four to two. If McClelland and Stewart goes, the lone survivor will be Clarke—Irwin.

The two other commissioners are Dallon Camp, 50, of Toronto, former national president of the Progressive Conservative Association, and Marsh Jeanneret, 53, of King City, Ont., director of the University of Toronto Press. Mr. Rohmer, 46, is a former member of North York council.

The government has instructed the commission to study the functions of the publishing industry, including relating to the cultural life and education of the people of Ontario and Canada and to report on the possible consequences of foreign ownership or control of publishing firms.

A 172-page report on the Canadian publishing industry prepared last year for the federal government painted a grim picture of book publishing in Canada. Of $220 million worth of books bought in Canada two years ago, 65 per cent were imported, 25 per cent published and manufactured in Canada and 10 per cent were adapted books manufactured in Canada.

A number of ways to help the industry have been suggested, and some of them are likely to come up in briefs to the commission.

They include government loans to publishers to make up for shortage in working capital, additional grants to schools to build up libraries and requirements that school boards buy a set percentage of books from Canadian-controlled firms.

The commission's first hearings conclude Friday. Another series begins April 27, with a third scheduled to begin May 11. Mr. Rohmer said earlier it would take six months to a year to complete the report.

Queen's Pay May Be Increased

LONDON (AP) — The Queen might yet get an increase in her $1.14 million annual allowance from the government.

In 1969, Prince Philip told a United States television interviewer that the royal household's finances were in the red, but nothing was done about remedying the situation.

On Sunday, government sources said Prime Minister Heath soon will set in motion machinery to give the Queen her first raise in 19 years.

The Queen, among the world's wealthiest women, gets $460,000 tax-free a year from her private estates. Her chief income is the $1.14 million a year in government allowances in lieu of crown-land revenue surrendered to the state by the Royal Family in the 17th century.

While the expense of maintaining a royal style of living has soared since Elizabeth became queen in 1952, her government allowances have not changed. Inflation has cut their real value by 50 per cent.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

"Good news — the hotel where you stayed during the convention found your chicken inspector badge."

Ten Years Ago Gagarin Led Man Into Space

MOSCOW (AP) — Astronaut Vitaly Sevastyanov's voice softens when he recalls Yuri Gagarin, who 10 years ago today became the first human to orbit the earth.

"I first met Yuri Gagarin in March 1960," says Sevastyanov. "This was during the lectures on the mechanics of space flight which I was delivering to the cosmonauts.

"I knew all the cosmonauts and, of course, also Yuri Gagarin. He had such distinctly individual features to his character, he was so notable, that I paid special attention to him. This was the opinion of almost everyone who met Gagarin."

Sevastyanov later became a cosmonaut himself and, together with Andrian Nikolayev, set an 18-day endurance record in a space flight last June.

"The main features of Gagarin's character were a great love of life, optimism, joy, humor and a keen mind," he said. "We worked together for a long time and I want to tell you this early impression remained unchanged."

Sevastyanov, an engineer and graduate of the Moscow Aviation Institute, recalled the tension of Gagarin's first flight into space:

"He was very calm, restrained. He had done very carefully all the preparatory work on control of the sytems in the spaceship. His attitude was quiet and serious."

As the countdown ended, he said the tension of the ground crew with an enthusiastic "Let's go." Soon afterward he again relaxed the flight monitors who asked how he was feeling, just before his single orbit.

"I feel quite all right, but I'm wondering how you feel," he replied.

Sevastyanov's recollections were typical of many told since Gagarin's flight and especially following his death three years ago in a training plane crash. He was 34.

Sevastyanov, who is 35, is one of the civilians in the current team of Soviet cosmonauts. They are chosen from among military pilots and from young civilian workers in space research and space techniques.

The requirements are stiff, demanding ability to handle a spaceship and to make scientific observations.

Once a cosmonaut is picked for a particular flight, or as a standby for the flight, his training begins in highly specialized. Sevastyanov trained 14 months for his flight last June.

Drawing on his experiences so a visit to the United States in October, Sevastyanov said:

"The main features of training for both America and Soviet astronauts are more or less identical. But everything is determined by the program of flight."

And how does he regard the chances for co-operation and joint ventures with Americans or astronauts of other countries?

Sevastyanov, a man with an easy smile and bright, lively eyes, said there would be no trouble in reaching understanding on the cosmonaut level.

"This is a matter for the future. It depends on many conditions. But nevertheless, our contacts were contacts between good colleagues. We understood each other very well."

Worshippers Jam Jerusalem

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thousands of Christian pilgrims mingled with Jews in the narrow streets of Old Jerusalem Sunday as both religious groups celebrated major holidays.

In Rome, an estimated 200,000 persons jammed St. Peter's Square to hear Pope Paul give his traditional Easter message to the world.

It was an ecumenical day in Jerusalem. Protestants and Roman Catholics celebrated Christ's resurrection. Greek Orthodox pilgrims held a Palm Sunday procession. And Jews gathered at the Wailing Wall, Judaism's holiest shrine, to pray in observance of Passover, the week-long feast that marks the freedom of Jews from Egyptian slavery millenia ago.

Jerusalem police estimated the number of visitors to the old walled city at 25,000, the largest number to arrive for Easter since the Middle East war of 1967.

While Christians prayed for peace, strife continued. Some 300,000 United States troops laid aside their arms for brief periods in South Vietnam to take part in Easter services.

In most of troubled Northern Ireland, Easter parades of the rival Protestant and Roman Catholic factions went off without incident. But in Londonderry, Catholic teen-agers rioted after seizing a city bus.

Rival factions of the illegal Irish Republican Army staged separate parades in Londonderry but 1,500 troops and policemen kept the two groups from clashing.

President Ramon de Valera of Ireland, despite his 88 years, stood at attention in Dublin and took the salute as 2,000 army regulars and militiamen in an Easter parade commemorating the 1916 uprising against the British that led to Irish independence.

At Lourdes, France, about 4,000 mentally retarded children made a pilgrimage to the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, the "Place of Miracles," where the Roman Catholic Church says 62 incurables were healed since 1858.

Throughout Christendom, millions of persons took to the countryside or spent the day with relatives.

Thousands of West Germans crossed the border wall into East Berlin Sunday to visit friends and relatives, but permanent residents of West Berlin were barred from joining them.

More than 60,000 West German and foreign visitors who poured into West Berlin for the Easter holiday made the trip into East Berlin.

For the first time since the 1967 war, there was no fighting at Israeli-Arab borders.

At Carrara, Italy, Italian anarchists held a congress, a spokesman saying "this is our way of celebrating Easter." All journalists, including those from the Communist paper L'Unita, were barred.

Seven Are Killed In Detroit Crash

DETROIT (AP) — Seven persons were killed and 26 injured when a car believed to be travelling more than 100 miles an hour crashed across a Detroit freeway median strip and caused a five-car crash Easter Sunday.

Police said a car driven by John Giddens, 20, of Ecorse, went out of control and flew across the median of the Ford Freeway. It landed on top of a second car and crashed head-on with a third vehicle. A chain-reaction accident involving three more cars followed.

Giddens and a passenger in his car identified as Helen Hawkins, 25, were killed.

Poverty Probe Staff Resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Four staff members of the Senate poverty committee have resigned after apparent disagreement with the committee's chairman, Senator David Croll—Ontario).

One of the four, Ian Adams, 33, author of The Poverty Wall, was hired last fall as chief writer of the Senate report.

William Cameron, a former newspaper columnist with the Toronto Star and freelance writer, joined the committee shortly after Mr. Adams. He, too, was hired to help write the committee report.

Ending longer terms are two economists, Peter Penz and Brian Hill, who have been with the committee more than a year.

All four refused to comment on their resignations, but other sources indicated the chief cause of dissatisfaction to be disagreement with Senator Croll on the emphasis in the committee's final report.

All four were said to have favored a proposal for a guaranteed annual income.

Senator Croll said Sunday in Toronto he had no comment on the four resignations.

Extinction Threatens Gypsies

ORPINGTON, England (AP) — Gypsies from 15 countries opened their first international congress since 1935 Sunday with a warning that they face extinction.

Grattoe, Puxon, 29-year-old secretary of the British Gypsy Council, said: "We face a situation worse than during the Second World War when we lost half a million people to Hitler's gas chambers.

"The problem now is that we face genocide by assimilation into society. We are losing our identity."

He called on the congress to demand legal camp sites for gypsies throughout the world.

He explained: "We want the freedom to travel and live a nomadic life but we must have legal camping places. In this way, we Romanies can retain our identity without bothering the rest of society."

Draft-Dodgers Expect Amnesty

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of the United States War Resistors League says Americans living in Canada to avoid the Vietnam war will eventually be allowed to return to the U.S. under a general amnesty.

"But it is going to be some time and it is best for those who have left to settle down and make their lives here," Hal Roodenko said in an interview Sunday.

"When the amnesty is given, they can make up their minds if they want to return to the U.S."

Ill-armed Bengal Rebels Crumble Before Army

Chou Fails To Stir Gandhi

NEW DELHI (CP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said today India will continue to sympathize with the East Pakistani independence movement despite China's "open support" to the West Pakistan military government.

"Our attitude does not depend on that of others," she told a news conference in her parliamentary constituency of Rae Bareli, 300 miles southeast of New Delhi.

"We take decisions independently," she said.

Asked whether India would recognize the new provisional government of Bangla Desh, Indian news agencies quoted her as saying: "We will consider it."

A resolution unanimously passed by both houses of the Indian Parliament two weeks ago had expressed "wholehearted sympathy and support" to the East Pakistanis.

Authoritative Indian sources discounted the possibility that China would attack India to retaliate for India's official expressions of solidarity with the East Pakistan independence movement.

The sources said that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's message Monday to Pakistani President Yahya Khan was viewed in official circles here as simply an expression of Peking's solidarity with Pakistan and not a warning to India.

Official Indian sources meanwhile said that the government had no confirmation of reports —carried by the newspaper Indian Express—that China is mobilizing its troops along the Indian-Chinese border in the north-eastern sector near East Pakistan.

Chou said: "The Chinese government holds that what is happening in Pakistan at present is purely an internal affair of Pakistan which can only be settled by the Pakistan people themselves and which brooks no for-

Rebel Attack Believed Planned

Informed sources said military authorities had seized documents of the Marxist rebels outlining plans for an attack today or Wednesday on Colombo. The documents were said to be several days old, however, and it was not known whether the rebels would still come out from hiding for the planned assault.

A fleet of armed helicopters took off from Colombo today to root out insurgents in jungle areas.

There was increased air activity over the capital Monday, and the government announced aerial attacks on terrorists at Kosgama and Waga, rubber plantation districts near the city.

An armed forces spokesman claimed that large bands of terrorists were deserting and abandoning weapons and uniforms in various parts of the island.

He said the insurgents, who began their assault with attacks on isolated police posts throughout the island, now were avoiding contact with the armed forces. Instead they were reported attacking civilians for food and ammunition and forcing teen-age boys to join them at gunpoint, he said.

The armed forces claimed the situation is improving daily, with the insurgents concentrated in pockets of Kegalle, in the foothills of the central mountains, in the southern province and in the northeastern, north-central and parts of the northwestern coastal area.

Other reports said the rebels were still in control of outlying Indoor plantations.

..Government forces appeared to have Colombo under control, and military supremacy was reported restored in several areas occupied by the guerrillas.

Despite assertions by the spokesman that the situation is returning to normal, most celebrations for the new year were cancelled.

The island off India remained under a strict curfew from 4 p.m. to 6 a.m. each day and the local radio still was broadcasting warnings that curfew-breakers will be shot.

Two large Soviet-built aircraft were sighted at the Bandaranaike International Airport. They were believed to have been brought from India to help the hard-pressed government.

An Air Ceylon Trident jet has been ferrying British ammunition from bases in Singapore for the last five days. In Washington, a state department spokesman said the U.S. government is considering a Ceylonese request for six small helicopters.

Total deaths in the fighting are estimated as high as 1,000, with the ratio perhaps 10-to-1 against the insurgents.

The government today appointed a senior official at the information ministry as a press censor of all news intended for distribution both in Ceylon and abroad.

Guerrilla War Seems Unlikely

CHUADANGA, East Pakistan (AP) — Armed resistance in much of rebellious East Pakistan is crumbling fast before the swiftly advancing columns of President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan's army from West Pakistan.

A reported shipment of Indian arms to the secessionist forces is likely to do little to prolong the civil war, or war of liberation, as the Bengalis describe their struggle.

There are few visible preparations for a lengthy guerrilla campaign. If one ever gets under way, many prominent officials of Sheik Mujibur Rahman's Awami League fear it inevitably will fall under Communist leadership.

The Awami League, which enjoys overwhelming support in East Pakistan, is led by middle-class professional men better equipped for courtroom battles than for guerrilla conflict in the swamps and rice fields. They believe the tougher, more disciplined Communists, backed by Marxists in neighboring India, would take over the direction of any guerrilla movement.

The Pakistani army has been heavily reinforced from the country's western wing and is rapidly fanning out from Dacca in all directions.

For miles around the provincial capial the army is in firm control, Pakistan's green-and-white national flag flies from every second village hut.

The people are afraid of informers and terrified of reprisals should they be identified as supporters of Bangla Desh, the Bengali nation proclaimed by Sheik Mujib.

Thousands have fled the capital but Dacca nevertheless is slowly returning to something like normal.

"We are functioning at gunpoint, we have no alternative," said one Bengali civil servant.

Crossing the wide Ganges River unopposed, the Pakistani army has occupied the city of Pabna. Troops were reported swinging southwest toward the Bangla Desh stronghold of Kushtia.

Something close to panic struck the raging band of mudguards, fenders, and there was a wild rush to flee the town. A fleet of trucks, immobilized by lack of gasoline, was left to the advancing enemy. No effort was made to destroy them.

It was in Kushtia that some 30 Pakistani troops were massacred by Bangla Desh partisans, and the town fears bloody reprisal is imminent.

The Pakistani troops also are spreading out from their cantonment at Jessore, 35 miles from the Indian border. They have captured the northeastern city of Sylhet and are pushing steadily north and northwest.

Resistance appears toughest north of Dacca, where strong elements of the East Bengal Regiment, the East Pakistan Rifles and the police are fighting.

The Pakistani army has suffered many casualties in this area, reports reaching foreign consuls in Dacca said. The bodies are being flown back to West Pakistan on the planes that bring in troop reinforcements by the thousand.

But for the most part, Bangla Desh forces are chronically in-

PUC Rate Increase Approved

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville Public Utilities Commission has officially received word from Ontario Hydro approving a rate schedule, previously announced, which will provide 14.7 per cent in additional revenue.

Effective for all bills rendered May 1, 1971, domestic users, on the average will pay 16.1 per cent more for their electric power; small commercial users 21.2 per cent and general industrial 14.1 per cent.

Gerry O'Connor, chairman of the PUC, said this morning, "the increase to customers was caused by increases in the cost of power provided by Ontario Hydro . . . in fact, there were two successive increases, one last year, and the other in January of 1971 . . . and we have been told the increases will likely continue as the cost of power to us up to and including 1975."

"We are powerless," the chairman stated.

In Jan. 1971, Ontario Hydro raised the rates wholesale power rate by 6.7 per cent. Coupled with this increase was an Jan. 1970 jump of 5.9 per cent, for a total over-all increase of 12.8 per cent. On Feb. 26 of this year, the PUC announced it would seek approval to pass this cost on to the consumer.

"Material costs have increased and the continued growth of our city costs us money to provide new distribution circuits, transformers and other service equipment to look after the new customers," says an official letter being delivered to residential electrical customers this week.

Meir May Hand Back Most of Arab Lands

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Analysts juggling with maps have concluded here that Israeli Premier Golda Meir may be prepared to hand back about 90 per cent of the Arab territory which Israel occupied after the 1967 Middle East war.

Their conclusions are based on hints Mrs. Meir gave in an interview with the London Times March 13 and reiterated in a speech to her governing Labor party congress recently.

It must remain speculation at this stage, for Mrs. Meir has also made clear that details will be given only in direct peace discussions she wants with the Arabs themselves.

But the analysts say she seems to have implied a belief that Israel's national interest, in a guaranteed peace settlement, would require retention of only a crucial seven per cent of the total Arab lands occupied in the 1967 war.

In the interview and speech, she affirmed Israel could not surrender the formal Jordanian sector of Jerusalem and is determined on a unified city. She will also give up Syria's strategic Golan Heights overlooking Israel's northern villages.

Also to be retained under the suggestions would be the Gaza Strip on the western coast and Sharm El Sheikh at the tip of the Egyptian Sinai peninsula. This guards access to Israel's Red Sea port of Elath and is considered vital for the country's oil supplies and economy.

Observers here believe the suggestions closely represent what Israel would put forward in negotiations.

Price Index Rises Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose four-tenths of an index point last month to 131.3, with higher prices recorded for food, clothing and housing, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, was 130.9 in February and 128.9 in March last year.

"In percentage terms, the index last month was 1.9 per cent above a year earlier. DBS said that in the last three months, the index rose 1.2 per cent, the biggest increase for that time of year in more than a decade.

All major components of the index rose last month, except the tobacco and alcohol index.

Clothing prices recorded the largest advance. The bureau attributed the increase to a return to regular prices after winter sales.

While food prices rose by half of one per cent in the month, food prices were still below the level of a year ago.

The housing index rose only fractionally during the month, but it was 4.3 per cent higher than in March last year, the biggest increase of any of the group indexes over a 12-month period.

While the all-items index was 1.9 per cent higher than a year ago, it remained below the two-per-cent anflal rate of increase generally regarded by economists as non-inflationary in Canada. The index a year ago was running 4.6 per cent ahead of 1969.

But the 1.9-per-cent gain indicates some acceleration in the price rise. In December, when the all-items index dropped, the annual rate was 1.5 per cent. It rose to 1.6 per cent in January and 1.7 per cent in February.

The bureau said the purchasing power of the 1961 consumer dollar—was 76 cents in March this year, compared with 78 cents in March last year. The small increase last month was insufficient to change the purchasing power of the dollar perceptibly.

The index is based on the movement of prices for a group of more than 300 goods and services which figured largest in the purchases of urban families in 1957.

Commodities make up 70 per cent of the total, and their prices were up four-tenths of one per cent in the month, and only three-tenths of one per cent in the year.

Reaction to Trailer Camps Varies in Quinte District

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott has a "completely open mind" on whether mobile home parks should be permitted in this city. At the moment, they are not.

At the same time Mayor Scott agrees with federal officials that something has to be done to assist people in the lower income bracket to get a roof over their heads.

Mayor Scott was commenting on the statement in Exeter Monday of William Smith, secretary of the Canadian Mobile Home and Travel Trailer Association who said most southern Ontario communities would be faced in the next five years with deciding whether to allow the mobile home parks.

Mr. Smith said the concept of mobile home parks "is just going to explode in Southern Ontario."

The Belleville mayor also had an open mind on whether mobile home parks should be assessed or if the municipality should collect its money in the form of licence fees which he said could be as high as $20 per month per trailer.

He suggested if municipalities felt $20 per month per trailer was insufficient to cover schools and other municipal services, trailers could be assessed individually to raise more money.

If mobile home parks are to be allowed, Mayor Scott said there should be a proper layout with standards for lot sizes, centres and park areas.

"Mobile homes can be very convenient and attractive," the mayor said. "And with the homes costing less than half of the conventional home, owners would have more money to spend otherwise."

Leighton Thompson, regional assessment commissioner at Trenton, noted that at present there is no definite policy regarding mobile home parks in the Quinte area.

In some municipalities the trailers are assessed in a manner similar to conventional homes, while in others they are not assessed.

In Trenton the policy is to assess the land on which the trailer sits.

Under existing provincial legislation, municipalities now can charge up to $20 per month license fee for each mobile home at a trailer park.

But, as far as Mr. Thompson is concerned, any idea that if a mobile home is placed permanently on land and has water and sewer connections it should be assessible the same as a conventional home.

With permanent service connections the mobile home becomes part of the land, he said.

Belleville's neighboring townships — Sidney and Thurlow — have completely different feelings with respect to mobile home parks.

In Sidney such parks are allowed with three of them now set up in the Bayside-Trenton area.

One of these — Mobile Village on the drive-in theatre road north of Bayside, has approximately 150 mobile homes.

A township official said today that the municipality receives $8 a month from each of the mobile homes with these fees being paid by the park operator.

On the other hand, Thurlow township frowns on permanent mobile home parks and has amended its land use bylaw prohibiting them except for "recreational" trailers with an allowable stay of from 30 to 60 days.

The bylaw has been passed by council but still has to have Ontario Municipal Board approval.

The township now has two trailer parks, one on the Moira River south of Foxboro, which is operated as a recreational park area, and the other on No. 2 Highway near the Point Anne Road.

This latter park was set up on a more or less permanent basis before the township passed its bylaw and will be allowed to continue as a non-conforming use.

Here the trailer licence fee is low compared to the maximum allowable under provincial legislation.

Frank Murray, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce said his organization had never considered whether mobile home parks should be allowed in the city.

In his own opinion, however, he felt that there should be a provincial code established setting out the rules for mobile home parks.

"I think this would be the right approach," he said. "There should be standards for layout and so on under provincial authority."

At the same time, Mr. Murray said the Chamber of Commerce would like to see a tourist trailer park situated within the city.

"We are quite concerned that there is no such park in Belleville and we have to refer inquiries out of town.

"A property located and supervised trailer park would be a great asset to the city," Mr. Murray said.

Rebels Crumble

adequate to meet the firepower and comparative efficiency of the Pakistani army. They are short of trained officers, lack logistic support and are running short of gasoline and transport. Their weapons date back to the Second World War, and they have nothing with which to combat Pakistan's air force.

Even rudimentary military discipline is lacking. At the Ganges ferry station of Goalundo Ghat, Bangla Desh defenders pulled down their flag and hoisted that of Pakistan on the strength of a rumor that gunboats were on their way and Pakistani troops were preparing to cross the river.

Few defence preparations have been made in towns under Bangla Desh control. A rumble is a rarity, sandbags even more so. Few officials are able to give a clear order without a 10-minute discussion.

A trained-of Indian weapons apparently has reached the secessionist forces. A small truck loaded with rifles, grenades and ammunition was waiting for a boat at a river crossing near Mandarpur, 70 miles east of the Indian border.

A Bengali said the weapons were part of a secret consignment that arrived from India by train 13 days ago.

He reported that at least one Indian army major was training rebel forces in the use of the weapons.

He claimed the consignment consisted of 50,000 rifles—probably an exaggeration—together with light and heavy machine guns. He said the Pakistani air force bombed a river boat carrying part of the shipment, but the bombs fell wide.

Potentially the rice fields and jute plantations of East Pakistan are ideal for a guerrilla campaign. Laced with broad rivers and flooded for much of the year by torrential monsoon rains, the land is similar to Vietnam's Mekong Delta. It poses a forbidding problem of communications to any occupying army.

Whether the Bengalis have the stomach for a long, drawn out guerrilla campaign and whether Yahya Khan's government can stand the strain of keeping a permanent occupation force in a hostile land are questions for the future.

Smoking Boys Said Likely Fire Cause

Small boys smoking in the rear yard were believed responsible for a blaze which brought city firemen to the Templer Flower Shop at 395 Front Street early Monday afternoon.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in a boarded up lower floor window and caused no damage except for smoke which filtered into the flower shop.

Workers at the flower shop using extinguishers and a water hose had the blaze nearly under control by the time firemen arrived. Firemen ripped the boards from the closed off window and doused the remaining embers.

An upstairs tenant said she had seen a couple of boys smoking near the window a few minutes before the blaze was discovered.

Although no damage resulted from the blaze, Fire Chief Leo Culhane said it was fortunate the incident occurred during the afternoon.

"If it had been at 2 a.m. it could have been a different story," he said.

The minimum monthly bill, for a demand, for 50 kilowatts, is $3. For additional kilowatts, the charge is 25 cents.

For all customers, there is a delayed payment charge of five per cent all on all bills not paid on or before the due date.

For example cost of two months of residential electrical consumption of 2,000 KWH would increase from $124.30 to $74.50. A sample small commercial consumption of 1,000 KWH would cost $54.50 instead of $28.30. Using a one-month basis for consumption of 15,000 KWH, the increase would be from $171.53 to $190.50.

These proposals were offered Feb. 26 as an indication of what customers might expect. PUC members stressed that these were samples, not to be misunderstood as a basis for all customers.

In an effort to keep costs down, the PUC chopped proposed construction expenditures of $630,810 by $103,000 for 1971. "The plant is operating as efficiently as it can reasonably possible to make it," said Mr. O'Connor.

The PUC chairman again stated, it was "with a great deal of reluctance that we were forced by Ontario Hydro into this rate increase."

In its letter, customers, to be delivered by Key Boy Scouts, the commission reminds its customers, "you can count on us to avoid increases in the cost of living as much as it lies within our power to do so."

Old Dam Concerns Council

TWEED (Special) — Loughboro Township Council wants to know what the Ontario department of lands and forests plans to do about the deteriorating dam between Sydenham Lake and Millhaven Creek.

The potential danger of the weakened structure being washed out with the spring breakup was brought to the attention of the department in mid-March. This resulted in an inspection being made of the dam by engineers from the department in Toronto, but as yet no announcement has been made of what action will be taken.

Letter requesting information will be forwarded to E. W. Ferguson, Napanee, area chief ranger in the Tweed District and J. R. Simonett, MLA, Frontenac-Addington.

Area Children Are Warned To Avoid Deloro Property

MARMORA (Special) — A warning to parents of the danger in trespassing on the Deloro Smelting and Refining property and especially around the old building known as the arsenic packer was given by Deloro Village Council at its last meeting. Council has received notice that children have been seen playing on company property near this old building and asked parents to watch these activities.

The arbitrator's report from the Hastings County Board of Education was accepted. Although the decrease in mill rate of 5.81 on education is listed, this does not necessarily mean that taxes will be lowered since other costs have increased.

Council received an invitation from Kiwanis Club of Belleville, Inc., to attend a Police - Community Seminar at Loyalist College on April 21. Subjects to be discussed include: 1. Is the Law Worthy of Respect? 2. Parental and citizen involvement in police community relations. 3. Drugs in our society. 4. Morality Values in Society. It was decided that a representative will attend this workshop.

A motion was passed to allow a choral group to use the hall for practise on Tuesday evenings. This talented group under the direction of Mrs. L. Williams, is to appear on closed circuit Channel 6, TV Madoc.

Council was pleased to note that the hall is being used considerably more. The library is open on Tuesday afternoons and Wednesday evenings; Euchre parties are held there on Wednesday evenings and Friday evenings to paint and repair the pump house. A letter was received from Carl Bateman, Hastings County administrator, stating the total allocation to the county and its decision to use a portion with the remainder to be redistributed by the county among its constituent municipalities on a per capita basis. Deloro Village's share is $162. These monies must be used within the terms of the program.

A bylaw was passed to regulate and control the use of water and of sewer service within the municipality of Deloro.

The clerk notified council members of the forthcoming county of Hastings clerk-treasurer association meeting on April 29 and stated that if councillors had any questions, they would be presented at the meeting. Speakers for the meeting include J. C. T. Spears, department of municipal affairs, accounting branch, speaking on financial reports, budgets and tax levies; and Carl Bateman, administrator of county of Hastings, speaking on county planning, committees of adjustments and related subjects.

Adjournment took place at 10.20 p.m. to next meeting on May 2.

Enumerators On Course

MARMORA (Special) — Some time during the month of April every household in the village and township of Marmora will be visited by a representative from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regional Assessment Office in Trenton.

Mrs. William Simmons will be doing the village while the township will be covered by Mrs. Stewart Hardy, Mrs.' Gerald Pack and Mrs. Clarence McCoy.

These women are attending a n enumerator's training school in Ivanhoe on April 13 and 14 in preparation for the job they will undertake.

REAL ESTATE

SHOULD BUYERS TAKE "TIME OUT FOR A CONFERENCE?"

ED McKINNEY
R. McKINNEY
Realty Ltd.

There is nothing more natural in human nature than the desire to "talk things over privately" before making an important purchase

Married couples or relatives and friends would often benefit by discussing a property among themselves without the presence of a Realtor or owner. The interval gives them a chance to exchange confidential opinions and speak their minds freely.

One important benefit of a private discussion while you are inspecting a home is that you are on the scene to recheck a particular point that may not be easily recalled once you have left.

Frequently, a feature that could have a decisive effect on a buying decision is missed or not completely understood by one of the buyers. A private discussion could bring it out.

If your Realtor doesn't suggest a confidental talk during a tour of the property and you think one is needed, don't hesitate to suggest it.

A sound decision is not reached quickly, but it reached quicker with free discussion and your resulting verdict is much more likely to bring lasting satisfaction.

Protest March Planned By P.E. County Youth

PICTON (Staff) — A grade 12 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute today will seek permission from the Picton police department to stage a weekend protest march.

Randy Morris, of RR 1, Bloomfield, said this morning that he has organized a march to protest Picton's inadequate recreation facilities for youth and lack of job opportunities in Prince Edward County. A large percentage of students from grades nine through 13 are expected to march on a tentatively planned route from the County Building through Main Street. They will be joined by several former students of PECI.

If permission is granted, the event is expected to be held this Saturday.

"I hope it (permission) will be granted it wouldn't look too good for them if they didn't," commented Mr. Morris. He added that students involved in plans for the protest march, would like to discuss their problems with Picton town councillors.

No attempt to meet with council has been made at this time, however.

Mr. Morris stated, "we'd like to get permission for the march first."

The march is considered by students as a method of gaining council's attention.

Mr. Morris declared that the Third Ear, a tea centre opened in the Armory Mall, is Picton's primary gathering place for youth. He claimed that it is "lacking in variety."

"Something else is needed, but we don't have it," he remarked.

Mr. Morris observed that former Picton mayor H. J. McFarland had supported plans for a public swimming pool when he was in office.

"But it (the pool project) fell through as soon as he went out," said the student.

He explained that Picton's pool rooms offer recreation for some PECI boys but many prefer other activities. "We have the odd dance," said Mr. Morris, referring to those sponsored by the Picton teen set at the County Centre.

He also mentioned that hockey games played at the centre provide occasional recreation. "We also have the movie house, when it's open," he observed.

The local theatre offers two shows weekly, but was closed during the month of March.

Mr. Morris commented that the closest, improved recreation facilities for Prince Edward County youth are located in Belleville, 25 miles from Picton.

The young student criticized the local employment situation and noted that many PECI graduates are forced to leave Prince Edward County in order to find jobs.

"If this situation could be helped in 10 years, it would be okay," he asserted, "but we'd like something done about it now."

He termed job opportunities created by Prince Edward Heights "a start in this direction," but felt that still more should be accomplished to assure work for students who wish to remain in the county.

Mr. Morris termed the march "entirely a Prince Edward youth project," and emphasized that it is in no way affiliated with activities at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. He commented that a few teachers have shown "mild enthusiasm" concerning the protest march, but stressed that they are totally uninvolved with the project.

A student committee of six will be formed next week "to rehash the protest march" and a program will be established in an effort to unite students in working toward the goals of the march.

"We'll be doing it all together," said Mr. Morris.

He also noted that the marchers are not in agreement with any plans by Prince Edward municipal officials to prohibit rock festivals in Prince Edward County.

Picton Police Chief George Pitt said this morning that he expects to grant permission for the student march and to provide a police escort for it. He added that he intends to suggest that it could be rescheduled for a Wednesday afternoon when Picton stores are closed and Main Street traffic is consequently lighter.

Picton Hospital Sublets Service

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has introduced a new food preparation program at a rected toward economy and a more varied menu. Hospital administrator William Cooke said yesterday that Versa-Foods Ltd. is now responsible for planning and cooking each day's menu. A kitchen staff of 15 persons formerly employed by PECMH was retained in January by Versa-Foods and now works under the direction of one of the food supervisors. A second supervisor visits the hospital weekly to inspect the work.

By subletting this housekeeping service, Mr. Cooke observed that the hospital is reducing operation costs. Be cause the food is made in greater volume than smaller ones similar to PECM, food costs should be reduced, too. Also, large hospitals usually offer dietitian training courses and, for this reason, do not sublet meal preparations.

A dietitian is employed by the food service organization now providing meals at PECM.

Mr. Cooke noted that many small hospitals have sublet meal preparations as well as laundry services. He recalled that in its first two weeks of operation the new food service program at PECM occasioned minor complaints which were quickly resolved.

Although patients at PECM do not order meals from a printed menu, alternate dishes can be served to those not ordered on special diets. This greater variety of foods is one of the advantages of subletting the hospital's kitchen services.

Mr. Cooke remarked that although PECM still pays for kitchen services, the cost will be lower because a larger organization is now responsible for meals.

Peking Interlude

With the "anyone for tennis" attitude many Canadians patronizingly display toward that game and others with which they seem unfamiliar, The Globe and Mail is all excited about the presence in Peking of table-tennis teams from Canada, the United States and Britain.

Of course The Globe has to call it ping-pong which is dining-room table jargon and far-removed from the fast and exciting thing that is the world of top-rank table-tennis today. But The Globe (after noting that to most North Americans the game is one to be played in a basement recreation room) sees it in spectator sport terms as ranking perhaps "slightly higher than water polo."

Well, we do not know about water polo, but we wonder if The Globe writer ever saw table-tennis as played by such world champions as Victor Barna, Richard Bergmann and England's Johnny Leach. Perhaps not, for they were the cream of the crop 25 years ago. The game has always gone over big in Europe and today especially, in China. Indeed the Chinese are probably the dominant players of the game today. And once you see the game played by the experts you forget the rainy-day-in-the-basement stuff called ping-pong.

As for the western players being in Peking at all, The Globe sees this as a rapprochement of sorts in the hitherto tense and unfriendly relations between our part of the world and Communist China. Wonder what the Chinese word for table-tennis is? Ah ping-pong, we hope, in the same way that the Russians, borrowing from the West, call their delinquents "hooligans."

Tuned In

Here is an advertising twist — a Toronto radio station man wooing the female listening audience with a collection of statistics aimed at showing he knows a few things about the womenfolk that their husbands supposedly are unaware of.

Pictured is an attractive young woman, draped uncomfortably across a chair, her shoes off, but otherwise immaculate-looking in a jumper and miniskirt, not a hair of her head out of place, and our radio station friend has worked out that each year she washes 16,790 dishes, dries 14,603 glasses, makes 3,642 sandwiches, gets 1,100 meals and snacks, sends 468 kids off to school, solves (is this just a coincidence?) 468 problems a year, cleans 76,000 square feet of floors, washes 4.2 tons of clothes and bedding, does 8.3 miles of ironing, mends about 428 articles of clothing and walks 342 miles dusting, polishing, picking up, looking for things and chasing kids.

Having gone to all that trouble computing these statistics (the poor man must have been run ragged, or did the wife do that for him?), like all red-blooded Canadian males he (or the copywriter) hastens to point out in the ad that Bill D. is no ladies' man. Yes sir, thousands of male listeners can vouch to that. "But he believes that women should get lots of recognition for doing all these important but often thankless jobs."

The thought occurs though, if the ladies are so doggone busy, walking all those miles around the house and all, when would they find time to listen to Bill D?

Masters Champion

Masters golf champion Charles Coody, like former open champion Orville Moody, is a relative unknown on the golf circuit — but only in the sense of outright victories. For Coody is a circuit veteran and we recall an article about him in The Christian Science Monitor which pointed out that his consistent pay and high placings earn him from $50,000 to $100,000 a year. The Monitor writer described him a "bread-and-butter golfer," but now, with the Masters to his credit Coody joins the top ranks of professional golf. A shrewd observer of the game, Coody in The Monitor article named fellow golfers who in his view were masters of each individual club. Gary Player he named as one of the best sand wedge artists, while Canada's George Knudson was rated as perhaps the finest player off the tee.

Now Fourth!

The Peterborough Examiner has referred to Canada as the world's second richest country . . . but, unsure of itself, notes in parenthesis, "or is it third?" Well, it was indeed third for a while, after the United States and Sweden, but we read recently that it has now fallen behind Switzerland as well and now occupies fourth place in terms of per capita income which we understand is the yardstick used.

Bureaucrats Seen as Economic Incompetents

Private Enterprise Urged to Fight Ottawa's Encroachment

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Some pretty compelling evidence has been filed in support of The O. M. Solandt's recent startling public assertion that not only do business and government lack communication and understanding but that the mandarins of the federal bureaucracy are actually hostile to industrial, financial and commercial enterprisers "especially the successful ones."

The government hangup with private enterprise, particularly where it succeeds, is that Big Brother Bureaucrat in Ottawa alone knows best. Or should.

And not only is all - wise, but becomingly increasingly insistent that as manager of what Ottawa calls the "Public Sector" of the economy, he should be taking over more and more of the "Private Sector."

It bugs the Big Brothers when they so thoroughly mess things up economically — as they routinely do, particularly right at this very time with high taxes, high unemployment and higher and higher cost of their own administration inevitably driving up most other costs — that a goodly part of the despised "Private Sector" seems to keep things ticking over reasonably well.

Dr. Solandt's charges should not be shrugged off, for he speaks with remarkable authority, qualification and credentials as a federal mandarin and a businessman, a rather rare individual with a down-to-earth foot solidly planted in both "Public" and "Private" sectors of the troubled economy.

Supporting evidence comes from just as credible a source, from William M. Lee, former Cabinet executive assistant so extraordinary as to have been in an elite class all his own, and now president of Executive Consultants of Ottawa, an equally extraordinary agency which some people might say is in the business of lobbying, but which itself insists is no more or less than "representation".

In the right places, of course, where it can count most in the corridors of power.

William Lee, in his executive assistant days as Max Friday to former Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, played what has never been denied as a very key role in the unification of the Armed Forces.

To this day, at Defence Headquarters, which views unification and all it has meant as a disaster, William Lee's name is a dirty word.

The new William Lee, the sensationally successful Ottawa "consultant," was in Toronto the other day talking to the Canadian Club, the Establishment's super - establishment.

If business and industry felt itself more and more crowded by the Government, he said in what itself was a "consultation" with Toronto's leaders of private enterprise, they had only themselves to blame.

Their non-involvement in the political - bureaucratic process, as he called it, was leading Canadians by Government hand into a society of "total paternalism," a Welfare - Over - All-State.

Damning the Government in the corporate boardrooms or in such Establishment establishments as the Canadian, the Ritz-Beau, the Manitoba or the Vancouver Clubs would change the direction of things not a fraction of a degree, he told them.

The only way to throw up a road-block on the so-far stringstraight Government highway to the Super-State was for business, industrial and financial leaders to get actively involved in the administration with their efficiency and managerial expertise.

They understood the value of the dollar, he told them, and the academes, the crop of young and not-so-young PhDs swarming in off the campuses to take over the bureaucracy, had not a hard economic clue.

Among all 264 Members of Parliament there were only eight who could speak for the larger business and industrial community, he said, but two of them in the Cabinet, Communications Minister Eric Kierans and possibly Treasury Board President Charles Drury.

In its thinking and growing apprehension of government, suggested William Lee, business, industry and finance are concerned about materializing hesitancy at best, and failure at worst, to play a hand in the bureaucratic game.

"Instead of trying to convince themselves they cannot afford the time, men or money to get involved, they should be facing up to the increasing necessity of involvement."

As an insider's insider, who, while now on the outside, knows the twistings and turnings of the inner sanctum of federal power and how to pick a knock-lodged way through the red tape jungle, he urges businessmen to get with it governmentwise through two doors.

The front door of the federal executive suites, in an exchange or even loan of managerial talent.

And the back door of the constituency organizations where candidates for Parliament are chosen and party policy initially developed.

Enter, he warned them, before the academics seize complete control with their "thinkers' conferences" at the constituency level and their "think tanks" at the deputy - minister strata of party and federal power.

Dr. Solandt and William Lee know the Ottawa scene.

"I'll be a little late for supper, dear — I over-slept in the House of Commons again today!"

P. M. and the Country's Economics

Montreal Gazette

When Johanna Bodowski told Prime Minister Trudeau that her family was one of the 20s that will be affected by the shutdown of a Westinghouse plant, the Prime Minister replied, in effect, that this is the result of progress. It was just another sign of successful government, said he.

The Prime Minister's answer to the high school girl in Brantford, Ont., epitomizes the attitude of an administration that believes it is only managing a population, rather than trying to foster conditions of opportunity and progress for 21,000,000 individual human beings.

The Westinghouse shutdown is one of a number that are occurring because of business stagnation and the rising cost of Canadian exports, brought about partly by the increased price of the Canadian dollar in the exchange market.

The higher value of the Canadian dollar is the result of the success the government has had in battling inflation and controlling the economy. Mr. Trudeau told Miss Bodowski:

"That is how a free society adjusts," he remarked.

It appears, from press reports, that Mr. Trudeau's take of success may not have been entirely convincing to Miss Bodowski and to others affected by loss of jobs. While the disease may have made the economy sick, the "cure" is destroying certain essential freedoms for thousands of people by wiping out their jobs and reducing them, unwillingly, to a state of dependence upon society.

But, according to Mr. Trudeau, "this is how a country progresses economically."

This kind of "progress" is going through a rapidly declining proportion of Canadian citizens, and even they are going to find that the chief benefit to them of such progress is that they will be so called upon to bear the increasingly heavy cost of social policies, good, bad or indifferent.

Pollution and the Law

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

A new pattern for dealing between government and industry, in the control of industrial pollution, is going to be set for Ontario. Having evidently wearied of other, more conventional ways of dealing with mercury pollution from Dow Chemical at Sarnia, Ontario is going to sue for $35,000,000.

The government has negotiated with Dow. It has made suggestions and regulations. The detail of all that has gone on between Queen's Park and the company is not known to the public, naturally, but obviously the company's response has been less than Queen's Park wanted.

Although new for Ontario, the suit is not new. The State of Ohio has already commenced a suit against the same recent company. Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich., and the State of Michigan is understood to be associating itself with Ohio in the suit in the American courts.

If a new pattern is to be set, we still don't know what it is, and won't until the courts decide. An appeal to the courts can win or lose. If the case proceeds to trial (which is by no means a certainty) a lot of high priced legal help will get into the act before it is determined whether a province can collect large-scale damages from an industry.

The initiation of the suit, none the less will have a useful psychological effect. Win, lose or draw, it is expensive and uncomfortable to be sued. The simple fact that Ontario is taking one industry to court will be helpful to make the management of other industries think harder about how to avoid being sued.

Hellyer Speech Brought Matters to A Head

Cabinet Gets Roughed Up in Caucus Over Unemployment

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — As complaints about unemployment continue to pour in from constituencies, Liberal MPs are reported to be adopting a tougher stance in demanding more government action to deal with the situation.

One source said a recent speech by former transport minister Paul Hellyer, who pulled no punches in attacking government economic policy, helped bring the issue to a heated head in the party's caucus last week. Other sources said cabinet ministers faced the stiffest questioning so far from back-bench Liberal MPs.

Caucus meetings are held behind closed doors and details are not reported.

But several MPs say the unemployment issue has been dominating reform meetings and there are more and more demands that additional measures be taken to cope with the high number of jobless.

While some MPs say they don't necessarily support the arguments of Mr. Hellyer, his resignation from the cabinet over policy—at least brought various economic arguments out in the open at subsequent caucus meetings.

Some outright support emerged for the Hellyer arguments that inflation need not necessarily be fought at the expense of jobs.

One MP said that since the government's anti-inflationary program began, he has strongly supported the measures taken and that there was apparent understanding in his riding over what was being done.

"But my constituents are becoming impatient, and I would like to have something new to tell them."

The MPs who pressed cabinet ministers for action were reported to have received a cool down of initiatives already taken by the government and were told about an encouraging economic outlook for the country.

"But there is nothing new in this to tell my unemployed constituents," said one MP.

Sources say that the cabinet took a stronger lecture from Liberals than they did from opposition MPs in the Commons over the delay in announcing the program to provide student jobs this summer.

"If you think the government gets a rough ride from the opposition over this employment problem," said one minister, "you should see us in caucus."

The sources say there has been a significant change in atmosphere at recent caucus meetings on a wide variety of issues on which members want action—an increase in MPs salaries is among them—but that unemployment is by far the dominent topic.

It is fair to assume that at least some of this concern springs from the approach of the next federal election, some time next year if the usual four-year term is followed.

"We're now the cabinet's real opposition," said an MP.

Health Unit Closes Marmora Laundromat

MARMORA (Special) — The Marmora Laundromat has been closed as of April 8 at the direction of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Clerk William Shannon placed before council at their recent meeting a copy of a registered letter from the health unit to the operator of the laundromat, T. C. Barton of Madoc, stating that the septic tank and field tile system connected with the laundromat had been recently inspected by D. Kimber, regional engineer, energy and resources management, Kingston, C. L. Young, Ontario water resources commission, Kingston, Lloyd Elliston, chief public health inspector and Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical office of health. The health unit informed Mr. Barton that operation of the Laundromat must cease immediately, based upon the result of that inspection.

A motion was passed that the village council offers no objection to the division of land on Forsyth St., now owned by Mr. Norman Wilson, and further that it recommends to whom it may be concerned, that such permission is granted.

Clerk Shannon was directed by council to write to the claims agent of Bell Canada Ltd. regarding an accident which damaged a company pole in June, 1970, advising them it was the contractor's responsibility to deal with the claim.

It was recommended that a special fireman's accident death insurance for $5,000 on each fireman be placed before the April 8 joint meeting with the township council and that this coverage be given with their approval.

Ralph Neal, Marmora Village's representative to the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority reported to council and questioned an item in the authority's budget for work to be carried out on the village's municipal park. Mr. Neal was advised by council that he should investigate this item since no agreement has been arranged in that regard. However, it was suggested that if the money is retained in the budget, it could be well spent surveying the condition of the dam.

An invitation to meet with Bell representatives on April 13 at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre was accepted.

Authority was given to the clerk - treasurer to attend the spring meeting, on April 27 at the courthouse in Belleville of the County of Hastings clerk and treasurers association.

A letter was received from the Liquor Control Board of Ontario regarding the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 227, setting out terms of the board's favorable decision and approval of the relocation of the legion premises. Since no objections have been received by council, no action was necessary.

A letter was received from the police commission of Ontario requesting that the village send a hat or badge insignia of the village's police force, prior to the time the village's protection was taken over by OPP, for historical purposes.

Council approved a request by the Ontario Sweepstakes Committee of Parkhill, Ont. to sell tickets in the area because the proceeds are for cultural development.

Reeve Jack Reynolds recommended to council that Marmora's portion ($1,015.00) of the Provincial - Municipal Incentive Grant be utilized to provide jobs for unemployed and students this summer.

The clerk was directed to arrange a meeting with Mr. Knox of Mitchell Associates Engineering Co. for the purpose of preparing a budget and planning summer work in the approved Marmora park.

A joint meeting on April 8 at 7 p.m. of the village and township councils will consider such matters as supplying water to the fringe township areas, insurance for firemen, the village disposal site and Booster Park.

Council will recommend to the water resources commission that extension of the water mains to supply the users on Roscoe St. be either included in the present program or the one to follow.

Ken Trumble, property chairman, indicated that there had been a deficit of $600 on the arena's winter operation.

eign interference whatsoever."

Observers here felt the strong words from Peking had introduced a new element into the East Pakistan fighting, which Indian official sources said was still going on in widespread areas of the eastern region.

Official Radio Pakistan claimed Saturday that Pakistan troops "wiped out" two companies of Indian border forces who had penetrated into East Pakistan.

An official Indian spokesman denied the claim as "baseless, false and mischievous," but India charged that three of its border guards had been kidnapped by Pakistani troops Friday while carrying out normal patrol work on the frontier at Bongaon, 30 miles east of Calcutta.

The Indian government delivered a strong note to the Pakistan high commission here Saturday night calling for the return of the three border guards "forthwith" and urging Pakistan not to direct its troops towards any similar "high-handed activities."

The Press Trust of India reported from Agartala, a town on the Indian side of the eastern border with East Pakistan, that a provisional government of Bangla Desh (Bengal nation) had been formed with East Pakistan leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman as president.

The Pakistan government says Sheik Mujib, head of the banned Awami League, which won a landslide victory in illfated National Assembly elections before the army crackdown, is held in West Pakistan.

The Press Trust of India reported Monday night that the Pakistani army backed by the air force launched an all-out offensive against the so-called Bengla Desh liberation fighters in the Kushtia, Rajshahi and Dinajpur sectors of East Pakistan.

Pakistan radio, monitored here, said action took place in the Comilla area where Pakistan troops cleared a region of "all miscreants."

Official Indian sources said the Pakistani troops appeared to be trying to hold a line of communications open between the capital of Dacca, Comilla and the port of Chittagong.

The sources said heavy supplies were coming in by sea at Chittagong and Pakistan troop reinforcements were being flown in daily to Dacca.

Youngest Exhibitor

While most exhibitors in the forth coming Amelisburg art exhibitions, April 17, 18 at Kente School, are adults more youngsters had efforts selected for hanging in the show this year. Young artist Margaret McDougall looks at one of her two line drawings chosen for display.

Art Exhibition At Kente School Coming Weekend

AMELIASBURG (Special) — The second annual Amelisburg Art Exhibition will feature the expressions of township residents of all ages with more than 70 years between the youngest and oldest exhibitors.

The show, set for Saturday night April 17 and Sunday afternoon April 18 at Kente school, will include all paintings, water colors and drawings by members of the group instructed by resident artist Mrs. Donnah Cameron and her daughter.

The exhibits this year, numbering more than 100, were selected from entries submitted for judging at the Rednersville school three nights last week. Among those standing out were reproductions of Quinte region landmarks and rural scenes some of the few remaining signs left for the present day generation to relate to the past.

Youth's contribution to the exhibition is identified by the exacting line drawings by Margaret McDougall, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart McDougall of the Rednersville Road. As the youngest exhibitor she is showing her works for the first time after starting to develop artistic talent two years ago.

A retired schoolteacher Mrs. Ralph Stafford (the wife of a well known beekeeper at Rednersville who celebrates his 96th birthday in June) has two fine oil paintings in the display this year.

The proceeds from the exhibition after expenses are deducted will be donated to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Think about it.

Your feet do a lot of things for you. They dance when you're happy. They walk when you have to get someplace. They jump when you're excited. They tiptoe when you come home late. In short, you can't get along well without them. And that's where proper footwear helps.

When you play tennis, you wear tennis shoes. When you walk, you wear good walking shoes. And when you work, if your job calls for them, you wear safety shoes. They protect your feet from injuries. Puncture-resistant soles protect against protruding nails. Protective toe caps absorb the shock of falling objects. And painful stubbing. And deep treads in the soles protect against treacherous walking conditions.

Take a good look at your shoes. Make sure they're not getting run down at the heel. Change fraying laces. And check the soles to see that they're in good condition.

That's what self-defence is. Taking good care of yourself.

Women's Taste Favors Crystal; Glass Industry Enjoys Boom

WATERFORD, Ireland (CP) — The cut glass industry which has long been associated with this town in the Irish Republic is enjoying a boom as women's taste has brought crystal back into favor.

Before the First World War there was a craze for cut glass—glasses, ice bowls, vases, fruit bowls—but for many years they were consigned to the attic. Now they're again part of the scene in candle-lit dining rooms.

Tourists are welcome at the Waterford glass factory, although they can't buy the products on the spot. But the glass is available in local stores or in the famed Grafton Street shopping district in Dublin.

Glass has been made here since 1783, although the modern factory dates back only to the end of the Second World War when many craftsmen came to Ireland from Czechoslovakia. Now some of the Irishmen they taught have become master blowers.

One cavernous room in which they work is a sort of Dante's Inferno. Furnaces glow, molten masses of liquid glass are removed and blown into basic shapes such as goblets, vases, paperweights or liqueur glasses. The masters stand on platforms and blow into the molten mass through a long pipe.

Even the glass cutters are working by hand as they did 100 years ago. The only concession to modern times is that the wheel is run by electricity. Otherwise the cutter does it all.

He carves the design freehand against the edge of the wheel, mostly reproducing the old Waterford patterns—the deep, thick diamond edge or the strawberry, pineapple or thistle cuts.

Today many organizations order trophies and want them engraved. The engraver, too, works free-hand, from a design drawing.

All Waterford glassware has Irish names. Some are for girls—Sheila, Eileen and Kathleen. Historic places are honored—Royal Tara, the home of the ancient Irish High Kings, or Lismore with its famous castle.

Crystal is made from such plebian materials as silica sand, red lead and potash. The lead content makes the difference between finest and second-grade quality. Materials are mixed and placed in furnace at 1,400 degrees centigrade, to become molten glass.

Canada had an early glass making industry, but few items survived and they are mostly in museums. The rarest Canadian glassware was made at Mallorytown, Ont., about 1825. Only about a dozen pieces are known to be in existence. The Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto has a few of the best.

Lamont Glass Works of Trenton, N.S., made some famous thin glassware. And Napanee, Ont., produced some light green items, now most rare.

Medical Wives Hold Sale

Everything from original oil paintings to a black lace nightgown came under the auctioneer's hammer at the recent private auction sale held by the Belleville and District Medical Wives' Association in Education Hall at the 240th Cavell School of Nursing.

In welcoming her fellow members and guests Mrs. J. Hartt, the president commented on the wide variety of contributions for the sale.

Mrs. P. O'Boyle Kelly and Mrs. P. J. Mulligan, the coconveners were suprised, if amateur auctioneers, ooth obligingly modelling anything wearable — not to mention many items which were never meant to be worn. Also evident was the home cooking table always a popular attraction and amongst a quick death by the few remaining diets.

Mrs. G. A. Pearce and Mrs. L. Dockrill were collectors for the sale, while Mrs. J. M. Douglas (who was also recognizing clerk) and Mrs. J. D. Empson sorted and displayed the items. Other accounting clerks were Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Edgar.

Mr. Broughen, the hospital catering officer supplied refreshments which were served by Mrs. Russell Bateman and Mrs. D. A. MacIntosh.

Reader Favors Keeping the Baby

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: This message is for the person who signed herself Horns of Dilemma. If the girl wants to keep her baby, help her. Just think when you have other grandchildren and they are all with you, and this one is not, won't you wonder where and how he or she is? If we turned our backs on all trouble what a pleasure would we get out of life?

This is exactly what happened to a relative of ours. When this little child was two, the grandmother died, and no one but those who saw can ever know what that little darling did to help his grandfather in the first months after.

This girl is now married to a very good man, who never frowned on the child, but would help him in any way he could and shortly after they were married wanted to adopt him legally. So you see in many cases the girl would end up with a man she could be proud of.

In some of the shotgun weddins I have seen, the girl would have been much better off without many vows. They are in bigger trouble now with a husband who is no man and in some cases hates his man and all she gets out of the deal is more babies and nothing else to look forward to for the rest of her life.

I wish the grandparents well and pray that the girl will be allowed to keep her baby. — One Who Knows

Dear One: Thank you for putting your strong feelings down on paper. Grandmother Horns, please write again and tell us your decision and how you reached it.

* * *

Dear Doris: The Saskatchewan Historical Society is mammoth task of trying to compile verses written by the RCMP and the RNWMP. We feel that this collection will depict a colorful and human interest in the life of the Mounties and also of Canada.

If any of your readers could help us by sending poems and perhaps the source of these poems, it would be greatly appreciated.

— President, Saskatchewan History and Folklore Society.

Dear Pres.: If any of our readers will know about it — and you'll be hearing from us. I'll gladly pass on contributions.

* * *

Dear Doris: I went around with this girl and then we broke up. For Christmas she gave me an arm band and I gave her an incense pot.

She is now going around with another guy, so naturally I don't wear the arm band. Should I give it back to her, or let it sit in my drawer? — Mixed Up, Age 13

Dear Mixed Up: No need to return your ex-girl friend's gift now, or expect to receive yours back. Why not wear the arm band — unless it's a new type of engagement symbol? She's probably using the incense pot!

* * *

Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Landers

Letter Reprinted In Original Form

DEAR ANNIE BABY: You missed the boat in your response to the pot-head who insisted that grass made her more articulate, more lucid and sharpened her mind. Miss Pot-Head concluded by saying, "When I finish this letter it will be a masterpiece. If you fail to print it I will know you are a Communist . . ."

ANN LANDERS

Well, you did print it, but you said her "masterpiece" contained 18 misspelled words, four non-sequiturs, three unfinished sentences, and that you had to make considerable alterations before you could print it.

Why didn't you have her letter alone and print it as she wrote it? It would have been much more effective. You missed the boat, Annie. — MR. EVERYBODY.

* * *

DEAR MR.: Right you are. I missed the boat, but I opted to take a later boat rather than not to make the trip at all. So here's the letter as it was written:

"Dear Ann Landers: Your letter against pot last week was a joke. If you dryed up creeps want kids to believe you, who don't you tell the truth? I like my hair long. It looks fine. I have yet to see a single letter in your column tell the GOOD things about pot. Why is that? Because you are a bunch of fuddy duddies who are scare us kids to death. Well, it won't work. Most of us know more about pot than our parents and teachers put together. Getting turned on by Jesus is definately. I' ma 16 year-old girl who lives in a medium-size midwestern town. I have been smoking pot at least once a day for two years. It hasn't hurt me at all. In fax it has done me a lot of good. Not only is pot-smoking fun but it has expanded my consciousness and opened my eyes to the beauties of the world and unquestionable. This jroves the police are pigs.

Grass has not dulled my find. It has sharpen it. My think is clearer that it ever was. I am more aware things I never noticed before. Objects that used to look small look large, especially when I. When I smoke, I see mental imagines in color instead of black and white. I used to be too shye to speak up in a crowd. Now I am a brilliant conversationalist. I get stoned yet I am 100 percent lucid .I am express my inmost feelings brilliantly. Feet can be friends. When I finish this letter it will be a masterpiece.

If you fail to print it, I will know you are a Communist. In Russia they point out your sick side of story. The side they want people to believe. I'll be watch and waiting. — THE TRUTH WILL WIN.

* * *

DEAR TRUTH: Your letter in the unedited form proved that a person who is stoned is no judge of his lucidity, his brilliance or the caliber of his performance. I should have printed it au natural the first time.

* * *

DEAR ANN: May I say a word to that 16-year-old dope-head who signed herself "Truth Will Wink" I am also a teenager. This is my country, too. I am well aware of the hatred, the conflict and the violence that is tearing our nation apart. I know we will pay a terrible price for getting into a war we had no business getting into. I, too, have grown up amidst riots, pollution, racial strife and drug addiction. Our generation will inherit the problem of taking care of the kids with fried brains. What plans do these spaced-out vegetables have for themselves come 20 years from now? People like me, who kept it all together, will have to provide hospitals for these sick ones. Keep telling them like it is, Ann. You will not reach everybody, but some of us DO listen. Keep hammering away. — AWAKE IN WACO.

* * *

DEAR AWAKE: I plan to — until my typewriter falls apart. Thanks for the encouragement.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Oh, please go upstairs and clean your rooms. I can't get the baking done with everybody in the kitchen. If you really want to help, you can wash up for me afterwards."

Mother: "You girls can work over here and decorate the cookies, while I fix the vegetables for dinner. Then we can talk without getting in each other's way."

Many mothers prefer to work alone, but they are doing their daughters a disservice by not permitting them to learn the joys and companionship of shared cooking and kitchen work.

Strawberry Mousse Is A Favorite

By MARY MOORE

Do you want to have home-made ice cream as good or better than the best professional brands? You can do it.

Jackie is one of my Home Economist friends. You may remember Jackie's One-Hour Dinner given here last April. She constantly is on the lookout for excellent recipes and meal preparation ideas for me. She is a Guidance Counsellor and knows whereof she speaks.

So when we were sweeping on the sidelines on the curling rink she quickly told me she had a great Strawberry Mousse and subsequently gave me this recipe.

I made it with the help of Davey for eight of us during the "school break" and it filled three refrigerator trays. It is highly recommended.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE
(will serve 12 generously)

1½ pkgs. frozen sliced strawberries
½ cup sugar
1 egg white
½ pint (1¼ cups) whipping (32 per cent) cream
1½ tbsps. lemon juice
1½ tsps. pure vanilla
1-16 tsp. salt.

Into large pastier bowl measure the partially thawed strawberries, sugar and egg white and beat until softly stiff. To my surprise the volume increased by about three times. In another bowl whip the cream until stiff. Add the lemon juice, vanilla and salt to whipped strawberry mixture then fold cream in with slotted spoon until smoothly blended. Pour into refrigerator trays, cover with Saran and freeze. Serve in stemmed glasses. A 100 per cent success with everyone present.

50 Years of Marriage Marked by Madoc Couple

MADOC — A long-time resident couple of Madoc Township, Mr. and Mrs. Field Allen, recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage.

About 125 friends and neighbors came out for the sunny afternoon to extend congratulations and best wishes to the couple, and to bring many lovely gifts, flowers and cards.

Field Allen was married to Gladys Kells in St. Peter's Manse, Madoc, on March 29, 1921 by Rev. Dr. McTavish. They were attended by Mrs. R. J. Allan of Campbellford and the late M. M. Allan. Mrs. Allan was a former school teacher and has taught in many area schools. Mr. Allan had served for four years in World War I.

A three-tiered anniversary cake, decorated in white and gold, flanked by candles, formed an attractive centre-piece. Pouring tea were Mrs. R. Ellis, Miss P. Beatty and Mrs. W. Whiteing. Those assisting in serving were the members of the Hart's-Rigg's Girls Club.

Congratulatory notes were received from government officials and a plaque was received from Clarke T., Rollins. They also received a telegram from a former minister, Rev. V. Tozer of Picton, N.S.

Among those attending were guests from Belleville, Hamilton, Toronto, Trenton and the surrounding Madoc area.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan have two children, Mrs. R. Mouck, Oshawa, and Mr. Robert Allan, at home. They have two grandchildren, Allan and David Mouck, of Oshawa.

This event was sponsored entirely by the family.

Australia's Racist Immigration Rules Eased

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's finally happened. The attic has overflowed."

CANBERRA (AP) — Australia's immigration policy is racist, by official admission. Yet this European-populated country at the foot of Asia has liberalized its policy toward non-white immigrants. Last year it absorbed 3,300 non-Europeans and 6,000 people of mixed descent.

Of the non-Europeans, almost half were Indians and a fourth Chinese. The others were Filipinos, Ceylonese, Pakistanis, Indonesians, Malays, Burmese, Japanese, Koreans, Fijians, Polynesians, Cambodians, Thais, West Indians, Tongans and one Sundanese.

The majority of Indians came directly from India and the Chinese from Hong Kong, Malaysia and Singapore. Anglo-Indians made up the largest group of the "mixed descent."

Generally, entry permits were given because these people had relatives in Australia or had some skill needed here. Physicians, engineers and teachers were dominant among professional migrants.

"It's a curious situation," said an immigration department official. "For the first time in 70 years the government is permitting a trickle of non-European migrants, and is meeting a flood of criticism.

"When the door was firmly shut—even padlocked—against non-whites, few people noticed. Now that the door is slightly ajar, people are noticing."

The door is unlikely to be opened farther. To Australia, open-door immigration is synonymous with floodgates bursting. But Australia has become home to 2.6 million immigrants since the Second World War.

Japanese companies have been pumping millions into mining development in Australia. Personnel coming in to keep an eye on the spending generally stay as long as they wish, though they have only permits for temporary residence. There have been few signs that many Japanese wish to settle in Australia, any more than Australians want to go to Japan.

Former prime minister John G. Gorton once said: "What we apply, and what almost every other country I can think of applies, is a rascist immigration policy."

This coincides with a view here that many countries are hypocritical in charges of racialism.

Some African countries refused permanent residence to non-Africans and deny them the right to work.

Basically the same thinking applies in Australia today as in the 1830s and 1840s when antagonism toward non-white workers started. At that time, businessmen imported Chinese coolies willing to work for low wages. In the 1850s, thousands of Chinese arrived in Australia in the wake of gold discoveries.

Apart from differences in language, religion, clothes and food, the immigrants refused to join other miners in campaigns for better conditions. The result was riots and heavy restrictions, though non-whites were not deported.

To Australians, the restrictions benefit was emphasized when the Japanese attacked this country in the Second World War.

A "populate or perish" theme was adopted after the war. Australia's first immigration minister, Arthur A. Calwell, said:

"We have only the next 25 years to make the best possible use of our second chance to survive. Our first requirement is additional population. We need it for reasons of defence and for the fullest expansion of our economy."

The feeling was that a country of almost three million square miles needed many more than its then population of 12.6 million to defend it. But if a non-white applied for entry a dictation test could be invoked. Under this, an applicant could be tested in any European language.

The chances an Indian knew Gaelic was remote.

Former President of China Alive But His Spirit Is Dead

PEKING (AP) — Liu Shao-chi is alive, but his spirit is dead. That is the reply I got when I asked the fate of the former president of the People's Republic of China.

The white-haired Liu was the storm centre of the three-year Cultural Revolution. Condemned as a revisionist, a running dog of U.S. imperialism and worse —if anything could be worse— Liu finally was stripped of all his posts, labelled a scab and a renegade and disappeared from public view.

Liu is officially dead, a non person, as far as the Chinese are concerned. They were a bit astonished when asked about him, but answered readily enough that everyone knew Liu was alive. They added that he probably was being re-educated, meaning punished and brainwashed.

From what I have been able to see in two days in China, the fall of Liu and the success of the Cultural Revolution have been followed by almost unprecedented relaxation generally as the nation rebuilds itself politicaiiy and physically.

The Cultural Revolution was a period of struggle, tension and confrontation.

They were "not out of the woods yet," but their chances of survival were better than 50-50.

The babies, eighth set of siamese twins reported in Canada since 1949, were born face to face joined from naval to chest, but were normal internally except for the fused livers.

Dr. Shandling, formerly a member of Dr. Christiaan Barnard's South African heart-transplant team and now a pediatric surgeon at the Toronto hospital, said no problems were encountered during the operation, which took about two hours less than expected.

Western living in Peking say they noticed the faint stirrings of change 18 months ago, and a dramatic improvement only six months back. Some travel restrictions on the diplomatic corps were lifted, conducted expeditions to various parts of the country started and an over-all attitude of friendliness developed.

Certainly, neither Peking nor Canton now are what they were during the Cultural Revolution —cauldrons of intense political activity and the scene of public rallies of criticism of the wayward.

There are fewer wall posters and newspapers.

The invitations to 15 members of the U.S. table tennis team and three American correspondents to visit China was the final confirmation that the country [illegible] not only stability but a sense of confidence in it-

The mood is remarkably like what it was in Yenan, the wartime Chinese Communist capital when I lived there as a reporter 25 years ago. The Communists we have met have been even franker and more outspoken than the men in Yenan were. The friendliness is the same.

The Chinese not only have extended a warm and apparently genuine welcome to the American visitors, but have gone far in their invited criticisms of what they are doing.

They have been apologetic about the lack of some facilities but helpful in getting things done. And everywhere there has been spontaneous friendliness from everyone, whether it be a peasant or a soldier.

Siamese Twins Separated

TORONTO (CP) — Nine-day-old siamese twins separated in a four-hour operation Monday were described by a hospital official early today as being in "as good a condition as could be expected."

The spokesman at the Hospital for Sick Children where the operation was performed also described the condition of the twin girls, Heather and Kristen, as "normal."

Following the operation Dr. Barry Shandling, head of the surgical team that separated the babies' fused livers, said that if the twins survived the next few days they can expect to lead normal lives with only an abdominal scar apiece.

Bourassa 'Selling' Quebec to Europeans

LONDON (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa arrived Monday evening to continue a series of meetings designed to pep up European and British investment interest in Quebec.

His schedule here includes meetings with British businessmen, a reception at the province's trade office and a news conference at Canada House before leaving Wednesday afternoon for Dusseldorf, Germany.

His visit is also expected to include a meeting with James (Jasper) Cross, the British trade commissioner freed last December in Montreal after two months in the hands of the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Bourassa began his tour April 6 in Brussels where he urged Belgian bankers and financiers to consider Quebec as investment-worthy.

Following meetings Friday in Milan, the premier goes to Rome for an audience with Pope Paul VI and talks with Prime Minister Emilio Colombo.

Most of the following week will be spent in Paris where Bourassa has appointments with President George Pompidou and Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

He is scheduled to leave for home April 22.

Concert Ticket Drive Starts

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville Community Concert Association today is in the midst of its 38th annual campaign to sell season tickets. The tickets — actually memberships in the association — seem to be the only items of public purchase untouched by inflation: Four concerts for eight dollars; students, three dollars.

Memberships are held by no select group. Since its beginnings the association has been formed by the broadcast community cross-section-people linked by a love of live, good music.

Like Owen Clarke.

Mr. Clarke and his wife came unexpectedly on the association's activities 10 years ago. They had just moved to Belleville and a lawyer transacting their house purchase sold them a ticket.

"I've always enjoyed listening to good music. But I'd never been in the habit of regularly going to performances until I came here," says Mr. Clarke, a Bell Telephone engineering associate.

Such regular attendance, he finds, increases musical perception and a growing tendency to relate to the performing artists.

Mr. Clarke, admits his taste leans to instrumental music, but endorses the association's effort to provide fairly wide diversification.

His 10 years of membership "have been a pleasurable experience," he adds.

"You hear good music performed expertly. And if you wanted that in a big city it would cost a lot more money than it does here."

This year's campaign is ambitious — 1,000 memberships, an increase of 200. But by the end of its first day campaigning the association had sold 200 tickets. It has until Saturday of this week to complete its goal.

"So it looks encouraging," says Mrs. Douglas Burr, association president.

As usual, next season's program follows the theme of variation.

Performers include: The John Alldis Choir from London, England; David Bar-Illan, internationally - known Israeli pianist; Jorge Morel Duo of guitar and percussion.

In the association's records their names will add to a list of 38 years of performances that include such international music identities as Lois Marshall and the Munich Chamber Orchestra.

Mrs. Burr has no doubts that the association will last another 38 years.

"I think there's a wide audience still for live concerts," she says. "Glenn Gould's live concerts would become a thing of the past. We're aiming to prove him wrong."

No Playoff Repeat In Reay Crystal Ball

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Billy Reay doesn't foresee his Chicago Black Hawks pulling a repeat of last year's Stanley Cup semi-final when they went out in four straight to Boston Bruins.

The Hawks earned an early rest this year by sweeping past Philadelphia Flyers in their quarter-final series in four games.

It could be next Tuesday before the Hawks return to the hockey wars as they await the winner of the Toronto Maple Leaf-New York Ranger series, now deadlocked at two games each.

The Toronto-New York best-of-seven set resumes tonight at New York with a sixth game in Toronto Thursday.

The other two quarter-final series, also tied at two games each, continue tonight at Boston and St. Louis where the Bruins meet Montreal Canadiens and the Blues entertain Minnesota North Stars.

The Black Hawks, after winning the National Hockey League's East Division title last year, knocked off Detroit Red Wings in four straight before encountering Boston in the semi-final.

The Bruins went on to win the Stanley Cup for the first time in 29 years and are odds-on favorites to repeat this season.

This year the Black Hawks moved to the West Division under NHL realignment and were easy schedule winners. They had little trouble getting past Philadelphia in the quarter-final.

"We won't have any letdown like that this year, I'm sure," said Reay Monday after announcing the team will resume workouts in Chicago Wednesday.

"The guys learned their lesson pretty well last year and besides, last year's series with the Red Wings did a lot more to drain the players' emotions than this series did.

"I relish the layoff this year," he continued. "We've got a couple of guys who will benefit from it, ... Jim Pappin and Keith Magnuson particularly. Both have knee troubles."

Reay said the Black Hawks have done everything expected of them this season "and it's going to continue that way."

The Leafs and Rangers, meanwhile, return to the arena where they finished the second game of their series in a wild,

NHL president Clarence Campbell could deal with the matter of fines sometime today with the Leafs expected to shoulder the bulk of the load because of three bench-clearing incidents earlier in the season.

York and Bernie Parent and Jacques Plante of Toronto are expected to be fingered for getting involved in the melee and Ranger winger Vic Hadfield, one of the featured combatants, was labelled the villain who threw Parent's mask into the crowd. It was never returned.

Campbell, who viewed films of the game, said the mask-throwing incident wasn't on camera but Hadfield has admitted the misdemeanor which could cost him more in fines.

Hadfield said in Toronto Sunday night after Rangers downed Toronto 4-3 to even their series he doubts there'll be a recurrence of this ill feeling that developed from the two early games at New York.

"Both teams were feeling each other out," said Hadfield. "Now I expect they'll stick to the basic fundamentals of the game."

At Boston, the Bruins appear to have recovered the form that made them runaway leaders in the East during the regular season. But they have yet to solve the heroics of Ken Dryden, Montreal's rookie goaltender who more than anyone else has been responsible for Canadiens being on even terms.

"Incredible," was Boston veteran John Bucyk's reaction after facing the former Cornell University star. "He's a big man, he's got unbelievable reflexes.

"Trying to jam one past Dryden is like trying to walk between two elevators," said Bucyk of the six-foot-four Toronto native who played in only six NHL games this year before being called on to face the Bruins in the playoffs.

Boston coach Tom Johnson says he'll stick with Gerry Cheevers in goal rather than risk another chance on veteran Ed Johnston. Johnston was in goal for the second series game when Montreal, trailing 5-1, rebounded with six straight goals and a 7-5 win.

The Minnesota-St. Louis quarter-final gives every indication of going the full seven games if the defensive play so far tending for both teams holds up.

Every game in the series has been a low-scoring affair and the North Stars, who evened the set Sunday with a 2-1 home-ice win, got help from an unexpected source.

Veteran Bobby Rousseau, who scored only four goals all season, and Charlie Burns whose main forte is checking, notched the Minnesota goals.

Rousseau's goal, which tied the score 1-1, ended Minnesota scoring drought of 112 minutes. The rugged series has knocked three players to the sidelines but St. Louis defenceman Carl Brewer is expected to return for tonight's game.

Still out will be Blues' Bill Sutherland and Minnesota's high-scoring Bill Goldsworthy.

Park Reveals 'Love Affair'

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Brad Park says it was his love for the game that caused him to wrap a friendly arm around referee Lloyd Gilmour in last Thursday's Stanley Cup playoff game at New York.

The incident during the second game of the New York Rangers-Toronto Maple Leafs quarter-final series was given full exposure on CBC television broadcasts from New York.

Park of the Rangers had squared off with Leafs' Darryl Sittler during one of the third-period brawls when referee Gilmour came up and spoke to both players.

Park smiled, put his arm around Gilmour and then skated off to the penalty box.

Here for the fourth game of the series Sunday night, Park explained what happened in the New York incident:

"Gilmour said to us both, 'Now look. You've both got five for fighting, and 10-minute misconducts. If you don't let go you are going to get game misconducts, and in that case there will be the possibility that you'll get more—maybe miss a game or two.'

"I just put my arm around his shoulders and said, 'Now calm down Lloyd. This is no time to get excited.' And I let go and Sittler did too. I don't know what Sittler was thinking, but I certainly didn't want to miss any games. I like 'em too much."

THRUXTON, England (AP) — Graham Hill of Britain, at 42 the oldest man in auto racing, won the final of the international Formula Two event Monday, outclassing a field of drivers from 12 nations. Hill had the 40,000 holiday crowd on its toes as he flashed to the finish of the 118-mile race in his Brabham. It was Hill's first big race victory since he smashed both legs in the United States Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., in October, 1969. After that crash doctors predicted he would never race again. He came back with a flourish Monday and won by two lengths over second-place Ronnie Peterson of Sweden in March. Hill won in one hour two minutes 36.2 seconds for an average time of 113 miles an hour.

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Goals by Jim Glover in the first minute of the second and third periods sparked Dixie Beehives to a 4-2 win over Peterborough Lions Monday night. The win gives Dixie a 2-0 lead in the best of seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final series, with the third game scheduled for Peterborough Wednesday night. Roger Hunt and Dan Hinton added one goal each for the Beehives. Hinton's goal was scored with two seconds to play into an empty net, after Peterborough goaltender Doug McFadden was lifted for a sixth attacker. Jim Wasson and Jim Johnston scored for the Lions. Peterborough outshot Dixie 39-21.

EDMONTON (CP) Johan Louw, 25, No. 1 contender for the Canadian middleweight title, has quit boxing. Louw, who lost a unanimous 15-round decision to Bunny Sterling of England for the British Commonwealth title in a fight March 22, said he plans to devote all his time to studies at the University of Alberta. "It became just a question of priorities," said Louw during the weekend. "I reached a position where I had to make a choice between full time boxing or my studies. Louw, who came to the university from Paarl, South Africa, is study for a masters degree in psysical education, had won all his 16 professional fights before he lost to Sterling.

Moses Denies Signing Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Ruining back Moses Denson denied late Monday a statement by the Montreal Alouettes that he has signed a long-term contract with the defending Grey Cup champions.

The Alouettes announced earlier in the night that Denson was among four players to sign contracts with the Eastern Football Conference club, but Denson said later that it's news to him.

"What are they trying to do?" asked Denson in an interview. "I'll tell you this much. They don't have my signature on a contract as yet.

"The last time we talked, I told them the conditions they would have to meet for me to sign a contract. But we haven't even discussed the matter since.

"I can't imagine what all this means, unless it means they have decided to meet my terms.

The Alouettes announced that Denson, defensive tackle Ed George and defensive ends Steve Smear and Steve Boeras have come to terms with the club.

All four players were KFC all stars and Smear was an all-Canadian.

No comment was available from the Alouettes' front office on Denson's remarks.

Marlies Upset Ottawa 67s

OTTAWA (CP) — Steve Shutt scored three goals in the third period Monday night as the Toronto Marlboros beat Ottawa 67s 7-3 in the opening game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-finals.

Marlies led 4-2 after two periods, but 67s battled back to draw even on goals by Peter Gaw and Ron Bobbette early in the third period.

However, Shutt took over and scored at 13:01, again at 16:07 and added his final of the night into an empty net with four seconds remaining. Paulin Bordeau, Glen Goldup, Dave Gardner and Bill Harris scored the other Toronto goals.

Bobbette scored twice for 67s with Dave Lee, Gaw and Paul Shkard contributing one each.

Ottawa goalie Bunny Larocque was hit in the face at 18:55 of the final period and did not finish the game.

Both teams scored two goals apiece while playing with a man in the penalty box.

Ottawa outshot Marlies 58-31 over the game, but many of Ottawa's shots were from long range.

Second game of the series will be played in Toronto Wednesday. The third game is set for Ottawa Friday and the fourth here Sunday. Further games, if necessary, have not yet been scheduled.

Beliveau All-Time Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins may have the highest-scoring defenceman in Stanley Cup playoffs, but Montreal Canadiens have the all-time scoring leader going into tonight's fifth game of their best-of-seven quarter-final at Boston.

Bobby Orr of the Bruins scored three goals Sunday in Bruins' 5-2 win at Montreal, the first time a defenceman has scored that many in a playoff game.

Orr's record over-shadowed the efforts of Canadiens' captain Jean Beliveau who emerged from the weekend action as the all-time points leader with 160, four ahead of Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

JEAN BELIVEAU

Beliveau actually moved ahead of Howe's old points mark in the second game of the series at Boston last Thursday and added to his total with one assist during the weekend.

However, the record-setting aspect of Beliveau's two goals and two assists was apparently over-looked in the surprise and excitement following Montreal's upset 7-5 victory after the Canadiens had trailed 3-1 midway through the second period.

Beliveau now has 75 goals and 85 assists in his 17th playoff season. Howe's record is 67 goals and 91 assists.

Beliveau also is closing in on the Stanley Cup all-time record of 82 goals held by former Canadiens star Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Connie No Cutie

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Connie Madigan, a key member of the Portland Buckaroo defence, was suspended indefinitely late Monday by the Western Hockey League for knocking referee Dave Newell unconscious with a punch in the mouth in a WHL playoff game Sunday night here against the Gulls.

WHL president Gene Kinasewich announced the suspension and said Madigan also was fined $500.

Madigan was ejected from the game in the third period after being given his second 10-minute misconduct penalty of the night.

Newell, who fell unconscious by Madigan's blow before the crowd of 8,743, was reported in good condition.

Yesterday's Stars

BATTING—Johnny Bench, Reds, hit his first home runs of the season, a pair of two-run shots, as Cincinnati beat Atlanta 7-3 for its first victory.

Players Seek Pay Hike

Seven teams remained in the running today for the Stanley Cup championship and the monetary awards that haven't changed since the National Hockey League's 1967 expansion.

But Alan Eagleson, NHL Players' Association executive director, said Monday the players this year will put up a stronger bid than ever for a bigger playoff pool.

Playoff awards now total $307,000, the same as in 1967-68, the year the league expanded again this season to 14 teams, player salaries have been going up and Eagleson said in an interview that the players' association this year will put on a big push for increased playoff cash.

"We did make representations in the last couple years to have the money increased, but there were always other considerations which took higher priority," he said.

The pool is divided so that each player on the Stanley Cup winner receives a total of $7,500. They get $2,250 each for winning their quarter-final, another $2,250 for winning the semi-final and $3,000 for the final victory.

Losing teams in quarter-finals, semi-finals and the final receive $1,500 for each player.

That means that the Chicago Black Hawks team has already collected a total of $47,250 for its quarter-final win over Philadelphia Flyers who go home with a total of $31,500.

Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers, Boston Bruins, Montreal Canadiens, St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars continue their quarter-finals tonight.

BELLEVILLE MINOR HOCKEY LEAGUE

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

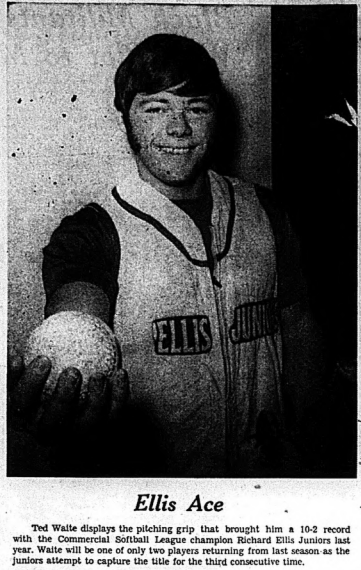
BEN BLEECKER AUDITORIUM

7.30 P.M. – APRIL 14, 1971

Commercial Loop Seeks Substitute For Stinsons

Last night's Commercial Softball League meeting could be termed the "case of the missing sponsor" as Stinson Construction indicated that they would not field a team this season.

The loss of last season's fourth place finishers would reduce the Belleville league to a five team operation if another entry cannot be added.



"There are plenty of players around for a six - team operation, so it's just a matter of finding a sponsor. We're hoping that one will come forward at next Monday's meeting," speculated a member of the newly - elected executive.

George Rutledge, active in softball, hockey and harness racing for a number of years was chosen as the new league president at a meeting last night. Rutledge will be replacing Bill Vallance who elected not to run for office after a three - year stint as president.

Harold Bawden (vice-president) and Paul Goodfellow (treasurer) were also voted into their first term as the league executive, while secretary Vern Whalen is returning for his second year at that post.

The five teams who have indicated that they will definitely be competing this season are Howard and Robert Printing, Quinte Hotel, Rollins Construction, Point Anne and the Richard Ellis Juniors.

The next league meeting will be held Monday night at the Recreation Centre, beginning at 8 p.m.

Ellis Ace

Ted Waite displays the pitching grip that brought him a 10-2 record with the Commercial Softball League champion Richard Ellis Juniors last year. Waite will be one of only two players returning from last season as the Juniors attempt to capture the title for the third consecutive time.

Ellis Juniors Face Big Re-building Task

Rebuilding jobs are not uncommon in the world of sports, but it appears as if the Richard Ellis Juniors are going to require a complete resurrection if they hope to capture their third consecutive Commercial Softball League championship.

The only returning members of last year's championship unit will be pitcher Ted Waite and outfielder - first baseman John Campbell. Most of the other members are ineligible to meet the junior age qualifications this season, while Scott Reid the other half of the standout Ellis mound staff has elected to sign with Rollins Construction.

Don Wood, a veteran of the local softball wars will take over the coaching duties this season from Harold Reid, who has decided to relinquish the position because of the time involved.

"One thing that's certain," claims the new coach, "is that every position on the team is going to be open when tryouts start."

The return of Waite will at least ensure the juniors of the top flight hurling vital to softball success. Last year the stocky right-hander picked up ten wins against only two losses for a winning percentage of .833, tops in the league.

In addition Waite ranked third in earned run average (2.10), fourth in strikeouts (106), while his ten wins were second only to Wayne McConnell's 14 victories for Rollins.

"No matter what kind of team we have, I think that it will be good for softball if we can keep the junior team alive this season," noted the pitching ace.

The Juniors are hoping to replace the departed regulars with graduates from the minor softball program, as well as a few players with Commercial Softball experience who are still young enough to play junior ball.

Apollo Lifters Make Record Haul

Certainly national titles are nothing new to the Apollo Barbell Club, but coach Ken Carr-Braint was especially pleased with his team's effort this year in the Canadian Teen-Age championships.

RON HAYES

Results yesterday from Winnipeg show the Belleville club with no less than three national titlists. "It's our best showing since 1960 when John Lewis, Price Morris and Bill Rushlow all won championships", acknowledged Carr - Braint.

Ron Hayes, competing in one of his first meets since moving up to the 123 pound class hoisted a winning total of 490 pounds, tops in the country.

In the 132 pound class Apollo member Jim Travers took the title with a lift of 520 pounds, while heavyweight Darryl Seeley added the third win with a 445 effort in the 242 pound section.

The marks were set three weeks ago at the Ontario championships and then sent to Winnipeg to be compared with similar meets across the country before determining the Canadian titlists.

Name Changed But Game Still Same

"A league by any other name would sound as sweet" to Trenton area softball fans who will witness a re - birth of the Trent Valley Softball League this season.

The loop which has not operated the past two years will now travel under the name of the Trent Valley Fastball League, but a number of league entries will look decidedly familiar no matter what banner they travel under.

Teams entered this year include Trenton's Carms Cleaners, Cobourg Orphans, Madoc Juniors, Cobourg Juniors, Napanee and Picton.

Jim Whyte of Trenton will head the group with Lloyd Lobb as vice - president and Bud Swansburg as treasurer.

The opening date of the 20-game schedule is set for May 22 with Carms Cleaners taking on the Cobourg Orphans.

Fans Greet Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of Montrealers turned out Monday to welcome Montreal Expos home for their third National League baseball season.

Businessmen, housewives and students took time out from their daily routines to line a downtown parade route as the Expos moved by in a cavalcade of floats and bands with majorettes.

The parade ended at Place Ville Marie where the players and team officials were introduced to a cheering crowd estimated at about 10,000 by police on duty in the crowded square.

Jim Fanning, the team's general manager, thanked the crowd for its welcome and called Montreal "the most unusual and very best major league sports city in the world."

The Expos open their home season today with a game against New York Mets.

Reds Snap Slump; Twins Twinkle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Stargell, held hitless in five previous appearances at the plate in the game, rapped a pitch he wasn't suppose to go after for a single to knock in the game-winning run Monday night in Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 National League win over Philadelphia Phillies.

Stargell, who had missed a homer by a foot in the sixth inning, and had popped up with two men on in the seventh, worked the count to 3-2 against reliever Dick Selma in the 11th. Next came a pitch.

"I was jammed," said Stargell.

"I got the pitch where I wanted it," said Selma.

Still, Stargell drilled it for the single that scored Dave Cash with Pittsburgh's winning run.

Elsewhere Monday, Cincinnati Reds won their first game, belting Atlanta Braves 7-3 with four home runs. San Francisco Giants shut out San Diego Padres 5-0, St. Louis Cardinals clipped Houston Astros 5-4 and Los Angeles Dodgers topped Chicago Cubs 4-3.

Cash had opened the 11th for the Pirates with a walk and raced to third on Richie Hebner's third hit of the game. Roberto Clemente, struck out bringing up Stargell.

Johnny Bench rapped his first two home runs of the year and pitcher Jim McGlothlin added his own cause with a home run in Cincinnati's victory.

The seven runs the Reds scored in seven innings against the Braves equalled Cincinnati's total runs for the first four games of the season.

Kansas City Royals became the latest victim of Bert Blyleven, Minnesota Twins' 20-year-old pitching ace, in American League play Monday.

Blyleven tossed a three-hitter at the Royals en route to a 2-0 victory for his second consecutive shutout.

Last week, he blanked Milwaukee Brewers en route to a 5-0 victory, coupled with Milwaukee's 5-0 loss to Oakland Athletics, put the Twins atop the American League West by a half game in their quest for a third straight championship. Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox outlasted Washington Senators 10-7 and California Angels nipped Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Blyleven became the youngest player in the majors when he joined the pitching-short Twins last June. The first batter to face him hit a home run but he won the game and finished with a 10-9 record and 3.18 earned run average.

"I have more control," the Dutch-born hurler said after spoiling the Royals' home debut before a record crowd of 32,728, including Satchel Paige, a native son, who threw out the first ball.

The Twins scored off Dick Drago in the second inning on Harmon Killebrew's double and Jim Holt's single and got their second run in the seventh when Cesar Tovar doubled and Rod Carew singled.

Black Militants Are Charged With Plot to Murder Daley

CHICAGO (AP) — Police say additional arrests are expected in connection with an alleged plot to assassinate Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago and Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, a Negro leader and head of Operation Breadbasket.

The alleged plot was revealed Monday when two black militants—Earl P. Dillard, 37, and Howard Harris, 33—were charged with soliciting to kill Daley and Jackson.

They were arrested Saturday, five days after two other black militants were charged with soliciting to commit murder.

Police declined to link the arrests. A state official said the four men were involved in one plot aimed at touching off racial violence in the city.

April 21 hearings were set for Dillar, Harris and the other two men—Charles Whiteside, 35, and Terry Simmons, 38. The four are being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

Deputy Police Supt. John T. Kelly said additional arrests are expected.

Dillar and Harris were arrested, police said, after the police intelligence unit received a tip that an alleged solicitation to commit murder had been made.

Police refused to elaborate.

Capt. Thomas Lyons, director of police intelligence, said the murder plot "is not a prank but . . . a serious offence."

A state's attorney's official, who asked that his name not be used, said the alleged plot was connected with an effort by militants to assume power in the city's black community after making the neighborhoods susceptible to looting during racial strife.

Daley was unavailable for comment. His aides said he was in Florida on a vacation after winning election to an unprecedented fifth term April 6.

Jackson said in Nashville, Tenn., he was "deeply concerned" about the alleged plot.

"I hope that whatever the facts are established to be," he told an audience at Fisk University, "the law will be soundly enforced in the pursuit of justice as it affects me, the accused and the well being of our city."

Operation Breadbasket is a program of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference aimed at placing more Negroes in jobs.

Quebec Minister in South To Boost Water Bombers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (CP) — Quebec Transport Minister Georges Tremblay begins a three-day visit with Oklahoma and Alabama state officials today concerning the operation of the CL-215 water bomber built by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal.

Mr. Tremblay is to meet Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma today and Gov. George Wallace in Montgomery, Ala., Wednesday. He later will meet with government crews operating the twin-engine amphibious aircraft in the two southern states. After meeting Gov. Wallace, Mr. Tremblay will observe a demonstration of the aircraft's fire-fighting capabilities at Jasper, Ala.

A government official said the purpose of the visit was to discuss the operation of the aircraft. It was not a trade mission to sell the plane.

Two of the CL-215s flew to the two states in early March at the request of state officials to assist in fire-fighting operations.

Gas Kills 6 Miners

GOLCONDA, Ill. (AP) — Six miners were killed Monday by poisonous gas in a fluorspar mine near Golconda, an Ohio River town in southern Illinois.

Five of the victims were pronounced dead when they were lifted to the surface of the mine. A sixth miner died later in a hospital in nearby Rosiclare.

Another man felled by the fumes was admitted to the hospital, but his condition was not learned.

The miners were killed by hydrogen sulfide—a deadly gas that gives off the odor of rotten eggs but is a hazard in mining operations, state officials said.

The accident occurred at the Barnett shaft owned by the Ozark-Mahoning Fluorspar Co.

C. W. Sobosky, office manager of the firm, said 16 workers were in a shaft 800 feet below the surface and 2,000 feet back into the mine when they reached the pocket of gas.

Nine men scrambled for clean air, but the other seven fell unconscious.

Alberta Imposes Ceilings On Grants to Municipalities

EDMONTON (CP) — Faced with some financial problems and reluctant to impose new taxes, Alberta's Social Credit government has taken steps during the current session of the legislature to impose a ceiling on grants to municipalities.

Burdened with their own budget difficulties, municipal officials have cried foul and pleaded for a stay of proceedings, but have been told by Premier Harry Strom that they must share the responsibility "to try to limit the increasing costs we are facing in health and education."

Once the grateful recipients of one-third of the royalties from oil and natural gas—which will reach an estimated $170 million during the current fiscal year—municipalities will be limited to $38 million a year. Last year they got a little less than $38 million.

After an emergency meeting of the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association, 23 delegates personally placed their case before Premier Strom but were told:

"We had no choice but to put a cap on assistance to municipalities. . . . We are now in a position where we are not able to provide for capital costs out of general revenue."

The government anticipates a $156.2-million deficit in the capital account portion of its $1,182-million 1971-72 budget, and will have to borrow an estimated $85 million to meet its commitments.

All the delegation got for its efforts was a promise from Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colborne that grants will "be reviewed in consultation with municipalities with a view to arriving at some understanding."

The premier said that what was described by Mayor Rod Sykes of Calgary as a "hasty, ill-conceived and destructive action" was in fact a well thought-out decision.

Though unpalatable to municipalities, it was made because the government was convinced that it must "pick up more of the costs of health and education."

Education will consume about 35 per cent of the provincial budget or $400 million, compared with $387 million in the 1970-71 fiscal year.

Mr. Strom said that though frozen, unconditional municipal assistance grants in Alberta are still among the most generous in Canada.

Municipalities say the freeze will force them to increase property taxes and the government apparently sees the same result.

In what is expected to be an election year, it plans to increase the homeowners' tax discount to $75 from $50. The discount for home-owners receiving the guaranteed income supplement to the old-age pension will be increased to $150 from $100.

Saskatchewan Flood Threat Shifts to Qu'Appelle Valley

REGINA (CP) — Flooding which isolated 180 homes was expected to peak today but a new, possibly more serious threat, was developing just outside the city.

Heavy flooding was forecast for the small farming community of Lumsden, 18 miles northwest of here. About 200 soldiers from the Canadian armed forces base at Shilo, Man., were being flown here to help the 875 residents of the town reinforce dikes.

Monday, while an estimated 500 volunteers, police officers and armed forces personnel fought flood waters in Regina, 70,000 sandbags were delivered to Lumsden. Another 70,000 were to follow.

The Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission reported that readings on the scenic Wascana Creek, which flows through southern Regina, indicated a "definite downgrade." The creek began spilling over its banks Sunday and flooded four residential areas six to 20 blocks south and west of downtown.

The peak seems to be straight south of Lumsden and the worst may be over for Regina," Dave MacLeod of the commission told a news conference. "This is only true if we don't get any heavy precipitation during the next few days."

However, two ice jams on the Wascana, downstream from Regina, and rising water on the Qu'Appelle River were creating concern in Lumsden. Two years ago the townspeople struggled for more than a week to keep the river from drowning the town.

Dynamite crews worked on the jams Monday but there were fears that large ice floes would wipe out bridges between the jams and the town.

"The Lumsden people are well prepared," Mr. MacLeod said. "We've been meeting with them and they're getting more active, shoring up low spots and building some new dikes."

While the main concern shifted to the Qu'Appelle Valley community, officials said there would be no rapid easing of the situation in Regina.

An estimated 500 people have been evacuated from flooded homes and there were no indications that they would be able to return in the next couple of days. An evacuation centre was established in an armoury, but most of the homeless were staying with friends.

Mayor Harry Walker said Monday a committee has been established to investigate damage costs.

In the legislature, a building almost surrounded by flood waters, Premier Ross Thatcher said a formula of assistance will be worked out by the province. In 1969, the province paid 40 per cent of flood damage to a maximum of $4,000 in each individual case.

The premier said the federal government may be approached for assistance.

The flooding caught many people by surprise. In the hard-est-hit area, residents awoke Easter morning to find their homes surrounded. Many were evacuated in boats, fire department ladder trucks, canoes and front-end loaders.

Hundreds of young people joined 125 RCMP, 125 soldiers from Moose Jaw and other volunteers in holding back the water. The city received 10,000 sandbags from Winnipeg Monday and another 90,000 were expected.

Hamlet Leads in Nominations for Television Emmy Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hamlet leads with 13 Emmy nominations announced Monday by the television academy. Second place is a tie at nine each between the four-hour Vanished and The Senator segments of a since-cancelled series, The Bold Ones.

Other high scorers included the Mary Tyler Moore Show with eight nominations; All in the Family, a controversial comedy series about bigotry, with seven, and the Flip Wilson Show with six.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences statuettes for 1970-71 programming achievement will be presented at the 23rd annual Emmy awards show to be televised May 9 from Hollywood.

Richard Chamberlain, TV's former Dr. Kildare, starred in the Nov. 17 Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation of Hamlet, but he was not nominated as best actor. Nor was playwright William Shakespeare mentioned, although John Barton's adaptation was cited.

Both the Shakespearean classic and Vanished were nominated for outstanding single program. In the latter, an adaptation of Fletcher Knebel's best seller, Richard Widgark was mentioned for his performance as the United States president.

The nine nominations for Vanished were among 20 for NBC's World Premiere series. In this group category, Hallmark Hall of Fame was second with 19. The 13 for Hamlet and six for The Price. The Arthur Miller play brought an acting nomination to George C. Scott, who tried to turn down his Oscar nomination for the movie Patton.

The Price also brought a nomination for Scott's wife, Colleen Dewhurst of Montreal, for outstanding single performance by a leading actress. In this category Lee Grant was nominated twice, for The Neon Ceiling and Ransom for a Dead Man.

In the men's category, in addition to Scott, the nominees were Widmark; Jack Cassidy, The Andersonville Trial; Hal Holbrook, A Clear and Present Danger; and Gig Young, The Neon Ceiling.

The Ceiling Gourmet, produced in Canada and seen also on U.S. network TV, was among nominees for outstanding achievement in daytime programming. It features Graham Kerr.

All in the Family was nominated as outstanding comedy series, with mentions also of its stars, Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton.

Marcus Welby, M.D., was cited along with its stars, Robert Young, James Brolin and Elena Verdugo.

Outstanding comedy series, nominations were for All in the Family, Arnie, Love, American Style, the Mary Tyler Moore Show and The Odd Couple.

For outstanding series: The First Churchills, Masterpiece Theatre, Public Broadcasting Service; Ironside, NET Playhouse; Marcus Welby MD, and The Senator on The Bold Ones.

Raymond Burr, a native of New Westminister, B.C., was nominated for outstanding continued performance by a leading actor in a dramatic series for his Ironside portrayals. Others in the category are Mike Connors, for Mannix, Holbrook for The Senator-The Bold Ones, and Robert Young for Marcus Welby, MD.

Dick Cavett's, David Frost's and Johnny Carson's shows were nominated as outstanding variety-talk series, edging out rival Merv Griffin.

Composer Burt Bacharach scored twice for Another Evening with Burt Bacharach on the Kraft Music Hall last July 29 and The Burt Bacharach Special March 14.

Horror Fan

Porter Enjoys Variety of Roles

LONDON (AP) — Eric Porter clutches his ribs, in mock dramatics, and declaims with Shakespearean gravity: "I like the idea of being stabbed in the chest and gushing blood."

Porter, who was the enigmatic Soames in television's Forsyte Saga and is a leading member of the Royal Shakespeare Company, is describing his gory end in his first major horror movie.

Porter is a tall, dark and fastidious 43. He has had a quarter of a century of liberally praised appearances in Shakespeare, Chekhov, Anouilh and Hochhuth.

So what is he doing starring in a horror film?

"I don't like people who try to card-index me as a Shakespearean actor as if it were some sort of stamp of respectability," snaps Porter. "I am a craftsman. I can play anything."

He was interviewed in his dressing room at Pinewood Studios outside London, where he has completed The Hands of the Ripper. He plays an evil doctor who adopts the daughter of Jack the Ripper, the notorious and never-identified killer who terrorized London prostitutes in the late 1890s. Despite an engaging halo of blonde curls young Miss Ripper is just as adept at the family business.

Porter confides: "I like horror movies. I'd like to play monsters. I'd love to do the Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Haven't there been two perfectly good Hunchbacks already?

"There is no reason at all why there shouldn't be a third if it keeps me in work," says Porter. "Actors, you know, are like taxi cabs. They pass the parts like taxis pick up fares. I would be happy if I could dictate what I do, but I can't, especially with the state the industry is in right now."

It should be added that he is never unduly unemployed.

Does it worry him that screen violence might encourage real-life violence?

"Screen violence may actually be cathartic, a way for people to work off their aggressive impulses by seeing actors being violent on screen," he says.

"The kind of violence you see in horror movies is not corrupting. It is fantasied violence. How many people have you heard of whom have been killed by having their throat cut with a sliver of shattered mirror, or an eye pierced with a hat pin, or a poker skewered through the stomach? That's how people die in the Ripper."

He smiles wistfully at the thought of it and adds:

"What is really corrupting is the sort of violence with which people can identify, like a mob beating some one up, the sort of real situation that can be easily emulated."

The part which won him international acclaim was Soames Forsyte, the brooding anti-hero in the television adaptation of Galsworthy's The Forsyte Saga. On paper, the saturnine Soames, the man of property, had few likeable qualities. On television Porter's interpretation invested him with a sympathetic imagery.

The 26-part serial has been seen in more than 20 countries. "For some reason or other, the Saga was particularly successful in Holland and Czechoslovakia," Porter says. "That's where most of my fan mail comes from."

He tolerates interviews with a kind of grim resignation.

"I suppose I'm going to be described again as 'bachelor Eric Porter.'"

Well, he is.

Newman Good Anchor Man

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's Edwin Newman, who seems to handle well all sorts of odd jobs around his network's news department, has in recent months been presiding over an early Sunday evening show called Comment, a sort of guest editorial spot.

Last week there were some assorted viewpoints on Vietnam. This week, former presidential press secretaries and Herb Klein, president Nixon's communications director, presented views on White House press relations.

Pierre Salinger, John F. Kennedy's press man, talked of the credibility gap and mocked certain problems created by press coverage of news. George Reedy, President Johnson's aide, suggested that presidents tend to blame the press for bad news, citing the legend of Peter the Great strangling the messenger who brought him news of a defeat of his troops.

Klein defended President Nixon's policy, approved a "trial week to around 80,000, Fedderson said he estimates that more than one million letters, wires and phone calls have been received by Nicle or ABC since the network announced the cancellation of the long-playing musical hour.

Don Fedderson, whose production company is syndicating the Lawrence Welk show next fall, reports that more than 200 stations have asked for the program. Welk's fan mail has jumped from 5,000 or 6,000 a

CLC Has Issued Glossary Giving Labor Relations Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — Armchair labor ministers now can pick up all the jargon they need from a glossary of labor terms just published by the Canadian Labor Congress.

From "agency shop" to "working conditions," the glossary covers 70 of the more polite terms commonly used in Canadian labor relations.

Among those who might benefit, a CLC spokesman suggests, are the average newspaper reader, the student, the reporter, the member of the local union.

Copies of the glossary can be obtained free of charge by writing to the CLC public relations department, 100 Argyle St., Ottawa.

Those who do will be able to learn the difference between a hit-and-run strike and a wildcat walkout, what AFL-CIO stands for and why "contracting-out" is as worrisome to union members these days as technological change.

The latter issues are of concern, of course, because they conflict with job security, defined in the glossary as "a provision in a collective agreement, protecting a worker's job, as in the introduction of new methods or machines."

Contracting-out is described as the "practice of the employer having work performed by an outside contractor and not by regular employees in the unit—not to be confused with subcontracting."

Distinctions are drawn between various kinds of strikes, generally defined as "a cessation of work or refusal to work . . . for the purpose of compelling an employer to agree to terms . . . usually the last stage of collective bargaining when all other means have failed."

There are also, however, rotating or hit-and-run strikes "organized in such a way that only part of the employees stop work at any given time," and wildcat strikes which violate contract terms and are not authorized by the union.

Somewhat different is the "work - to - rule" slowdown—a concerted slowdown in which workers, tongue in cheek, simply obey all laws and rules applying to their work."

The management equivalent of a strike is the lockout, "a phase of a labor dispute in which management refuses to work to employees or closes its establishment in order to force a settlement on its terms."

The glossary is expected to be of use as well to translators since it comes in both a French and an English version and the equivalent for each term is given in the opposite language. For example, a union label is "bug" becomes in French "etiquette syndicale."

Relief Shipments Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agriculture department announced Monday that Food For Peace shipments to East Pakistan will be halted until the situation there clears up.

Officials said the halt in food shipments, involving what not yet shipped, will become effective today.

The termination of current deliveries has been deemed necessary because of the current situation in East Pakistan and the resultant congestion in East Pakistan ports," the announcement said.

"Accordingly, the government of Pakistan is being advised that the U.S. government is anxious to resume shipments of wheat for East Pakistan at the earliest feasible moment," officials said.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Four Main Choices If One Has Piles

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Piles, or shall I say hemorrhoids, are a mystery to me. I'll go along without any trouble whatever for months, then suddenly there they are.

One time a pile got so inflamed and "thrombosed" that my doctor had to make an incision to relieve the pressure and pain. Another time, the piles were large and caused bleeding which made my hemaglobin fall. I needed to take iron to build up my blood.

As for piles, they went down without any treatment. What makes them act up like that? Can it be constipation? Occasionally I've noticed troubles even when I've complained of loose stools. What do you suggest? — Mrs. J.

* * *

COMMENT: When the diagnosis is unquestioned, plans for treatment often fall easily into place. Your doctor will have four main choices: leave them alone; use ointment or other local medications; treat them by injection to "close off" the piles, or remove them by operation called "hemorrhoidectomy."

When weakness develops in the walls and valves of leg veins we call them varicose veins of the leg. When there's similar interference with blood flow in the veins around the anus, the name for it is hemorrhoids. Why some get piles and others don't is a question scientifically unanswered — except by the usual one: inherited weakness in the veins.

Anything which interferes with venous flow might cause the condition. For example, they are common during pregnancy and in patients who suffer from constipation. People whose work requires sitting for hour after hour have a tendency to develop piles.

Hemorrhoids may simply itch and cause little discomfort. But when they swell, causing bleeding or intense pain, then it makes good sense to see a rectal specialist. He will determine whether to use ordinary treatment like hot baths, salves, etc. Or, to make direct attack by injecting or removing the hemorrhoids.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We want to be absolutely certain that we will not have any more children. We have six now. My wife is too nervous to undergo operation, so I am volunteering to be the one for sterility operation. But I have heard that vasectomy (cutting the sperm duct) is not 100 per cent effective. Is this true? — Mr. D.

COMMENT: There have been some reports of ineffective operations. However, this surgical procedure usually accomplishes the job it is supposed to do. When in doubt, one can periodically test for the presence of sperm.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My young son is studying how to play the trumpet. When I see how hard he blows it worries me that he may get emphysema when he gets older. Will you comment? — Mrs. U.

COMMENT: Seeing some blow until they were "blue in the face." I've often wondered myself. But I've found no direct evidence that there is any danger.

In a recent letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association by J. S. Felton, MD of Los Angeles, he notes a study by Havermark and Lundgren in which replies to a questionnaire were received from 364 musicians, glass blowers and others, including 187 "blowers of various musical instruments."

It indicated clearly that no support could be found for the teaching that emphysema could be provoked by this kind of occupation. So, Mrs. U., let your son blow his horn in peace and contentment.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Depression Left Imprints

My luncheon host was only seven years younger than I, but there is a huge kind of "generation gap" between us that is as great as any. I thought of this when he called for the bill, and it was $19.

He had insisted on our lunching at this expensive place, and I knew it would be around $20 for the two of us, plus tip; and I also knew that this was not expense account money but was coming out of his own pocket.

It actually hurt me to see him lay out, since I remembered our difference in ages, I am a child of the Depression, and he is not. I was permanently scarred in a way he escaped, and knows nothing of.

When the Depression began, I was entering my teens, and had times really didn't begin to diminish until I was in my 20s. He was only a little boy at the time, and the Depression is just a blur in his mind. It makes all the difference in the world whether you're 5 or $20 luncheon check.

We are as alien to each other in that respect, as the people who experienced the concentration camps and those who didn't. There is no way of relating to that kind of you didn't live through it, all the stories or dramas about it are pale and dim abstractions. To the young, Hitler might as well have been Attila the Hun, and the Depression as long ago as the War of the Roses.

It seems unfair to blame or reproach today's youngsters for failing to share the sense of values that older people possess, when only seven years younger than myself has a far different concept of money. I have Veterans are always different from non-veterans, no matter if they are veterans of a foreign war, or a domestic cataclysm.

The Depression left millions of us with a permanent case of shellshock. We saw what could happen to men who had worked all their lives, who knew how to work, and wanted to work, and were forced into the indecency of unemployment, of public assistance, of begging for a living.

This had dream haunts us for all of our days, no matter how secure or affluent we may feel on the surface of our being; no matter how much we reassure ourselves that the structure of our society would no longer permit the same thing to happen. But the wound has not fully healed, and possibly never will.

To my friend, the $20 luncheon bill was a munificent gesture. I have done the same spent as carelessly and as cavalierly — but without a subterranean twinge of guilt, not without a tiny wrench of misery, recalling when a full-grown man worked a whole week for that. I could not bridge a gap of only seven years with him; how can we expect youngsters — whose first President was Eisenhower to have the remotest idea what we are talking about, much less feeling in our deepest recesses?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Personal possessions are a matter of concern and lend a hand. Some of them can be a chore, and maintenance even more so.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Reconcile differences as rapidly as they arise. Think of what is really pertinent, then discard all which doesn't tie in with your goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Now it is possible that you are overinvolved, coping with too many demands on your time and energy. If so, speak up.

Eyewitness Account Given

Dacca Is Cowed City with 6,000 Slain by Ruthless Soldiers

Foreign reporters have been barred from Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan, since March 27, two days after President Yahya Khan ordered Pakistan's army to put down the independence movement in East Pakistan. Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neill and photographer Michael Laurent crossed from India and reached Dacca by foot and canoe, dodging army patrols. Neeld returned to Calcutta to file this dispatch.

DACCA (AP) — Dacca, East Pakistan's capital, is a cowed, submissive city with up to 6,000 persons slain by the army and at least 24 city blocks devastated.

The crack of rifle shots still punctuates the night as West Pakistani troops round up Awami League officials, intellectuals and other prominent Bengalis.

"This is Gestapo rule," commented one Western diplomat. "The army has committed mass murder."

President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan's troops patrol the smouldering city in jeeps and commandeered trucks, their rifles and sub-machine-guns at the ready.

In teeming working-class districts, a black wilderness of ashes and charred bamboo stumps is all that remains of the flimsy homes where thousands of families lived.

The city is under curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. Many families sit at home at night with their lights off, hoping they won't be visited by foraging troops and looters.

The soldiers stormed into Dacca on the night of March 25 to crush the movement of Sheik Mujibur Rahman, leader of the Awami League who had demanded virtual autonomy for the 75 million people of East Pakistan, most of whom are Bengalis.

Sheik Mujib was arrested and his followers are being hunted down.

The flags of Bangla Desh—the independent state that the Bengalis tried to create—have been hauled down or burned. A forest of green and white Pakistani flags flutter over public buildings.

The Hindu minority also is being subjected to the army's fury. A European reported a neighboring family of six was murdered in their home. No one dared to go to their aid.

Thousands of families are still fleeing to their native villages.

Dacca University remains closed. Student dormitories are strewn with litter and pocked with bullet holes.

Some observers estimate that 300 to 500 students were killed when they attempted to resist the army.

Some persons claim they saw many students lined up against and wall and shot.

Troops from West Pakistan continue to arrive by air and are now said to number 10,000 in Dacca and about 25,000 in all of the province.

Calgary Mayor Earns Rebuke

CALGARY (CP) — Mayor Rod Sykes, who received mild chastisement Monday from a public inquiry into civic management, seldom gives his political opponents an inch and almost never side-steps an issue.

Since he swept into office two years ago he has traded gags with princes, stuck up for the common taxpayer and pushed his nose into everything he thought a mayor should know about.

He is as fast as a western gunfighter when it comes to pulling the trigger on a quip and his remarks are usually well-aimed.

The mayor, a slender, almost gangly six-footer, has found a politician is bound to incur a little wrath no matter how fast he talks.

If the city has any sacred cows, the mayor ran into one soon after he was elected when he raised the ire of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede.

Under the previous administration of mayor Jack Leslie, the city agreed to spend $400,000 a year for 10 years to help the Stampede board expand its fair grounds into the older, somewhat deteriorating Victoria Park residential section.

Mayor Sykes has stuck up for the residents who oppose the plan but has not fully abandoned the Stampede board. He has tried to find a suitable middle ground in the dispute, which is still unresolved.

Mr. Sykes, an accountant and economist by training, has also demonstrated a bent for savings—he ordered the mayor's black Cadillac to the auction block and now makes his appearances in a unmarked police cruiser.

He came to the city's top post from the vice-presidency of Marathon Realty, a member of the Canadian Pacific group of companies, but not with as much corporate loyalty as skeptics would imply.

When the Canadian Transport Commission held hearings on the railway's plans to cut transcontinental passenger service as an economy move, the mayor described the railway plan as "poor sort of joke" that was negative, foolish and fraught with illogical and irrational thinking.

He has been a bane to the city's police force sometimes and a friend to transient youth on the downtown mall.

The youths on the mall were complaining about harassment which the mayor made clear he was against.

He has supported the police force but said they did not need riot control equipment, such as that acquired in Vancouver. He found out they already had some of it.

Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow, in a report from the civic inquiry a few weeks ago, said the police commission which Mayor Sykes heads had interfered with the force. The judge recommended a decrease in the power of elected officials on the commission.

The mayor's relations with the news media have been stormy occasionally with complaints of misquoting and misinterpreting. At one point, recording of speeches was banned after the mayor said remarks were being taken out of context.

When Prince Philip visited the city in 1969 and received the traditional Calgary whitehat welcome, he remarked that he already had one from an earlier visit.

A day later the mayor presented the prince with a set of long steer horns and remarked they were "what every travelling man needs."

Space Pioneers Are Honored

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Party chief Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and other top members of the Soviet leadership attended a rally in Moscow Monday in honor of the anniversary of 10 years of manned space flight.

At the rally, Staslav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said the American manned lunar expedition and the Russian automatic moon stations had opened up "huge possibilities" for studying the moon.

He expressed the hope that the discovery of new sources of energy would make flights to Venus and Mars regular occurences.

Guns, 'Bangers' Drive Birds From Airports

TORONTO (CP) — At Toronto Island Airport, an attendant tilts his shotgun upward and searches the sky warily.

Two men patrol the boundaries of Toronto International Airport daily, firing gun-like bangers.

The purpose in both cases is the same: to frighten away birds that can damage aircraft or possibly cause an air disaster.

Canada's research into the problem is co-ordinated by the National Research Council's associate committee on bird hazards to aircraft, appointed in 1962.

Represented on the committee are the department of transport, Air Canada, CP Air, the Canadian Forces, the Canadian Wildlife Federation, airline pilots' associations and major aircraft manufacturers.

Toronto biologist W. H. Gunn, a committee consultant representing the wildlife federation, said in an interview air traffic controllers at Winnipeg airport will test a more modern weapon next month—a new type of radar installed solely to track huge flocks of geese.

A $50,000 experimental radar is being imported from Britain for use at Winnipeg airport. Present radar shows distance and direction from the airport as well as speed, but the new radar also gives the altitude of the geese.

Dr. Gunn said the decision to test the radar probably was the result of a near disaster May 11, 1969, as a twin-engined Boeing 737 was arriving at Winnipeg with 80 passengers on a CP Air flight from Toronto.

The plane received a severe jolt at 3,600 feet, but somehow managed to land safely. Investigators found that the plane had run into a flock of geese and received major damage. Six weeks of repairs were necessary.

Dr. Gunn said if the plane had been in a five or 10-degree bank at the time of collision, it would have ingested geese in both engines and crashed.

In fact, a flock of starlings was blamed for a crash at Boston Oct. 4, 1960, that killed 62 people.

Bird collisions, called strikes, happen quite frequently. In 1970, Air Canada reported 216 strikes but no resulting crashes.

Only 25 strikes occurred at Toronto International Airport, a rate of 3.4 per 10,000 takeoffs and landings—one of the lowest rates in Canada.

The airport has been made inhospitable to birds. The grass is cut short to reduce insects and rodents that birds eat, and trees and bushes that might act as perches have been removed.

But in the winter the bare snow-covered airport apparently looks just like Arctic Tundra to snowy owls. They flock to it.

Dieter Rosenkranz, a falconer by hobby, is paid by the airport to trap the owls and then release them 100 miles away.

Dr. Gunn said Vancouver International Airport has a high rate of strikes because its geographical location and climate attract birds. Its strike rate last year was 6.49 per 10,000 landings and takeoffs.

The rate at Thunder Bay International Airport was 9.22, but is being reduced because a garbage dump near the airport was removed. The dump attracted gulls, who found it convenient to loaf near the airport between meals.

He said Quebec's airport has a dump, gulls and a 6.82 strike rate. Winnipeg has a 6.2 rate.

Dr. Gunn said the research committee spends about $100,000 a year on the problem, but needs more money.

New Union Of Miners Organizing

TORONTO (CP) — An attempt is being made to form a new union to replace the United Steelworkers of America as representative for 160,000 Canadian miners, it was announced today.

C. B. Arnold, chairman of the organizing committee of a union, to be called the Canadian Metal and Mine Workers of Canada, announced in a news release the new union hopes to oust the Steelworkers within a year by means of a referendum.

Mr. Arnold said a letter has been sent to I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers of America in Pittsburgh, Pa., seeking permission to hold such a referendum on the basis of one vote for each member of all Canadian locals of the Steelworkers.

The letter sent to Mr. Abel April 9 asked for a decision on the proposed referendum within 15 days.

William Mahoney, Canadian director of the Steelworkers, said in an interview he was "not at all concerned" about Mr. Arnold's proposal.

"He's a self-appointed spokesman for a non-existent organization," said Mr. Mahoney.

Mr. Arnold said in the release the new union would start its campaign by trying to win the support for the referendum from workers at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. and Falconbridge Nickel Mine Ltd. in Sudbury.

The new union also would work for the formation of a new Canadian Labor Congress, consisting of 10 industrial-style unions as advocated in 1967 by the Canadian Union of Public Employees, instead of the present number of more than 100.

Big Pay Raises Shoot Holes In British Inflation Fight

LONDON (CP) — Big pay raises in some sectors of the British economy are shooting holes in the government's anti-inflation policy and the cabinet is reported worried about the wage-price spiral getting out of hand.

Within the past week three major automobile firms have granted large increases, and officials fear hundreds of thousands of other workers will be chasing after comparable boosts in the face of bold-the-line admonitions from the government.

Already unofficial calculations indicate that raises in the first quarter of 1971 have averaged 14 per cent, far outpacing the officially-suggested limit of less than 10 per cent.

After a long and expensive strike by its 50,000 auto workers, Ford of Britain cracked the situation wide open by giving increases of about 33 per cent over two years.

It was accompanied by a no-strike provision covering the period, though labor experts think there is little chance of that holding good in this home of the wildcat strike.

Despite a subsequent lecture by Employment Minister Robert Carr to leaders of the employers' Confederation of British Industry, Vauxhall offered its 30,000 workers up to 38 per cent over two years and another auto-maker, British Leyland, proposed 30 per cent over the next 14 months.

State-run industries are engaged in two tangles with employees at the moment.

Engine drivers on British Railways Monday were in the eighth day of a work-to-rule slowdown over a pay demand of about 15 per cent. The railway has kept its offer down to about 9.5 per cent.

An arbitration committee is in the final stages of an inquiry into a demand by about 100,000 postal workers who tied up the mails for 47 days between January and March.

East Pakistan Still Resists

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Press Trust of India reported continued bitter fighting today in East Pakistan, where government troops were said to have won control of two towns while separatist forces captured the jute centre of Sylhet.

The news agency said Pakistan air force planes bombed and strafed Bengali separatists as they battled for Sylhet in the far northeast corner of East Pakistan, but government ground forces were forced to withdraw to Shalutkor airfield five miles away.

The "Liberation Army" was reported holding half of Comilla after fierce fighting for the vital supply and communications centre.

But the Bengalis lost possession of the important railway town of Lalmoirhat in the north and Isajpur in the northwest as strong Pakistani forces pushed them back, PTI said.

There was no independent Indian reports on the East Pakistan situation.

From Jessore the Pakistani army was reported by PTI to have cleared the way up to Benapole on the border with India, but the troops had made no appearance on the frontier.

The PTI reported that the annual monsoon rains had broken about four weeks early in the eastern part of the province and were hampering the movement of Pakistani troops.

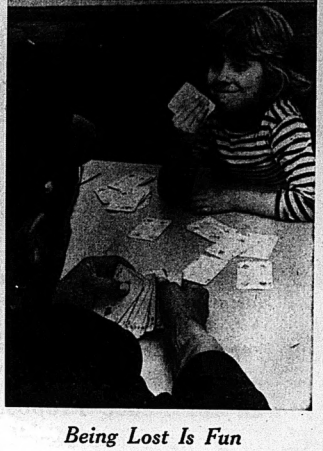
Four Soldiers Are Set Afire

BELFAST (AP) — For seven hours, 1,000 British troops battled 2,000 Protestants trying to firebomb a Roman Catholic church Tuesday night in the bloodiest rioting in Northern Ireland in weeks.

Four soldiers were set ablaze by Molotiv cocktails at the height of the fight, but other troops doused the flames before they suffered serious injury.

The violence began after a 12-year-old Protestant, Harry Martin, was felled by a burst of automatic fire as a Protestant parade wound up four days of Easter demonstrations that until then had been peaceful.

Martin was either in the parade or watching it when some of the 2,000 young marchers broke through a protective police cordon around a Catholic section. The Protestants waved Union Jacks, the Catholics waved the Irish Republic's tricolor; then the burst of firing came, wounding young Martin and grazing three adults.



A bullet was removed from the child's thigh and he was reported in satisfactory condition. But an angry crowd of Protestants gathered and after an hour attacked St. Matthew's Church, which the Protestants charge is a sanctuary and snipers' post for the terrorist Irish Republican Army.

The British troops threw up barriers of barbed wire and armor to keep back the mobs. The Protestants attacked with gasoline bombs, concrete slabs, bottles, rocks and iron.

"They started it, let us finish it," one Protestant shouted at the security forces who sealed off the area.

When the mob was finally put to flight, at least 12 civilians and several soldiers had been injured, and 27 persons had been arrested.

Several missiles hit the church but caused little damage.

Bourassa Would Harness Five James Bay Rivers

LONDON (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec would welcome European capital for a proposed $1,500 million power project harnessing five rivers in the James Bay area, an aide said today.

He said Bourassa is carrying this message in his private talks with leading British industrialists and financiers during his two-day London visit which ends tonight after discussions with Prime Minister Heath and a Canada Club dinner speech.

The aide said that United States capital for the project, on which feasibility studies have been completed, is assured but Bourassa also would favor European participation.

A date for final approval of the project has not yet been set, but the Quebec government sees the hydro proposal as something on the scale of the Tennessee Valley Authority in the U.S.

The project would provide thousands of new jobs in northeastern Quebec and would generate a huge surplus of electricity which would be transmitted to the lucrative New York market.

Poverty Report

Two Viewpoints

TORONTO (CP) — The four staff members who quit the Senate committee on poverty last week said Tuesday they may produce their own report on the committee's findings without the "political editing" of Senator David Croll.

In interviews on CBC television, writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz said the committee apparently intended to build its report around a proposal for a guaranteed income, ignoring other policies "directed at the sources of poverty within the economy."

The four claimed Senator Croll's editing avoided references to controversial issues.

OTTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary committee and nobody else decides what goes into the committee's report, Senator David Croll said today.

He said his Senate committee on poverty will not be diverted from its responsibility by the resignations of four staff members, writers Ian Adams and William Cameron and economists Brian Hill and Peter Penz.

Senator Croll, an Ontario Liberal, said the four who resigned wanted to write into the report something about "restructuring society."

"Our committee is trying to do something for the poor, not restructure society," the senator said.

Labor Takes Issue With Keegan Views

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Robert Andrus, president of the Quinte District Labor Council, and at least one other QDLC member will go before Belleville City Council in the near future to protest a speech made by Belleville Alderman Arthur Keegan.

Members of the labor council, meeting here Tuesday concluded statements made by the alderman at a recent city council session are "anti-labor" and should be replied to.

A motion from the floor called for a "mission" to be sent to Belleville council and letters to the editors of area papers be drafted.

"Keegan is cutting his own throat," said one voice from the floor, others exclaimed they would campaign in Foster Ward against him in the next municipal election.

Copies of the Keegan speech were circulated throughout the hall as the meeting continued. It calls for price and wage controls and asks for organized labor to sit down with municipal, provincial and federal governments "to jointly bring about a just society."

"Labor unions have been very helpful to the labering man in the past, but now they are going beyond all reason organized labor is pricing the Canadian product off the market and I mean it in almost all cases in this country," Ald. Keegan had said.

The alderman referred to the success of Japanese firms in the Canadian market, adding that the Japanese achievement can be blamed on domestic labor groups.

"I do not blame the Japanese — I blame the labor unions in Canada. The unions are pricing themselves out of business," he charged.

The labor council also took exception to references that some organized groups "sit on their backsides and do not try to promote and raise funds to help themselves," but look for handouts from council.

QDLC president Bob Andrus said this must be a reference to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

From the floor came explanations of what various unions were doing to assist a wide range of causes from minor hockey and baseball to the United Appeal.

Mr. Andrus said that his union, the Firefighters, works to support various Christmas programs and is the backbone of the Muscular Dystrophy campaign. He expressed resentment at the remarks of the alderman.

The Labor Council delegation to council will protest the speech but will express approval of the alderman's suggestion that a meeting be called to put more justice in this society.

Winnipeg Hijacking Is Foiled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three youthful hijackers, armed with sharpened toothbrush handles, failed in an attempt Tuesday to commandeer a light passenger plane to fly them "to any place but Winnipeg" when the aircraft's pilots hid their course in clouds.

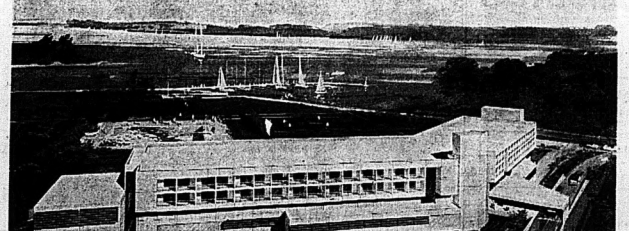
The Midwest Airlines aircraft, a seven-passenger Navajo, was on a scheduled noon flight to Winnipeg from Dauphin, Man., and carried three other passengers, including Winnipeg Mayor Stephen Juba and his wife.

Shortly after the plane's 11:50 a.m. takeoff, one of the juveniles, all described as about 16 years old, entered the plane's cockpit and ordered the pilot, Robert Taylor of Winnipeg, to "put her down right here or there will be trouble."

Mr. Taylor, believing the youth held a knife, suggested Yorkton, Sask., as a destination because there was too much snow to land on a highway, the only suitable landing site. The youth agreed and the plane turned west.

The co-pilot, Maurice Durrant of Winnipeg, radioed Winnipeg International Airport and in a special hijack code told of their situation.

The youths took seats as Mr. Taylor flew into a heavy cloud bank and began gently turning back towards Winnipeg, 160 miles to the southeast.



As the aircraft left the clouds about one-half mile north of the airport, one of the youths shouted: "This isn't Yorkton. Why are we landing here?"

Two of them ran to the cockpit and one struggled briefly with Mr. Durrant.

RCMP and suburban St. James-Assiniboia police met the plane as it landed and followed it down the runway. The youths were taken into custody and turned over to juvenile authorities.

City's Recreation Spending Comes Under Close Scrutiny

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Summertime minor sports activities in Belleville are causing Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer too much money.

That is the feeling of the Recreation and Arena Committee members as they strive to come up with an acceptable solution to reducing the department budget approved by city council for approval.

The staff-recommended recreation and arena budget for this year is an estimated $381,000, with arena and other revenues reducing this figure to $268,000.

Without the two arenas, department costs are estimated at $219,000 less revenue of about $77,800.

[illegible] members have not completed their perusal of the budget and it is possible that the overall figure may still be reduced before it goes to council.

Budgets for the memorial arena and for the new Dick Ellis Rink are still to be gone over.

Proposed expenditures for 1971 include $60,770 for programming; $70,117 for administration and $60,100 for the operation of community centres, for a total of $219,000 as compared to an actual figure last year of $151,622.

Included in this year's community centres budget, however, is an item of $15,000 for the repair of an interior wall at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium which last fall was discovered to have deteriorated to the extent that replacement or repair was required.

Committee members approved [illegible] operation of outdoor rinks but the rink program will be reviewed in October to determine which rinks will actually be operated.

It was suggested that the number of outdoor rinks could be cut down, while to facilitate the actual maintenance of rinks the possibility of turning their operation completely over to the parks board may be considered.

Administrative costs are up due to an additional secretary being hired and also to the fact that a new programmer will be with the department for the entire 12 months next year. Salary increments to employees have also boosted the total.

Also the committee is recommending the purchase of a station wagon to facilitate the transportation of equipment [illegible]

But it was the cost to the taxpayer of organized minor sports which came in for closest scrutiny by board members.

Committee member Joe Cox was especially critical of the cost of minor baseball in view of the limited number of teams and players involved. The net cost to the city for this year is estimated at $3,300 with 16 teams involved.

He was especially critical of the costs of all-star teams and wondered why the city should be expected to pay travel costs for teams when they take part in out-of-town tournaments.

Mr. Cox said team sponsors should be expected to pick up a bigger share of costs.

Operation of the Memorial Arena will cost an estimated $117,245 with revenues of $56,[illegible] [illegible] 020.

The new Dick Ellis rink will cost an estimated $45,900 to operate with revenues of $10,350 reducing this figure to $35,640.

The Dick Ellis rink will not go into use until some time during the latter part of May as a 30 day curing period is necessary for the still-to-be-poured concrete floor.

Committee members will meet again this week to go over the arena budget which includes certain renovations at the memorial arena which could come in for paring.

But there is little likelihood that the minor sports programming costs will see much reduction as certain sponsorship commitments have already been made for this year.

Any changes in sponsorship and registration fees are likely to be policy decisions to take effect next year.

Teen Welfare Payments Debated by Council

Belleville city council agrees with a Halton county resolution asking that discretion in the payment of welfare to able-bodied persons be returned to county welfare department.

The Halton county resolution was one of three on the same subject recommended for consideration by the council resolution committee. The others were from the county of Hastings and from Kingston.

Alderman Donald Soutter disagreed with Kingston's resolution which he said asked that welfare for employable persons under 21 be discontinued where parents were willing to support them in their homes.

The alderman said that under present legislation, unemployed persons under 21 not living at home were entitled to welfare while the Kingston resolution took the direct opposite view with no discretion allowed by the county welfare department.

He said there could be some circumstances under which discretion by county authorities would be allowed.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that under the present legislation there were teenagers in Belleville not living at home who were collecting welfare.

He agreed that there could be some instances where the welfare payments were justified but also said the legislation was being abused.

On the recommendation of Alderman Soutter, council "received" the Kingston resolution, while concurring with the Halton county motion.

Council also concurred with one section of the Hastings county resolution which asked that the general welfare assistance act be rewritten so as to conform to and become more compatible with the "general policies" of the Ontario department of social and family services.

The resolution said that in many instances the General Assistance Welfare Act and the general policies of the Ontario department of social and family services were in direct conflict.

March for Peace Proposal Could Take Place April 24

Belleville city council yesterday gave its stamp of approval for the staging of a peace march and rally in the city on April 24.

But the approval is conditional on the city parks board granting use of Victoria Park.

and an okay from the city police to stage the parade from the park up Front Street.

The request for approval to hold the rally was made by a group of Loyalist College students headed by Wayne Ridstale as spokesman.

Calling themselves the Peace for People's Sake Organization, the group proposed their rally to commence at 11 a.m. on April 24 with live entertainment by folksingers followed by several short speeches. The parade up Pinnacle Street to Victoria Ave. and down Front Street to return to Victoria Park would commence at 1 p.m.

The organization would provide its own marshals but would appreciate police co-operation in directing traffic flow at the intersections.

Mr. Ridstale said the April 24 date would coincide with national moratorium day with the peace rally and parade having a two-fold purpose — "to demonstrate concern about the atrocity of war" and "to make the general public aware of the concern for universal peace and our abhorrence toward the needless deaths of people everywhere."

Council ruled against the rally continuing at Victoria Park after the parade, while Parks Chairman Paul Russell said his board might be concerned over grass damage so early in the season.

Grant Stickle A 25-Year Man

A quarter-century of service to the city engineering department by building inspector Grant Stickle was was officially recognized at city council yesterday.

Mayor J. Russell Scott presented Mr. Stickle with a 25-year pin bearing the city crest, noting that it was a small token of appreciation for service during the city's trying years of expansion.

Mr. Stickle started work for the city as a yard man at the works department, then served as field man before becoming building inspector in 1957.

Few Applications Available Here

Belleville area students last night got a helping hand toward obtaining summer employment from Dr. Richard Potter, (MPP - Quinte) and United Community Services executive director Isidore Cooperman.

Acting on the request from Mr. Cooperman, Dr. Potter obtained a limited quantity of application forms for jobs available in the Ontario government's summer SWEEP program. This new employment category, outlined by Premier William Davis in his throne speech, will employ 2,000 students and cost in the neighborhood of $2.5 million.

The Students Working in an Environmental Enhancement Program (SWEEP), will have half of those hired in expansion of department of lands and forests activities, cleaning up parks and planting trees. The other half employed will be engaged in the 27 conservation authorities across Ontario.

A total of 14,100 jobs, at a cost of $18 million, has been set aside for the 1971 summer Ontario government student - job program, 3,000 jobs more than last year. The additional 1,100 jobs will involve students in co-ordination of community learning activities, work in social and health fields or with municipal agencies.

Applications for the SWEEP program were made available to students over 18 years of age and could be obtained by writing to the department of lands and forests or the department of energy and resources management.

Mr. Cooperman explained he wanted to bring the program closer to home and make it available to students first hand. "This was a joint concern for the local students to take advantage of the government plan," he said of the joint co-operation.

Dr. Potter delivered the application forms, available at UCS offices, 224 John Street, direct from the provincial government offices in Toronto.

Mr. Cooperman was not overly impressed with the government's handling of the application distribution.

He said a lesson could be learned from the delivery made through more — less private channels. "Both the federal and the provincial governments should begin planning for programs in the summer of 1972 before the summer of '71 is over."

Several area students obtained their forms from the UCS offices last night and there are a limited number still on hand.

The regular program, designed to hire 12,000 students, will place the young people in the positions of regular staff on summer vacations and 2,000 in the junior forest ranger program. Others will be employed in special projects such as highways, water and geological surveys and the tourist industry.

Premier Davis said last week, that other programs will be provided to assist young people in summer studies of art, theatre and music, and involvement in swimming and track and field.

Permission Is Granted for Picton Students' Protest March

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — A protest march organized by 17-year - old Randy Morris, a grade 12 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, will be held here Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Morris obtained permission for this demonstration yesterday from Picton police chief George Pitt. Students will march to protest what they feel are inadequate recreation facilities in Picton and a lack of job opportunities in Prince Edward County.

Mr. Morris said last night that the march will begin at the county buildings, proceed through Main Street and continue by several back streets back to its starting point. He remarked that an increasing number of students had responded with enthusiasm to plans for this public protest.

"It definitely will be orderly," emphasized Mr. Morris. He added that students will meet today to discuss further plans for the march. "It is in no way connected with PECI," stressed the student organizer.

News of the proposed walk yesterday prompted Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman to comment, "I do not have too much sympathy for people who want everything done for them." Mayor Ackerman was discussing complaints by local youth concerning recreation facilities and lack of student employment. She said that she does not consider Picton's recreation facilities inadequate and suggested that by joining together teens could create and promote many activities. The mayor observed that self - organization would provide them with "lots to do." Picton, in her opinion, offers a very comprehensive recreation program supervised by director of Wayne King. Dances have been organized at the County Centre by the Picton Teen Set and a liaison officer representing this group works with council's recreation and parks committee.

Mayor Ackerman agreed with student protests that job opportunities are lacking in Prince Edward but noted that steps are being taken through the Opportunities for Youth program to ease this situation.

"I feel that this is something thought up in a hurry," said Mayor Ackerman discussing the march. She asserted that council is "well aware" of the need for student employment. The mayor argued that the trimester system used in the Mott program could halt the influx of young people seeking summer jobs.

"There is lots of work for them to do if they will do it," commented Mayor Ackerman referring to fruit pickers jobs offered in the summer.

The mayor emphasized that plans for a swimming pool remain under active consideration by town council and a committee has been organized to study the proposal.

Mayor Ackerman remarked that all town council meetings are open to the public and that an orderly student delegation would be welcome to voice complaints. "It's free, it's open, it's there," she said speaking of the council chamber.

"Life is what you make it," concluded Mayor Ackerman, summarizing her feelings toward protests of lack of recreation.

Paul Bard, principal of PECI has stressed that the school is not involved with the march planned for this weekend. He remarked that recreation is provided at PECI through extra - curricular programs featuring almost every sport. Night school interest courses also are open to all students. The school holds 10 dances annually, each one supervised by staff volunteers. Mr. Burd said that PECI works closely with the Canada Manpower Centre, the conservation authority and the government in connection with summer work programs for students.

Dr. Roger Hirst, who is actively involved with the Opportunities for Youth program said last night that Saturday's protest march will probably become "a jubilation march" instead. He explained that this program stems from money the federal government has agreed to make available for student summer projects. Locally the program is called Youth Power Prince Edward County and it has been organized by student Rick Rolston and Dr. Hirst.

Dr. Hirst observed that he has discussed the project with Picton mayor Margaret Ackerman and County warden Allen Anderson.

It was noted by Dr. Hirst that adults interested in the program will lend support to the students involved and the generation gap will be bridged as the whole community becomes involved.

He said he felt confident that Randy Morris would not follow through with plans for a protest march when he learned of plans afoot in the county to provide employmen. "He is generally interested in student welfare and is not a militant," commented Dr. Hirst.

Initially, the federal government has been asked to support two student organizers and a nucleus of 15 workers. "The objective is to generate a whole slew of jobs in collaboration with Picton and Prince Edward," said Dr. Hirst.

'Interested in Almost Anything'

These Moira Secondary School students were among the first to take advantage of a limited number of applications for summer employment under the provincial government's $18-million plan. The forms were brought to Belleville by Dr. Richard Potter (MPP-Quinte) at the request of Isidore Cooperman, executive director of the United Community Services. Students who filled out forms at the UCS offices last night were, left to right, Rick McLean, Jim Thomson, Dave Caswell, Paul Denyes and Mike Johnson.

Make-Work Proposal

Provincial Grant Sought For Parks Cleanup Job

THE Belleville Parks Board will make application to the provincial government for approval of three local projects under the municipal employment incentive "make - work" program during the spring months.

The applications is for the one dollar per capita grant of $32,726.

One of the proposed projects is a cleanup of the Tom Ross and Both properties on the west bank of the Moira below Highway 401 recently purchased for park development.

Another is for men to assist the regular parks staff in a general cleanup and preparation of the city's existing park areas and the third a cleanup of the bay front from South George Street to Herchimer Ave.

Up to 28 men would be hired for work periods of from six to 10 weeks.

Under government - set rules for the make work program, it is recommended 50 per cent of persons employed would be from welfare rolls and 40 per cent unemployed people. The minimum pay allowable is $3.15 per hour.

Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the city parks board, in announcing application for the three projects to council, said it appeared that the parks board was the only city department that could qualify for the grant.

W. R. Menzies to Stand As Liberal Candidate

TRENTON (Staff) — William Menzies, a 48 - year - old Ontario Hydro employee announced here last night he will seek the Liberal party nomination to oppose minister without portfolio, Dr. Richard Potter, in the next provincial election.

Mr. Menzies broke the news at a meeting of the Quinte District Labor Council in Trenton's Canterbury Hall, while arguing against a proposal that the council endorse the New Democratic Party.

He suggested that the general membership be allowed to vote on whether the QDLC should support the NDP and provide funds to it, because he said in his own union local there was sympathy for all parties.

"In any case, I cannot support this body if it will be a candidate for the Liberal nomination," he added.

Despite the disclosure, the labor council decided to throw its weight behind the New Democrats in their bid to dislodge the Conservative government of Ontario.

Only three, including Mr. Menzies and Trenton councillor George Greer, opposed the NDP endorsement motion.

Following the labor council session, the aspirant called a brief press conference at Branch 110, Canadian Legion to discuss his candidacy.

He said he had been asked to go for the Quinte nomination by Liberal labor critic, Dante Demonte (MPP Davenport) and was prompted to release his decision because of the Quinte Labor Council's political support motion.

"Labor is not 100 per cent behind the NDP in this area and that is obvious," he emphasized.

The father of four children, all under 16, he has been a member of the Liberal Party for many years and now serves as president of the party's Quinte District (four provincial and two federal ridings), giving him a seat on the Liberal party's executive committee. He is also president of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association and co-chairman of the Ontario Liberal Party's labor committee.

Born in Fenelon Falls and now residing at RR 3 Trenton, Mr. Menzies has been a union man for 23 years and serves as chief steward for Ontario Hydro employees in the district encompassing Picton, Trenton, Frankford and part of Belleville.

He said he expects the date for the nominating convention in Quinte riding to be announced within the next week and speculates it will be held within the next six or seven weeks.

At least two others are expected to join the race soon, he mentioned. He said, if the party prefers to give the nomination to one of these, he will seek the provincial seat in Northumberland.

The leading Liberal stressed, however, he will take his bid to the floor of the Quinte nominating convention and will opt out in favor of anyone before hand.

He emphasized that one of his central grievances with Ontario's Conservative government is that it imposed regional government and county boards of education without taking these matters to direct votes of the people.

"We have to return the operations of the province to a democratic basis," he contended.

Mr. Menzies says he wants to promote the Bay of Quinte and Trent River as a tourist attraction and suggests the establishment of excursions on the waterways.

"The tourism field is the logical place to create more jobs for our young people in the summers," he explains, adding "the potential of our waterways is phenomenal."

The Liberal hopeful says he would work toward bringing more low-cost housing to the area for both senior citizens and those entering the working force. He suggests 200 more units are needed in the area.

In contemplating an election against Quinte Conservative MPP, Dr. Richard Potter, Mr. Menzies predicted a "very tight race" but said the Liberals may be able to get the edge.

Regional Government Scheduled for Waterloo County

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Given the decision, surprising to nobody, that the Waterloo county area is to be welded into one region, with two levels of local government, the questions that arise are:

1. Is this really a decision, or merely the signal for yet more time-consuming comment and study?

2. Given two levels of government, regional and local, where is the strength to lie? Is this to be a grouping like Canada, where each province has its own color scheme for car licence plates, or like Britain, where the central government imposes one style of plate for England, Scotland, Wales and Ulster?

The answer to the first question appears to be that this, in effect, is it. Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales made a significant, last-minute change in the text of his announcement of the plan. The prepared text referred to "... our tentative proposal for regional government in the Waterloo area."

Mr. Bales erased the word "tentative". He gave a strong hint that it is time to stop discussing and start doing. Minor changes may be acceptable, but in its main outline we have the shape of the future.

The answer to the second question emerges clearly from the detail of the plan. The upper tier is to be the strong one, the seven municipalities that are to survive in the lower tier are to be weaker than they are now, and lose many of their present powers to the county, or regional, council.

The upper-level council is to merge police forces into one; consolidate welfare services into one; oversee all public transit. It is to have sole power to raise money by borrowing.

The strength put in the hands of the upper-tier council is all the more evident where powers appear to overlap, as with water service. The upper council is to be responsible for water supply for the whole county area; the seven lower councils get the job of retailing the water to consumers. Garbage is another area where there appears to be overlap, but at second glance it appears that the upper council is responsible for garbage disposal, while the duties of the seven lower are merely to collect garbage.

Zoning is ostensibly left to the lower councils, but the upper council gets an overriding power to do zoning if a lower council neglects to do the job.

Decisions needed for the Waterloo county area have been delayed, or clumsily reached, because no one decision-making body could speak for the area. Where one body was needed, there were four, three city councils and a county council, aloof from each other.

The 1973-model council won't make all its decisions perfectly, but at least it will be able to make decisions. The reform plan recognizes this need, when it notes that planning for the area as a whole has been frustrated by the absence of one body to put area plans into action.

"It is one thing," says the plan presented by Mr. Bales, "to set down planning goals and objectives as the area planning board has tried to do. It is another to make the public policy decisions to commit the dollars that will be required. . . . The present fragmented municipal system has not provided the basis for effective action."

Guelph Mercury

Guelph and Wellington County are in no way affected by the proposed two-tiered regional government announced for Waterloo County by Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales.

It means that despite the fact Dr. Stewart Fyfe, in his study of the Waterloo County area, recommended that two portions of Wellington County be absorbed by Waterloo, the provincial government has decided that for the time being at least, our county should be left alone.

This is as it should be.

The Royal City and Wellington are currently engaged in a regional government study of our own, and nothing should be done to include our city or county as part of any other package, until such time as our own study is completed and recommendations are made.

Besides, as Mr. Bales pointed out, preliminary findings of our study, and indeed the final findings of Dr. Fyfe's study of Waterloo, "show very little connection between Guelph and the County."

Mr. Bales' proposals for Waterloo County, however, could well be an indication of what is in store ahead for Wellington.

A two-tiered system in Waterloo was rejected by the government as "it is obvious that the majority of people will not accept such a scheme."

We doubt if the people of Wellington would go for such a scheme either.

It seems reasonable there - fore to assume that whatever plan is finally brought forth here it will be a two - tiered scheme too.

One puzzling thing about the Waterloo scheme is that while Kitchener and Waterloo will remain separate entities because the people of the Twin-Cities don't favor amalgamation, the Town of Hespeler is being recommended as part of a Galt-Preston-Hespeler complex, despite the fact the people of Hespeler have let it be known they want no part of any such set-up. It hardly seems fair.

Ulster Tactics Studied

We understand the defence department has people over in Northern Ireland studying British army tactics against gunmen and rioters in Belfast.

They could almost learn all they need to know by watching the television newscasts right here at home. A good example of British tactics of rushing the rioters, under the protection of shields, and firing rubber bullets as they go, was afforded by film of troop action in Londonderry over Easter. It was seen on the late news Sunday night. The soldiers also wear visors to protect their faces and eyes but nevertheless 14 were reported injured.

The question for us, is, could this sort of thing happen here? Well, if we take seriously the mouthings of the Maoists and other revolutionary groups, the answer is yes. These people have given ample warning of potential trouble in the streets, of a move from mere political talk to outright warfare.

Robert Cruise, a one time University of British Columbia law student and now a chief spokesman of the Maoist Communist party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist) predicted as much for Quebec a couple of years ago. What did occur was the FLQ crisis and that too was warning enough.

Cruise, in a Montreal interview with the Toronto Daily Star last May, had this to say, in connection with what he envisaged as a violent revolution of the proletariat: "Chairman Mao is our chairman. His analysis is correct. The evil comes from imperialism — particularly U.S. imperialism, and it must be destroyed.

"The working classes will cooperate . . . you have no idea what is going on in the minds of the students and the workers. We are organizing underground. A unit here, a unit there (this is the way the FLQ planned to operate). Lots of our people are underground. In the final analysis, by no means all the police or the armed forces will fight their own people. And let me assure you it does not require such a great deal to take over a city."

Well, Cruise for one may find such a task difficult, for he was jailed recently and may still be in custody. Nevertheless, Ottawa may take such warnings seriously. That the defence department is apparently updating its military strategy in the light of the trouble in Ulster, statements by people like Cruise, and the potential for similar trouble here, is encouraging. The military responded well to the difficulties of last October. It appears they will be ready for any other eventualities too.

"I think I'm going back to sleep — spring isn't what it used to be!"

What an Image

Today's cartoon is a stinging commentary on the Spring scene in Canada. As the snow finally dissipates and the rivers race, the desolating image that emerges of man on this continent, in these days of increasing waste, is one of crass negligence and gross carelessness. We pay lip service to the problem and do nothing, or rather continue tossing everything from beer bottles to oceans of paper and cardboard to the four winds and into the streams and rivers. Nor do we see much hope of improvement, not as long as so many slobs abound in our society and as long as we have no tradition of litter-free communities and countrywide or and laws to back it up — as in Scandinavia.

Thames Clean-up

Speaking of litter and pollution, we have heard of the successful efforts made to control air pollution in London, England. Similarly, as a result of clean-up measures, fish life is reported returning to the River Thames. Interesting too in this regard is the fact that more than 500 years ago the British parliament passed an act prohibiting pollution of rivers, ditches and watercourses. Hal Kirkland notes the fact in an article in The Simcoe Gazette, his informant one of a number of people he talked with in the course of a recent walk along the River Thames from the Monument up to Westminster Bridge. About 10 years ago, he was told, the Thames was so bad that both Houses Parliament had to be adjourned because of the stench. As recently as ten years ago the Thames air was little better. Today, however, a man may breathe and fish too can thrive, including eels, dace (a member of the carp family), even trout and salmon. There is a lesson here. Pollution control measures do work.

Focus on Vacation Properties

Peterborough Examiner

In recent months, Canadian magazines and newspaper supplements have published stories about the amount of Canadian vacation land that has fallen into the hands of Americans.

What many of the stories did not say was that much of the choice property fell into foreign hands because there were not enough Canadians interested in acquiring it. Perhaps it would be a little fairer to say there were not enough Canadians interested and affluent enough to acquire it.

The provincial government finally decided to get into the act. A freeze was imposed this month on the sale of Crown land in Ontario.

In the throne speech, the government announced that Ontario will stop selling Crown land and instead will only lease the land. Canadians will have one year to lease such properties; after that, it will be offered to foreigners.

This action is long overdue and can only be welcomed by the people of Ontario. It does, however, have the effect of putting Canadians in a "put up or shut up" position. No longer will they be able to complain that they missed out on a piece of Crown land because an American beat them to it.

And even if Canadians do not take advantage of this one-year head start on leasing land, at least what is left of the Crown land in Ontario will always belong to the government . . . and the people . . . even if it is leased to an outsider.

Pensioners and the Cost of Living

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The letter from your contributor, H. Glynne Jones, on pensioners and the cost of living is an intelligent appraisal of the situation, and I would like to comment thereon. I agree with all that your contributor said.

An old age pensioner, of say 67, gets the old age pension of $80 per month or $960 per year. No income tax payable. Now if this same pensioner is receiving a Canada Pension Plan pension of say $30 per month, which makes his total income $1,320, which is well below the poverty level. . . if now this pensioner gets a job which pays him $2,000 per year, under the provisions of the Canada Pension Plan as it now stands, he would lose his Canada pension plan payment in the ratio of 50 cents on the dollar on anything above $900 of earned income. This effectively wipes out his Canada Pension. For this piece of brash insanity he will be required to 'pay $404 in income tax, and lose the Canada Pension.

Any elected official in the municipal, provincial or federal area, does not have to retain his seat for very long before he is eligible for a nice pension with no deductions, except for income tax. From this we must infer that the contribution of elected officials has been vastly superior to that of the old age pensioner, who has done the hard and dirty work to make this country what it is, who managed to navigate through the depression with all flags flying and little complaint.

Judged by the facts as presented, we old timers can only conclude that we are an embarrassment to all officialdom, and it would be a great help to them if we would "fold our tents like the Arabs, and quietly steal away".

Is that all there is after man reaches his three score years and ten?

In our computerized era, we tend to reduce all things to a common denominator and to judge a person's age chronologically. This is the great mistake, since some people are finished before they get nicely started, due to negative outlook, and the contributions made by statesmen, poets, philosophers, scientists, well over the recognized age limit, is so vast as to require no comment.

With elections coming up in the provincial and federal field, it would be as well when attending nomination meetings, to find out just what the candidates' attitude is to the old timers, and act accordingly, bearing in mind that the primary function of a politician is to get elected.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Jones will find the appropriate arrangements, so that we can at least be heard. Only then will officialdom make the changes so long overdue, and many thanks to your contributor for letting us in on Mr. Benson's well kept secret of the exemption for old age pensioners of $3,400. But of course that is in the dim distant future.

W. E. BENNETT,
Wellington.

An Ottawa Valley Spring

Ottawa Journal

Like a giant white bear, the Ottawa Valley seems not yet ready to stir from its long winter slumber. It seems not to care that man's calendar has decreed spring is already here; the Valley is content to wait for the sun and rain to bring true spring.

The Valley's peace is not seen from a speeding car flashing along the dry pavement of Highway 17, nor on the main streets of the major towns where the slush and dirt and bustle is not unlike Ottawa's.

The Valley's peace is a leisurely early morning drive up the River Road beyond Arnprior, meandering through the hills beside the Ottawa River where the quiet is broken only briefly at Braeside, Sand Point and Beachburg.

It is an afternoon exploring the concession roads of Allen Township beyond Pembroke, where the snowbanks refuse to dwindle and the roads are still so narrow that a city driver must re-learn the courtesy of backing to the nearest lane to allow another car its passage.

It is a kind of peace that comes from a stranger's smile in a store at Shady Nook, or wondering if the people who live in the isolated farms and homes around Locksley or Rankin still find the serenity and peace of mind that we so often associate with living close to the land.

It is the farmer, too busy to be but a time to wait. Some have deep snow in the sugar bush could mean little chance of getting to the syrup this soon. A quick thaw could bring a chance for early work in the field — or floods; but then the men of the Valley show not half as much concern as their city cousins.

There is even a trace of optimism on the farms, for the deep snow cover means only a thin layer of frozen ground underneath. The warm afternoons and light rains of April could bring a quick thaw and allow planting, where no floods are possible, to begin before the month is out.

Whatever happens, the good Valley farmer will not complain. He will bend a listener's ear about high taxes and bad governments and sons who forsake his land, for he knows these to be but the aberrations of men. As to nature, a true man of the land can only accept what she sees fit to give and be thankful for her blessings.

Senator's Home Coming Down

Clearing the premises on which the late Senator W. A. Fraser's home in Trenton is located turned out to be a prodigious wood cutting task as large trees and hedges on all four sides needed attention. When the site between Dundas Street W. and Henry Street east of Catherine Street is cleared, the new owner, Stan Klemencic, hopes to erect an apartment house on the vacant ground. In the meantime, residents in single family dwellings in the area are trying to discourage location of the multi-storey rental unit.

Bob Mercier Going to Italy

Bob Mercier, employed by the Royal Bank of Canada and son of Paul Mercier, has been chosen from an area covering Quebec, Eastern Ontario and northern New York state, to visit southern Italy and report on the way of life in that country.

The Rotary Club, who sponsored the trip, asked for candidates and Mr. Mercier was one of 17 chosen from the district. These candidates were then screened and accompanying Mr. Mercier to Italy will be two men from Ontario, two from New York and three from Quebec.

The people chosen for the trip were to have no affiliation with the Rotary Club and were chosen through ability.

Mr. Mercier, who started with the bank shortly after his education in Belleville, was awarded the Muir Scholarship and four years post-secondary education which he took at Loyola College in Montreal.

The trip will last from May 8 to June 20 after which all candidates will be expected to offer a report on their findings.

Each of the men will give talks to the Rotary group that sponsored him covering areas of finance, farming, hospitals and general way of life.

Mr. Mercier, when he returns to Canada, will be on loan to the UCS Campaign.

As a co-ordinator, Mr. Mercier will visit with firms and instruct them in he best procedure for advertising and fund raising.

Paul Mercier, Bob Mercier's father, explained that most expenses are taken care of by the Rotary Club.

Manlow Named Trenton PUC Manager

TRENTON (Staff) — The search for a new general manager of the Public Utilities Commission here is over. Doug Manlow, who has been serving as the commission's secretary-treasurer, has taken over the post vacated last December by retiring James Page.

For the last three months, the PUC has advertised nationally for a new general manager with a professional engineering degree. Thirty-nine applications were received for the job but Mr. Manlow's was not among them.

He did not apply for the job. However; the PUC asked him last week if he would accept it.

Commission chairman, D. James MacDonald said yesterday the commission had decided this was the answer. "Manlow has showed a lot of promise . . . I think it is going to work out fine."

He said that engineering needs of the commission, particularly for electric work will be met by contracting consulting firms as the need arises. The firm of Gore and Storrie is now employed for water works projects.

Doug Manlow, a native of Picton is not an engineer. He came to the PUC three years ago from Erie Technological Products, Trenton, where he was a member of the accounting staff. Previously, he was employed by the H. J. McFarland Construction Co.

The promotion of Mr. Manlow is accompanied by a small-scale staff shuffle within the commission at the new manager's request.

Barry Box, who has been foreman in charge of both water and electrical operations, will be relieved of his electrical duties and will devote all his attention to the town's water works — due for major rebuilding.

Meter foreman, John Ormsby, will take charge of the electrical operations with assistant, Charles Ede, who is now a meter technician.

Mrs. Jack Clegg, an employee in the PUC offices on Elgin Street, will become office supervisor — a responsibility previously held by Mr. Manlow.

The new manager, however, will still keep control of the commission's financial policy, particularly budgeting and debenturing.

Staff changes will result in a smoother PUC operation, according to Mr. Manlow, who sees the shuffling as being an indication that the commission recognizes merit within its own ranks.

40 Poems

Friends Publish His Work

TRENTON (Staff) — A collection of 40 short poems by a former Trenton High School student will go on sale in Quinte area bookstores next week.

The bound anthology by 22-year-old David Altic is now being published in a basement here by brothers, Paul and Martin DeGroot, and John Bullee.

One thousand copies of the work, entitled A New Disguise, are being produced now. More will follow if sales are brisk.

Altic, who has now begun a professional writing career in Ottawa after studies at both Queen's and Carleton Universities, draws on the experiences of his own life as subject matter for his first publication.

Hearing casually reports of the Vietnam War, a desire to invite local poet Al Purdy to drink at Trenton's Quinte Hotel, shopping excursions, an assessment of his landlord and Ottawa encounters with friends and strangers are the bases for some of the blank verses, that are scant on traditional literary devices but full of youthful perceptions.

Truisms appear periodically throughout the work, as in the poem about his landlord called The $170 poem.

Altic writes "louis might be a sensitive landlord but he would appreciate the rent more than he would this $170 poem."

Cover design of the publication is by Carleton student, Robin Knight and Trenton resident, Paul DeGroot.

Successful Living

Parents, Say It Like It Is

By DORIS CLARK

Says Dr. Margaret Mead, foremost anthropologist, "The middle-aged must change. Too many live in the Victorian or Puritanical Age. Adults cannot give today's young the old formulas handed down from earlier generations. They must have a continuing dialogue with their young, who are involved with the future.

"Actually, what the youngsters are asking for is the new morality is truth. The elders protect and lie to them — pretend to be better than they, morally speaking. But the Kinsey Report ended the false compact between the middle-class parent and his child.

The adult can no longer say 'You are the one who is bad, not me.' The young person resents his parent not telling it like it is."

• • •

Dear Doris: We are two girls, ages about 16, and close friends. The problem is we both fell for the same guy. He likes us both and doesn't know which one to go with.

Whenever he takes one out, the other gets jealous, although she pretends she isn't and says she doesn't really care. We've both tried real hard to forget him, going out with other boys and joining other crowds where we knew we wouldn't see him. This has been going on for a couple of years now and we always end up back with him.

He has just started going out with a third party and we need help. Please don't tell us to forget him as this would be impossible. — Peggy and Polly

Dear P. and P.: Your future looks dim to me. Harems are not in style in Canada. Your glamor boy shows wisdom, in broadening his horizons.

Don't want to forget him? O.K., but save some friendship for future encounters. It is dollars to doughnuts you'll marry somebody you haven't even thought of yet.

This way, you will at least keep your girl friend.

• • •

Dear Doris: I am a young teenager and a very short girl. My height is a little over four feet. I am also very thin. I've been exercising every day this year but it doesn't seem to help.

I thought of taking certain advertised tablets to help one get taller and fuller than I really am, but I'm afraid I am too young for them as I am only 14.

I am smaller than all the other girls of my age here. I have a sister only 17 years old and she is as tall as I am and both of us take the same size of clothes. What would you suggest for me to do? — Dear Wondering: Stay away from tablets of any kind.

At 14 you still have some growing to do. My 19-cent leaflet, "Chart for Curves," will give you some ideas about what food you need. Your nutrition has to develop body structure as well as keep you going.

Dress to look taller: hair on top of head, high heels for with a long line; never stripes running around.

A Tasty Pork Dish

Shoppers hunting for nourishing food that is economical should give pork hocks a place on their dinner menus. Mary Moore gives the authentic mid-European method of preparing and serving them with sauerkraut, so put them on your weekend grocery list and give them a trial.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Purchase of Pork Hocks Stretches Food Dollar

By MARY MOORE

My brother "discovered" a wonderful European restaurant where they serve potato pancakes — latkes — which he likes very much and pork hocks and sauerkraut. I wanted to taste his potato pancakes and he wanted to taste my pork hocks and sauerkraut.

The hocks were so beautifully served I decided to buy some and try the dish and have done so.

There will be readers in this audience to whom this is old stuff but the great majority pass by pork hocks — mainly because they do not know what to do with them. You boil them until they are tender — that is what you do — and add some canned sauerkraut during the last ½ hr.

More letters pleading for economical recipes were in the mail today so here is help in stretching your food money.

PORK HOCKS WITH SAUERKRAUT

4 lbs. pork hocks
2 cups water
½ small onion
1 tsp. salt
1½ tsps. mixed pickling spice (optional)
One 29 oz. can sauerkraut, drained

NOTE: The amount of pork hocks that you buy depends on the appetites of your family. We found that one whole pork hock which had been split crosswise was generous for two. Experienced pork hockers eat the rind, which is deliciously seasoned.

In a large kettle simmer pork hocks in the water with the onion, salt, spices (if used) until tender and nearly falling from bones—about 3 hrs. Tip off liquid, measure 1 cup and discard remaining surplus. Skim any surface fat you can from the 1 cup. If spices have been used, strain it. Return broth to hock pot and add the can of drained sauerkraut. Cover, bring to boil and simmer ½ hr. longer.

The mid-Europeans serve this with potatoes in some form. We had lovely mealy whole boiled potatoes with it and they seemed just right.

Election of Mrs. Ghandi Has Healthy Effect

NEW DELHI (CP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's spectacular election victory seems to be having a healthy effect on the working of her government.

For the first time in nearly two years things have started moving in New Delhi. The weeds of the administration almost came to a stop in early 1969 when the battle for power between Mrs. Gandhi and the old guard of the ruling Congress party started.

But after the election in March a senior official berrowed a neighbor's bicycle to be able to reach his office in time. "The long holiday is over," he said. "Henceforth it is going to be work, work and more work for all of us."

The remark reflected the new atmosphere in the Indian capital.

Mrs. Gandhi has made it clear that she intends to use her vastly strengthened political position to give a boost to the national economy. And in a country where the government-owned sector is rapidly expanding, this really means streamlining the bureaucracy.

Her first act after the elections was to call a meeting of the permanent heads of various ministries and impress on them the need for an "action-oriented" program.

She is reported to have told them that the people of India had returned her party to power with a massive majority—350 in a house of 518—in the hope that they need not wait endlessly for some improvement in their lot.

"Our people want performance and not promises," Mrs. Gandhi said. "We cannot afford to let them down."

The serious reverses suffered by the Congress party in the last general election held in 1967 were partly attributed to the Gandhi government's failure to provide more jobs to the unemployed—now estimated at over 15 million—to give security to tenant farmers and to bring down the prices of essential commodities.

Mrs. Gandhi has been saying that India must have officials "committed" to the goals of a welfare state. As one of her close aides put it: "We do not want glorified clerks but dedicated administrators."

Press reports say Mrs. Gandhi is working on a scheme which would make it obligatory for each senior official to show concrete results in his field within a stipulated period. The project has already caused a big flutter among officials who have been accustomed to leisurely ways of functioning over the years.

One area where Prime Minister Gandhi will have to show results in a matter of months is prices.

The prices of many essential commodities have skyrocketed in recent months. Despite the success of the "green revolution," wheat, rice, vegetable oils and milk in sufficient quantities are still beyond the reach of poor people.

The government's efforts in the last six months to control prices have failed, and there are fears that the rising discontent may be exploited by leftist trade unions. The Communist and Socialist groups which were badly mauled in the election are planning massive demonstrations on economic issues.

At a Socialist party meeting in Bombay one of its leaders said that "thousands" of volunteers are ready to be arrested.

The right-wing Jana Sangh (People's League) party which also suffered heajor reverses at the polls is said to be mobilizing housewives in the capital for a series of anti-government demonstrations.

Fortunately for Mrs. Gandhi, since the bulk of poor voters sided with her party, she may not find it difficult to control the demonstrations.

At the same time, unless she does something tangible for them India's poor, estimated at nearly 450 million, may become disillusioned and turn to the left and right parties for inspiration.

Frank Moraes, editor of the Influential Indian Express group of newspapers, pointed out in his column the other day that "the prime minister must be aware that her overwhelming victory at the polls leaves her with not a single alibi for the future."

Moraes wrote: "A sophisticated electorate does not take a politician's promises too seriously. But in a country where nearly 80 per cent of the population is both illiterate and poor, the masses are apt to interpret electoral promises literally. The more so when these promises add up to more food, more shelter and more clothing, more employment, higher wages and lower prices."

Observers in New Delhi believe Mrs. Gandhi is determined to succeed. The old cynicism about her has gone. Her post-election dominance has inspired not only hope but fear.

The huge New Delhi Secretariat in which more than 150,000 government officials' work is agog with rumors that henceforth merit and not seniority will count in promotions.

As one university professor put it: "Mrs. Gandhi must strike some terror into the hearts of our officials. This will be her biggest service to the long-suffering people of India."

Women's Club Plans Discussion

A panel discussion will highlight this Thursday evening's meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville and district.

The topic chosen for this special discussion will be "Is Your Status Static?" and those taking part on the panel are Mrs. C. N. Wilson, Mrs. M. E. Thompson, Mrs. E. A. Manderville and Mrs. R. S. Burtt, all members of the University Women's Club.

Members are invited to attend and contribute their views to this interesting discussion.

Home for Retarded Children Overcrowded

AUSTIN, Que. (CP) — More than 400 children are crammed into the overcrowded farmhouse that is the Cecil Butters Memorial Home for retarded children.

Fussing and doting over them, although there is scarcely room to squeeze between the cribs, is a motherly 75-year-old woman named Lily Butters.

She admits the home is filled to more than twice its capacity, but shrugs off the overcrowding with this explanation:

"We used to have a waiting list, but we just stopped counting. When we can't admit them here, there's nowhere else they can go for the same type of care."

Most of her charges are mongoloids, physically deformed, blind or mute. Many can't walk and are not toilet-trained. All are considered retarded from the point of educatability. Early death is expected for most of the patients.

The Butters home was established in this quiet, rural community 75 miles east of Montreal in 1945, in memory of their son who was killed in an lumber crash in 1943.

From the start, Lily and her late husband, John, insisted on taking only those severely retarded children who are usually rejected by other institutions.

Word spread quickly and soon the six-room farmhouse overlooking scenic Lake Memphremagog was bulging with children from as far away as Hudson Bay and Virginia. The home was and is non-profit and non-sectarian.

Many of the children are taken from hospital as infants and raised as foster children by the parents. In many cases, says Mrs. Butters, this is the best home.

In the last 26 years the Butters home has expanded to two additional extensions and a staff of 175, including six registered nurses.

Two doctors from nearby Magog, John Brant and Alan Scott, have made regular trips to the home for several years, but there is never enough money to hire a full time physician.

As might be expected, finances are Lily Butters' biggest headache. The latest blow came during the winter when two gunmen relieved her of a $12,000 payroll as she drove home from the bank.

Mrs. Butters, whose jaw and lips were bruised in the encounter, relates with satisfaction how she managed to rip off one bandits' face mask and slug him several times before they escaped.

She is waiting now to hear about her application for a gun permit.

"Oh, if I'd have had that gun," Mrs. Butters says. "What a rotten thing for anyone to do. You could tell they knew exactly what they were doing and had it timed precisely."

With or without the gun, though, she has to make up the loss to the Quebec government which pays the salaries of her employees.

"We're just going to have to cut corners," she says quietly. The public has always been wonderful."

With less than $300,000 raised during a 1967 campaign for $742,000 Mrs. Butters installed a water pipeline from the lake, a sewage system and a large water reseveir.

The final cost came to about $275,000, well over what was contributed, and every last cent of Mrs. Butters' savings went to finance the projects.

She said some Italian immigrants helped her out by doing the work "dirt cheap."

Now the hospital needs money again, this time for an ambulance and new pickup truck. There won't be another public subscription, but Lily Butters vows her family will never give up the fight to keep the home on its feet.

Ann Landers
One Constant Hobby Leads to Another

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few years ago my husband used to play a lot of cards. Harry was gone five nights a week. The only time I saw him was when he'd have the card game at our house. I got fed up making sandwiches, emptying ashtrays and cutting my way through cigar smoke. One day a friend told me how she cured her husband of the same thing. She got him interested in a ham radio.

This is not a cheap hobby, but I decided it was worth it. I bought Harry a set as a surprise birthday gift. Within weeks he gave up the cards to stay home and ham it up. Now he has started a short-wave romance with some woman who lives in San Antonio, Texas. She has a voice like Lady Bird Johnson. Their three-hour conversations are making me sick. Harry rushes home from work, bolts his dinner and makes a beeline for the radio.

Last week he couldn't contact the lady for three days and he was a wreck. When he finally reached her she explained she'd been out of town. He scolded her for not letting him know she was leaving . . . said he was "worried sick." The whole thing was so cozy I felt like belting him one. Furthermore, this ham thing is interfering with our sex life because Harry stays up until 2:00 a.m. most nights. (I think she does it on purpose.)

Now I wish he were back playing cards. What should I do? — DUMMY

DEAR DUMMY: Keep quiet. These two will probably talk themselves out. A woman who can't lure her man away from a piece of machinery has no imagination. Toots.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the writer who was ashamed that her parents because they were poor, spoke broken English and had old country ways was a disgrace. What on earth has happened to values?

The more I see of people with money, the better I like poor people. Recently I was in the company of a woman who was born with a silver spoon in her mouth. She lives on an estate and goes to Paris and Rome for her wardrobe. When she entertains she gets a half-page in the newspaper. An invitation to her home is a command performance". Would you believe that when this elegant lady belches she says "beep beep" instead of "pardon me"? I find such behavior revolting. What about you? — 20-20 VISION.

DEAR VISION: People with money are expected to have better manners than people without money. Why, I do not know, because manners do not reflect what a person has, but how he was brought up.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I did something I am so ashamed of I don't know whether to laugh off. Please tell me if there's anything I can do to smooth it over. Also, how can I avoid making the same mistake in the future?

My husband, Chris, and her 15-year-old son answered. I thought it was his sister and said, 'Hello, Nancy, may I speak with your mother?" He replied, "This is David."

My boss is married. I know that poor kid must have wanted to die. Our own son who is now married was miserable when his voice was changing. He was so embarrassed about it he barely opened his mouth for six months. Now, tell me if I should apologize to the lad? How can I avoid the same problem in the future? — WINNETKA.

DEAR WINNETKA: But in the future, don't call anybody by name when you ring that number. The poor can help protect himself by answering the phone: "Hello, this is David speaking."

Annual reports tabled by conveners of standing committee described numerous worthwhile projects undertaken by the League during the year. Membership totalled 104 which was an increase of 28.

Mission endeavors were increased during the year, with donations sent to foreign fields as well as Canada. Assistance was provided to underdeveloped countries of the world through donations to the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace. A youth program was supported, studies were made of the decrees of Vatican II on Church Life, and the League took a firm stand in opposing abortion-on-demand legislation.

Four members of the League expect to assist with the Cancer Drive on April 19. The next card party will be held in the Parish Hall on April 25 with group 4 convening. 2nd wedding banquets were planned.

After adjournment, Rev. Louis Albers, a Mill Hill missionary priest, now of Deseronto, showed a series of films and supplied interesting commentary on his twenty years of mission work in Africa.

The meeting was held in Sacred Heart Parish Hall following the celebration of Mass in the church, during which Mrs. Donald Shannon, Sr., was lector.

The Experts Say

Seek All Information Re Buying Appliances

OTTAWA (CP) — Be as informed as possible before buying appliances, the federal department of consumer affairs advises in a consumer communique.

The communique says prospective buyers should look first at a number of appliance models, writing down the details about each. Friends who have similar appliances may be a good source of information about the value of extra features, or problems with parts and service.

The buyer should also ask salesmen where service centres are located. Remember that parts for an imported model sometimes take several weeks to arrive.

Check the warranty on coverage of parts and service. Find out whether the warranty requires using only authorized dealers no matter how much they may charge for repairs.

The appliance should not be so complicated that it requires a special course before using. If the instruction booklet is complicated, get the salesman to explain it.

Another communique advises persons arranging to take charter flights to satisfy themselves that the promoter is reliable before turning over their money.

A charter promoter does not have to hold the fares in trust. Occasionally a promoter pockets the money and disappears.

An airline must, however, hold in trust money paid it by a group for a charter flight until the plane arrives at its destination. Then it may draw half the money, drawing the other half after the group has made its return flight.

Charter flights are intended to be non-profit operations under Canadian transport commission regulations. If some seats are not sold, however, the remaining passengers have to pay more.

The department suggests that vacations by charter be planned well in advance. Passengers on a charter must have been members of the chartering group for at least six months before takeoff.

If plans change, tickets for a regular scheduled flight will usually be exchanged or refunded, but often this cannot be done with charter flights. Charters also usually offer fewer choices of departure and return dates than may be obtained with an airline's regular schedule.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy, stop playing with the food and eat it. Look how you're spilling the pudding all over, waving the spoon around."

Grandmother: "Why do you let him feed himself? He's so messy."

Mother: "I'm serving Jimmy food he can eat with his fingers or pick up and put on the spoon. He feeds himself part of his meal without too much mess."

A small child learns by doing. Cubes of meat and vegetables, little sandwiches and pieces of fruit can be eaten with ease. Serve only tiny portions of other foods that he can eat with a short spoon. Remove the food if it's obvious he only wants to play with it.

NDP Leadership Candidate

Even in Darker Days of CCF, David Lewis Exuded Confidence

OTTAWA (CP) — Even in the darker days of the old CCF party, David Lewis had an air of supreme confidence.

He was the workhorse national secretary of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation for 14 years, starting in 1936 as a young lawyer, and what he said often went despite pretty consistent opposition from the party's left wing.

Like the CCF itself, he could be defeated in election after election, as he was in 1940, 1943, 1945 and 1949. But that confidence never appeared to wane.

Now, he appears equally confident that he stands on the threshold of achieving leadership of the New Democratic Party, the CCF's successor which he helped fashion in 1961. It is a position, some critics say, he has pursued single-mindedly over the years from a position at the philosophic and bureaucratic heart of Canada's socialist party.

Mr. Lewis finally made it to the Commons in 1962 with the NDP, formed from the CCF with official support from the Canadian Labor Congress.

He lost the 1963 election but bounced back in 1965, serving then and after the 1968 election as parliamentary leader while T. C. Douglas marked time pending by-election victories following defeats in Regina and Burnaby-Coquitlam.

Mr. Lewis is opposed by four other candidates for the job held by Mr. Douglas since the NDP founding.

The party will choose the successor Saturday, April 24 at the end of a four-day leadership convention in Ottawa's Civic Centre.

Mr. Lewis says he has been leading the other four candidates all through the leadership campaign and that he will still be the leader after the first ballot.

Modestly, he declines to predict a first-ballot victory.

Max Saltsman, MP for Waterloo and chief Lewis backer, says the campaign started out as a youth-versus-experience contest but rapidly became a left-versus-centre fight with Mr. Lewis leading the centre against the radical Waffle wing.

However, Mr. Lewis' opponents insisted that as far as Mr. Lewis was concerned it was age versus youth.

Mr. Lewis is 61. The Waffle candidate, James Laxer, is 29; MP Ed Broadbent 34; John Harney 39; and MP Frank Howard 45.

But Mr. Lewis, at least at the start of the campaign, held all the cards. He had known all the party officials and hundreds, if not thousands, of the party members for years. His strong labor ties appear an advantage, as they were for son Stephen when he won the Ontario party leadership.

In political leadership conventions, there is nothing like the personal touch.

Mr. Lewis had cultivated this personal touch for decades in his long and strenuous party work.

A Jew, he was born June 22, 1909, at Swislocz, Poland, to Morris Los, a leatherworker and, naturally, a socialist. The family moved in 1921 to Montreal where the name was changed to Lewis.

David Lewis started Grade 1 in Montreal at age 12, learned English and French, and became a Rhodes scholar and the first Canadian to head the Oxford Union.

In 1935, he married Sophie Garson of Montreal. They have four children: Stephen, Michael, a political organizer of note, and twin daughters, Janet and Nina, who are also politically minded.

After only a year as a patent attorney, Mr. Lewis became national secretary of the CCF in 1936 at $100 a month. He left the job in 1950 to become a successful labor lawyer.

But he continued to hold office in the party: national vice-chairman, national chairman, national president.

In these posts and as a labor lawyer he helped to cement the alliance which became the NDP.

Harney Bilingual Bagpiper

TORONTO (CP) — John Harney describes himself as a politician, poet, philosopher and pragmatist. His present ambition is to become the next national leader of the New Democratic Party.

At 40, he is also bilingual, bearded and a bagpiper of some note.

He says if he wins the NDP leadership at the party convention in Ottawa April 24, and later becomes prime minister, he will work to keep Quebec in Confederation. But he wouldn't try to force the province into remaining.

"I would work to change the Canadian situation so that Quebec might find it desirable to remain in Confederation."

Should he lose his bid for the leadership—"there's always the next time"—he would return to his job as English teacher at York University's Atkinson College here.

Mr. Harney is competing against David Lewis, 61-year-old deputy to national leader T. C. Douglas; Waffle candidate James Laxer, a lecturer at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.; Edward Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby; and Frank Howard, MP for Skeena.

Mr. Harney rose to the front ranks of the NDP over the last 10 years, spending four years as the provincial secretary of the Ontario party, four years as a federal NDP council member and six years on the Ontario party executive.

Politically, he is closer to the Waffle group than to the traditional wing led by Mr. Lewis. He says he accepts the Waffle proposals for efforts to gain Canadian control of the economy from the United States, but does not endorse its crusade for widespread nationalization of natural-resource industries.

A cheerful man who enjoys politics, he nevertheless knows how to live with defeats. He has failed in four attempts to win a federal seat.

The son of an Irish father and a French-Canadian mother, he grew up in Quebec.

After graduating from university, he spent six years during the 1950s teaching English to soldier-studfets at Royal Military College at St. Johns, Que.

It was there, he says, that he "got to dislike militarism and really got to like socialism."

Mr. Harney says many older members of the NDP cling to the days when the party was a political movement, "and not a party able to take over and form a government."

"The NDP in Ontario is a party prepared to win, Federally, that is something that we still have to accomplish."

He is married and has four children.

Chou Sees 'New Page' Opened in China's Relations with U.S.

PEKING (AP) — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told a U.S. table tennis delegation today their visit to mainland China has opened "a new page in relations" between the peoples of China and the United States.

He added he believed their visit would lead to visits soon of more Americans, including newspaper men.

Chou, 73, regarded as China's leading moderate, spoke at a two-hour reception for table tennis teams from the United States, Canada, Britain, Nigeria and Colombia. They were invited to visit China when the world table tennis championships ended in Japan a week ago.

Chou asked the 15-member U.S. delegation—the first American group to visit the People's Republic of China—to extend the regards of the Chinese people to the American people.

"In the past," he said, "exchanges between the peoples of China and the United States have been very numerous. They have been cut off for a long time. Now, with your acceptance of our invitation, you have opened a new page in the relations of the Chinese and American people. I am confident that this beginning again of our friendship will certainly meet with the majority support of our two peoples."

Chou then asked the Americans: "Don't you agree with me?"

The Americans applauded.

Chou, who had recognized me earlier despite my absence of 23 years from mainland China, then turned to me and in a reference to visits by more American reporters said: "Mr. Roderick, you have opened the door."

I replied that the presence of U.S. correspondents could lead to deeper understanding between our two countries.

Chou said this was up to Graham Steenhoven, the president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, and Steenhoven said afterward the Chinese had been invited to the United States.

Chou said China wants to have contacts with all countries, even those with which it has no diplomatic relations.

Chou said many "American friends" came to China in the past.

"You have made a start here, and I believe in the future more American friends will come to China," he said.

The peoples of China and the United States will "in the near future be able to have many contacts, I believe it will not be slow in coming."

During the reception in the Great Hall of the Peoples in the heart of the Chinese capital, Chou also engaged in a philosophical discussion of hippies with 19-year-old Glenn Cowan of Santa Monica, Calif., whose long hair and outlandish garb have been the talk of the Chinese.

Cowan was the cynosure of a thousand Chinese eyes in his flaring purple corduroy trousers, blue denim jacket, his usual floppy suede hat and a Mao badge.

The U.S. players met a Chinese team Tuesday before 18,000 cheering enthusiasts in a match that could be described as an exquisite display of Chinese tact and politeness. They could have fielded powerful players and humiliated their American guests but they didn't, and the Chinese men won by a score of only 5-3, while in the women's division the score was 5-4.

The British team which competed in the world tournament in Japan earlier this month arrived in Peking Tuesday night for a two-week stay.

Supermarkets Open 24 Hours

TORONTO (CP) — Three supermarkets in two communities just west of Toronto have begun a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week operation.

The three, two in Oakville and one in Port Credit, will operate on an experimental basis in the beginning, Vern Barber, a vice-president of IGA Canada Ltd., which owns the stores, said Tuesday.

Laporte Case Trials Delayed

MONTREAL (CP) — Three persons accused of the kidnapping and murder of Pierre Laporte and seven others charged with being accessories after the fact, appeared in court briefly Tuesday and had their trials postponed to the next criminal assizes opening May 3.

However, outbursts like those that have punctuated previous court proceedings in connection with the kidnap-slaying of the late Quebec labor minister interrupted Tuesday's appearances.

Jacques Rose, 23, brother of Paul Rose who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Laporte case March 13, Francis Simard, 23, and Bernard Lortie, 19, all smiled at friends and waved clenched fists in the air during an appearance that lasted less than a minute.

Jacques Rose cried out "Power to the people of Quebec," before being led from the courtroom.

Later, Lise Rose, 25, sister of Paul and Jacques, was ejected from the same courtroom for shouting and laughing during the postponement to the next assizes of the cases against those charged as accessories after the fact.

The accused are Francis and Francine Belisle, Denise Quesnel and her daughter Helene, Richard Therrien, Yves Roy and Louise Verreault.

Mr. Justice Antonio Lamer said proceedings should move faster in May and June when three and possibly four divisions of Court of Queen's Bench would be made available so that trials arising from last October's political kidnapping crisis could proceed simultaneously.

Authorities would do their best to complete all legal proceedings by the end of the summer.

"It is obvious that we can't do so now," the judge said, "if every trial is going to last seven or eight weeks."

The slow-moving Paul Rose trial began Jan. 25 and ended March 13.

Denturists Ask to Deal With Users

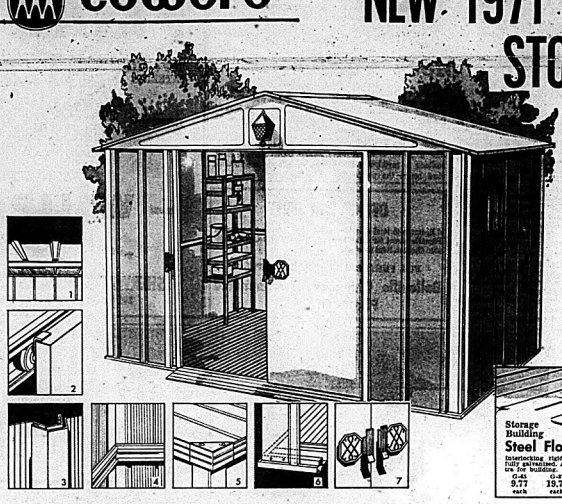
TORONTO (CP) — Ontario dental technicians have launched a campaign for revisions in the Dentistry Act to permit them to deal directly with the public, it was announced Tuesday.

The Denturist Society of Ontario said in a release that society members "can and do provide quality denture service at one-third the prevailing costs for those when dispensed through a dentist. . .."

The society, composed of more than 90 laboratories, wants changes in the Dentistry Act that gives the Ontario Dental Association control over denture services and prohibits dental laboratories dealing directly with the public.

A brief and a proposed amendment to the act have been sent to Health Minister A.B.R. Lawrence.

The brief says the society seeks "the right under law to repair, design and fabricate . . . dentures, to take impressions and bite registrations, to fit these appliances and to charge fees for doing so."



The brief also says some members have been providing the services "for many years, conducted illegally under the terms of the Dentistry Act . . ."

Flood Waters Rise

Soldiers and Volunteers Fight to Save Town

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — About 150 volunteers and 200 soldiers are struggling to repel the flooding Qu'Appelle River which came close to engulfing the town two years ago.

Another 200 volunteers are being held in reserve at Regina, 18 miles southeast, where floods left 500 persons homeless earlier this week.

One of two roads from the town nestled in the Qu'Appelle Valley was cut off Tuesday when the river rose above a steel bridge leading to the Regina-Saskatoon highway.

The remaining access, a back road, is not threatened.

The Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission forecast the river would peak within 48 hours two inches below the record high level set in 1969.

Holding back the waters are 5.1 miles of dikes, some of them thrown up during the 1969 campaign.

A breakwater of power poles was strung across the west side of town to prevent wind from washing water over the dikes and down into the streets.

"We feel we can beat it," said Mayor Bill Johnson who spent 292 hours on the dikes during the 10-day seige two years ago.

"We're four days ahead of 1969. In 1969 we were laying the bags down in the water."

The Saskatchewan Emergency Measures Organization hopes to have sandbags piled one foot higher than the 1969 level.

Computer Will Foil Cattle Rustlers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cattle rustling and selling occupied two provincial legislatures and votes of confidence in two others.

A computerized cattle branding system—something the old-time rustlers never thought of—is planned for Alberta, Agriculture Minister Henry Ruste said at Edmonton.

Under the Livestock Brand Inspection Act, given first reading, every member of the RCMP will be made an inspector. He may stop and search any vehicle carrying livestock on a highway without a warrant at any time.

The Saskatchewan legislature heard the provincial department of agriculture urged to study the meat purchasing habits of the large franchised outlets that process foods.

J. R. Messer (NDP—Kelsey) said he understood the large chains purchase most of their beef and pork in the United States and Australia.

"Thousands of tons of meat a year go through those outlets, especially the hamburger joints," he said.

Agriculture Minister Douglas McFarlane said Canada would have to be careful about considering restrictions against imports of meat into Canada since this country's meat producers depend on exports. He said Saskatchewan favors a free trade on meat products.

The Manitoba government was accused of adopting "a dead-end approach" to provincial problems as Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston moved a second vote of non-confidence in the NDP government's speech from the throne.

The Liberal non-confidence motion is expected to be put to a vote Thursday, while a Conservative motion, presented Monday, is to be voted on April 19.

A motion of non-confidence in the Newfoundland government was introduced at St. John's.

John C. Crosbie (Ind. Liberal — St. John's West) claimed the province's debt had passed $1 001 million, With no limit on debate of a non-confidence motion, it was unknown when a vote on his motion would be taken.

Liberals Hold Power

Legislature Pages Stage Mock Parliament

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier Ian Barr proposed Tuesday that his Liberal government impose minimum fines of $100,000 for companies which pollute the province's waterways.

Well, that's what 13-year-old Ian would do if he really were head of a Liberal government.

The Toronto youth, at the moment only a legislature page, had a brief grip on the reins of power during the annual Mock Parliament organized since 1968 by Speaker Fred Cass.

Nine of the 18 pages opted for the Liberal party and thereby had a majority to form the government this year. Five pages described themselves as New Democrats and four as Progressive Conservatives.

But Mr. Cass (he really is the Speaker) ruled the PCs would form the official Opposition because "I wouldn't have the balance of the house changed by making a third party the opposition."

Mr. Cass then turned his duties over to Annette Hoekstra, one of four girl pages appointed this year. She wore the Speaker's tricorn hat to the Speaker's chair.

Premier Barr, moving a special debate on pollution, told the house that "we pollute our environment, live in luxury and then leave the younger generation holding the bag."

Scott Payne, 12, of Iroquois, leader of the PCs, launched into a poetic discourse describing a mythical Ontario town before the people "silenced the rebirth of new life in this stricken world."

"Is that out of the Bible?" called out David O'Brien, an NDP member from Peterborough.

"You used to be the government," jeered Premier Barr. "Why didn't you do something about it?"

Lawrence Not Happy With Way Man Jailed

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said Tuesday he is "not happy" with the way legal aid, the bail system and the unavailability of a justice of the peace affected the case of a man who spent 11 days in Don jail because he couldn't pay $20 bail.

Reford Francoeur, 48, was charged April 1 with stealing 60 cents from a downtown newspaper stand. He was not released from jail until Easter Sunday when Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for High Park, paid his $20 bail.

It was first believed the theft involved 10 cents but Mr. Lawrence said the figure was 60 cents.

The other aspects Mr. Lawrence mentioned were the legal aid system, the non-availability of justices of the peace to receive bail money on weekends and a communications gap with prisoners who do not know their rights.

He promised a full statement for the legislature when it sits again Thursday.

In Mr. Francoeur's case, "$2 would have been as big a hurdle as $20 or $2,000," Mr. Lawrence said.

The man had less than $1 in change when arrested. He lived at a mission here.

Graphic Arts Workers Say Taxpayers Finance U.S. Takeovers

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government and Canadian publishers came under attack Tuesday at opening-day hearings of the royal commission on book publishing in Ontario.

The Toronto Graphic Arts Labor Council charged in its brief that Ontario taxpayers are financing a United States takeover of Canada's book industry because the department of education is not enforcing its own regulations.

However, publisher B. D. Sandwell told the commission earlier the crisis in the industry is largely the publishers' own making.

The labor council, which represents 10 unions involved in book publishing, said Ontario tax money buys at least $29 million worth of foreign school books every year.

It said the department of education is not enforcing its Circular 14, which is an approved list of textbooks, the majority of which are Canadian.

The labor council urged the Ontario government to require that at least 75 per cent of textbooks used in schools be written, published and manufactured by Canadians. It called on the federal government to establish a Crown corporation to aid in textbook development.

Mr. Sandwell, president of Burns and MacEachern Ltd., rejected special status, government handouts or protection from foreign competition for Canadian publishers.

He said the industry needs to modernize and rationalize before it seeks financial aid from the government.

The two briefs were among six presented to the three-man commission which was set up by former premier John Robarts last November after the sales to U.S. interests of the textbook division of W. J. Gage Ltd. of Toronto and Ryerson Press, owned by the United Church of Canada.

Three professors at the University of Western Ontario in London suggested ways to encourage young authors in the textbook field.

F. H. Armstrong of the history department and W. B. Hamilton and H. A. Stevenson of the department of history of education all have written textbooks.

They recommended that the provincial government establish an independent preview committee to stimulate Canadian authors to enter the textbook field. It would examine manuscripts and outlines of proposed books and suggest revisions designed to improve the chances of publication.

TOWARD CENTURY 21: TECHNOLOGY, SOCIETY AND HUMAN VALUES edit. By C. S. WALLIA

A series of seminars held at Stanford University and published here, attempts to answer some of the questions posed by this computer age. How, in this time of an ever-changing technology, are man's ethical and human values to be preserved? For what goals shall he use his increasing mastery of the environment? Do scientists, as professionals have a social responsibility? Which aspects of man's cultural heritage are still valid for the world of today and tomorrow? The lecturers are distinguished in the fields of economics, psychology, political sciences, biology and the social sciences, and Mr. Wallia as editor has produced a readable and wide-ranging survey of what the future holds.

COMPUTERS IN EVERYDAY LIFE by Laura Tathum

This book is for the reader who doesn't know a computer from a digital but who would like to be reassured that the computer is not a superhuman monster about to take over the world. Written in everyday language, it describes how computers are used and why they are invaluable to many people — businessmen, economists, engineers, doctors, even artists. Strictly non-technical, this is an interesting account of the needs served by the electronic brain.

YEAR 2000 edited by Irvine A. Falk

What will life be like in the year 2000? Reported here are a number of interviews in which experts in many fields try to answer this question. The topics range from test-tube babies and multi-level cities to instant access to any item of information. The tone is generally optimistic (with the exception of opinions of Ralph Nader and Buckminster Fuller). As we are already in the midst of an electronic and biological revolution, the coming wonders of science are plausible.

CITIES ON THE MOVE by Arnold Toynbee

With the tremendous growth of cities during the last century, Dr. Toynbee foresees an eventual world city which will spread around the globe. In order to make such an environment habitable, he believes that we must study the organization of traditional cities. With this aim in mind, Dr. Toynbe provides an informative and highly readable discourse on the development and distinctive features of cities from Jericho to the modern megalopolis. In his concluding chapters he considers how we can best plan for the future.

LIVING UNDERWATER by Farooq Hussain

With Astronaut an everyday word, there is now coming into use the word Aquanaut — the explorer of the undersea world. Our knowledge of the ocean and its importance is incomplete, but there is no doubt that it is essential to man's survival. As the resources of the land are depleted, it will be necessary to exploit the oceans and in such a way as not to disturb the ecological balance of the earth. Farooq Hussain is an experienced diver and has kept abreast of developments in undersea experiments. He describes in words and illustrations the various types of submarine dwelling units and research stations and the physiological problems of man under water, and concludes with a look at the physical geography of the sea and its use as a source of food and minerals.

ATTENDANCE FIGURE

EDMONTON (CP) — In 1970, a total of 265,454 persons visited the Alberta Provincial Museum and Archives, a year-end report shows. Of these visitors, 30,450 were school children on educational tours. Attendance for 1969 was 273,105.

Cherney's FURNITURE WORLD

MISS BETTY SIMPSON, 13 Flendel Street, Trenton, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS— AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

"I certainly am coming out ahead since the discount prices were introduced," says Miss Simpson, "Even shopping for two I find I can save about $4 a week with MAXI DISCOUNT prices and I certainly can't do better than that anyplace else—I know, because I've checked in other stores to see. I think probably I save the most money on the canned goods and the paper products—but I've also noticed savings on the meat . . . and the meat here is really good—it looks fresher than what I've seen other places and it tastes just as good as it looks—if it didn't I wouldn't come back." To sum up, Miss Simpson says, "I recommend Loblaws for freshness and for quality—and bargain-wise I don't think you can beat Loblaws today".

Air Canada's New Jumbo Jet Impressive on Press Flight

Air Canada last week officially unveiled its newest behemoth of the airlines — the giant 365 passenger Boeing 747 jumbo jet, to go into regular service across Canada April 25.

The occasion was a special inaugural press flight out of Toronto International Airport for newsmen, radio and television personnel from across Southern Ontario.

The 60-minute flight — one of four "courtesy" trips laid on by Canada's national airline, totaled more than 200 representatives of the news media to the very latest in passenger air service — and the biggest.

Air Canada calls its 747 jumbo jet "big by any standards" and the dimensions of the aircraft more than bear out the statement.

With seats for 365 passengers in one first class and four economy sections, the planes 231-foot wingspan, its 195 foot length and loaded weight of 355 tons make it easily the biggest in the business.

Its four Pratt and Whitney jet engines, each of them more than eight feet across, push the plane along at more than 600 miles an hour, and the 40,000 Imperial gallon fuel capacity gives it a range of more than 5,000 miles.

And for the benefit of the everyday motorist, the plane's fuel fuel load would be sufficient to run the family auto for more than 80 years

Eighteen wheels, two of them at the nose and 16 under the main section are required to carry the plane's immense loaded weight of 710,000 pounds.

In sheer size, the mammoth 747 dwarfs even the DC-8 stretch jet, the current work-horse for Air Canada. It carries nearly double the fuel volume of the DC-8, can accommodate nearly double the number of passengers and costs $22 million in comparison to $8 million for the "smaller" jet.

Inside the 21 - foot - wide fuselage — wider than most living rooms are long — there are "armchairs" for 365 passengers in first class and economy sections with a handsomely appointed "penthouse" lounge-with its own private bar, behind the flight deck.

The seats are nine abreast with two off-centre aisles.

The aircraft features four-abreast seating in first class section with the exception in the four economy cabins.

Two aisles run the length of the aircraft and a number of cross aisles facilitate and accelerate in-flight service.

In spite of the large number of seats, five double doors allow the aircraft to be fully boarded and unloaded in about 10 minutes; roughly the same time required by the long-body DC-8s.

Sixteen cabin attendants, including nine mini - skirted stewardesses in their bright red uniforms, cater to passenger needs and comforts.

One of the economy sections accommodates a total of 114 passengers, another has chairs for 100 and a third for 78, with a no smoking section.

Even the decor is different for the various seating sections. The first class cabin with its 22 armchairs is highlighted in orange and blues; one economy section has the cool blue of Canada's winter as the decorative scheme while other economy sections are done in two shades of green and brilliant brown.

Movies are provided in the first class and three of the economy sections, while passengers also have their choice of eight different musical programs through individual earphones.

Even economy section seats have ample room for six footers to stretch out comfortably.

To make things easier for the stewardesses, there are no less than eight galleys for food preparation.

A new feature of the 747 is containerized baggage handling. Instead of baggage stowed in containers rolled into compartments designed to handle up to 40,000 pounds of cargo. The new innovation assures fast on and off handling of cargo.

Another indication of the immense size of the 747 is the fact that it takes a 77-ton motor to tow the Jumbo. Actually the tractor doesn't "tow" the aircraft but pushes it by the nosewheel from a position below the belly of the aircraft.

Air Canada has three of the air behemoths on order with deliveries of the aircraft accepted some weeks apart.

Since then Air Canada crew members have been put on familiarization flights and the 747 will go into service between Montreal and Vancouver later this month.

Within the next few months the jumbo will be operating service will be inaugurated and in the fall the 365 passenger behemoths will be used on the Toronto-Miami run.

Twin Otter Said to Be Ideal Commuter Craft

The big Jumbo jets of the air space age will shortly go into service across Canada and already Air Canada is beginning to wonder how the 365 seats of the mammoth Boeing 747 air carrier might be filled.

One answer to help fill the seats could be short hop commuter flights ferrying passengers in from outlying Southern Ontario centres to International Airport.

And De Havilland Canada feels it has the right type of air bus to do the job.

It is the Toronto-built, 20-passenger short takeoff Twin Otter which has met with worldwide acceptance and was recently purchased by the air force to replace the Yukon.

Last week, De Havilland gave a demonstration of the Twin Otter capability by ferrying newsmen from across Southern Ontario into Toronto for Air Canada's inaugural press courtesy flight of the big 747.

Three Twin Otters took part in the ferrying operation with one flight originating in Kingston and the others bringing in newsmen from the Huntsville, Owen Sound and Waterloo areas.

The Kingston flight picked up newsmen from that city and mid-made stops at Picton and Oshawa enroute to the Toronto airport.

The Kingston Toronto flight was to have stopped at Belleville but uncertain landing strip conditions at the field east of the city saw the craft instead stop at Picton.

De Havilland officials note that the turboprop powered Twin Otter can land and take off from almost any small air strip.

It cruises at 182 knots at 10,000 feet, has a range of up to 950 nautical miles with optional wing tanks and offers airline comfort with its quieter cabin, comfortable seats and individually controlled reading lights and air vents.

More than 200 Twin Otters are in service with 100 operators in 38 countries around the world.

Air Canada feels that it is on the way to the airport that modern day air transportation lags.

They point out that with today's congested highway traffic the hardest part of a flight is the trip to the major centre airport.

Yesterday De Havilland cooperated to demonstrate just how close Kingston, Belleville, Huntsville and other towns and cities over the province are to first class trans - continental and trans - Atlantic service.

Pemair recently inaugurated an air bus service to Toronto from Peterborough with stops at Peterborough and Lindsay.

Air Canada and De Havilland feel that with local involvement the concept of the "go plane" can link long haul airlines and give every town access to the jumbo jets.

As they pointed out, it worked last week.

Boeing 747 Gets Tarmac 'Tow'

The Immense size and weight of Air Canada's Jumbo Jet takes a lot of push to move it around. Here a 77-ton tractor (beneath the big plane's belly) is seen moving the aircraft at Toronto's International Airport. Plane has nearly twice the weight and carrying capacity of the four-engine DC-8 jet workhorse.

Twin Otter Commuter

Newspaper, radio and television personnel from across Southern Ontario were ferried to Toronto last week in Toronto-built Twin Otter turbo-prop air bus operation by DeHavilland Canada. Newsmen from Kingston, Picton, Belleville and Oshawa are seen deplaning from one of the three 20-place short-haul aircraft used in the pickup service.

Health Unit Criticized At Marmora Meeting

MARMORA (Special) — Charges that the Hastings county health unit is failing to carry out investigation of complaints were made at a recent Marmora and Lake Township council meeting. The statements were made following the appearance of Mrs. H. Fraser, who complained to council that she had notified the county health unit, as she had been advised to do, of odors caused by burning garbage and other products at the Fraser industrial, next door to her property, and had not received any satisfaction.

Council advised Mrs. Perkins to make another attempt by calling the health unit. Failing this, council will endeavor to seek action on her complaint.

Further criticism of the health unit was made by one councillor who commented that new septic tanks in the area have not been properly inspected by the inspectors of the health unit on more than one occasion that he knows of.

At an earlier special meeting, council received approval from Robert Sims of the department of highways, for the purchase of a four - wheeled rubber tired loader for the township. Tenders will be opened April 15.

Seven fire wardens for the township were appointed for the coming season: Gordon Jones, Tom Devolin; Tom Bateman, John Wilkes, Dan Bowman, Clayton Tompkins and Albert Leonard.

Purchase of a trophy to be awarded to the winner of the district 4F Junior Calf Club was authorized.

Council members were distur bed by a recently published report that Marmora and Lake Township education mill rate had increased 30.4 mills. Reeve Wilkes reported that James Spry, area board representative, has suggested and will arrange a meeting between council and education board representatives to discuss how the rate was arrived at and what can be done about it. Council decided to leave the matter open until after that meeting has taken place.

Council directed clerk Tom Bateman to order a supply of dog tags and collars from the local paper that citizens may obtain the tags by applying to the clerk at the office. His office will be open Tuesday and Thursday afternoons 2 - 4 p.m. and Saturday morning 10 to noon.

The clerk was instructed to advertise that Council will approve the closing of part of a road allowance that runs through the property of Jack Jones, unless there is valid reason not to.

Approval was given to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook on a request for a land separation on lot 9, con. 1, already in a registered development plan.

Reeve Wilkes announced that the county planning board would like to meet with all the municipal councils early in May in an effort to arrive at a mutual understanding of the planning board's function. Councillors will be advised when the date has been set.

Clerk Tom Bateman read a letter from the county board of education which expressed appreciation for the splendid job done by the township road crew in keeping the bus routes open this past winter. Roads superintendent Albert Leonard commented it was nice to receive some recognition for a change, instead of the usual criticism.

A request for the use of a road allowance north to lot 24, con. 4 was rejected by council as unnecessary.

Arrangements will be made by Gordon Bennett for council to meet with Robert Cowan on Thursday, April 22 at 7:30 p.m. to receive the results of a survey of the township's mineral needs.

A canvass of township areas close to Marmora Village will be undertaken this year on behalf of the Cancer Fund, reported Mr. Bennett who is chairman of the fund, rather than a direct contribution from the township budget.

Mr. Bennett also told council to start thinking about plans for the future when the Marmoraton Mining Co. will be completing operations in Marmora Township, which has been estimated to be in about 10 years. It was moved and seconded by Councillors James Cook and Robert Drummond that the clerk write to James McCloskey and ask for a meeting with Harold Olsen with regard to the company's plans for the future of the property.

Council granted permits for three cottages to be built on Marble Point and a house on lot 4, Con. 9, subject to all health regulations.

An invitation to meet with Bell Telephone representatives on April 21 at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre to discuss local telephone problems was received. A representation from council will attend so many residents of Marmora with a problem should contact one of the councilmen before that date.

A letter from the Ontario Sweepstake Committee of Parkhill, Ontario, seeking permission to sell sweepstake tickets in this area was read by the clerk.

Speedup Approved

With the problem of unemployment causing concern in most Canadian municipalities, Belleville will take steps to get planned capital works programs under way as soon as possible.

Major works projects scheduled by the city include first stage construction of the new Sidney Street bridge over the CN double tracks, the extension of Bell Boulevard from North Front Street across Street, and the installation of a large storm sewer from the Bell Boulevard area across North Front Street and east to the Moira River.

But in each instance, expropriation proceedings are necessary for city to acquire the necessary property or easements to allow the work to go ahead.

City manager J. R. Reynolds told council yesterday that in all three above cases earlier possession of the required property could be obtained by the city offering to pay the owners the amount offered without prejudice to the owners' right to final settlement of their claim by the land compensation board.

The city manager recommended that council determine the priorities under which the projects might be carried out at the same time suggesting that roads received the first priority.

First, however, detailed plans and cost estimates are necessary before application can be made to the Ontario municipal board for approval.

Council generally agreed with importance of the earliest possible start.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the various capital works projects planned could provide "hundreds of jobs" and suggested that a special meeting of council be held to set out priorities.

Alderman Gerald Joyce went a step further and suggester that outside engineering consultants be hired to assist the city engineer in preparing detailed plans.

City Mgnager Reynolds will discuss the feasibility of Alderman Joyce's idea with the city engineer.

Ameliasburg Tax Rate Struck

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

AMELIASBURG — The property tax rate for 1971 struck by council last night follows the general levelling off in the economy, figures revealed.

The budget council approved set the rate of the total general public residential at 21.25 mills up .59 over last year. Total general rate public commercial was struck at 23.25.

In terms of money, council requires $447,449.11 to operate the municipality for the period. To raise the sum needed the mill rate will be applied to the total assessment for taxable property amounting to $20,035,345 — about a million dollars above the total property values recorded in the previous year.

While the newest mill rate is considered well within the expectations of the local administration, clerk William Nightingale expressed the opinion it could have been lower and possibly no increase would have been necessary had the County of Prince Edward's requisition remained in line with the county's requirements from the township in the previous period.

This year the county asked for $135,222.75 which works out to 6.75 mills of the municipality's general rate. In comparison, the county's requisition in 1970 was $106,000, approximately $29,000 less than the amount sought this year.

Education is taking the big bite (nearly 50 per cent) out of the local tax pie—$91,381 for elementary schools, $96,579 for secondary schools and $1-333.73 for separate school education. In the case of residential contribution, elementary and secondary education accounts for 8.4 mills of the general rate.

The other sizable money needed this year is for garbage collection and control, estimated at $14 per unit using the service, for a total projection of $21,500 or 1.1 mills of the general rate struck for residential property owners.

In 1970, council budgeted for $14,000 for garbage collection payable to Quinte Sanitation Services. Recently council decided to implement a collection service controlled by the municipality and a capital outlay was necessary to obtain a truck with packing attachment in the process. This meant council decided to increase the budget for collection to cover the capital expence.

Approved along with the other items in the budget was $102,910 for the operation of the township during the current year.

Street lighting at locations in four centres — Rossmore, Redneersville, Consecon and Fenwood Gardens — is going to cost a total of $2,895.23 budget figures revealed.

Prizes here on, fire burning in the township will be an offence unless terms of a by-law council approved last night are met.

According to the bylaw, a permit must be obtained for setting a fire in the open air unless the fire is contained in a metal or concrete incinerator or barbecue which is hooded or screened . . . and 20 feet from buildings, woodsen fences and other inflammable materials." If burning takes place on cleared ground the distance required from structures is laid down as "at least 50 feet."

Failing to obtain a permit or otherwise contravening the bylaw leaves the person or persons involved liable for damages caused by the fire out of control and also the cost of extinguishing it.

All offences against the bylaw will be subject to penalties and cost imposed under the Summary Conviction Act.

Permits will be issued at the township office.

Council by resolution delegated full authority to collect for licences for dogs to the township's animal control officer, Don Tucker.

New construction in the township seems to have resumed after a quiet winter with permits issued during March covering a total of $57,000 to build a family dwelling, a broiler (chicken) factory and a summer cottage.

Over Objections

Labor Council Endorses NDP

TRENTON (Staff) — The Quinte District Labor Council decided here last night to endorse the New Democratic Party in the next provincial election, expected later this year.

In giving support to the NDP, the council would not sanction proposals to assist the party with funds from its coffers.

Some in the audience said they would not favor the endorsement. "If there is to be a contribution of money."

A representative of Corby's Distillery workers mentioned that he did not object to the labor council taking a stand politically but added "at Corby's; we will remain neutral."

"How can we endorse the NDP, while they do not know what their policy is?" said a member of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, representing Belleville's public works department. He said he definitely could not accept the ideas of the NDP waffle group.

Principal critic of the endorsement move was William Menzies of Ontario Hydro who said he represents workers of all political affiliations and will himself be seeking the Liberal nomination for Quinte riding.

Michel Briere Dies Year After His Finest Hockey Hour

MONTREAL (CP) — On April, 12, 1970 at the Oakland Coliseum, young Michel Briere, a rookie centre with Pittsburgh Penguins, enjoyed his finest hour in the National Hockey League.

Briere scored at 8:28 of the first overtime period to give his team a 3-2 triumph over Oakland Seals and a berth in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Last May 15, Briere was involved in a serious car accident near his hometown of Malartic, Que., and Tuesday he died from the injuries suffered in the accident, after 11 months in hospital.

Briere suffered brain damage and a fractured skull in the accident when his sports car skidded off the road and crashed into a tree, killing one of his companions and injuring two others.

The accident took place about a month before the young hockey star was to be married.

Briere was flown to Montreal from Val d'Or and taken to Notre Dame Hospital where he underwent four brain operations.

He died about 4 p.m. EST Tuesday at the Maria-Claraci Rehabilitation Hospital where he had been transferred three weeks ago.

Doctors at the hospital said "he had died a fighting death."

During his stay in hospital, Briere regained enough consciousness to be able to recognize certain familiar people, including Dic Cosa, the man who scouted him for the Pittsburgh club. Briere also was able to recognize his parents and sister.

On every trip to Montreal this season, members of the Penguins stopped in to visit their team-mate at the east-end hospital.

Briere had an outstanding career as a junior with Shawinigan, Bruins of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League. He was the Penguins' No. 2 choice in the NHL's draft of amateur players.

In his rookie season he fired 12 goals and 32 assists and was the team's third highest scorer. He added five goals and three assists in the playoffs including two game winners.

In a recent ceremony in Shawinigan, the No. 7 he wore for the Bruins was retired and presented to his parents. The No. 21 he wore in his season with Pittsburgh was also retired.

Funeral services will be held Saturday.

Alley Hoping For Cool Spell

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gene Alley, Pittsburgh's shortstop for years, is sitting on the bench hoping Jackie Hernandez' hot hitting streak will cool off.

Alley, who suffered a broken hand in spring training and now is ready to play, was replaced by Hernandez, an American League castoff with a .209 lifetime batting average in five major league seasons.

But Hernandez is playing out of character, clouting .444 with six RBI, including a three-run homer Tuesday night that helped the Pirates whip Philadelphia Phillies 9-3.

"I could be playing," says Alley, "but he's doing such a good job, they can't afford to take him out."

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds nudged Atlanta Braves 5-4, Chicago Cubs shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2; Houston Astros outscored St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 and Montreal Expos mauled New York Mets 4-1. The San Diego-San Francisco contest was wiped out by rain.

Johnny Bench uncorked his third home run in two nights and keyed a seventh-inning rally with a single in the Cincinnati success.

In addition to his hits, Bench hit a screamer that was caught at the warning track in left field.

Bench jumped on a Pat Jarvis offering and sailed it into the left field seats in the third inning. A walk to Zony Perez, a single by Bench and an RBI single by Willie Smith gave the Reds a 3-1 lead and what proved to be their winning run. The Braves scored three times in the eighth before reliever Joe Gibbon nipped the uprising with a double play pitch.

Don Kessinger's eighth-inning single scored Jose Ortiz with two outs in the first of Chicago. Ortiz walked to start the rally, was sacrificed to second and reared home on Kessinger's bullet between shortstop and third base.

The loss was the third straight for Dodger ace Bill Singer, who only gave the Cubs two hits in the first six innings.

Joe Morgan's bases-filled single and Norm Miller's three-run homer with two out in the ninth carried Houston over St. Louis. The Astros, who took an early 3-0 lead, fell behind 4-3 when the Cards broke a tie in the eighth, and struck back against Mike Torrez in the last inning.

Montreal's Steve Renko beat New York for the second time this season, scattering eight Met hits. John Bateman's first homer of the season gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the second for all the runs the Expos needed.

Southern Climate Agrees with Bowlers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Southern Ontario bowlers grabbed the top three spots in nine of the 12 events at the annual national youth bowling council championships and came up with 2,778 points to capture first place in the three-day event.

Northern Ontario bowlers were 94 points behind with 2,684 points, and Manitoba scored 2,679 to place in third. British Columbia had 2,653 points followed by Alberta with 2,625 and Saskatchewan with 2,524. The Newfoundland team placed sixth with a score of 2,444.

In the team-bowling event, Northern Ontario and southern Ontario each won three divisions.

The southern Ontario bantam boys team from Rexdale defeated the Alberta team by 20 points.

The junior boys from Georgetown, Ont., piled up 494 points to beat Manitoba's score of 399.

The Northern Ontario bantam girls from Azilda, with 317 points, were eight points ahead of second-place Manitoba.

The junior girls team from Sudbury, Ont., beat Manitoba 395 to 378. Northern Ontario's senior boys from Thunder Bay beat southern Ontario by an eight-point margin.

Kevin Streit of Stettler, Alta., won the bantam boys singles with a score of 86, beating Grant Dowdy of Revelstoke, B.C., by two points. Kevin's brother Kim swept the junior singles with a score of 98.

The most heart-breaking moment of the championships probably belonged to Jan Anderson of Red Deer, Alta., who lost to Harold Porter of Cranbrook, B.C., by 16 pins.

They finished the senior boys singles with 96 points—11 wins and seven losses—but Porter had knocked down 4,291 pins compared to Anderson's 4,375.

Anita Taca of Toronto beat B.C.'s Cathy Morgan in the bantam girls singles by six points with a total of 91.

Football Moves Into New Homes

NEW YORK (AP) — A new era for professional football in New England starts Sept. 19 with the opening of the 1971 National Football League season.

The New England Patriots, nee the Boston Patriots, will mark the historic occasion by opening their NFL season against the Oakland Raiders in their new 61,043-seat Schaefer Stadium at Foxboro, Mass.

With two star quarterbacks, veteran Joe Kapp and rookie Jim Plunkett of Stanford, club president Billy Sullivan foresees a rosy future for the team.

Other new parks are at Philadelphia and Dallas while the San Francisco 49ers shift from Kezar Stadium to Candlestick Park.

Philadelphia will play at the 65,000-seat Veterans stadium Sept. 26 against Dallas.

Washington helps Dallas open its 65,000-seat Texas Stadium on Oct. 3.

San Francisco plays its first game at 45,000-seat Candlestick Park against Los Angeles Oct. 10.

All 26 clubs will be in action on the opening NFL weekend.

SEATTLE (AP) — Portland defenceman Connie Madigan is through for the season and the suspension of his team-mate, Rick Foley, has been upheld, a spokesman for the Western Hockey League said Tuesday. Madigan was suspended indefinitely and fined $500 for knocking out referee Dave Newell during a San Diego - Portland semi-final playoff game in San Diego Sunday. His suspension will be reviewed at the annual meeting of WHL owners in Denver next month. Foley was suspended and fined $400 for throwing his stick at Newell moments before Madigan punched the referee.

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP) — Jack Bodell of Britain, fighting with one eye closed after the third round, defeated Manuel Ramos of Mexico on points in a 10-round heavyweight boxing match Tuesday night. Bodell, chief contender for Joe Bugner's British title, only looked to be in trouble after Ramos connected with a right hand to the head in the third.

TORONTO (CP) — An inquest will be held May 17 into the death of a 16-year-old boy, killed Monday when his helmet failed to protect him from a flying puck that struck the side of his head. An autopsy on the body of Claudio Romanin showed he had suffered a skull fracture and brain damage, Coroner Dr. A. E. Noble said Tuesday. The boy collapsed on the ice during a hockey warmup after a slapshot fired by another boy caught him on the temple. He was pronounced dead at hospital. The youth had been wearing a Cooper-Weeks SK 10 helmet which a company official said now is used mainly for lacrosse, not hockey. "I can't comment too much on it, because I haven't seen the helmet," said J. C. Cooper, president of Cooper-Weeks, "but no merchandise under the Cooper-Weeks name has been made in the past three or four years."

Signals Straight

MONTREAL (CP) — The Eastern Football Conference season is still several months away but Montreal Alouettes have already cleared up their first case of crossed backfield signals.

A spokesman for the defending Grey Cup champions said Tuesday Moses Denson has signed a long-term contract with the team despite statements by the running back late Monday that the Als "don't have my signature on a contract as yet."

McLain Exits Early

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Denny McLain's fast ball came and went—followed closely by McLain himself after a faulty second fling for Washington Senators.

"The harder I threw it, the harder they hit it," McLain said Tuesday night following his early departure in the Senators' 5-3 loss to Boston Red Sox.

McLain, winner last Friday night in his 1971 debut, was tagged for all five Boston runs before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning. He gave up seven hits, including homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Duane Josephson.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City Royals downed Minnesota Twins 5-3 in a game marked by seven hit batsmen, Oakland Athletics blanked Milwaukee Brewers 2-0 behind Vida Blue's two-hitter, California Angels topped the Chicago White Sox 3-1 in 10 innings and New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 5-2. The Baltimore-Cleveland game was rained out.

Josephson's home run, after a second-inning single by George Scott, started McLain's undoing at Washington. Yastrzemski unloaded in the third and the Red Sox added runs in the fourth and fifth, offsetting three unearned Washington tallies.

Four Twins and three Royals were hit by stray pitches, tying the American League single-game mark of seven hit batsmen set by Washington and Detroit in 1914.

Blue, Oakland's 21-year-old southpaw, held the Brewers to a pair of singles on the way to his second straight shutout victory. Don Mincher delivered both runs with a single and double.

Stan Bahnsen weathered 11 Detroit hits and contributed a run-scoring triple to the New York attack as the Yankees took their home opener.

Campbell Levies $16,550 in Fines for Ranger-Leaf Brawl

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers were hit with stiff fines Tuesday for their bench-clearing brawl in a National Hockey League Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff game last Thursday in New York.

NHL president Clarence Campbell slapped the two teams with a total of $16,550 in fines including $5,000 fines to each team.

A total of $6,550 in fines was spread among 27 players—11 for their part in the two major brawls that occurred in the third period.

The first brawl started with a fight between Vic Hadfield of New York and Toronto's Jim Harrison. All players on the ice joined in the melee and when the combatants were separated, Hadfield threw Leafs' goaltender Bernard Parent's mask into the crowd.

Sittler and Park also were the second pair to start fighting and received majors and misconducts while Hadfield and Harrison each were tagged with game misconducts.

Less than 30 seconds after play resumed, Leafs defenceman Jim Dorey and Ted Irvine of the Rangers started another bout and eventually all players on both teams were involved in the fighting.

Sittler and Park abandoned the penalty box to join in the fray.

All fines will go to the NHL players' emergency fund.

Toronto: Sittler, $250 for a misconduct and game misconduct; Harrison $200 for a game misconduct; Parent and Plante, $200 each for leaving the goal crease and Parent an extra $200 for leaving the bench; Pelyk, $200 for leaving the bench and $200 for being first to do so; Rick Ley, Jim McKenny, George Armstrong, Guy Trottier, Dave Keon, Brian Spencer, Denis Dupere, Garry Monahan and Bill McMillan, $200 each for leaving the bench to join the fight.

New York: Park, $250 for a misconduct and game misconduct; Hadfield $250 for a misconduct and game misconduct; Giacomin, $400 for twice leaving his crease to fight; Larry Brown, Dale Rolfe, Rod Seiling, Rod Gilbert, Bob Nevin, Ron Stewart, Bruce McGregor, Dave Balon, Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle and Peter Stemkowski, $200 each for leaving their bench to join the fracas, Gilles Villemure, $200 for leaving the bench to join in the second fight.

Francis Unhappy Despite Putting Leaf Backs to Wall

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers cruised to their second consecutive National Hockey League playoff victory over Toronto Maple Leafs and their coach was unhappy. Boston Bruins did the same to Montreal Canadiens and their coach was worried.

EMILE FRANCIS

The Rangers beat the Leafs 3-1 Tuesday night in New York to go ahead 3-2 in their best-of-seven East Division Stanley Cup semi-finals and the Bruins overpowered the Canadiens 7-3 in Boston, also to lead their series 3-2.

But New York coach Emile Francis thought his Rangers should have had a shutout. And he was also critical about the refereeing.

Francis, commenting on Leafs' only goal, said:

"I'll bet my last dollar that Jim McKenny's stick was over his shoulders when he scored Toronto's goal. It's a shame we missed a shutout because the boys played a great game."

He said he would look at films of the game to determine for himself whether the Toronto goal was scored legally.

Boston coach Tom Johnson was worried at a tendency of his team to "lay back" when it gets a lead and let the other team come to them.

Johnson, mindful of the come-back 7-5 win Thursday night by the Canadiens after they trailed the Bruins 5-2, had visions of a repeat performance Tuesday night when his club led the Canadiens 5-1 after two periods and the Montreal team narrowed the margin to 5-3 midway in the third.

But the Bruins, after some encouragement from Johnson, poured on the heat to score two quick goals and put the game out of reach of the Canadiens.

Rangers scored in the first minute of play against Leafs and from then on dominated play. The two teams, hit $16,550 in fines for brawls in the second game of the series in New York last week, stuck strictly to hockey.

Left winger Ted Irvine scored New York's first goal with the game only 34 seconds old when he rapped Bruce MacGregor's rebound past goalie Bernie Parent, whose sensational netminding kept Toronto in the game in the first period when they were outshot 17-4.

Vic Hadfield made the score 2-0 in the second period and Bob Nevin increased the lead to 3-0 in the third period when he rammed the puck past Parent after batting it out of the air.

Then, with less than seven minutes left in the game, goalie Ed Giacomin was robbed of his shutout when McKenny scored with Rangers Rod Gilbert and Jim Neilson in the penalty box.

The Rangers argued that McKenny's goal had come with the stick above his shoulder but referee Ron Wicks allowed the goal and gave Neilson a 10-minute misconduct.

Francis was incensed at the play immediately preceding the double penalty to Gilbert and Neilson.

"The irony of the penalty was that (Bob) Baun caught (Pete) Stemkowski with a knee at centre ice and got no penalty," he said. "But on the subsequent play we got two penalties."

He said he will not know until today whether Stemkowski will be fit to play in Toronto Thursday night.

Leaf coach John McLellan said his team didn't skate for two periods "but it's not over yet."

"We'll be back Sunday night for the seventh game," he said.

The Bruins got goals from Wayne Cashman, Phil Esposito, Mike Walton, John McKenzie, Ed Westfall, John Bucyk and Ken Hodge while Yvan Cournoyer, Frank Mahovlich and John Ferguson scored for the Canadiens.

Bruins were leading 5-1 in the third period when goals by Mahovlich and Ferguson narrowed the score to 5-3. But Bucyk came off the bench, picked up a loose puck and went in to score his first goal in five playoff games.

Hodge completed the Boston scoring with an unassisted goal on a 30-foot shot with less than five minutes remaining in the third period. That was also his first in the series.

Hodge said Johnson told his players to stop "laying back" when the Canadiens appeared to be rallying.

"I guess we were conscious of the fact they came back in the other game and scored five goals to win," Hodge said, referring to last Thursday night. "Occasionally you find that with a lead you are inclined to fall back into a shell."

Coach Al MacNeil of the Canadiens said his team started too late in the game. "We didn't work hard enough."

Both teams complained about soggy ice conditions in the Boston Garden. Johnson said referee Bill Friday told him about it after the first period.

Dr. D. G. Kinnear, Canadiens' club physician, said Roberto suffered a bruised back when he crashed into the boards at the 24-second mark of the first period while chasing a Boston player.

Pair of Quickies Gives Stars Edge

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Seconds before he scored the winning goal in Minnesota North Stars' 4-3 victory over St. Louis Blues Tuesday night, Louis Nanne didn't think he'd get the puck.

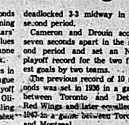
With less than four minutes in the National Hockey League West Division semi-final playoff game, team-mate Murray Oliver failed to hear Nanne calling for the puck and took the shot on net himself.

But the Minnesota utility man trapped the rebound and fired it past Blues' goalie Glenn Hall to give the North Stars a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series with St. Louis.

The sixth game in the series is in Minneapolis Thursday and the seventh, if needed, in St. Louis Sunday.

Chicago Black Hawks wrapped up their best-of-seven West Division semi-final series in four straight games over Philadelphia Flyers and wait to meet the winner of the New York Rangers-Toronto Maple Leafs East Division semi-final series which New York leads 3-2.

St. Louis or Minnesota meets the winner of the Boston Bruins-Montreal Canadiens East semi-final which Boston leads 3-2.



"I started walking in on goal, but Murray didn't hear me yell," said Nanne, whose first goal in 10 games in Stanley Cup competition came with 3:35 remaining.

"It was a good thing," he added. "Glenn Hall made a good stop on Murray's shot, but he didn't have the angle to stop me."

The goal by Nanne, captain of the 1968 United States Olympics team at Grenoble, France, came after two goal productions by North Stars' rookie Jude Drouin and Blues' right wing Craig Cameron left the teams deadlocked 3-3 midway in the second period.

Cameron and Drouin scored seven seconds apart in the second period and set an NHL playoff record for the two fastest goals by two teams.

The previous record of 10 seconds was set in 1936 in a game between Toronto and Detroit Red Wings and later equalled in 1945 in a game between Toronto and Montreal.

JUDE DROUIN

Nanne, a right winger who also fills in on defence, considered the goal revenge for an earlier effort that went awry.

"In the second period Hall robbed me when I was in the crease," he said. "Danny Grant took the shot, and the rebound came to me but I couldn't get it past."

Lamented by Blues' general manager-coach Scotty Bowman were his team's wasted advantage of 36-22 in shots and five squandered opportunities to score while Minnesota was short-handed because of penalties.

"We just aren't taking advantage," Bowman noted. "They beat us on a mistake.

Bruins Farming Already

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins said Tuesday they expect to have the players to stock competitive minor league hockey teams both here and in Oklahoma City next season.

Weston W. Adams, chairman of the board, made the comments at a news conference called to introduce Armand (Bep) Guidolin as the coach of the Bruins' new American Hockey League affiliate which will play in Boston Garden beginning with the 1971-72 campaign.

Guidolin, a former Bruins forward and nine-year NHL veteran, expressed optimism at the task of bringing a new team into the AHL.

Guidolin, 46, was coach this year of London Knights of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The red, white and black uniforms which the new AHL team will wear also were unveiled, but club officials said they still had not picked a name.

Minor Lacrosse Puts in More Solid Footings

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

MONTREAL — For 45 seconds, Montreal's most rabid of Canadian sport subscribers forgot about underdogging the Stanley Cup from right under the lofty noses of those nasty old Bruins.

They — 22,000 of them, were standing as the proverbial one to applaud one Daniel Joseph Staub, fast overtaking Jean Beliveau as the apple of this city's eye. Le Grand Orange had just clotheslined a 320-foot throw from deep "le chanp droit" in Jarry Park to seal Montreal Expos second opening day win in three tries, a 4-1 win over New York Mets.

Canadian spectators do not utter standing ovations lightly. To be so acclaimed in Maple Leaf Gardens, a skater might have to, say, successfully revive Blufford Smythe's stricken poodle by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, while simultaneously scoring a short-handed goal.

Staub bashfully acknowledged Tuesday's tribute with a light touch of His cap peak. The roaring had continued from his inning-ending double play throw to his leadoff single in the eighth.

Rusty No Joke

Staub was born April Fool's Day, 1944. But his three years have given Montreal last laugh on Houston Astros, who swapped him to the expansion Expos when he appeared to be past his prime after seven years in the big time. Tuesday's appearance in the Montreal lineup made the slightly pudgy red head the lone Expo to be a starter in the club's three home openers. He had 328 hits, 59 home runs, and 174 runs batted in to his credit before playing his 322nd Expo game Tuesday.

Rusty was the only Montrealer to hit safely twice Tuesday, as the Expos managed four runs on only five hits. But his eighth-inning mtsule from right field did more than make manager Gene Mauch look good for inserting the first-baseman permanently to an outfielder.

The play prompted the first serious murmurs of pennant possibilities in the fledgling club's history.

"That's the stuff that wins pennants," one New York writer grudgingly conceded after Staub rifled the ball in the plate to double Met Cleon Jones on a hold-and-go fly ball play.

"Yes but it's only April," a less generous colleague reminded him.

Later, Don Drysdale agreed. "But this division is wide open," the pitcher-cum-broadcaster warned an impromptu press conference with a couple of eastern Ontario types who had mistaken the lanky ex-Dodger for the Place Ville Marie.

Don Digs Pitching

Considering his background it was only logical that Drysdale wanted to talk pitching. "How about Steve Renko," he tossed his listeners. "You know he's the winningest pitcher on this club." Most people aren't aware that Renko has won more than any other Expo pitcher, 21 including Tuesday. He was 6-7 in his 1969 rookie year, and 13-11 in 1970.

The former Met scattered eight hits Tuesday in his second complete-game win of the season. Those two appearances - (the other was a 6-2 win over the Mets April 8) - mark the only Montreal wins in five 1971 tries.

Drysdale also like the way Renko takes an honest cut with the bat. (He singled in three at-bats Tuesday).

"I always figured I could help the team at the plate when I played," the 200-game winner explained. "I batted .300 one year."

Someone reminded Drysdale he owns the rare distinction of being a pitcher who pinch-hit.

"Oh yes. That was in the 1964 series against Minnesota I think." A broad grin split his training camp tan.

They sent me in for Sandy Koufax. I don't know if that was any kind of record, but let me tell you I had something to say to him about that!"

Back to Hockey

Just to straighten out a popular misconception: Phil Esposito is not your average playoff "choke" artist. The big guy of the Bruins has been accused of tapered post season performances by people with either short memories, or long wallets.

For the record, Esposito has led playoff pointgetters for the past two seasons. In the spring of '69, Esposito recorded eight goals, 10 assists, and 18 points, all individual highs despite the fact the Bruins were eliminated by Montreal after only ten games of playoff action.

Last April, Big Phil contributed 13 goals, 14 assists, totalling 27 points in the Bruin march to Lord Stanley's mug. Again, he led all playoff performers in each scoring category.

His goal and assist in Tuesday night's 7-3 win by the Bruins over Canadiens give Esposito a nine-game total on two goals and seven assists in five 1971 playoff games.

That puts him in third place among post-season scorers, one point behind Chicago's Bobby Hull, and three behind Bobby what's-his-face that plays for the Bruins.

Many of those who operate under the assumption Esposito is no playoff threat belong to the cult who said the Sault sharpshooter would never amount to anything after being traded from the Black Hawks and a spot on a line with Bobby Hull.

According to my books, since that 1967 trade Esposito has piled up 481 Boston points, 203 of them goals. In those same four seasons, ex-linemate Hull has recorded 184 goals; 341 points in toto.

The defence rests.

Belleville's Minor Lacrosse Association continued to lay the footings Tuesday for what appears to be the group's strongest foundation on the city sporting scene.

First on the agenda was the planning of a referees and coaches clinic, to be staged at Quinte Secondary School's main gymnasium Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m.

Association president Roy Payne announced that the BMLA registration stands at 250, with more coming in every day, as opposed to the 238 city boys enrolled last year.

"We're still having trouble getting more younger boys out," he added, indicating that there are enough registrations to date to account for three novice, four peewee, six bantam, and at least four midget Juvenile rosters.

The teams will be designated to their respective coaches at a general association meeting Wednesday, Apr. 28 at 7:30 in Bleecker Auditorium.

Minor lacrosse organizers hope to be in operation in the Memorial Arena by the last week of April, and to move to the Dick Ellis Rink when the concrete floor has cured, possibly in mid-May.

President Payne says his organization is still in the market for several coaches

Ontario Sees Taxes Tripled by White Paper

TORONTO (CP) — If the federal white paper on tax reform is implemented, revenues from taxes would grow to $33.8 billion by 1980 from $11.8 billion in 1969, an Ontario study on tax reform says.

Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough tabled the study, part four of a series, in the legislature Tuesday.

It compares revenues that would become available under the present income tax system, the federal white paper proposals and Ontario tax reform proposals.

The taxes are federal and provincial, including the old-age security tax, social-development tax and the temporary three-per-cent surtax.

Under the present system, revenues would grow to $29.3 billion by 1980 from $10,100 million. Under Ontario's proposed system the revenues would increase to $30,800 million.

Mr. McKeough told the house the department hopes the information will contribute to a more rational division of tax resources between the two levels of government.

He said later at a news conference the public should know this kind of revenue is in the offing. He called the $29 billion, anticipated under the present system, the $30.8 billion under Ontario proposals and the $33.8 billion under white paper proposals "enormous amounts."

"It staggers me that our revenues will grow to that extent."

He said the public should be asking itself, "What does the government need with 30 billion, let alone 33 billion in revenue?"

At the present rate of growth and expenditures, the municipalities and the province are headed for deficits while the federal government is headed for surpluses, he said.

In other business Tuesday:

—Allan Grossman, minister of trade and development, in a reply to a question by Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) said pensioners receiving the federal government's guaranteed-income supplement and living in Ontario Housing Corp. homes for the aged will soon have their rent increased. He said the increase will be effective when present leases expire;

—Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview), speaking during a throne speech debate, told the legislature that no-fault government—run insurance will be a priority of the NDP party if elected;

—Vernon Singer (L—Toronto-Downsview) said the provincial government's $25 million law suit against Dow Chemical was "one of the biggest frauds perpetrated on the people of Ontario." He said the government is "using the office of the attorney-general for purely political purposes;"

—James Trotter (L—Toronto-Parkdale) said the government has adopted a "holier-than-thou" attitude toward regional governments which "has gone a long way to contribute to the destruction of the foundation of our society;"

—Replying to a question by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, Agriculture Minister William Stewart said he has no plans to hold up a provincial bill to control agriculture imports into the province although a federal farm-products marketing act has received second reading;

—Robert Welch, provincial education minister, said the government cannot do anything about a grant to build a school in Hamilton for Grade 13 students only. He said it was up to the Hemilton school board to spend the money if they saw it necessary;

—Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said that although no charges would be laid, he would name industries which contributed to high pollution readings in Toronto over the Easter weekend. He said the industries were not totally responsible for the high readings;

—Mr. Grossman said a new government policy on subsidies to Canadian businesses would probably be announced later this week. He was speaking of proposed government plans to give special treatment to Canadian businesses and to encourage those entering fields involving high-risk capital.

Jews Want Grants

TORONTO (CP) — Rabbi Stuart Rosenburg said Tuesday night that no single domestic issue had so united the Jewish community of Ontario as the question of provincial aid to Jewish schools.

"The whole spectrum of Jewish life in this province has rallied to the platform," he told a meeting called by the Ontario Committee for Government Aid to Jewish Day Schools.

New Drug Beating Common Cold

CHICAGO (Reuter) — A new drug said to be capable of curing the hitherto incurable common cold within 24 hours has already had amazing results in Argentina, where it has received government approval for use in humans, a scientific meeting was told Tuesday.

The drug, known as NPT 10381, was discovered by Dr. Paul Gordon of the Chicago Medical School who delivered a scientific report at the annual meeting of the federation of medical societies for experimental biology.

A synthetic organic compound, the drug was reported to be the first compound found in clinical studies effective against a broad range of viruses.

Canada Could Sell Clothes to Hong Kong

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hong Kong, the world's second-largest exporter of wearing apparel, is a wide-open market for Canadian-made women's clothing, an official of a Hong Kong trade mission said here Tuesday.

"It's just a matter of snob appeal," said Robert S. Sun, project manager for the 19-member mission which arrived here Sunday on the start of a three-week tour of Canada.

"Only Italy exports more clothing than Hong Kong," said Mr. Sun.

"But people are funny. They still like to wear foreign-made clothing themselves."

He said Canadian manufacturers would find a good market for women's wear, furs and shoes.

Dr. Alvin Glasky, president of a California pharmaceutical company, disclosed that the Argentine health ministry gave its approval for commercial use of the drug last week.

The Argentine doctors said the drug had no toxic and bad side effects and could be used to treat infants, children, adults and aged people.

Alcoholic Parent Hard on Children

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

In a recent column I reprinted a letter from a reader whose husband had died of chronic alcoholism. In spite of her travail while she lived with him, she stated that she loved him so much she would do it all over again. Here is a letter of disagreement:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Inasmuch as alcoholism has become a major social problem, I do not believe the letter of the alcoholic's wife in your recent column should go unanswered.

Even though either of the parties may be masochistic, there are the children to consider. They have a deprived upbringing. They grow up socially inadequate and emotionally sick. This causes the vicious cycle of alcoholism to continue generation after generation, hurting and destroying many innocent people.

There is no person, weak or strong, who can build, fix and save as fast as the alcoholic can waste, break and destroy. The growing children wonder why the yard is full of weeds, the car is old, the house in a struggle. Every year the shambles. They never have decent clothes.

They don't get adequate dental care. Medical care is a equivalent in college education goes down the drain. Let us even assume that there is no financial problem, the environment is still emotionally traumatic.

The problem of alcoholism should be brought out into the open and coped with forcefully. The statistics on auto fatalities due to drunken driving are, very high. A large percentage of murders are committed under the influence of alcohol. Any judge will tell you that. Temperamentally-ill-husbands

At this point, only Al-Anon and Alateens are trying to help the victims. It is so characteristic of our apathetic society to show more compassion for the offender than for the offended.

* * *

For Mr. P.: It is true that there is little hayfever from plant ragweed in the southern tip of Florida. But better ask your allergist whether or not you should make a permanent move on that basis alone.

It's possible that you are also allergic to molds and dust. And remember that there are plants, grasses and trees in Florida, too.

I don't want to discourage you. Many hayfever and asthma patients feel better after moving to Florida. But it wouldn't be fair to you for me to say that change of location will surely solve your hayfever problem.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What are the symptoms of diabetes? Will this disease cause internal trembling? — Mr. F.

COMMENT: The typical symptoms we are taught in medical school are polyuria (increased urination), polydipsia (increased thirst) and polyphagia (excessive appetite).

But often these symptoms do not appear until diabetes mellitus is already well established. Sometimes diabetics have no symptoms at all for months or years. Therefore, better let your doctor make the diagnosis by taking a blood sugar tolerance test.

As for the "internal trembling," this is sometimes associated with low blood sugar (as in hypoglycemia) rather than with the high blood sugar found in diabetes.

Hospital Care Advised

TORONTO (CP) — Police should take victims of severe motor vehicle accidents to hospital as quickly as possible and before laying any charges that might arise from the accident, a coroner's jury recommended Tuesday.

The jury was investigating the death of Ernest Young, 55, of Oshawa, who collapsed in a Toronto police station and later died in hospital after his car collided with a hydro pole March 21.

Police Constables Dowling, Campos and Mr. Young were conscious, walking and apparently unhurt when he arrived at the accident scene.

Cause of death was internal bleeding.

BETTER YEAR

The Thai government reports 10 per cent more tourists in Bangkok that last year, 1970 than in 1969.

Canadian Homes Sold in Hawaii

HONOLULU, Hawaii (CP) — Factory-built homes designed in Canada are finding a ready acceptance in housing-short Hawaii.

A $3 million factory opened early this year is turning out the units and although the first ones still haven't been erected on their foundations, sales are good.

Alcan-LSI Hawaiian Homes is a joint venture of Alcan Design Homes Ltd., subsidiary of Alcan Aluminum Ltd., and Lear Siegler Inc. of the United States.

In full production, the plant will turn out about five completed homes a day, or about 1,000 a year. If necessary, this could be increased to 2,000 units with a double shift.

The first units now in production are town houses in two- and three-bedroom designs which will be installed on a wind-cooled ridge overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Prices range from $16,000 to $20,000 depending on size, location and number of rooms. The price includes carpets and seven appliances and compares favorably with other housing on the island.

Alcan and LSI are joint partners. Alcan built the plant and is responsible for its operation, LSI provides the sites and handles sales.

Lear Siegler, of Santa Monica, Calif., started looking at the Hawaiian housing market in 1969 after it acquired another company which gave it access to large parcels of land. Housing costs were high, so LSI wanted a method of low-cost production.

In Canada, meanwhile, Alcan Design Homes Ltd., the homebuilding arm of Alcan Aluminum Ltd., was looking into the same problem. Already a large builder with a modular housing factory in Ontario, the company was looking for possible expansion into Europe, the Far East and the United States.

The two wound up as joint partners in the Hawaiian venture.

Philippa Faulkner Receives Cultural Award

By SUSAN KORAH
Staff Reporter

Mrs. Philippa Faulkner, a Belleville - born artist who, has collected many tokens of recognition in the course of her distinguished career, will receive one more honor on April 21 during the Belleville choral society concert at Centennial Secondary School.

Her native city will pay tribute to her for her outstanding contributions in the field of art by presenting her with its second cultural award, in the form of a cheque for $100 and a walnut plaque specially prepared for the occasion by Ron Vandervelde.

The award, instituted by the city of Belleville as a means of recognizing a native or current resident of the city for meritorious contributions in any cultural field, has had only one previous recipient, Mrs. Marion Wilson who carried away the prize in 1969 for her achievement in literature.

The awards committee that performed the task of choosing the winner this year consisted of Mrs. Wilma Summers, Murray Irwin, Lee Jourard, Mrs. Allison Sickle and Mrs. Robin Jeffrey. The presentation will be made by Dr. J. Russell Scott, Mayor of Belleville and by Lee Jouard of CJBQ.

PHILIPPA FAULKNER

To Mrs. Faulkner, whose achievements have been recognized on a national and international level, winning awards is no novel experience. However, she says that she was taken completely by surprise when she received news of the forthcoming honor. "I feel very humble about it", she commented and added that the artist's work is a lonely one and she is grateful for the recognition if it means that her work has brought pleasure to anyone.

Besides painting in oils, water colors and acrylics Mrs. Faulkner does bronze, clay and welded sculptures, lithography and batik work as well as silver jewellery designing.

Most of her work is influenced by nature, she says and such fragments of the universe as the texture of rocks and the formations of clouds give her ideas for abstracts. She loves market scenes and finds something particularly appealing in people who grow things with their own hands and sell them in the open air. Her face lights up with enthusiasm when she speaks of Mexico, a country where she felt very much at home as an artist. Varying moods of the weather and global events and conditions such as war, destruction, pollution and space exploration are further influences on her work.

Mrs. Faulkner's career began as soon as she graduated from Bishop Strachan School, Toronto where she was senior art prize. Next, she graduated from Parson's New York school of advertising and design and worked in the display departments of Eaton's and Simpson's, Toronto.

Having studied painting in New York and Provincetown, Massachussetts with Hans Hoffman, one of the greatest teachers of abstract art in the U.S. she spent several winters painting in Mexico and in the Caribbean.

Mexico seemed to respond to her the same way as she did to the country. Not only did she reap a rich harvest of prizes there including a three - year scholarship at the Instituto Allende at San Miguel in 1957, the first prize at the annual show at the same institute juried by Carlos Meridos in 1960 and a Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of Guanjuato, but Mexican art critics also showered her with praise for her fine treatment of local subjects.

At the national level, she achieved recognition on many occasions including her one-man show at the upstairs gallery in Toronto and by getting elected to the Color and Form Society, and the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Color. One of her paintings "Napoleon's Pockets" was displayed at Expo '67 in Montreal. She is recognized as one of Canada's top 100 professional painters. Her works can be viewed in innumerable art galleries and private collections including some in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, London, Kitchener, Barbados and Mexico.

On the provincial level, her achievements include winning the first prize in an Eastern Ontario exhibition in 1965 and being elected to the Ontario Society of Artists.

Here in Belleville, her paintings adorn the walls of many homes and business offices including those of Wilson Concrete Co., Allied Chemicals, The Intelligencer and CJBQ.

Asked about her plans for the future, Mrs. Faulkner replied that she hopes to settle in Toronto so that she can exhibit her work more frequently and can conveniently attend meetings of the societies of which she is a member.

Girls in Militia Suggested by Council

Why can't girls be included in the federal government summer militia training program?

This was the question asked by Coun. Alderman Robin Jeffrey yesterday as council approved a motion from its resolutions committee calling on the federal government to increase the numbers involved in the program.

An amendment to the motion that girls be included in the program was approved and passed along with the original motion.

"Maybe the inclusion of girls in the program would encourage participation by the boys," commented Mayor J. Russell Scott.

Saplings to Replace Front Road Trees

The long planned reconstruction of Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton to four lanes could commence some time next year.

This was the indication today from Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter who said that cutting of trees over the right of way widening was now under way.

Following the completion of tree cutting operations, a contract will be let to move roadside utility poles, a project which is expected to take from six to eight months.

After the poles are moved the department of highways will call tenders for the road construction in December or early next year.

"I hate to see the trees come down," Dr. Potter said in reference to the current tree cutting operation, "but it is necessary for the road widening program.

But the Belleville - Trenton road will not always have the present denuded look.

Dr. Potter said the department of lands and forests was expanding its tree planting program and would try to replace the cut trees with young saplings.

"It will take a few years before they grow to any size, but at least the cut trees will be replaced," said Dr. Potter.

Break-ins Continue

City police have registered concern over the recent rash of break-ins, noticeably increased over the Easter weekend.

These break-ins "look like the actions of young people," said Belleville Police Chief Douglas D. Crosbie.

Although nothing was missing from Queen Victoria School, the building was entered last night. Culprits apparently slipped the lock on a door to gain entry.

Broken windows at St. Michael's School on Church St. provided another in the series of similar incidents over the past two weeks.

A return engagement at Centennial Secondary School Monday night resulted in more ice cream smeared on school windows, similar to an incident discovered Saturday. Monday night's entry was through a smashed window.

"Entered in similar fashion," said Chief Crosbie, was Sir John A. Macdonald public school. Nothing was reported taken from the premises Monday night.

And a thief or thieves with a sweet tooth walked off with a quantity of candy and potato chips removed from the Orange Hall on Church Street. A window was forced in this incident.

Schools especially have come under attack from vandals and thieves who have left a trail of broken windows and damaged classrooms.

Girls Take Two Routes

They took different routes, but the OSD Grade 8 and Harmony Grade 7 girls' basketball teams reached similar destinations Tuesday.

The Ontario School for the Deaf girls swept through four undefeated games to take first place honors in an eight-team Grade 8 hoop tournament at Quinte Secondary School.

OSD won games with Harmony, Trenton's Broadher, Queen Alexandra, and Breadner again in the final. Teams representing Belleville elementary schools Harry J. Clarke, St. Michael's, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and King George also participated in the tournament.

The same schools staged a Grade 7 tournament, which was won by Harmony.

The winners downed Breadner and King George before suffering a close to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, but a win against St. Mike's in the loser's bracket gained the Harmony girls a berth in the final against Sir Mackenzie, whom they defeated to take the championship.

Sydney J. Harris Says

No Dalmatians In Dalmatia

In France, there is nothing that goes by the name of French fried potatoes. No Frenchbeans. No French dressing. No French windows. And no orchestra, however darge, contains a French horn.

In Germany, nobody ever has German measles. The Danish pastry is unknown in Denmark. There are no Dalmatian dogs in Dalmatia. I could go on but you get the point. What we call "French" and so forth go by entirely different names in those countries, and are not particularly identified with those countries.

French beans, for instance, are simply "green peas." In a "porte-fenfre," A "Frenchhorn is a "cor d'harmonie." And in Germany, German measles are merely "die Rotkin," or rubella.

Certain things become associated with specific countries and are forever more inseparable. We think of the Jinrikisha as quintessentially Japanese, but it was invented by an American missionary. Chop suey was wholly unknown in China until it was introduced by Western restaurateurs. And Irish stew, I am reliably informed, was never indigenous to Ireland.

These are just peculiarities, of no consequence in themselves except that they point to more important associations that we make all the time, and with just as little justification. We not only associate products with specific countries, but personal traits as well.

We look upon the French as a "romantic" people, which is as absurd as their view of the English as "cold." We find Orientals "inscrutable," simply because their mode of emotional affect is different from ours. We look upon the dark brooding "Russian soul" with some awe and fear; but, as a famous German scholar once observed, the Russian soul is the most superficial of all German philosophers.

Cultures do have differences of course; no one would ever mistake an effusive Italian for a taciturn Scotsman. But such differences are far more superficial than we imagine they are like differences accents blurring the fact that they all speak the same basic language.

As a living laboratory in anthropology, it is fascinating to see how a new strain, like Israel has, in a generation or so, confounded the whole stereotype of the "Jew" as known in Western society. For the Israeli seems more like a Swede than a Jew, even physically. Leopards can change their spots when the spots have only been painted on by others.

TEL AVIV (AP) — Construction on a $5 million, 181-bed hotel on the shores of the Dead Sea is scheduled to begin soon.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 15

Your Guiding Star today: What seems to be a normal year's growth works up instead of down, so that you are storedily more active and into more critical situations as you go along. Do not divide your main effort among too many specialties.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The same old questions and issues come back again and again. Skip giving the same old answers; learn something new.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take the most burdensome task first; dispose of it, then drift through the day with the tidying up chores.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Find out more about what's going on and who's planning it before you start shouting about what you are going to do.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You can have all the fun in the world as long as you realize that you will eventually pay for it somehow, somewhere.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Much that you hear is incorrect, some of it out of context. You owe it to your friends to reject criticism until you know all sides of the story.

VIRGO (Aug 23 — Sept. 22): Free advice doesn't have the necessary competence or wisdom behind it. Do your own thinking without making a fuss.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Have your facts and figures straight and on record. The season for manoeuvre is over for the moment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): It may be time now for some straightening of lapse. Records are to be filed, limiting points established.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Questions deserve a simple, direct answer, but no elaboration once you've laid the facts on the line.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You now have relief from material concerns, old debts. Give the day a holiday spirit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Alert, you learn of some unsuspected merit in your possessions. Make better use of them, now that you've seen the idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Paying attention to advice only is going quite on schedule, so make a picnic of the day's complexities.

Kingston Convicts Hold Six Hostages

Ian Robertson

CITY FIRE DEPARTMENT Inspector Paul Stephenson this morning made a cursory examination in the fire-gutted room of a Baldwin Street residence several feet from where the body of Mrs. Martha Allison, 61, was found. Mrs. Allison apparently died of smoke asphyxiation during the pre-dawn blaze.

Mrs. Martha Eleanor Allison Dies

Smoke Proves Fatal In Apartment Fire

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Tragedy struck in the pre-dawn hours today when fire swept through an upstairs apartment at 47 Baldwin Street, leaving Mrs. Martha Eleanor Allison, a 61-year-old tenant, dead from smoke inhalation.

Mrs. Allison's body was found inches from her bed, in a pool of ashy water.

According to Fire Chief Leo Culhane, the blaze was reported at 4:39 a.m. by a man on his way to work. "All the doors were locked and smoke was pouring out of every place you could think of — the eaves, windows, the doors; everyplace," he said.

The fire, contained in the woman's apartment, was brought under control within a half hour of the arrival of three fire-fighting units and seven men. Cursory investigation revealed a completely destroyed armchair, a melted television set, extensive damage to the walls, floor and ceiling, but no flame damage in the bedroom.

Chief Culhane emphasized, "she got caught in the smoke; she didn't burn."

Described this morning by one neighbor as a person "you couldn't get very close to," Mrs. Allison lived completely alone in the top portion of the home owned by Reg Fox of RR 1, Shannonville.

Discovered in the ruins of the fire, were numerous bottles of beer, scattered prescription medicines and a supply of home-made cigarettes, the rolling machine lying open on the kitchen table. A few scattered dishes and two apples baked by the heat of the fire, still lay on the counter. As Belleville Fire Department Inspector Paul Stephenson sifted through the remains, for a hint as to the cause of the tragedy, Chief Culhane spied the apples. "My God, that must have been hot," he said.

Chop Fingers If Shots Fired

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canada's largest prison was in a state of siege today as 500 rampaging prisoners took control of the main cell block at Kingston penitentiary and threatened to maim six guards held hostage.

A spokesman for the prisoners warned penitentiary officials this morning that if any more shots were fired by guards circling the cross-shaped main block, a finger would be cut off a hostage for each shot.

The prisoners also demanded "the guns be pulled back to the walls."

The riot started at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday night and John Moloney, regional director of penitentiaries, said two shots were fired early in the affair.

By 9 a.m. today, this was the picture:

—More than 500 prisoners had control of most of the cell blocks and the recreation hall of the maximum-security institution.

—The prisoners held hostage six guards. Nine were originally seized Wednesday night, but three were released early this morning for unspecified reasons.

—The prisoners have not made public their demands, but it is known they have prepared a list of 10 prominent Canadians they want to hear their complaints.

Included in the list, according to one source, was T. C. Douglas, federal leader of the New Democratic Party. Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto High Park, and Mr. Justice E. P. Hartt of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Hartt is on leave of absence from the supreme court and undertaking a major rewrite of the Criminal Code.

Others on the list were Mr. Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada; Alan Borovoy, executive director of the Canadian Civil Liberties Union, and Toronto Telegram columnist Ron Haggart.

At a 7 a.m. news conference, Mr. Moloney said he and Warden Arthur Jarvis had talked with one or two of the prisoners.

Mr. Moloney said two shots had been fired early in the affair, which began about 10:30 p.m. He said the prisoners "tried to break into the kitchen and we fired one shot through the top of the door where we knew damn well it wouldn't hit anybody, and another into the air to stop them."

"If they had got into the kitchen, they would have had access to the yard. We had to keep them out of the yard.

"Now they say we're threatening them with guns and they say any more shots and they would do something. They didn't specify what."

Asked if the hostages had been threatened, he said: "I guess you could say they had."

Mr. Moloney said he didn't think the uprising had been planned because "the staff usually is informed," and there was no prior indication the incident would arise.

A meeting has been called for 10:30 a.m. today between the prisoners and a group of reporters.

Heart Research Group Is Suing Auto Companies

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A heart research organization filed a $675 trillion lawsuit against four major auto manufacturers Wednesday charging that they deliberately refused to begin anti-pollution programs.

The action was brought in Manhattan federal court by the Heart Disease Research Foundation against General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and American Motors.

The suit charged that "in order to increase their profits" the defendants chose deliberately to refuse to "embark upon significant pollution reduction programs" and said that they will be unable to meet present government standards within the next five years.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A prominent Roman Catholic pastor, Rev. Robert F. Duryea, has been excommunicated and removed from his post after church authorities discovered he has been married for nearly seven years and has a five-year-old son, Paul, named for the present Pope.

'He's suffering from shock. We'll confirm the have given him the bill'

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon's latest moves to improve contacts with Peking were assured of broad public backing today, with key congressmen agreeing it was time to bury the hatchet after 20 years of mistrust and hostility in Sino-American relations.

The president received enthusiastic support for his announcement Wednesday of a significant relaxation in the U.S. embargo on direct trade with China, part of a five-point plan to encourage more normal ties between Washington and Peking.

The new program was disclosed as beaming Chinese were giving warm hospitality to a visiting American table tennis team and accompanying reporters.

Nixon appeared to have brought off a diplomatic coup by taking meaningful steps to soften the U.S. boycott of China without provoking any resurgence of the wrath and bitterness which marked the American political scene for two decades after the Communists defeated the U.S.-supported nationalists in the Chinese civil war in 1949.

Nixon's ability to move ahead with his new China policy was attributed to the virtual disappearance of the powerful China lobby, which was ready to cry "treason" at the slightest suggestion of an accommodation with Peking in the 1950s and 1960s.

The president, who earlier had cancelled restrictions on visits by Americans to China and approved a start in indirect U.S. trade relations with Peking, announced that he would soon approve a list of non-strategic goods which U.S. businessmen could export directly there.

Administration officials were unable to predict what items President Nixon would approve for direct export, although they thought they might include wheat.

Nixon also relaxed U.S. currency controls to permit the use of dollars by China, and said Washington was prepared to expedite entry visas for visitors from China.

Two other moves would end restrictions on U.S. oil companies providing fuel to ships or aircraft proceeding to and from China—except for carriers bound to or from North Vietnam, North Korea or Cuba—and permit U.S. vessels or planes to carry Chinese cargoes between non-Chinese ports.

Fewer Jobs for Young

Labor Force Size Cut, Reducing Jobless Total

OTTAWA (CP) — An unusual shift in the manpower situation resulted in a decline in unemployment last month to 650,000 from 675,000 in February.

A joint report by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the jobless total was 7.8 per cent of the labor force last month, compared with 8.1 per cent in February.

The mid March report showed a sharp drop in the total labor force, unusual for this time of year. It was mainly the result of 29,000 younger workers, aged 14 to 24, apparently being laid off, quitting, giving up the search for jobs, or being absorbed into job retraining programs.

There were 8,335,000 workers in the labor force at mid March, showing a drop from 8,432,000 in February. A year ago, the March labor force was 8,067,000, the number of jobless 542,000, and the unemployment rate 6.7 per cent.

While employment in the service industries contracted last month, though it usually grows in March, there were substantial increases in employment in construction and agriculture. There were also more jobs for women, but fewer jobs for young people.

While unemployment declined by 25,000 between February and March, only 9,000 more jobs were reported. There was a 16,000 decline in the labor force, indicating large numbers of workers left the labor force discouraged with job hunting or for other reasons.

Ruling out the seasonal factors that usually affect employment and unemployment in March, the report said the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment declined last month to 6.8 per cent of the labor force from 6.2 per cent in February. It had reached 6.6 per cent in December and 6.9 per cent—its recent peak—last September.

The seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment is the one that economists regard as a better indication of the underlying employment trend and its reflection of economic conditions.

But unadjusted figures gave this picture, with estimates in thousands:

	Mar.	Feb.	Mar. 1970
Labor force	8,335	8,432	8,067
Employed	7,685	7,677	7,525
Unemployed	650	675	542

Regionally, the actual unemployment rate improved everywhere except on the Prairies, where it rose fractionally to 5.9 per cent of the labor force from 5.8 per cent in February. The rate was down to 10.9 per cent from 11.0 in the Atlantic provinces, down to 10.1 from 10.4 per cent in Quebec, down to 6.1 from 8.5 per cent in Ontario, and down to 8.3 from 8.7 per cent in British Columbia.

On the seasonally-adjusted basis, however, the deterioration was more marked on the Prairies, and British Columbia had higher unemployment. These rates were unchanged at 7.3 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, down to 7.8 from 8.2 per cent in Quebec, down to 4.9 from 5.2 in Ontario, up to 4.4 from 4.1 in the Prairies, and up to 7.7 from 7.0 in British Columbia.

India Charges Pakistan Fires Across Border

NEW DELHI (CP) — The Indian government accused the Pakistani army today of "unprovoked firing" into Indian territory along the border with East Pakistan.

A protest note sent to the Pakistani high commission said "Indian nationals have been injured" by the firing. A spokesman said "there have been at least three cases" but no fatalities. The note said that Pakistani armed forces since April 7 have been concentrating opposite the remote Indian state of Tripura in the area bordering the Comilla district of East Pakistan.

The note said these Pakistani army units were "resorting to unprovoked and heavy firing and adopting threatening postures along our border."

A foreign ministry spokesman said that the note was in effect a "warning to Pakistan not to provoke anything on the border."

Meanwhile, Pakistan radio said the Pakistan government rejected an Indian note alleging the kidnapping of three Sepoys of its border security forces by the Pakistan army April 9.

Radio Pakistan also said law and order in East Pakistan has improved with the army having cleared a vast area of miscreants and Indian infiltrators.

All-India radio said that followers of East Pakistani leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman had successfully halted the advance of West Pakistani troops trying to open up the route to Dacca, the eastern capital.

There was no confirmation of this report from official sources in Pakistan.

Press Trust of India news agency announced that two emissaries of the newly-declared government of the Bangla Desh (Bengali nation) movement flew to Europe today to seek recognition of their self-proclaimed independent republic.

Ontario Interested in Electronics — Davis

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The government of Ontario will become much more involved in the telecommunications field, Premier William Davis intimated Wednesday at the opening of the Canada Technical Training School at the Four Seasons Hotel.

"Ontario recognizes the potential of this mode of communication, and without entering into dialogue with the federal authorities, has policies that recognize that potential," he said.

Mr. Davis said he was pleased to note that the Bell training centre was one educational institution that had come into being without government grants and assistance.

At the close of the ceremonies, witnessed by about 75 invited guests, Bell Canada officials presented the premier with a DUMB (Doctor of Usage of Memory Banks). It entitles him, among other things, to climb any telephone pole in the province without hindrance.

Present at the opening ceremonies were Bell Canada president Robert C. Scrivener, Ontario minister without portfolio, Dr. R. T. Potter, Hastings MP Lee Grills and three vice-presidents of Bell Canada: J. A. McCutcheon, J. F. Stinson and J. C. Thackray.

The centre, credited by Four Seasons management with being the factor that brought the hotel to 80-per-cent occupies one wing of the 3-million building on the Bay of Quinte.

A unique institution, it serves the world, drawing students from all parts of the globe for advanced training in telecommunications.

Mr. Davis shared the opening with a computer — and almost blew the ceremony.

The opening was a complicated technical manoeuvre that saw Mr. Thackray, and then Mr. Davis, talk to the computer in Montreal from the keyboard of a terminal set up at the Four Seasons.

Mr. Davis good-naturedly chided Mr. Thackray about his one fingered attack on the keyboard, saying that he could type with two fingers. But when it came his turn to reply "yes" to a question from the computer, the premier typed "yeus" and threw the computer into confusion. Quick thinking by D. M. Hinton, supervisor of engineering training and terminal operator for the day, got the computer back into the swing of things. Mr. Davis dialed a number and received computerized instructions to declare the centre officially open.

When operating at full capacity, the centre will train about 5,000 students a year.

Purpose of the centre is to ensure a continuing high calibre of company management personnel. Bell has about 9,131 people at management level who have to be retrained several times during their working careers. It is also becoming mandatory, the company says, for about 3,500 technical and engineering employees to take courses in Belleville at least once every two or three years.

The students live at the hotel during their courses, and receive instruction in classroom and laboratories set up in the east wing of the Four Seasons building.

Recorded Vote Approves North Front Widening

At Monday's meeting of council, street widening plans with installation of medians restricting left turns were approved by a 5-2 recorded vote. Ald. Donald Soutter and Ald. Jeffrey cast opposing votes.

With two minor compromises plans finally approved by council are essentially the same as were objected to by area business people at a meeting last week.

The compromises were the shortening of the North Front Street median to allow a southbound turn into the north entrance at the Spar gasoline station, and reducing of the median on East Bell Blvd. to little more than an island, thus allowing turns from Bell Blvd. into the Bon Supertest Station at the front of the building rather than at the side of the premises.

At the previous meeting both service stations said the planned median would cut them off from a large percentage of their business.

The change in the proposed median in front of Elliott Motors was made, and the north of Bell Blvd will remain solid.

Street widening plans for the North Front Street - Bell Boulevard area have finally been approved by city council — but not before an assertion by one alderman that somewhere along the line council must have been stupid.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey made the comment in reference to a decision approving entrances and exits to the new Shell service station now under construction at the above intersection.

Ald. Jeffrey felt that the four entrances and exits so close to the corner could only result in accidents.

In fact the alderman didn't recall council okaying the plans.

"If council did such a stupid thing then we must be stupid," she said.

Other councillors, however, assured that plans for the Shell station entrances had been approved by council.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the entrances and exits for the Shell station were standard.

Birth Control Advocated as Salvation

PICTON (Staff)—A world-wide birth control program could represent man's solution to "his overcrowded planet" which is threatening future shortages of food and raw materials. Dr. John Coleman, a research scientist at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station, last night reminded members of the Picton Liberal Association that the balance of birth and death is any normal animal population creates a zero increase. "We exist here and think it's perfectly normal for the human population is rocket," observed the ecologist. Dr. Coleman was addressing the annual meeting of the Picton Liberal Association held last night in Queen Elizabeth school auditorium.

The speaker noted that modern medicine has increased man's longevity by eliminating a number of once-fatal diseases. "Every disease we beat takes us a little closer to the breakdown of our bodies from simple old age," he added. Dr. Coleman explained that in prehistoric times man's life span was estimated at less than 20 years. In the days of the Roman Empire, citizens usually lived to be 25 years of age while in the Middle Ages many lived to age 30. Man's life span in the United States in the early 1900s was approximately 30 years. Today it is estimated at 80 years.

"We came from a wandering hunting stock, which later turned to a farming people then medicine struck a final blow by reducing the death rate," said Dr. Coleman. He predicted the world's population will double, within a 37-year period during which food production, school facilities and other services must also be doubled. The demand for some raw materials is expected to double in nine years. "The future is temporarily very bright," stated Dr. Coleman adding that raw materials are still in the ground.

Exhaustion of these raw materials remains a real possibility, however, according to the ecologist. He referred to timber as "Canada's number one industry" but cautioned that ultimately its maximum sustained yield will be met. Although man can introduce improved planting methods and other scientific advances "better than nature", one day he will encounter a limit and some persons will be forced to turn to industries in the cities. There is, for this reason, a need for industry to increase.

Dr. Coleman discussed underprivileged nations receiving Canadian assistance and questioned their future.

"If we can't adequately look after our own underprivileged people there is not a very bright future for them; underprivileged nations will be affected in the same way," he commented. Dr., Coleman explained that as their populations grow so will their demands and, if Canada's population increases at a similar rate, she will be unable to sell wheat to other nations.

He added that if external aid programs experience difficulty in coping with today's demands there will be greater problems in the future as the demands of increased populations.

Dr. Coleman suggested that two points of view might be taken concerning assistance to the underprivileged. He described the first as a "moralistic, philanthropic one", stemming from compassion. This stand would be reinforced by willingness to assist in pollution control and social reform.

The second point of view was termed "selfish" and is based on a "look after ourselves" outlook. Dr. Coleman suggested that assistance offered with this view would be designed to influence other nations from beginning to look overseas. "We know there are no more North Americas and we can't ship people to the planets," he asserted.

Dr. Coleman felt that a world-wide birth control plan might be effectively established in 20 years time. Since 40 per cent of the world's population is now under 15 years of age the present "world" be slow and would involve education. He described the birth control scheme as "a battle to do something with the forces that exist in sight. Someone is needed to take the lead," he urged.

Speaker concluded briefly on pollution and remarked that it concerns everyone. He felt citizens are welcoming pollution control and the Ontario Water Resources Commission's stand on phosphate controls.

Parking Authority Trying To Obtain More Property

The city parking authority is looking toward the provision of more off-street parking space this year.

Authority chairman Mrs. Kay Mandeville confirmed today that the authority was looking at additional property but declined to state the location until prices were established.

"We hope to have the additional parking space available this year," she said.

The city parking authority reports a healthy surplus on last year's operation as shown in the 1970 financial statement.

Revenue for the year totalled $91,848 — more than $15,000 above the estimate—while expenditures amounted to $74,384. The surplus at the year end was given as $17,-383.

Street meter revenue totalled $47,794; parking lot revenue was given as $20,136 with supervised parking lot revenue of $10,663. The authority receives a share of parking meter fines which last year totalled $7,466.

On the expenditure side debenture charges on the authority's capital debt totalled $18,-257; maintenance of parking lots cost $5,302; salaries and benefits $26,300 and municipal taxes $11,496.

The authority has capital assets of $418,078, including $355,516 in land and $76,550 in equipment.

William Memlles, president of the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association observed that "the last three miles" of the highway connecting Picton with Wellington are being paved. "There must be an election in the offing," he remarked. Construction along this highway has been underway for many months and is now in its final stages.

Swinging Finale

The cast of Move It! begins its final, hip-swingng move, off the stage and through the aisle of the packed auditorium at the conclusion of their variety entertainment program on Wednesday night at Centennial Secondary School. More than 100 young people from the Quinte area were involved in this youth talent production which launched Artsfest 71 sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council.

Standing Ovation Is Tribute To Move It! Talent Showcase

By SUSAN KORAH
Staff Reporter

Artsfest "71 got off to a swinging start on Wednesday evening at Centennial Secondary School auditorium where a whole constellation of potential entertainment stars danced, sang, played instruments and recited poetry, moving the audience to rise spontaneously to its feet to give them a standing ovation.

Playing to a near-capacity crowd, the Move It! cast spanned the generation gap at least temporarily with a whole spectrum of acts ranging from haunting folk ballads to exciting acid rock.

A multi-faceted portrait of youth, Move It! was an expression of the exuberance, energy, happiness and heartaches of those wonderful years between 13 and 20.

Emceed by CJBQs disc jockey Darrell D., Move It! moved with the rapidity and continuity of a television program, with one act sliding into the next with hardly a visible break.

Judges Len. Casey, chief of operations of Ontario Place (an entertainment complex soon to open near the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, Toronto); James Colbeck, General Manager, Ontario Youth Theatre and Jerry Lodge, president of the Talent Agents of Canada, emphasized that they were impressed with the variety of talent displayed and by the professional quality of the whole production.

Prizes for individual acts went to the following: The Intelligencer Award of $100 was won by the Belle Airs, a country and Western group, consisting of Judy Johnston (bass guitar), Robert Perry (drums) and Ken Stapley (lead guitar).

The Mrs. Hugh Murray award of $50 was shared by dancer-choreographer, Lorne Loveless and actor Milton McCrystal.

Sam the Record Man of Belleville award of $25 was won by Mark Metus for his accordion solo.

Each winner was given a bonus award of 15 minutes paid radio time by CJBQ. All the winners (except Lorne Loveless whose dancing is hardly audible!) can be heard on CJBQ on Friday, April 16 at 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m.

The backdrop was a modern stage set designed by director-producer Roy Higgins, created out of such modern materials as metallized cardpan, nylon film and crushed plastic. It was suggestive of the concrete-and-glass structures that dominate the contemporary landscape. The effects were heightened by neon lights, black light and spotlights that flashed on and off.

Music, particularly the Move It! theme composed by Ron Blosse and sung by the group Loftmencha, together with the Lorne Loveless dancers and Darrell D's comments formed the chain that strung the various acts together.

Also featured were the group, Jazz country and western numbers, piano rock and a wide range and variety of instruments including piano, guitars and accordion were featured. Besides dancing there was comedy, drama and a choreographed gymnastic routine.

The Moira Folksingers were accompanied by an instrumental group, The Bad Guys. Dick Smith gave a hilarious series of voice Impersonations of famous people such as Tiny Tim and Hubert Humphrey.

Feelings, a harmonious blend of poetry and folk songs by Marie Bezin, Milton McCrystal, Colin Bruce and Marlene Cass expressed thoughts of modern youth on various subjects such as childhood, love and sadness.

An acrobatic routine was performed by the High Spirits, a piano rock number by Steve Cuhaj, a comic monologue by Pat Green, The Shelagh Dancers singing some Donavan numbers while Bill the Lizard, together with the Lorne Lovelens dancers backed by special lights that created a mirage effect, transported the audience to a heady, psychedelic world of high-voltage excitement.

Other performers were Tigger and Miss, the Panic Session Blues group Lynn Grenke and Rob Tomple (folk ballad), Rwenda and Stephen Wilson (country sound) Robert Dafoe (vocalist), and Pat Donavan (folk singer).

Original folk compositions by Richard Grills, Lisbeth Christenson and David McBride were featured. Choreographer Lorne Lovelens did a sword dance with virile grace and fiery abandon.

Ending with a bang, the whole cast danced down the aisle of the auditorium to the strains of the theme song, "Fantastic". "A tremendous show" and "a great production" were some of the comments picked up from the audience at random.

Roy Higgins received praise was first-rate." said Jerry longest applause for his contributions as director, producer and set designer. "A very professionally presented show" was James Colbeck's comment. "The organization Lodge, "I hope this becomes an annual event."

The next two events connected with Artsfest '71 are the visual arts display which opens April 21 and the Choral Society concert the same evening.

Mrs. M. E. Allison Killed by Smoke

It was not known if Mrs. Allison had attempted to "reak her way out of the se, but the aluminum win- y by her bed would have proved impossible for her to smash. "She wouldn't have had the strength to knock the glass out of the window," commented the chief, as he pointed the spot where she was discovered.

Mr. Fox, who was called in from Shannonville this morning, said "She was here when I bought the house about a year ago and I knew very little about her."

Mrs. Allison's neighbor, who commented on the recluse-like life of the old lady, said, "She told me she had a husband somewhere in the States and I think she has a brother in Deseronto, but I'm not sure."

Mr. Fox told Chief Culhane the home was insured and commented later he is sure the house is a complete loss. Although the fire was limited to the top storey, a charred hole had eaten through the floor boards near the remnants of Mrs. Allison's armchair, smoke completely saturating the vacant bottom portion of the building.

With the body removed shortly before 7 a.m., a quick check of the Baldwin Street house followed. However, the building was sealed by members of the fire department for a complete joint investigation by Ontario Fire Marshal Investigator Paul McKerracher and Belleville Fire Department officers. Deputy Fire Chief Bob Emerson explained Investigations were mandatory in the case of a death.

Zwick's, Bushy Island Zoning Established

Existing commercial outlets situated on "Bushy Island" on Belleville's Zwick's Island waterfront will continue to operate as privately owned enterprises.

In other words the city has no thought of acquiring the property for inclusion in the Zwick's Island park.

Bushy Island, comprising slightly more than an acre in extent, is on the east side of the Bay Bridge Road and is currently the location of the Bay of Quinte Fisheries and one other commercial outlet.

Some months ago Jack Hunter, talk at parks board that the city might purchase the two properties for expansion of the park area but a decision against this move has now been made.

But just to keep the record straight, proper zoning designations have been given for East and West Zwick's Island where no zoning previously existed and Bushy Island has been re-zoned to F-1 (limited industrial).

The previous zoning for Bushy Island would have permitted almost any type of industrial or commercial enterprise.

Inclusion of East and West Zwick's Island in the city's official plan and the rezoning of Bushy Island was recommended by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and approved this week by council.

A Community's Needs

Picton needs more recreation facilities and the county at large more job opportunities. And a 17-year-old Prince Edward Collegiate student, Randy Morris, of Bloomfield, is seeking police permission for a weekend march to demonstrate these needs.

The idea has merit. It could focus attention on these matters, but let the young people show personal initiative too. There is no shortage of recreational possibilities, but instead of complaining that they do not exist, why not try clubbing together, raising funds and all the rest of it.

Where sport plays a big part in a nation's life, much more so than in Canada in the sense that there is more widespread participation — in Australia and New Zealand for example — much of it is the result of private effort in the establishment of clubs to get things going, and without recourse to the municipality other than in connection with land deals and the like. If the municipality wants to help, fine, but let there be private initiative as well. And of course in the countries mentioned it is not just the teenagers who participate, but adults as well.

If a protest march serves to get people interested, well and good, but beyond that it will take personal and group effort — that is, if they are really interested in recreation. And jobs, well that is even more pressing, and even more of a team effort, as the overall unemployment situation suggests.

One other thing, Mr. Morris says he is not in agreement with any plans by county municipal officials to prohibit rock festivals. Perhaps he would be interested in what occurred at an Easter rock festival in Los Angeles. Two persons were wounded by gunshots and 142 persons arrested Sunday when the festival turned into a melee or rock (the non-musical kind) and bottle throwing. More than 380 arrests, mostly for alleged narcotics and drinking violations, had been made since the Friday.

Up and Up

There was a note of resignation in PUC chairman Gerry O'Connor's comment, "we are powerless," in connection with the coming increase in utility rates resulting from the recent boost in the cost of Hydro power. But it is the same right down the economic line. Nothing stands still. least of all the cost-wages spiral. And the last word from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was that the consumer price Index rose another half a month with higher prices for food, clothing and housing. There is recurring talk (the latest from Consumer Affairs Minister Ronald Basford) on the subject of a price-wage freeze, but politically unpopular as this is, it is mentioned only by way of threat, as the ultimate weapon against inflation. However, that is all it is — talk and threat — and nothing is done, while inflation skips merrily along.

Housing Contrasts

Mayor Russell Scott acknowledges that mobile homes can be very convenient and attractive, but if they are to be allowed there should be a proper layout with standards for lot sizes, gardens and park areas. Yes indeed. but does Belleville's existing built-up area conform to such standards? How well do aldermen know the city? When did they last tour every nook and cranny of this community? Have they seen the poverty and neglect? The places which are light years away from our fine, last night's big hotel opening. Yes any mobile home project should be something of value for citizens, and one which has a due place in the city's overall plans. But let us not forget these other areas or the citizens who live there.

Going Bust?

The Pakistan government, situated in the western part of the fragmented country, seems to be making a better job of destroying people and property in the dissident eastern half than it did in effecting relief measures in the wake of the recent cyclone disaster. The relief poured in from abroad, including Canada, but as we recall the Pakistanis had little in the way of aircraft, equipment, or even relief supplies to bring succor to the survivors. Yet they have weapons and bomber aircraft aplenty with which they are decimating thousands of innocent civilians. As a result of the carnage and expulsion of refugees, Pakistan is said to be facing bankruptcy. If thisis so, the country has only itself to blame.

Commons Committee Work an Unproductive Grind

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There are 25 Committees of the House of Commons.

Largest are the External Affairs, the Defence and the Agriculture Committees each with 30 MP members.

Smallest is the Environmental Pollution Committee — ever hear of it until now? — with 12 MP members.

The average Commitee membership is 20 MPs, with 18 of them this size.

By simple arithmetic then — 20 times 25 — this makes 500 MPs, just a shade less than the Commons itself.

Which is to assume that all 264 MPs are on their parliamentary job every working Commons day of the sessional year.

And that is to assume the impossible, for it never has happened, a check of the records back for 30 years or more probably never will.

Not with constituency business back home requiring attention, family matters not to be overlooked, business and professional interests not to be let slide entirely, junkets on which to jet away, special Government assignments such as United Nations representation to be carried out, and the score of other calls on his time — public and private — that keeps even an attentive and fully committed MP away from Ottawa at least parts of the time.

Which gets all this around to the point — what does this multiplicity of Commons Committees ever really accomplish?

To be entirely practical, utterly realistic in hard terms of actual results — appearing in the ultimate parliamentary form of legislation — not a great deal.

How could much be done when the Committees sit routinely only Tuesday and Thursday, usually just in the mornings, with both MP manpower so short and accommodation for their hearings so restricted that they have to be railroaded?

The Committees — "take turns" at sessions — with simultaneous translation services for their sessions, one moving in when another moves out.

And the MPs, because no one can be in several Committees at the same time, stretch their thinned ranks down so close sometimes to the vanishing point, there seldom is a quorum, and sometimes so few—two or three — attending that holding a formal hearing, listening to witnesses and taking evidence becomes ridiculously impossible.

The best, then, that Commons Committees can hope to accomplish is no more than "influence" the direction of legislation, with its final determination being fixed, of course by the Government itself, especially when the administration wields the irresistible power of a heavy majority.

Most valuable of all the 25 Committees — at least the one that makes the most news and catches the taxpayer's eye—is the Public Accounts.

But Chairman Alf Hales has openly confessed that, in his four years of running Public Accounts, not once has this Committee succeeded in directly fixing under fire publishing a federal civil servant no matter how wildly outrageous has been the waste, extravagance, and loss of public funds through sloth, carelessness, irresponsibility, incompetence and even dishonesty resulting from his decisions and actions.

This Government, by deliberate design, has defused the power of Parliament by distributing the examination of federal spending — necessarily the 25 undermanned, over-worked, accommodation-starved, and staff squeezed Committees.

And that is what Parliament is really all about — taxing and spending.

So the Committees have taken the House of Commons best off the Government, and themselves have been unable to turn on much of their own.

Then to make the Committee process even more farcical, the Government — if any Committee shows signs of dragging its heels or getting out of administrative line — can guiple it. In fact has done so.

The big 30-member Agriculture Committee was moving too slowly for the Government's timing on the hotly controversial Farm Products Marketing Agencies Act.

The Conservatives have been fighting it because they are opposed to federal bureaucratic control of farm marketing. The New Democrats have been battling it because they support the policy.

For the Tories the bill goes too far, for the New Dems not far enough.

So the legislation was getting nowhere in Committee — and what is wrong with that. for is it not the job of the Opposition to oppose something, as vigorously as possible, when it objects to it?

But the Government, with its majority, of course has the big battalions, and has used them — in relays — to wear down the Opposition by sheer attrition of fatigue.

Sending in their troops — like hockey teams substitute players — they kept the Committee game going all night on the Agriculture Bill, from the afternoon through the evening and into the next morning until several o'clock. For the Liberals in what such "farm" MP specialists as lawyers, doctors, land developers, house builders, social workers and even former farmers.

They read, slept, played cards and practical jokes, ate and drank, and most of all killed time.

How is that for the Government's vaunted "Democracy in Action," as it calls it? And what price Committees!

Computer Dossiers Invade Privacy of the Citizen

Portland Oregonian

Privacy is a very precious thing and it is not appreciated until it has vanished, often without anyone really knowing how it happened or who is to blame. This is the situation with the computer whose awesome memory and speed are creating a revolution of exploding dimensions.

In old spy thrillers and films about the secret police and the midnight knock on the door there was always the ubiquitous dossier. The word itself has a finality about it, a sinister connotation that spelled doom for criminals and concentration camps for the innocent.

The new generation of computers will permit the gathering of scores of dossiers on each citizen, combining the information into a profile that can be used to predict the future out of bits and pieces of a man's life.

In today's complex society, the world of business and government must have records on its citizens if it is to function.

These records have long existed and the computer has only permitted them to be more detailed and instantly available. Most people really have very little to hide if they are given a chance to explain the facts of their financial, political and personal history.

But this is precisely where the mischief grows as records are centralized on computers. First, the machine itself is capable of monstrous mistakes even when given accurate information.

But the computer dossier often contains rumors and lies. And correcting a computer, once it has made up its mind, is difficult as any citizen who has sought to get a retail billing cleared up has discovered. Every citizen must have the right to inspect his own private and governmental dossiers. He must be able to learn what the records say, to what use they are intended, and he must be able to make corrections in a reasonable time without getting penalized.

Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, Italian immigrants, were arrested for the murder of two men in a robbery in Braintree, Mass., 51 years ago today—in 1920. They were convicted a year later and a series of motions for a review by a higher court was turned down. A worldwide wave of protest grew, claiming the men were victimized as immigrants or anarchists, until Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts appointed a review board, which found no ground for mercy or reprieve. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed Aug. 23, 1927.

Hamilton's Urban Renewal Issues Will Be Discussed At Public Meeting April 17

Hamilton Spectator

Hamilton urban renewal committee has called a public meeting April 17 at city hall—to review the forces shaping this city's future; and, necessarily, the role of urban renewal in it. It could be the most important meeting of its kind this year.

In the crush of immediate problems, civic decision-makers can easily lose sight of long-term causes and effects, the factors that decide whether a city will become a prosperous, progressive, pleasant place for people to live in — or a squalid shabby yard serving its suburbs.

It's a colossal task simply to run a city — to provide for a complex multitude of people, homes, cars, trucks, trains, ships, aircraft, factories, stores, offices and a monumental array of public services.

Running a city absorbs most of a municipal council's time and energy, leaving little enough for the consideration of unending demands for new housing, new jobs, new markets, new services, new commerce and industry.

The numbers — people, buildings, vehicles—grow constantly while a city's physical space remains the same, expanding a city beyond its own political borders into a ring of independent suburbs. Thus a city council can't control and plan for its city's growth — even if it had the time and inclination to make long-range plans.

The result has been the deterioration of city cores, the flight of city population to the financially - isolated suburbs and a to-blazes-with-the city attitude in many of those best qualified to salvage the cities.

Experts have made the long-range assessments that municipal politicans can't afford. One of those experts, N. H. Lithwick, author of a federal government report on Canada's urban future, will be among those at Hamilton's April 17 meeting.

People concerned about the region's future should be there too.

The Educational Maelstrom

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Apart from its staggering cost, the education scene continues to provide a never-ending stream of concepts of alternatives from the higher echelons of the expanding educational empires.

On the local scene, not so long ago, one school principal waxed enthusiastically on the theme that children went to school primarily to have their "minds stretched" not to prepare them for jobs in the harsh world of the employment jungle.

Now Dr. Frank Kelly who has recently completed a report on the prospects for scientists and engineers for the Science Council of Canada adds his words of wisdom. Dr. Kelly says that society must quickly redefine what education is for and make it clear that "it is not about jobs". Now that is telling it like it is. Dr. Kelly is entitled to his theories by going on record with "versatility and adaptability" as the key to the wisdom of jobs in the future. When I was at school in the 30s, under the help of Mr. Mathe or the New Approach) these same sentiments were expressed and up for our edification by our "old fashioned" teachers — who do not appear to have come far in the ensuing period, do we?

Another point Dr. Kelly advanced was that students feel society has let them down by failing to provide the challenging and well paid jobs which they had been led to believe would be available to them upon graduation. Perhaps he should examine the terms of reference of the multitude of new breed of educational demagogue, the guidance counsellor — both he, and the stream of concepts of change in curriculum must have some bearing on the situation.

Be of course, we all know that opportunities at the present time are dependent on an all-round improvement in the economic sphere, but just the same, if we are to hold our own with our rivals the world over we must be prepared to cater for our edifica-

Finally the news item on the Dr. Kelly report is enough to indicate the banality of our educational scene. A professor in the field of education tells students bring rolls of paper to school with them, then they were told to unwind, paint their buttons and sit on the paper.

According to this nitwit the whole procedure will be resulting imprints on the paper would introduce the students to "participation". Some participation so we suspended. I think I should have been committed.

The prisoners have also asked that four or five of a list of 10 outside people from across Canada meet with them to hear the prisoners' still unspecified complaints. The list of 10 was named by the prisoners but not released by Mr. Moloney.

Mr. Moloney said of the proposed meeting:

"Warden Jarvis and myself have been mentioned but they don't trust us. They also want press representatives. They don't haven't told us what beefs they have."

He said the prisoners have asked for food and medication. They have been given medication for those known to need it, "but we aren't giving them any food."

The prisoners were in control of the north, south, east and west wings of the main cell block as well as the recreation hall at the maximum security prison. About 100 prisoners in the east cell block and about 14 in dissociation cells remained under control of the guards. Guards had also secured the hospital and kitchen area.

The prison population is 658. It has a total capacity of about 800 making it the largest penitentiary in Canada. It is a grey stone building right in the City of Kingston on Lake Ontario. It has a total staff of 320 officers and guards.

The trouble began when the prisoners were being returned to their cells from the recreation hall. One of the officers saw a guard's hat on a hall floor, and immediately turned his group of about 60 prisoners back into the recreation hall and locked the door. The prisoners broke into the main cell block from there, breaking a hook and eye mechanism in the main block to release the other prisoners.

Mr. Moloney said:

"From there on there was nothing much we could do — just stand around and try to communicate with them. Now we're just keeping them in view."

He said that. Initially, "there was lots of noise going on, smashing glass and shelf in the dome." The dome is a central marshalling area in the middle of the main block.

"From what we could see when I was through about 4 a.m., the men didn't seem too excited. Most of them were just walking around or leaning against the railings of the dome. But they did smash into the chapels. We heard a lot of smashing of furniture from that area. We definitely know they're in the Protestant chapel, but we don't know about the Roman Catholic chapel."

The prisoners are not known to have firearms. There is a gun cage in the recreation hall, manned by an officer inside the cage. He is trapped there because, although the hall was empty by 7 a.m., the prisoners control access to it.

The three officers released were quoted by Mr. Moloney as saying they were "not harmed, not threatened, not touched."

"The fellows (prisoners) in the recreation hall didn't do anything. They just sort of camped there."

It was not known why the three were released.

"The fellows (prisoners) in the recreation hall didn't do anything. They just sort of camped there."

It was not known why the three were released.

Four of the prison was Maj. Edward Richmond, commander of a 36-man unit from Canadian Forces Base Barrifield, about three miles east of the prison.

The troops were being held on standby at the request of Warden Jarvis. It would be his decision whether to have the troops intervene, and whether they would be armed.

Aviation Hall Fund Grows

TRENTON (Staff) — The national fudn raising drive for the Hall of Aviation History to be built here has raised a total of $640,000, it was learned today.

A defence department spokesman said it was decided if construction of the proposed $3.6 million structure could be commenced in 1972 as had been planned.

Money, he explained, was coming in slowly with the condition of the economy being detrimental to many many businesses giving to the fund.

The present sum raised represents a supplement to the campaign purse of $150,000 in the last six months.

However, indications are that the fund will climb to above the $1 million mark this summer.

Successful Living

This Is A Good Case for Women's Liberation

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: On pay days my husband gives me his signed cheque to make payments and buy groceries. I have to account for every penny.

Our children are dressed nicely although he grumbles about the clothes he buys them. He thinks a pair of jeans should last a year. I'm steadily washing, mending and ironing.

After supper he goes to the chesterfield and there he stays for the evening, and he is yelling from 5:30 until the children go to bed at 8:00 for them to be quiet. At their age it is hard for them to play quietly. . .

If he has any job to do for himself, I have to be right there to help him, but if I ask him to do something he says, "Look, I worked all day." I have been borrowing my mother's iron for over a year now and he always says we can't afford to buy one. If he wants anything he goes right ahead and gets it whether we can afford it or not. — Unfair to Married Life

Dear Unfair: You could make a good case for Women's Lib. Your lord and master has the notion that all he has to do is bring home the bacon and the little woman will do the rest — mend furniture, make clothes, raise children. If you raise a rumpus he raises his eyebrows.

There are times when he comes home tired that he deserves a little peace; but I'll wager he'd get better refreshment out of an hour's roughand-tumble with those youngsters he is only barely acquainted with.

Talk it all over with him. And show him this column.

• • •

Dear Doris: When a person is deceased, mass cards are sent. That I understand. Prayers are being said. But the flower business I do not understand. I always had the idea that flowers were sent for the mourners to express their sympathy. But that can't be so.

Here is an example: A lady passes away. Flowers arrive with "Mother" spelled out on a big ribbon. More flowers arrive with "Daughter" spelled out on a big ribbon. Both sets of flowers are from daughters of the deceased lady.

Who sends flowers to whom, exactly? — Once and For All

Dear Once: I'd say a certain daughter was confused about whether she should indicate on her ribbon the person who was being remembered with flowers or person who sent them. Both ribbons should have carried the name "Mother".

The general idea about flowers at a funeral is for friends of the mourners to express sympathy. But the bereaved family want to pay their own floral tribute to their lost one and to express their grief.

The recent custom of making a gift to an appropriate charity, in lieu of flowers, has much to be said for it.

Confidential to Heartbroken: Right. You can't turn love off like a light, but don't forget that this is one light which should never have been turned on.

Love can come more than once to each of us, and will to you, if you get ready for it. But if you want a happy ending, don't even start going out with a date — be he ever so attractive — who is married to someone else.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Large Chocolate Cake

By MARY MOORE

Six years ago a women's editor wrote to me: "While checking your recipes for the paper I noticed a letter from a lady asking for a cake recipe for a large pan. I suddenly remembered one my sister-in-law, Edith Scriver of Wolseley, Sask., had given me. When all were at home she had five children plus husband who all liked cake. So it was necessary for her to have a big one to last until it was supposed to be on the table. I looked it up and am enclosing a copy of it. You will likely try it first but I remember it was always tasty when Edith made it."

A comparable situation was about to come through the front door of my house. Marianne was bringing four children and one dog and one cat for the "school break". Grandma sure had to speed up her cooking program.

So out came Edith Scriver's recipe and I started sifting and beating. This cake is an all-purpose chocolate cake for a large hungry family.

EDITH'S LARGE CHOCOLATE CAKE
(12 x 9")

3 cups sifted cake and pastry flour
2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup cocoa
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. baking soda
2 eggs beaten
1 cup sour milk (see below)
1 cup cooking oil
1 cup hot water
1 tbsp. vanilla

NOTE: To sour sweet milk measure 2 tbsps. vinegar into measuring cup. Add enough sweet milk to reach 1 cup line. Let it stand while you do the sifting.

Sift and measure cake and pastry flour. Sift again into large bowl with sugar, cocoa, salt and baking soda. Make a well in centre and add beaten eggs, sour milk, oil and mix to blend then stir in hot water and vanilla and beat with rotary beater to remove all lumps. This batter is thin. Pour into large shallow pan 9 x 13 x 2", buttered, then line bottom with buttered wax paper. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr., 35 - 45 min. or until cake shrinks a little from sides of pan and may be touched on top without dinting. Let rest in pan 5 min. then turn out on rack, peel off paper and cool.

Frost sides and top with Icing made by beating together 3 or 4 tbsps. margarine, 3 cups unsifted icing sugar, 4 tbsps. milk, 1 tbsp. lemon juice. I strewed top with chopped walnuts.

An all-purpose, serviceable, economical cake for a large family.

Attitudes Changing Towards Mental Illness

SASKATOON (CP) — Attitudes towards mental illness are changing in Saskatchewan and the result is that fewer persons are being left in institutions.

The greatest change, says E. P. Benning, administrative supervisor for the Saskatoon mental health clinic, is that the community is extending more help and more understanding.

"At one time, if you wanted to get rid of a person who was a nuisance to you, you sent him to a mental institution.

"In the last four or five years, the average length of stay in a mental institution has been reduced to months or even weeks."

The Saskatchewan Hospital in North Battleford is an excellent example of this, says Mr. Benning. In 1967 the hospital had 1,250 patients and today has 554. Readmission rates have dropped drastically as well.

A major part of Saskatchewan's community care program is the landlady project. Carefully selected landladies offer their homes and a healthy family atmosphere to mental patients on the road to recovery.

Mr. Benning says the project, started several years ago, now has 121 former psychiatric patients living in 47 approved homes. Most are from the North Battleford hospital but an increasing number are coming from local areas.

The landladies are women with nursing training or housewives interested in helping people. They range in age from 21 to 68.

Mr. Benning says the women are selected on the basis of competence in meeting the physical and emotional requirements of their guests. Payments vary and are based on what type of care must be provided.

The homes must meet the regulations of the Mental Health Act and must be approved by a fire inspector and a medical officer. Also, food has to be adequately prepared and nourishing and a yard for outside activities is stipulated. Each home is allowed five guests.

"But we are realistic," says Mr. Benning. "We don't expect strict institutional standards. What we want basically is a good head and a good heart.

"We try to match the needs of our client with the resources of the landlady. We want him to feel comfortable in his new surroundings. We also make sure his environment is as close as possible to the one he left before being hospitalized."

The guest and the foster family have a chance to look each other over before making a decision. And either party can terminate the arrangement at any time.

The landlady project is less expensive for the taxpayer, says Mr. Benning. The average daily cost of keeping a patient in an institution is $25 while last year the average daily cost of care for a person in community environment was about $4.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "The baby is getting too big for her bassinette, so we'll put her in your crib and you can have a big bed."

Jeannie: "I want my own crib. I don't want a big bed."

Move an older child into a bed ahead of time when you're expecting a new baby. Then she will not feel displaced by the tiny newcomer.

Mother: "Remember the crib you used to have when you were little. We'll put it up in the baby's room and she can sleep in it. Would you like to help Daddy put it up this afternoon?"

Ann Landers

Mother Is Pathetic One in This Family

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I could never talk to anyone about this problem and I must tell it to somebody. It is getting me down.

ANN LANDERS

My husband and I have been married 10 years. Our son, who is now 8, is a very handsome boy. He has my husband's eyes and smile, my nose, a great shaped head and a strong jawline. Everyone remarks on his good looks.

Our daughter is two years old, and I am sorry to say she is the homeliest child I have ever seen. Nature really played a dirty trick on us. It would have been much better if the boy had been homely and the girl had been good looking. A girl needs beauty — a boy doesn't.

Our daughter inherited the worst features of both my husband and me. When people see her they don't know what to say. Occasionally someone will ask, "Is that your child, or is she adopted?" I know what they are driving at.

When our daughter is older we can have her protruding ears fixed, her chin built up and her nose remolded. Hopefully she will have a good figure. If she doesn't, there are several things a girl can do. But the grown-up years are going to be very hard on her. Please tell me how to raise my future cheerfully. If you could name some movie stars who were homely youngsters, it would help a lot. — STAR CROSSED.

* * *

DEAR STAR CROSSED: The pathetic see in the family is you — not your daughter. How sad that you attach so much importance to good looks. I hope you get your thinking squared away before you transmit your anxieties to the little girl — if you haven't done so already. How dreadful for a child to feel that she has let her mother down because she isn't beautiful. Get some counseling, Mother. You've got a geranium in your cranium.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman in our club made an announcement at the last meeting that her daughter had telephoned her the night before from New Jersey to tell her the good news. She accepted a ring and is going to marry a doctor. Everyone said, "Congratulations," and "Isn't it wonderful," how nice that Rosalie is getting such a catch. I myself was making plans to give a kitchen shower for Rosalie when I heard the real story. Her fiance is a dentist.

I telephoned my friend and asked her straight out why she said "Doctor" when he is only a dentist. She got mad and yelled, "A dentist is a doctor." I told her she knew perfectly well what I meant. She hung up on me. Will you please tell me who is right? I know I am but I want to hear it from you. — TROUBLE IN SHAKER HEIGHTS.

* * *

DEAR SHAKER: A dentist is a doctor and Rosalie's mother has every right to call him a doctor if she wants to.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When two older women live together, say two widowed sisters, or a mother and a daughter, or even two friends, and a card is sent for both — such as a Christmas card of an Easter greeting, or a letter — whose name should appear on the envelope first? We have had two long discussions about this at our weekly card club. Some members feel the older person's name should be first, others say the names should be alphabeticized. What do you think? — ONE OF TWO.

* * *

DEAR ONE: I must confess I have never given this a thought. And now that I have thought about it, would you believe I don't think it makes a darned bit of difference? Go back and tell your club they need a project.

Discussion on Nobel Prize Winner

The ample reward to those attending the recent Women's Study Guild meeting, held at the home of Mrs. L. N. Purdin, was an insight into "the image of eternity with which each person is born", as portrayed in the life and writings of the Russian Nobel prize winner — Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, Guild president, conducted the business portion of the evening, and reminded those present to use the Pollution Probe checklists provided at an earlier meeting. Miss Josephine Tickell introduced material from the International Fund for Animal Welfare, and a petition relating to the annual Seal Hunt; and a letter was read from Marylene, the young girl sponsored by the group through the Canadian Save the Children Fund.

The meditation, given by Mrs. H. C. Seldon, centered on the closing portion of Christ's "Sermon on the Mount", and the manner in which we accept the joys of life's circumstances bearing upon him.

The evening's program was presented by Mrs. A. F. G. Tooth and Mrs. H. Wien. The Nobel prize for literature 1970 was awarded to Alexander Solzhenitsyn "for the ethical force with which he has pursued the indispensable traditions of Russian Literature". When notified by friends that he had won the prize, the writer at first reacted with disbelief, then by telephone dictated a short statement expressing his gratitude, his acceptance, and his intention to accept it personally. However, in the weeks which followed, Soviet authorities tried to prevent him from going to Stockholm. Under the impression that he might not be allowed to return to Russia, which he loves greatly, and only deplores the system under which his people are forced to live, Solzhenitsyn, with the approval and understanding of the Nobel Foundation and the Swedish Academy, elected to receive the diploma and medal in Moscow at another time.

In his address at the presentation of the Nobel Prizes in Stockholm on December 10, 1970, the permanent secretary of the Swedish Academy said "Solzhenitsyn is of the incomparable Russian tradition. The same background underlies the gigantic predecessors who have derived from Russia's suffering the compelling strength and inexhaustible love that permeate their work."

For the 2nd half of the program, Mrs. Tooth presented an enlightening analysis of the writings of Solzhenitsyn which are now available in the West, interspersed with sympathetic readings from the books by both Mrs. Wien and by Mrs. Tooth herself. She noted that the authority of the writer in Russia has always been immense because the masters of the Kremlin have long been troubled by the challenge of great writers — notably Tolstoy, Maxim Gorky and Pasternak. Under despotism, and without formal institutions through which protest can be expressed, it is often only the writers who can dare to ask the questions and articulate the agonies that many millions are suffering. So the importance of their position becomes increasingly apparent, and also extremely dangerous.

The man who, above all others, fulfills this role today is Solzhenitsyn — Russia's greatest living writer. He is possessed equally with a desire to see Russian literature restored to its former great place in the world, his love for his country, and his passion for freedom. He is not an activist, but a loner, passionately fighting Stalinism.

Solzhenitsyn's novel — "A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovitch" compresses into a single day, the 3,653 [illegible] camps. Millions confessed to crimes they had never committed, for refusal to sign meant instant death. It was also how the Russian people, symbolized by Ivan, were able to survive as human beings. The prisoners prey upon, manipulate and savage each other for bread, bodies, drugs and survival, generating a class system which is a grisly caricature of the outside world. This book, the story of a simple Russian man, laboring and suffering with him, the good humor, and all for nothing, was published in Russia under Krushchev's regime in 1962, and became a high point in triumph for Russia's liberal arts.

Through his works Solzhenitsyn seems to be saying with Dante that only through human reason and man's insistent love God can man reach the top of the mountain — this vision — his spirituality with the Creator — via hell on earth and shedding of tears. In spite of all, man does have the potential to rise to his instinctive goal which is unity with God.

Over refreshments served by hostesses Mrs. E. A. Orr and Miss Olive Elson, members continued discussions of the works of this great Russian author, having been provided with a background conducive to better understanding of somewhat difficult but worthwhile reading by the evening's program.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Mind Is Affected By Heart Attack

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

It is usual for a heart patient to remain affected in mind as well as in body following a heart attack. Some show it more than others; they are outwardly fearful rather than repressively concerned. But what is quite important is the spiritual sustenance the patient receives from members of his family. It is easier to bear the burden of illness when supported by sympathy and understanding.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: There is a difference between a near miss in an accident and a near miss with a heart attack. The heart attack is a result of disease and damage to the heart.

My husband was lucky. After a severe heart assault he followed doctor's orders conscientiously. He was therefore able to survive several more near misses and live 10 more years. He was 56 when he died.

I noticed a complete change in his personality after the first coronary. My easy-going, good-natured husband became critical, fault-finding, fussy and frustrated. It particularly affected his relationship with our son, who bore much of the brunt of the criticism.

I finally realized that my husband was a frightened man. A heart attack can be a more frightening experience for some than for others. My husband kept track of the ailments of all of his acquaintances and compared notes. Whenever one of them died his own anxiety increased.

I found that reasoning him and letting him know that we loved him and that he was important to me and the family helped immeasurably. He was never his old self again. But we valued the 10 years we were allowed together.

When he died I did not have to reproach myself. I believe that doctors would do their heart patients and their families a great service if they would help people understand there are psychological changes which sometimes follow heart attacks. — Mrs. C.

• • •

Following a column I wrote on masturbation I have received a few letters similar to the following. (I believe they deserve to be brought to your attention, and one follows.)

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am writing because I feel that you have overstepped your bounds in advice you gave to "Mister G." You should have told him to see his minister, rabbi or priest — and not come out flatly and state that "It (masturbation) is not a sin."

There are some religions that do consider masturbating sinful since it is opposed to the basic purpose that God gave to sex, i.e., the procreation of children and not for our pleasure only. I hope that "Master G." will be informed of this mistake so he can pursue the proper course. — Mr. S.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband was in an auto accident about a year ago. He had a concussion. At the time we didn't think to ask the doctor, but have since heard that epilepsy can develop after such an injury. Is it possible? — Mrs. B.

COMMENT: Everything's possible. But the answer in your husband's case is that it is unlikely. Come now, Mrs. B., let's stop borrowing trouble. Be thankful he is well now. If still in doubt, why not ask the doctor who took care of him at the time of injury?

Canada Prepares for 1973 Law-of-sea Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is busily preparing for a vital international law-of-the-sea conference set by the United Nations for 1973.

But J. A. Beesley, external affairs department legal adviser, told an 88-nation preparatory meeting in Geneva March 24:

"It seems clear that there is no hope of making the 1973 deadline or any other deadline unless we make some political changes in our methods of work. . . ."

Despite this skepticism at the ability of the ponderous UN machinery to keep the 1973 date, Canada is working on its approach as a nation with the longest coastline in the world. It will make concrete proposals at later preparatory meetings.

Canada has taken a number of controversial initiatives in the controversial area of sea law recently. It could find itself on the spot.

Its policy appears to be to encourage, as rapidly as possible, these initiatives — especially in the field of pollution control and fisheries conservation — lead to further elaboration of international law rather than becoming targets of the major shipping states.

Federal authorities candidly admit that one reason Canada can be helpful in the development of new sea law standards is that it has already done all the dreadful things it could do, so far successfully.

They concede a contradiction exists between the idea of Canada leading the pack with independent action while preaching that everyone co-operate in the interests of common understanding and progress.

But progress requires bold precedents by one or more states, these officials insist.

"That's going to be the solution," said one.

Canada's most contentious move was establishment last year of a 100-mile-wide pollution control zone around the Arctic archipelago.

It drew protests from the United States and expressions of concern from a number of other countries, most of them major shippers.

Only one other state claimed special Canada's legislative move last year to designate the Gulf of St. Lawrence and other large bodies of water on both the east and west coasts, hitherto open to foreign fishermen, as exclusive fishing zones of Canada.

Again the U.S. protested. A number of other states made known their displeasure.

Coupled with this measure was an extension of Canada's territorial sea to 12 miles from three—in keeping with an increasing trend among nations toward wider territorial zones.

One effect was to establish key channels in the Northwest Passage as Canadian waterways and thus bolster Canada's effective control over that Arctic passage.

The problems of offshore pollution and fisheries protection are expected to bulk large in the proposed law-of-the-sea conference, if and when it is held.

The last such meeting was at Geneva in 1960 and in laying down agreement on territorial limits it missed by a fraction. One thing it did do was clarify national sovereignty over offshore seabed territory—the continental shelf.

There are two main clauses in which Canada is vitally interested: Protection of the sovereign rights of coastal states on their continental shelves, and re-definition of the concept of innocent passage by shipping to take into account a vessel's ecological innocence or freedom from pollution.

Innocent passage is authorized by nations in foreign ships in their coastal waters.

Topping all that, though not necessarily packing any more potential for tearing apart the proposed conference, is the question of establishing international rules for developing seabed and ocean floor resources beyond the limits of national jurisdiction.

"We know of no problem comparable in the demands which it places upon the international community for innovation, imagination and accommodation," Mr. Beesley told the Geneva preparatory meeting.

A resolution adopted by the UN General Assembly last December declared these oceanareas to be "the common heritage of mankind," to be exploited for the benefit of mankind as a whole, but with particular consideration for the needs of developing countries.

"It represents a bold new approach towards a developing world order and a turning away from traditional land-oriented concepts of jurisdiction and sovereignty," Liberal MP Robert Kaplan (Don Valley), speaking for Canada, told the assembly's main political committee Dec. 1.

At Geneva, Canada tried to maintain the momentum by proposing what it called "a new and radical form of moratorium resolution" by which all states would define the outside limits of their continental shelf claims.

The effect would be to define the non-contentious area of the seabed, leaving the precise final limits to be negotiated later.

"To proceed along these lines would be to guarantee the reservation of a very large percentage of the seabed for the benefit of mankind," Mr. Beesley said.

The Canadian plan also envisaged an interim authority to license mineral exploration and exploitation in the ocean depths, and payment to an international fund of a fixed percentage of revenues derived from offshore areas actually claimed now by states.

Such a voluntary international development tax, if set at one per cent of revenues, might yield as much as $15 million a month, Canada estimates.

Possibly the most explosive issue facing the proposed 1973 conference is that of innocent passage.

"It is our own view that agreement or failure to agree on this issue could make or break the conference," said Mr. Beesley.

Canada feels the current notion of innocent passage is weighted in favor of the major shipping states and badly needs to be brought up to date.

Under international law, passage now is considered innocent "so long as it is not prejudicial to the peace, good order or security of the coastal state." Submarines, for example, are required to navigate on the surface and show the flag.

The law makes no special provision for protecting maritime states against the threat of oil pollution. Canada thinks it should.

Other states say the entitlement of warships to innocent passage should be wiped out. Some have questioned whether nuclear vessels should have it.

Canada will press for a system of internationally-agreed pollution prevention regulations, with enforcement largely in the hands of coastal states but with the least possible interference with passage.

Tax Strike Planned

CLEARWATER, Man. (CP) — Farmers in southwestern Manitoba voted Tuesday night to withhold all taxes "assessed against farm lands and buildings until the responsibility for financing education is placed on taxable income basis."

A group of farmers from six school divisions in the area attending a National Farmers' Union meeting, also agreed not to make payments of principal and interest to the Farm Credit Corp. or to banks until interests come down to a reasonable rate . . . say five per cent."

Movie Revives Titanic Scenes For Survivor

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — "I tried to forget for 41 years and now it's all back in my mind again," said Nesham Krekorian, survivor of the sinking of the Titanic April 15, 1912.

Mr. Krekorian, now 84, made the comment in 1953 after attending a movie depicting the disaster. Since then, he has not wanted to talk publicly about his experience.

"He used to talk about his experiences all the time," his son-in-law, Paul Solomonian, said in an interview this week. "Now, he just wants to forget."

Mr. Krekorian, then a 25-year-old Armenian emigrating to Canada, was one of just over 700 survivors from the sinking of the $7.5 million White Star liner which went down after hitting an iceberg in mid-Atlantic on her maiden voyage to New York from Le Havre, France.

An inquiry into the sinking established that 1,490 lives were lost.

Mr. Krekorian saw little of the grandeur of the reputedly unsinkable 882-foot liner during her ill-fated voyage. He and five friends were steerage passengers, confined most of the time to cramped quarters below decks.

Four of his friends went down with the ship when she struck the iceberg 1,600 miles from New York and sank three hours later.

When the call came to abandon ship, Mr. Krekorian battled his way to the upper decks through panic-stricken passengers and crew members rushing for seats in the 20 available lifeboats, said his daughter, Alice Solomonian.

Mr. Krekorian spotted an empty boat and hid inside. His presence may have saved the lives of the women and children eventually lowered over the side into the small craft.

The only other man aboard was a Titanic crew member who manned the oars. Together, he and Mr. Krekorian pulled the craft away from the foundering liner.

"They had to row fast to get away from the undertow," said Mrs. Solomonian.

Hours later, the seaman froze to death at the oars. The young Armenian was left with the task of piloting the crowded lifeboat.

He rowed all night until, shortly after daybreak, the Cunard liner Carpathia came to the rescue.

The Carpathia arrived in New York April 19 and Mr. Krekorian was given transportation to his destination, Brantford, Ont., where he spent three weeks in hospital recovering from pneumonia.

He moved here in 1918, met and married his wife, Persa, and settled down to raise a son and two daughters while working at a foundry.

The Titanic voyage was his first and last trip to sea.

Whenever he has come near a large body of water on family outings, his manner has betrayed his thoughts.

Quebec Split Haunts Conservatives In Search for Election Footing

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands by the Quebec wing of the federal Conservative party for endorsement of a two-nation view of Canada could severely limit the party's running room in the next federal election.

Interviews with high-ranking sources in the party's English-speaking majority indicate it had planned to concentrate the next election battle—expected in 1972—in urban centres outside Quebec and in Quebec rural areas now represented by Creditistes.

The most optimistic party planners had hoped the Conservatives could upset some or perhaps all of the 13 Creditiste MPs in Quebec and keep the Progressive Conservative party's 72-seat base in the 264-seat Commons.

The Quebec Conservative leader, Fernand Aile, indicated Wednesday that such co-operation will be forthcoming only if the party accepts what many here consider to be impossible conditions.

In an open letter to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, Mr. Aile called for a clear statement of the party's position on Quebec, including endorsement of a two-nation concept.

The same two-nation issue smashed the party in Quebec in 1968 under the onslaught of Pierre Trudeau's strong federal vjews and attractive personality.

Conservative organizers in Ottawa say they are extremely uncertain about the course they will follow—or be able to follow —in Quebec next election.

The bleak Quebec prospects make even more important an already well-developed election strategy that has been mapped in detail, aimed at avoiding what party officials consider were 1968 campaign mistakes.

Interviews with various officials, all of whom asked not to be identified, point to party plans to limit prominence for Mr. Stanfield, hoping to avoid direct confrontations with Mr. Trudeau.

"We certainly can't win a leader-to-leader election," said one planner. "We saw that in 1968."

The party hopes to concentrate on what officials call the arrogance of the Liberals, high unemployment, slow economic growth and uncertainty surrounding possible tax changes.

A key element is the attraction as candidates of what one organizer calls "a lot of bright, young new men to give us a new image."

These new candidates would be used to assist Mr. Stanfield in explaining Conservative policies to voters. In fact, organizers hope to surround Mr. Stanfield with such candidates in as many of his personal appearances as possible.

Added to this will be a big TV campaign designed to present the Conservative party, rather than the leader alone, as a solution to current problems.

The party believes it can hold its considerable rural Western strength without much difficulty if an outright split can be avoided over the Quebec issue.

Western Conservatives are generally opposed to special considerations for Quebec and to the two-nation approach.

The rift between the Quebec wing and Ottawa organizers extends into the party's Commons caucus. The Conservative MPs themselves are split over the issue.

Martial Asselin (Charlevoix) and Roch LaSalle (Joliette) are publicly supported Mr. Aile's proposals.

But Theogene Ricard (Ste. Hyacinthe) has backed Mr. Stanfield's stiff opposition to the two-nation theory. The fourth Quebec Conservative, Georges Valade (Montreal-Ste. Marie), has not publicly taken sides.

The whole issue is expected to come to a head at the Quebec party's May convention. Many observers predict support for the two-nation doctrine.

The national party holds its policy convention in November, assuming there is not a federal election before then.

The caucus dispute also has taken on a more personal dimension —questioning the national leader's traditional power to select his own Quebec lieutenant in the Commons.

Mr. Asselin and Mr. LaSalle have said the Quebec caucus should elect the Quebec lieutenant. But Mr. Ricard and Mr. Stanfield have insisted on maintaining the leader's long-standing prerogatives.

In the midst of this turmoil, Quebec caucus spokesmen say, an election called now would cut Conservatives strength to 50 seats across-the country. No Conservative would be elected in Quebec, they say.

Present Commons standing: Liberal 150, Conservative 72, NDP 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 5.

Another problem is a possible resurgence of the Creditistes as a national party.

At a recent convention, the Creditistes pledged their support for efforts to re-establish Social Credit as a viable political force.

Creditiste leader Real Caouette will be touring Western Canada from April 22 to May 6, working on that project.

Seaway Opening 'Most Difficult'

MONTREAL (CP) — The French freighter Ondine squeezed her way upstream through heavy ice Wednesday after what a St. Lawrence seaway official described as "the most difficult opening the seaway has ever had."

The opening, two weeks later than the usual April 1 start of the season for the inland waterway, was delayed by lingering ice problems that are expected to slow shipping for several days.

The Ondine, first ship of the season to head upstream through St. Lambert lock, carried 16,000 tons of semi-manufactured steel products bound for Cleveland and Detroit.

For April 16

Your birthday today: Re-organization, transformation are the key words to describe the subtle influences at work in the upcoming year of active, healthy growth. Both material and emotional ventures are simpler and more important.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Never mind that it's the end of the week: apply for any position or raise you feel should be yours, or at least get the action started.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Cheering surprises, news from distant people help make you happy. Something extra must be done when the regular day's work is over.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): See what you can do about making this a shorter-than-usual workday or taking off altogether. There are a lot of personal concerns you might very well attend to.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Gather your resolve, decide whatever is that's bothering you, and get going. Any reasonable effort is better than waiting to see.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Digging for truth may be a trifle awkward now, but there is no ready alternative. Persistence should be mated with patience and tact for best results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): To absorb the pressures or the push from behind with serenity is the goal of the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Much depends on how you recall and complete your promises, and like as not, you've made a few inconvenient pledges.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now you have to hold the line, as people seek advantage, special terms, something for little or nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Work diligently and disregard distractions while you are at it. Emotional issues tend to be resolved once you have a change of mood.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): No venture is free of speculative qualities at present. Press forward with whatever you have organized, however incomplete.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Theories have to be tested in detail. Possibly no general rules really fit the special problems in your immediate field.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Personal contacts made now promise to develop into significant connections later.

Nova Scotia Seeking to Harness Fundy Tides

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia has embarked on the gigantic task of developing an economically-sound method of harnessing the power potential of Bay of Fundy tides and putting it into operation within 10 years.

The vehicle the provincial government hopes will achieve this is the $16 million Tidal Power Corp., now being set up after enabling legislation passed smoothly through the legislature last week.

The prospect of vast amounts of cheap electric power for the New England market as well as for industrial growth at home has convinced Premier Gerald Regan that such a development on the bay "will dramatically alter the economy of our province."

The total potential generating capacity of the three prime Fundy tidal sites is 16,847-million kilowatt hours, compared with the Maritime power pool's existing capability of 6,367-million kilowatt hours.

However, Mr. Regan says his government's plans for development "are a long range and the new corporation will only provide the structure for full-time planning and experimentation.

"We must be competitive and, let's not kid ourselves, we aren't yet," he said recently, noting that nuclear power costs are increasing but still are lower than projected costs of tidal power.

Nova Scotia has been negotiating with private concerns the eventual financing of tidal power.

Mr. Regan said the talks had reached the "deadly serious stage" but no details are known except that the Rothschild banking group, which also financed the Churchill Falls hydro-electric project in the Labrador area of Newfoundland, has been involved.

These negotiations will be taken over by the Tidal Power Corp., which will consist of a chairman and six-member board of directors empowered to undertake studies and promote development of tidal power alone or in conjunction rations or individuals in or outside Canada.

R. B. Cameron, who made the failing Sydney, N.S., steel plant a viable operation after the government acquired it from Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. in 1968, is expected to be named chairman of the tidal corporation within a few days.

New Brunswick and Ottawa were notified of Nova Scotia's moves towards harnessing Fundy tides but the provincial government appears determined to go it alone, at least until preliminary studies and negotiations are completed. The favored site lies entirely in Nova Scotia waters.

In the legislature Mr. Regan told the opposition, which urged immediate federal participation, that money spent by Ottawa on a proposed review of the Atlantic tidal power programming board's 1970 report would be better spent on "experimentation."

The board reported in March, 1970, that harnessing of Fundy tides was not economical because of the high cost of constructing dams and generating stations, "particularly in view of the high interest rates in today's tight money market."

Regulated Starvation Is Way to Live Longer

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Scientists should know within the next two decades how to prolong vigorous human life by at least 10 to 20 per cent, says a British scientist.

Regulated starvation may be one method of doing this, said Dr. Alex Comfort, director of the Medical Research Council group on aging of London's University College in London.

But people should not expect to live to 200 or 300 years, he says. The possibility of living to these ages is something only for the remote future.

Mackenzie King Always Politician

OTTAWA (CP) — Col. C. P. Stacey, in a new Second World War history, says Prime Minister Mackenzie King's whole existence, even in wartime, centred on political ambition.

The 681-page history, entitled Arms, Men and Governments, comments on one of Mr. King's actions in cabinet: "It seems hard to acquit him of essential dishonesty."

The book is published by the Queen's Printer at $12 under authority of Defence Minister Donald Macdonald. It says Mr. King even tried to get Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt to bail him out of the 1944 conscription crisis—without success.

Col. Stacey now is professor of history at the University of Toronto. He was the Canadian Army's chief historian from 1945 to 1959.

Col. Stacey says, in effect, that Mr. King during the 1939-45 war took Canada from nation to colony.

Col. Stacey writes that in 1940 L. B. Pearson, then secretary to the Canadian High Commission in London, issued a memorandum that Canada's status was little better than that of a colony.

Mr. Pearson said Canada was no better off than North Borneo. It could not even get information on British policies that committed Canadians to battle.

"In essentials," writes Col. Stacey, "the situation which Mr. Pearson described in the spring of 1940 continued to exist throughout the war."

Canada was not represented on the allied Combined Chiefs of Staff. It was never informed of the 1943 decision at Casablanca to invade Sicily though a Canadian division participated.

Col. Stacey says Mr. King accepted Canadian exclusion from the Anglo-American 1943 Quebec conference as long as he could pose for pictures with Churchill and Roosevelt.

No provision was made for Canadian officers to be assigned to Gen. Eisenhower's staff because the Canadian government did not assert itself, Col. Stacey says.

In the Normandy operation, Canadian squadrons supported the British army, not the Canadian, "Abgurd," commenis Col. Stacey.

Canada was not even informed of the decision to continue the allied offensive in Italy in 1944 though more than 1,000 Canadians were killed in the operation.

Col. Stacey notes pointedly that in the 1914-18 war the Canadian Corps fought as a unit throughout. In the 1939-45 war, the Canadian army overseas was split between Italy and Northwest Europe with consequent loss of national control over it.

Col. Stacey's severest criticism is for Mr. King's handling of the 1944 conscription crisis during which Defence Minister J. L. Ralston and Air Minister C. G. Power left the cabinet.

Mr. Ralston had offered his resignation in 1942 in the first conscription crisis. At the prime minister's request, he withdrew it but Mr. King kept the actual letter.

In 1944, when batlle casualties in Europe necessitated more reinforcements from Canada, Mr. Ralston advocated use overseas of men conscripted for home service only.

At the height of the crisis, Col. Stacey says, Mr. King suddenly saw Mr. Ralston as the centre of a plot to drive him from office, produced the 1942 letter without warning at a cabinet meeting and said he accepted the defence minister's resignation.

Col. Stacey says that the plot existed only in Mr. King's mind and that Mr. Ralston might have been prime minister if he had chosen to turn on Mr. King.

Col. Stacey says Mr. King's action in firing Mr. Ralston was a tactical masterpiece.

"His strategy—not to speak of his morality—was more questionable."

Mr. King had treated Mr. Ralston ruthlessly and shabbily.

"He was moved entirely by a sudden access of fear for his own immediate personal and political position," the historian writes.

"He won a victory, thanks to remarkable good luck, to the ruthless excellence of his tactics —and to the fact that the man he victimized was entirely innocent of the sort of political ambition that was King's whole existence."

Less than a month later, Mr. King reversed his policy and brought in overseas conscription.

But he did not do this, Col. Stacey says, because of any desire to bolster the army in the field. He did it because his cabinet was about to disintegrate.

"The interests of the ruling party now seemed to demand overseas conscription just as stridently as they had formerly demanded a continuance of the voluntary system to the last possible moment."

Four Seasons Hotel Opening Was Gala, Day-long Affair

More than 2,000 people crowded into the Four Seasons last night for the gala reception that opened the new hotel on the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

The reception was the culmination of a day-long round of activities that began in the morning with a press reception for a bus-full of Toronto press representatives and ended after midnight as the last guests straggled out to the cars that ran between the Zwick's Island parking lot and the hotel.

For the hotel's staff, the day was punctuated with two full-scale buffet receptions, one for the press and one for dignitaries attending the Bell Canada Technical Training Centre opening, a private supper for members of the Sharp family, owners of the hotel chain, and the reception, which saw 30,000 hors d'oeuvres served from the kitchen.

The Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation benefited from the sale of bar and raffle tickets that their hostesses sold to guests. City police, headed by Chief Douglas Crosbie on the spot by the front door of the hotel, handled traffic and Sea Cadets from RCSCC Quinte were parking attendants.

Music was provided by the AN and AF pipe band and a trio that played for dancing in the second floor ballroom.

The official opening ceremony took place at 7:45, when Mayor J. Russell Scott, Robert C. Scrivener, Bell Canada president, Isadore Sharp, Four Seasons Ltd., president, and Archie Lewis of the Belleville Chapter of the Heart Foundation cut a giant cake baked by Inn on the Park pastry chef Horst Fabian.

Winner of the trip to the Inn on the Park, London, England, was Dr. W. B. Beattie, RR7, Belleville. Other winners were Mrs. Keith Day Belleville (color TV), Mrs. Ruth Brooks, Belleville, (chest of flatware), and E. L. Way, RR8, Picton (weekend for two at the Four Seasons, Toronto).

Premier William Davis, who had earlier opened the Bell training centre, returned about 8:30 p.m. and remained for half an hour at the reception.

City Will Again Try For Funds

The matter is already under review by provincial authorities, but Kingston is continuing its campaign against the possibility it may have to assume the costs of transporting prisoners to the new regional detention centre at Napanee.

And Belleville city council will lend its weight to the cause.

This week a letter from Kingston Mayor E. V. Swain to Hon. Sylvanus Apps, minister of correctional services was read at Belleville city council calling for a decision on how prisoner transportation costs are to be borne. Mayor Swain estimated Kingston's cost could amount to as much as $20,000 annually if it is a municipal responsibility.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey suggested that a similar letter be forwarded from Belleville council.

Mayor J. Russell Scott noted that an amount to cover possible prisoner transportation costs had been included in the Belleville police budget.

"How did you estimate the amount?" asked Alderman Jeffrey.

Mayor Scott replied that it had been a ballpark figure pulled "out of the hat".

Culvert Case Solved

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Thurlow Township council, at its meeting yesterday, will seek half of the cost of replacing a culvert from Huntingdon Township Council.

The culvert, situated on the property of Chancey Sills, has proved inadequate, Murney ... Thurlow roads superintendent told council yesterday. He said Mr. Sills had complained that the 35-inch culvert was not large enough to handle the spring runoff and had flooded back.

The replacement would cost about $800, including installation, said Mr. Huffman.

According to council, the provincial government will pay 80 per cent of the cost of the culvert, with the remainder to rest on the shoulders of council.

In a letter to Huntingdon Township, Thurlow clerk Clare Horton will request a 50 per cent split of the costs. Mr. Sills' land rests in both Thurlow and Huntingdon townships.

Davis' Wife Waiting For Election Date

Prime Minister William Davis still doesn't know when the next provincial election will be held.

"My wife is as anxious as you are to know the date," he told newsmen at a press conference after opening the Bell Canada Technical Training Centre at the Four Seasons Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Davis denied that he had any secret, personal ideas in mind for the timing of an election. But he was told while here that it would be on a Thursday.

Quinte riding returning officer Gerald Joyce told the premier of the decision of the all-party committee on elections that Thursday was the best day of the week for an election, regardless of the month and the year. The information was news to Mr. Davis.

No matter when the election is held, regional government and the threatened secondary school teachers' strike will not be issues, the premier said.

Mr. Davis predicted that there would be no teachers' strike.

"The ceilings on educational spending are, on the average, seven per cent higher this year than last," he said. "The levels for educational expenditures are quite realistic and in many areas of the province there is no issue among the teachers," he said.

Regional government in rural and semi-rural areas will not be an election issue either, he said, because "it's not there."

"We won't have regional government on a province-wide basis for many years to come," the premier said.

Although he doesn't like the term "depressed area" Mr. Davis admitted that "the eastern part of Ontario has not experienced the same rate of growth as other parts."

"A great part of industrial incentives has gone into eastern Ontario," Mr. Davis said. "Our over-all objective is to move some of the growth to the eastern end of the province."

On environmental control, Mr. Davis said "you can't have it both ways"; better pollution control means more governmental control.

"If the same degree of care had gone into problems such as sewage and water many years ago as we express today, these problems would not exist now," he said.

Fort Frances Indian Highly Critical Of 'White Man's Selfishness' in Quetico

TORONTO (CP) — An Ojibwa Indian from the Manitou reserve near Fort Frances, Ont., Wednesday levelled a stinging attack on what he called "white man's selfishness" in the proposed use of Quetico provincial park.

Willie Wilson, in a brief to the Quetico Park advisory committee, was critical of the federal and provincial governments, conservationists who wand logging in the park banned and urban dwellers.

He said the department of Indian affairs, organized to look after the Indian, had made no presentation to the committee about native people dependent on the park for their livelihood.

The Ontario department of lands and forests has done nothing about repeated requests from Indians that tracts of land be given to them so that timber can be logged.

"We urge you (members of the committee) to consider long and search your conscience well before you make judgment on whether you will heed the voice of the starry-eyed saviours of the primitive environment, or listen to those who need to use the land, not for a few short weeks of holiday, but for all time," he said.

More than 75 per cent of the briefs presented to the committee at public hearings in Fort Frances, Atikokan, Thunder Bay and now Toronto have been from conservationists who urge an immediate ban on commercial logging in the 1,750-square-mile park about 100 miles west of Thunder Bay.

Logging is allowed in 30 per cent of the park and is carried out by Domtar Ltd. in the park's northeast section.

Mr. Wilson's brief, supported by chiefs and band councillors of 11 reserves in the Rainy River district, was one of more than 40 heard Wednesday by the committee.

"This area of the Rainy River district is our home," he said in speech interrupted by applause from most of the more than 200 persons present.

"Our ancestors lived here long before the white man came to this country.

"In return for their original rights to all the land, they accepted beads and a little flour and little else."

He said an allowable cut of 24,000 trees annually in the park would provide substantial work for 100 Indian men, 90 per cent of whom now live on welfare.

Mr. Wilson, 30, also said the Indian people could appreciate the need of city people to spend time in the forest away from city pressure.

"Speaking from the point of view of the poor and underprivileged we question what percentage of low-income people will be able to afford to reach Quetico Park from the distant eastern cities so that they may renew their acquaintance with Earlier briefs said that more than 90 per cent of the 113,000 people who used the park in 1970 were Americans. The park is about 1,000 miles northwest of the urban, highly-populated areas in southern Ontario.

Charles Ericksen, a canoe outfitter at Nym Lake on the northern outskirts of the park near Atikokan, Ont. said logging must be stopped and strict regulations placed on outfitters.

Asked by Alexander Phillips, a committee member from Thunder Bay, whether the Ontario government should operate canoeing trips into the park, Mr. Ericksen replied:

—They'd be out of business in a week if they operated it like they operate the department of lands and forests."

Other briefs came from:

—Tim Lash; representing a group of biologists, foresters and other professionals from York University, who said Quetico was ideal for a low-density park free from logging. He said the park may need quotas set on its use and a study should be made of future recreational needs to see if they match present needs.

—Ethel Teitelbaum of the Citizens' Committee to Prevent the Destruction of Quetico, who admitted she had never seen or intended to see Quetico park. She had never seen the Taj Mahal either "but I know where it is and I'm glad its there."

—Bernard Eastman of the Save Quetico Group who said limits near the park, held under license by logging companies, should be given to Domtar so that wood in the park would not have to be cut.

Ontario Budget April 26

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government spokesman said Wednesday that Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough will read his first budget speech starting at 8 p.m. Monday, April 26.

A spokesman for the clerk of the legislature said it will be the first time in memory that an Ontario budget speech has been delivered at night.

Parcost Plans Second Index

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's effort to lower prescription drug prices takes its second step next week.

C. A. Palmer, head of the health department's Parcost program, is to meet Monday with Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence. Mr. Palmer said Wednesday the second edition of the province's comparative drug index may be released after that meeting.

Liberal Wins Point

Human Resources Body Will Probe Education

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature committee on human resources voted itself wide powers Wednesday to investigate education spending and priorities in programs.

Tim Reid (Scarborough East), the Liberal education critic, called the move "a real breakthrough."

The motion passed 8 to 5 with John Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain) voting with the Liberals and the NDP in support.

Besides the five Conservatives who voted against it, a couple abstained and three or four others were absent.

Mr. Reid said exultantly in an interview later the Liberals have been fighting for this type of investigative power for committees for three years.

"This is the first time a standing committee has wanted to investigate priorities in the total area of government expenditure. This is a real breakthrough for us. Before, no other investigative body other than a department itself could investigate decisions made by any department and the minister.

His motion gave the committee authority to:

1. Investigate and identify waste, unnecessary duplication and low-priority programs in education in which significant expenditure cuts can be made.

2. Identify top priority programs in education which must be strengthened in the '70s.

3. Call before it representatives of special groups such as parents and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

4. Report to the legislature no later than June 30.

The committee agreed to invite representatives of the OSSTF to appear before it next Wednesday. The OOSTF, representing 34,000 secondary school teachers, is planning a strike May 3 to protest government ceilings on education spending. A vote is to be taken before April 22.

The human resources committee, also responsible for correctional services, health, social and family services and university affairs, elected Osie Villeneuve (PC—Glengarry) as chairman.

Five of seven committees reorganized earlier this month from about a dozen committees met for the first time Wednesday. Four adjourned in about 15 minutes after electing chairmen. This gave members the rest of the day off. Under new rules, the house is not sitting Wednesdays, reserving them for committees.

At issue in Mr. Reid's motion is the power and function of the committees.

Both Liberals and New Democratic Party members have been pressing the government to give the committees the muscle to investigate spending, question increases in such things as hydro and telephone rates, and set priorities for various departmental programs.

Elie Martel (NDP—Sudbury East), after a meeting of the new natural and physical resources committee, charged that Ontario legislature committees are "just a charade" to fool the public into thinking the government is making an intensive study of specific problems.

James Breithaupt (L—Kitchener) was the only non-government member elected as a committee chairman. It will be his third year as head of the public

In other committees, Glen Hodgson (PC—Victoria Haliburton) and Albert Belanger (PC—Prescott and Russell) were elected chairmen respectively of the legal and administration committee and the regulations committee which examines legislative power in government regulations.

Committee chairmen are paid $1,000.

Managements Balk At Coughing Up Fines Levied by Campbell

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clarence Campbell's latest assessment of fines for brawling in National Hockey League games has sparked a storm at management level.

The NHL president imposed a record $16,550 in fines Tuesday on Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers, including a maximum $5,000 apiece to each club, for their part in a donnybrook involving all players from both teams during a playoff game last Thursday in New York.

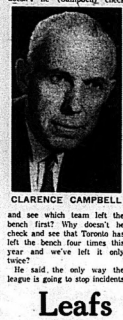
Campbell said Wednesday that Leaf president Stafford Smythe, currently basking in Florida sunshine, has advised the NHL his club won't pay the fine. Smythe could not be reached for further comment and his vice-president, Harold Ballard, refused to be drawn into the discussion when interviewed in Toronto.

Earlier Ballard suggested the league rules to dissuade players leaving the bench to participate in brawls would find much more support if the player leaving the exodus was "suspended a couple of games without pay and that would stop it."

Bill Jennings, Ranger president awarded last month the Lester Patrick Trophy "for outstanding service to hockey in the United States," said his club will appeal the size of the club fine.

He said he couldn't understand why Campbell would hit New York with such a heavy fine while apparently condoning Boston defenceman Bobby Orr shoving linesman Ron Ego in another playoff game the same night.

In announcing from his Montreal office Wednesday Smythe's refusal to pay the fine, Campbell may have issued what could be construed as a "support-me-or-else" ultimatum.



"It has reached the stage," he said, "where we will have to determine once and for all whether the governors of the NHL want this type of conduct suppressed and eliminated or do they only want it eliminated for other clubs when their team is not involved."

Saying that brawling on the scale of the New York incident detracts from hockey in the eyes of the fans, Campbell added:

"We can't go on like this. They (the governors) declared they wanted this type of behavior eliminated from the game. I asked for the powers to impose the fines and they gave them to me. However, this policy cannot be effective unless it has the complete and wholehearted support of top-level management of every club."

One of Campbell's harshest critics, Emile Francis, the Rangers' general-manager and coach, was particularly incensed by the additional $5,000 fine to New York.

"We got this because the team left the bench. Why doesn't he (Campbell), check and see which team left the bench first? Why doesn't he check and see that Toronto has left the bench four times this year and we've left it only twice?

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

He said the only way the league is going to stop incidents of this nature "is to suspend the first guy off, and the second and the third. That would stop it, snap, like that."

Campbell, in an apparent reply to Francis' comment Tuesday in which the New York coach wanted to know what was more disgraceful "hand-to-hand combat . . . or a player shoving and official," said he can't take any action in the Orr incident.

"Bench emptying has nothing to do with hand-to-hand combat. I don't object to players who are on the ice getting involved in a fist fight. This is a safety valve. . . .

"As for Orr I couldn't take any action. The linesman (Ego) said Orr had pushed him lightly before he had gone to the penalty box, but it would not have justified a game misconduct penalty. The referee (John Ashley) did not see it at all."

Campbell blamed much of the brawling in recent years on the employment by clubs of "a muscle man, a so-called policeman."

"This fellow, prior to the introduction of the new legislation, was always the first man off the bench.

"Because these tactics generated some measure of success they were imitated by other clubs."

One That Got Away

Things looked bleak for New York Rangers and goalie Ed Giacomin in the early stages of their quarter-final Stanley Cup playoff series with Toronto Maple Leafs. But Leaf goals, like this one by Paul Henderson in the second game of the best-of-seven series, have been getting fewer and farther between. The Rangers, leading the series three games to two, could wrap it up with a win in Toronto tonight.

Detroit Juniors Showing Canadians 'Howe'

OTTAWA (CP) — Detroit Junior Red Wings smashed Ottawa Rangers 8-2 Wednesday night to win the Eastern Canada Centennial Cup semi-final four games to two.

The Red Wings went home last week trailing the best-of-seven game series 2-0. Then with Mark and Marty Howe, sons of National Hockey League star Gordie Howe, setting the pace, the Wings won all three games at home before returning here to clinch the series.

They now go against Charlottetown Isladers of Prince Edward Island in the best-of-seven eastern final to decide who meets the western Canadian champions for the national title.

The eastern final opens Sunday and Monday in Charlottetown before returning to Detroit.

Bob Dobek and Doug Ross led the Wings Wednesday with two goals each. Other goals were scored by Kevin O'Rear, Mark Howe, Ron Serafini and John Asadoorian.

Leafs Prefer Short Summer

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs 'next 60 minutes of hockey could determine if they're ready for a long summer.

Leafs, on the short end of a 3-2 count in their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarter-final with New York Rangers, have skated dismally in their last two outings, 4-2 and 3-1 losses.

"We'll just have to play a little differently," said coach John McLellan after watching them work out at Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday in preparation for tonight's sixth game.

"It takes more than 20 minutes of hockey to beat New York."

One who is aware of the Leafs' inadequacies in their recent games is Eddie Giacomin, New York goaltender who says it has enabled him to play the type of game he favors.

The Sudbury native enjoys skating into the corner to retrieve loose pucks. Because Toronto was able to jump into early leads in the first three games of the series, he was determined not to take any chances.

In addition to playing it safe, Giacomin and the Rangers were aware they had been labelled playoff losers. This is the fifth straight year they have reached the Stanley Cup playoffs and New York has gone out early in the last four, winning a total of four games.

Giacomin says a win here tonight, however, will change everything. And now that Rangers seem to have the momentum, he foresees his ramblings from the goal crease continuing much as they have in the last two games.

"But this is the way I like to play, in the same sort of style Jacques (Plante) introduced. You feel more in the game when you're going into the corners. You're a third defenceman."

He gives credit for much of Leafs' early success in the series to veterans Dave Keon, Norm Ullman and Paul Henderson who were 'really flying.'

"Of course, people will say that we weren't playing well. But I think . . . Toronto was playing great. Then it seemed to reverse so we were able to play our style.

"You hear all the alk about the first goal, which we've got in the last two games, and it is important; from a goalie's point of view anyway."

Asked if he's looking forward to the semi-finals against the well-rested Chicago Black Hawks who scored a four-game sweep from Philadelphia Flyers, Giacomin replied:

"How do I know? I've never been in a seat series."

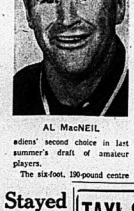
Canadiens Making Changes



MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, facing elimination from their Stanley Cup quarter-final series against Boston Bruins tonight, called up two players from Montreal Voyageurs, their American Hockey League farm team.

Defenceman Bob Murdoch and centre Chuck Lefley practised with the Canadiens Wednesday and coach Al MacNeil said one of them will replace the injured Phil Roberto against the Bruins.

Roberto suffered a badly bruised back in the Canadiens' 7-3 loss Tuesday night which gave the Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions, a 3-2 lead in the series.

Murdoch played with the Canadiens in their last game of the regular season in Boston and earned two assists.

Lefley, a native of Winnipeg, also played with the Canadian national team. He was the Canadiens' second choice in last summer's draft of amateur players.

AL MacNEIL

The six-foot, 190-pound centre appeared in one game for the Canadiens this season.

Another change MacNeil may make is in the goaltending department. Ken Dryden, a former star with Cornell University, has appeared in all five playoff games so far, facing 206 shots and allowing 21 goals.

"They have got that great power," said Dryden of the Bruins, who peppered him with 56 shots Tuesday. "I saw it this time so we have to stay close to them longer."

Coach Al MacNeil still feels his club can come back from their deficit.

"Nothing is impossible. The Bruins came back from a 2-1 deficit didn't they?"

The Bruins arrived here Wednesday and coach Tom Johnson, although he did not make a prediction on the outcome of tonight's contest, said his team appears to be back in the groove.

Stars Lucky Lou Stayed

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lou Nanne, the unexpected hero of the Minnesota-St. Louis Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff, almost decided to retire after this National Hockey League season.

But the 29-year-old former University of Minnesota and U.S. Olympic star changed his mind during the current series that sees Nanne's North Stars take a 3-2 edge in games into tonight's showdown at the Metropolitan Sports Centre.

Nanne, a naturalized U.S. citizen born in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has made the Blues wish he retired before the playoffs. The Minnesota forward, converted from defence this year, has shored one goal and four assists in the pulsating series.

Bench Setting Torrid Plate Pace for Defending Champion Reds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Catcher Johnny Bench cracked three hits Wednesday, including a home run, to power Cincinnati Reds to an 8-3 win over Atlanta Braves in National League action.

Increasing his batting average with two singles, Bench helped the defending champions sweep the three-game set with four homers among his seven hits, seven runs knocked in and six scored.

His singles Wednesday night were against Phil-Niekro, longtime knuckleball nemesis, and boosted Bench's morale as well as his hitting percentage.

"Already I've had a good year against Niekro," said Bench, whose mark jumped from .258 to .379 with his sensational series. "He's the toughest pitcher for me to hit."

Atlanta's Hank Aaron also did a job on the Cincinnati staff, including two homers Wednesday night that gave him three for the series.

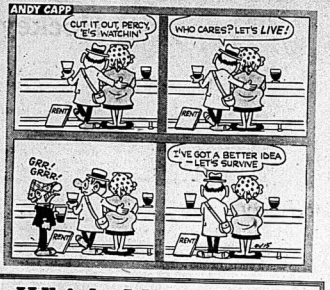
Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5, San Francisco Giants turned back Houston Astros 2-1 and St. Louis Cardinals beat Los Angeles Dodgers 7-1. Two contests were rained out: Chicago Cubs at San Diego Padres and New York Mets at Montreal Expos.

Tony Cloninger got his first victory of the year for Cincinnati, but had to be bailed out in the last three innings by Clay Carroll, a former Brave.

The Reds snapped a 2-2 tie with four runs in the third inning, opening with singles by Tony Perez and Bench. Willie Smith bounced to Niekro, who fielded the ball and threw it into centre field, allowing Perez to score.

Hal McRae then drilled a two-run double to the fence and Tommy Helms got in the last run of the inning with a ground-out scored McRae.

Aaron, now only three homers away from the 600 mark, unloaded a two-run shot in the first inning, then fired a solo blast into the left-field seats in the fourth.



Denny Doyle delivered a two-run single with the bases loaded in the last of the eighth as Philadelphia struck from behind. The Pirates had gone ahead 5-4 in the top of the frame when Al Oliver's forceout bouncer scored Manny Sanguillen.

Tito Fuentes' two-out single to centre in the 11th inning drove in Frank Johnson with the winning run for San Francisco, which won its third straight game.

Dick Dietz opened the frame against reliever George Culver with a single. After a strikeout, Johnson forced Dietz, but took second on a shortstop Roger Metzger's throwing error. After Alan Gallagher was intentionally walked, Fuentes hit a 2-2 offering into centre and Johnson beat Cesar Cedeno's throw home.

Jim Beauchamp and Lou Brock each hit homers and knocked in two runs apiece for St. Louis and a former Los Angeles infielder, Ted Sizemore, tormented the Dodgers with an RBI single and steal of home.

Beauchamp's bases-empty homer in the fifth broke a scoreless duel between St. Louis' Jerry Reuss and Los Angeles' Claude Osteen.

Pitcher Proving Williams' Point

Ted Williams of Washington Senators claimed last season that the won-lost record of relief ace Darold Knowles' was the phoniest in baseball history.

Knowles, who logged 27 saves and a respectable 2.64 earned run average, had a miserable 2-14 mark with the American League club managed by the former Boston star.

This season, the 30-year-old lefthander has justified Williams' assessment and already sports a 2-0 mark.

His latest fireman's role came Wednesday when he got a call with the Senators trailing Boston Red Sox 5-0. His Washington team-mates, never known to offer him much support, rebounded with six runs in the seventh for a 6-5 win.

In other league action, Baltimore Orioles blanked Cleveland Indians 3-0, New York Yankees rapped Detroit Tigers 8-4, Milwaukee Brewers shut out Chicago White Sox 2-0, Oakland Athletics took Minnesota Twins 6-1 and California Angels dropped Kansas City Royals 4-1.

Knowles hasn't given up a run in 5 1-3 innings spread over three games. But when he mowed down the Red Sox in the top of the seventh Wednesday night, it hardly seemed important since Washington trailed by five runs.

Suddenly, though, it became very important as Washington rallied. Mike Epstein opened with a walk and singles by Joe Foy, Frank Howard and Rubio Scheinblum kayoed Mike Nagy, who had been working on a two-hit shutout until then.

An error by reliever Bob Bolin loaded the bases and then Bolin walked Tom McCraw and Elliot Maddox on eight pitches, forcing two more runs home. Tim Cullen followed with a single driving home Washington's tying and winning runs.

Mike Cuellar spun a four-hitter and Boog Powell bombed a two-run homer to move Baltimore past Cleveland. The Orioles have won five of six games and have had four complete game efforts by their pitching staff.

Felipe Alou, making his debut for the Yankees, tagged a fourth inning homer that touched off a four-run New York rally in the victory over Detroit. Dick McAuliffe homered for the Tigers.

Rookie Jim Slaton, 20, combined with Marcelino Lopez and Ken Sanders to shut out Chicago on three hits for Milwaukee.

Tommy Harper and Ted Savage drove in the Brewers' runs with singles in the seventh and ninth innings as the Sox dropped their fifth straight.

Reggie Jackson ripped two homers and pitcher Diego Segui tagged a three-run shot as Oakland bolted Minnesota Twins 6-1.

PITCHING—Mike Cuellar, Orioles, spun a four-hitter that carried Baltimore over Cleveland Indians 3-0.

Aaron, who connected for three runs batted in and a run scored, also had a single in the first inning, then fired a solo blast into the left-field seats in the fourth.

Denny Doyle delivered a two-run single with the bases loaded in the last of the eighth as Philadelphia struck from behind. The Pirates had gone ahead 5-4 in the top of the frame when Al Oliver's forceout bouncer scored Manny Sanguillen.

Tito Fuentes' two-out single to centre in the 11th inning drove in Frank Johnson with the winning run for San Francisco, which won its third straight game.

TORONTO (CP) — There were as many cheers and whistles for the fashion models as there were for the fighters Wednesday night as girls and boys shared the ring in a new experiment in boxing promotion.

The crowd of 1,600 who turned out in the Royal York Hotel's largest convention room were enough for promoter Vince Bagnato to call the experiment a success and he already has plans for another such show.

And while the fashion show helped advertise the wares of a local boutique owner, the fights were a forward step for the Gray brothers, Stewart and Clyde, two Halifax natives now living in Toronto.

In a preliminary match, Stewart, 27, won a unanimous decision over Ronnie Edwards, also a former Halifax fighter, and thus earned a shot at the Canadian middleweight title held by Dave Downey of Halifax.

Following the show of buttpants and bathing suit fashions, Clyde Gray, Canadian welterweight champion, entered the ring to knock out Don Ross in the fourth round of a 10-round non-title match.

Clyde, 24, who weighed-in at 151 pounds, had little trouble with the 34-year-old Ross who came in at 154.

Ring Card Moved Back

NEW YORK (AP) — A closed-circuit television boxing triple-header in Chicago, Toronto and Oakland, Calif., has been moved back a week, to May 10 from May 3.

K.O. Inc., which set up the all-heavyweight show, said Wednesday it changed the date to accommodate Chicago promoter Joe Kellman.

Kellman's feature bout matches Terrell, the former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, and Luis Faustino Pires of Brazil.

The other bouts match Jimmy Ellis, another former WBA champion, and Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo at Toronto and George Foreman and Gregorio Peralta of Argentina at Oakland.

Sport Briefs

Baltimore Bullets, injury-ridden but no longer dazed, have forged a tie in the National Basketball Association playoffs against a New York team now in danger of tottering because of an injury to Willis Reed.

With Reed in obvious pain from an injured shoulder and benched for the last seven minutes, the Bullets trounced the defending champion Knicks 101-90 Wednesday night to tie the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals 2-2.

In the West, injury-plagued Los Angeles Lakers stayed in the championship hunt by dropping Milwaukee Bucks 118-107. The Bucks lead that series 2-1.

Jack Marin led the Bullets with 27 points and Walt Frazier paced the Knicks with 16.

Will Chamberlain led a make-shift Los Angeles club to its surprising victory over Milwaukee. The seven-foot-one Chamberlain was one of four Lakers to score 24 points, but he also grabbed 24 rebounds before a crowd of 17,234.

Lew Alcindor, the 7-2 former all-American, had 20 points and 19 rebounds for the Bucks, who were led in scoring by Bob Dandridge's 25.

SEATTLE (AP) — Andy Hebenton was named winner Wednesday of the Western Hockey League's most-gentlemanly-player award for the third time and the second year in a row. The Portland Buckaroos' winger served only 10 minutes in 72 games and scored 39 goals, 52 assists for 81 points to become only the third three-time winner of the Fred Hume Cup.

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association began a three-day meeting Wednesday to legislate Rseil out of existence.

Withdrawal of Laval, Montreal and McGill universities prompted the dissolution of the OQAA, which must find a new name and organization for its surviving Ontario membership. The Quebec universities will confine organized athletics to their home province next season.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Wright, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, announced Wednesday that the association is undertaking a five-year development program aimed at preparing Canada for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal.

"The initial step in this program consists in sending more than 250 athletes to the Pan American Games in Cali, Colombia, next August—the largest contingent ever sent from Canada to an international event," he said.

TORONTO (CP) — Two major appointments in Canadian professional golf were announced Wednesday by the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association.

Al Balding of Toronto has been appointed a special consultant to the tour and David Zink of Thornhill, Ont., the CPGA tour co-ordinator.

The seven-event tour opens June 17 at Toronto's Weston golf club and winds up at the Marine Drive club in Vancouver Aug. 8.

The Canadian Open is set for the Richelieu Valley club, Montreal, starting July 1 with a total purse of $150,000. The seven provincial open events carry a combined purse of $79,000 with Ontario, Quebec and B.C. totalling $16,000 each.

Industrial Loop Adds Entries

As far as softball entries are concerned it appears as though the rich really do get richer.

At the first annual meeting of the Industrial Softball League, which operated last season with a city-high total of 11 teams, an even dozen entries suggested interest in fielding a club for the upcoming season.

The only starters from last year's alignment not represented were the CNR Combines and the CNR Orioles, however proposed entries from Brooke-Bond, Loyalist retraining program and the Belleville Bankers more than took up the slack.

Established teams indicating an interest in competing in 1971 were the Post Office, Union Carbide, Meaford Johnson, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Intelligencer, AOCO, Merck Marine, Delore Stellite and the Fire Department.

Ray Finkle was elected as president by the 30 team representatives on hand, replacing Aus Watkin as league head, Garnet Bird will take over the position of vice-president with Blaine Young working as secretary - treasurer.

Among the matters under discussion were entry fees, umpires fees and the possibility of utilizing four softball diamonds for this season's play, which would be an increase of one playing field over last year. Teams will compete in home - and - home series.

No deadline has been set as yet for proposed entries. The next meeting will be he'd Monday, 7.30 p.m. at the Recreation Centre Pinnacle Street.

Billy Cooper Says:

Golf's Million Dollar Winner

"ET ARM EXTENSION

Keeping the left arm relatively straight although not rigid, is an integral part of the correct golf swing. I'll point out a couple of advantages.

For one, the straight left arm coupled with hinging wrists serves to build up centrifugal force at impact. If you allow your left arm to collapse at any point, you will lose that "swish" at impact and also lose distance.

A second advantage of the straight left arm is that it preserves the arc of the swing. Swinging in this manner will give you the best chance of making solid contact. If you start out this way and leave the left arm conversation straight, it will be natural to bring the clubhead directly into the back of the ball. Let the arm collapse and you'll probably top the shot.

Three Hundred Turn Out For Minor Hockey Meeting

Minor hockey isn't the only game in town, but it demonstrated pretty clearly last night that it is the heavyweight of the local minor sports family.

While other minor groups often have only a handful of interested persons on hand for their organizational meetings a whopping 300 turned out for the Belleville Minor Hockey Association gathering at Ben Bleecker Auditorium last night.

"It was really tremendous to get a turnout like that," observed president Don Gavey, "although I think that a lot of them were on hand just because of the proposed amendments."

One key proposal concerned preventing players up to and including juvenile age from moving up to Junior, B hockey while they were still eligible to play minor hockey. The amendment was moved by novice all-star coach Dave Coates.

Belleville Fairways officials had felt that the proposed amendment would seriously threaten junior hockey in the city, since graduates of the juvenile program would only be eligible for one year of junior competition.

The matter was tabled and did not come to a vote before the general assembly.

"We got together with officials from the juniors, juvenilles and midgets after the regular meeting had ended, since these were the three teams who would be most involved in the outcome of the amendment", said Gavey.

"I think that we'll be able to resolve the matter without too much difficulty" he added, "we're (the minor hockey executive) going to try and establish some guidelines for dealing between the juniors and the minor hockey teams and then hold another meeting in the near future with the teams involved."

The other amendment which had sparked a great deal of interest would have limited voting power to minor hockey league coaches, officials and sponsors of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. The resolution was soundly deafeated.

The two issues were the major points of interest at the meeting although a number of minor resolutions were discussed.

The executive's main concern at the moment now involves the allotment of ice time when minor hockey moves to the Dick Ellis Memorial Rink next winter.

If everything goes according to plan each minor house league player will receive approximately 8½ more hours of ice time than in 1970.

"We're going to have to increase the registration fee from five to six dollars, but that's still only about 2.3 the cost that you'd have to pay in most other municipalities", claimed the president.

Other future plans of the minor hockey body include holding a coaching clinic and introducing a publicity officer for the group.

It was decided that a standard method of coaching introduced at a clinic would be beneficial since boys would then get used to a particular system of hockey throughout the whole program.

Austin Watkin, who handled publicity for the Shrine Peewee Tournament this year has indicated that he will accept the post of publicity director provided that the proposed office meets with the approval of the minor hockey executive.

Dukes Dynamite Royal Opposition

The ANAF Dukes cast the last stone in annual competition between the Belleville and District Shuffleboard champions and their counterparts from Trenton.

Hugh Northey and Ron Culloden turned out to be the "dynamite twins" for the Belleville shuffleboarders winning six games, including a sudden death decision which gave the ANAF a 10-9 win in the series.

Trenton's Royal Hotel had taken a 6-3 victory in the opening round last week, but the Dukes managed to pull even on their home board to force the sudden death situation.

Other members of the winning team included Tom Bentley, Dash Mahaffy, Bill Newell, Dave Feeney, Jim Campbell, Bill Rohrbeck and Doug Archer.

Lions Wish They Were in Dixie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dixie Beehives defeated Peterborough Lions 2-0 Wednesday night to take a commanding 3-0 lead in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final.

In the other best-of-seven semi-final, Petrolia Jets edged Hamilton Mountain Rees 3-2 to even their series at one game each.

Action in both series resumes Friday night in Dixie and Hamilton.

John Bright opened the scoring at Peterborough in the 11th minute of play in the first period and Gary Young completed the scoring for Dixie with 20 seconds remaining in the game. He scored into an empty net.

At Sarnia, Jeff Lindsay scored the winner for Petrolia at 16:45 of the second period. Jim Crawford and Jim Willis added the other Petrolia goals.

Ron Buist and Bruce Fitzgerald scored for the Bees, who were outshot 29-27.

Hamilton players drew 10 minor penalties and one major while Petrolia earned four minors, two majors and a misconduct.

Petrolia's Don Parker and Hamilton's John Bellie were handed game misconducts after they joined in a second-period fight.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Good Card Players Wait

Thoughts at Large:

When we persuade people before we instruct them, we merely produce fanatics who betray our cause, more than disciples who advance it.

* * *

The unforgiving man assumes a judgment that not even the theologians have given to God.

* * *

Poor players blame their results on the cards; but the good player doesn't get better cards, or even necessarily play them any better; what he is best at is waiting.

* * *

A man who freely and frankly admits a mistake grows in our estimation; but a government never admits a mistake, and falsely imagines that concealing or mislabelling an error preserves its public image, when even a child can detect the discrepancy between statement and fact.

* * *

The mindless mobs who stone police stations are composed of the same people who would be outraged by a mindless mob storming a police station in order to lynch a prisoner held there.

* * *

To belittle oneself is more often a form of inverse arrogance than of modesty; as Einstein once remarked of a self-effacing colleague: "He has no right to be so modest—he is not all that great."

* * *

Scores of "religious" people write to me, urging that I read this or that passage in the Bible, to become convinced of the truth; what such zealots fail to realize is that nobody believes because he reads the Bible, but he reads the Bible because he believes (and if he doesn't know how to believe, his reading is more likely to stunt him than expand him.)

* * *

Children are not so much ruined by either extreme of discipline or permissiveness as by hypocrisy, which is far more rampant than either; for a child can learn to cope with rigidity or flaccidity—what he cannot handle is the parental abyss between preachment and practice; between form and substance, between the conscious rectitude and the unconscious gratification of selfish needs, which he sees so clearly.

'I do hope it's not polluted!'

Breweries Talk

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations resumed Wednesday between representatives of 3,000 Ontario brewery employees and the major brewing companies.

No strike deadline has been set by the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America, which represents brewery workers, transport drivers, warehouse employees and retail store clerks at Molson, Carling, Canadian Breweries Ltd., Brewers' Warehousing Ltd. Also involved is the National Brewery Workers Union which represents workers at Labatt's.

Three Provinces Fighting Pollution

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Anti-pollution and anti-litter laws took shape in three provincial legislatures Wednesday, with New Brunswick's Clean Environment Act the most sweeping.

The house in Fredericton gave first reading to a bill designed to restore and preserve the province's air, soil and water over a long period.

Alberta and Saskatchewan are considering anti-litter acts.

The New Brunswick Act provides for establishment of specific environmental standards and sets out stiff penalties for violation. The house was told it paves the way for eventual creation of a government department responsible solely for environmental management.

Air, soil or water standards are not spelled out in the act but are left for the cabinet to set by regulation.

The legislature heard it was not the government's intention to bring unrealistic standards to bear overnight on established industries. They would be given time to install adequate pollution control facilities. New industries would be compelled to comply at once.

A maximum penalty of $500 or six months in jail is provided for any violation by an individual or $1,000 in the case of a corporation. An offence is committed for each day a violation occurs.

Lasso 4 with Atrazine gives season long control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds
Last year Lasso 4 was a brand new herbicide and we made a lot of promises. Now the promises have been proven.
A Lasso 4/atrazine mix needs no incorporation.
Lasso 4/atrazine will not damage your crops or ruin your rotation plans because there is less carryover.
Lasso 4/atrazine controls both broadleaf weeds and grasses (including crabgrass, fall panicum and barnyard-grass) in corn.
Lasso 4 is available from your local farm supply dealer.

Jarvis Wary Of Plea

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Rebellious prisoners at Kingston penitentiary demanded today that representatives of the news media be allowed to tour cell blocks controlled by the prisoners.

Henry Champ, a CTV reporter who has been acting as liaison between the prisoners and reporters, said the prisoners suggested that if this demand is not met, they would break off talks with a citizens' committee.

Warden Arthur Jarvis reportedly was "very nervous" about allowing journalists into the area where the 300 prisoners have held six guards hostage since Wednesday night.

While the warden was attempting to make a decision on the demand, talks continued between the citizens' committee and representatives of the prisoners in an unidentified area of the penitentiary.

Mr. Champ, who was in touch with the prisoners by telephone, said the demand that journalists be allowed in the cell blocks was made by Emmanuel Lester, identified as leader of the rebellion.

Prison officials were against meeting the prisoners' demand that all reporters present at the prison be allowed into the cell blocks. A proposal that small groups of perhaps four or five reporters be allowed to make a tour in rotation was being discussed.

Meantime, 120 riot-trained Canadian Forces soldiers who entered the penitentiary at dusk Thursday remained on duty in shifts, with some of them being withdrawn for rest periods at the nearby Barriefield army base.

The khaki-clad troops, from CFB Kingston, arrived in a truck convoy in front of the massive maximum security in-

Guard Says Hostages Being Well Treated

KINGSTON (CP) — A spokesman for the six guards held hostage at Kingston penitentiary said Thursday they were being well treated.

Ed Barrett, senior keeper on his shift and highest ranking of the hostages, was allowed to meet briefly with CTV reporter Henry Champ, the only man, including prison officials, allowed into the area taken over by prisoners Wednesday night.

Mr. Barrett told Mr. Champ the six were being kept together in an unspecified room. None had been hurt, and the prisoners had posted security guards to keep them safe.

He said he and the other hostages were well satisfied with the security arrangements, so strict that no prisoners other than the security guards are allowed near them.

Three of the hostages are no strangers to prison violence.

Mr. Barrett, D. J. Flyn, also a senior officer, and D. A. (Dad) Dale are all veterans with more than 20 years service at Kingston, and all were on hand for the last major disturbance in 1954.

For two other hostages, however, captivity comes near the start of their careers G. A. Vallier and K. G. Bushell have been guards for less than six months.

The sixth man taken prisoner Wednesday night when the prisoners refused to return to their cells after a recreation period is Terry Decker, with five years service.

Heavy Fighting Is Reported Along Pakistan-India Border

KARACHI, West Pakistan (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported along the Indian border in East Pakistan Thursday night with West Pakistani troops claiming "severe casualties" inflicted on Indian intruders and "anti-state elements."

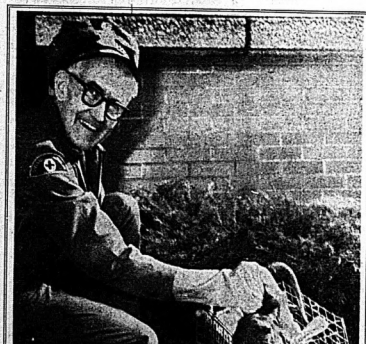
The state radio here reported West Pakistani troops seized the strategic Bhairab Bridge in the Mymen Singh area in pre-dawn action.

It said the "severe casualties" were inflicted as the Indian intruders and "anti-state elements" prepared to dynamite the bridge.

The broadcast said huge quantities of arms, ammunition and other supplies were captured.

Bhairab rail bridge is located about 25 miles from Agartala, a town bordering the Indian state of Tripura, from which West Pakistanis allege many Indian infiltrators have entered the troubled Eastern province to aid secessionist groups, always described in official statements here as "miscreants."

The bridge spans the Magnua River linking the East Pakistan capital of Dacca and Chittagong port and Dacca and Sylhet.



The radio quoted reports saying West Pakistani troops surprised the infiltrators and anti-state elements about to blow up the bridge with 36 dynamite charges already placed.

The broadcast said Pakistani troops took the bridge intact and seized the demolition charges bearing marks of Indian ordnance factories.

It accused the Indian intruders of trying to dislocate transport and communication system in East Pakistan with the aim of throwing its economy out of gear.

But India today accused Pakistan of indulging in "savage and medieval butchery" in East Pakistan.

The Indian statement came on the heels of Indian charges Thursday that Pakistani troops machine-gunned an Indian village and injured civilians along the border.

'No' Vote Might Not Halt Strike

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — Ontario secondary school teachers may be asked to walk off the job May 3, even if the majority vote against it next week, an assistant secretary with the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation said Thursday.

Abe Thiessen of Toronto said teachers will be asked in a referendum if they are for a one-day walkout May 3 and a work to rule program.

He said the executive council of the OSSTF will use the results of the referendum as a guideline, but might in fact recommend a walkout even if the teachers vote against the move.

Prisoners Calm Voicing Demands

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP) — On the top floor of the administration building, in a drab room with heavily-barred windows, 12 prison officials and reporters sat around on chairs and a long, narrow table, listening.

Three determined prisoners, in icy calm and lucid tones, listed the five demands of more than 500 rioting prisoners at Kingston penitentiary.

Six hostages waited in a cell-block below with their captors.

Eight reporters asked few questions, but took notes on the dialogue. No voices were raised. Points were made quietly.

William Knight, burly, barrel-chested, with long black hair, did most of the talking. He was accompanied by Emanuel Lester, squat and middle-aged and Charles Saunders, younger, crew-cut and slightly nervous.

"We want the guns out of our faces and food, and the men will be as quiet as babies," said Knight, who claimed to be from Toronto, Chatham, Ont., and Kingston.

"The guys are very calm now," added Lester, a United States native.

Computer Damage Case Opens

MONTREAL (CP) — The trial of five persons charged in connection with the destruction of a computer at Sir George Williams University in 1969 began Thursday although a bench warrant was sworn out against one of the accused who was not present.

Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay issued the warrant when Thomas Bates, one of the five charged with obstruction and mischief, failed to appear.

The others are Roosevelt Douglas, Anne Cools, Brenda Dickinson-Dash and Gail August.

Shanghai Impresses Some Americans

SHANGHAI (AP) — The touring U.S. table tennis team got a glimpse today of Shanghai's industry and some of the more expert members gave it qualified high marks.

Players and officials spent an hour going through the vast permanent industrial exhibit housed in a wedding cake-style building put up in 10 months in 1955. They saw a wide range of products, from sewing machines to automobiles and giant trucks.

Afterward Graham Steenbowen, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, said: "It was fantastic, terrific, an example of the material progress they have made."

An executive of the Chrysler Corp., Steenbowen said: "I was particularly interested in the big truck because that is my field. The arc welding in that was a beautiful bead."

He was referring to a goliath of a dump truck called the Shanghai, which weighs 22 tons, is diesel-powered, has 400 horsepower and at 25-ton capacity. Used in mining or big construction projects, it can go 20 miles an hour.

Bufford Harrison of Wilmington, Del., a chemist with DuPont, was not so impressed with the chemical exhibit.

"My over-all impression is that they are backward in some areas and advanced in others," he said. "The chemical industry is backward while textiles are very advanced."

After seeing a rural commune, the party was flying to Canton to spend the night. They will cross the border to Hong Kong about noon Saturday, fly to Tokyo soon after, and plan to catch a flight for the United States Sunday.

TORONTO (CP) — It will cost three times as much to remove phosphates from the Great Lakes through a ban on phosphate detergents as it would cost to treat all sewage at a chemical precipitation plant, says a chemist from McMaster University, J. Pepsi-Cola needs a partner to keep Canada beautiful:

You.

For a cleaner, more beautiful Canada Pepsi-Cola is doing its part. Here's the simple 1-2-3 way you can do your part — and save money on Pepsi-Cola, too.

1. Save the carrying carton. This not only gives you a convenient way to return your bottles, but it also reduces litter.
2. Please rinse out your Pepsi-Cola empties before returning the bottles. (In fact, do this with all soft drink returnables.) Naturally, these bottles are made completely sanitary at the Pepsi-Cola plant before refilling. But a simple rinsing before returning, however, is an extra little clean-up step your storekeeper will greatly appreciate while he stores bottles prior to our pickup.

Argument Is Costly

On Jan. 29, a Belleville Police officer patrolling Front Street, attempted to disperse a crowd gathered before a downtown restaurant. A second officer inside the eatery had answered a call to break up a disturbance inside the establishment.

The crowd outside broke up with the exception of one Belleville youth who, police reports indicate, attempted to heatedly discuss the matter to some length with the officer.

In provincial court yesterday, Ronald William Woods, 21, of 82 Emily Street, was found guilty of causing a disturbance and fined $25 plus $13 court costs.

Chamber To Move

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce, now located on Pinnacle St., will be moving into the old Intelligencer building in the closing days of April.

Although the lease of the present building has not expired, the landlord has given the Chamber of Commerce permission to sublet the building until the lease expires in August of 1972.

Because of the abundance of space in the new building, the Ontario Motor League will occupy the same premises as a tenant of the Chamber of Commerce.

J. C. Houston, manager of the Chamber said there will also be available desk space for rent in the building and a telephone answering service for those who need a working base in Belleville.

Tapes Stolen

A thief with an ear for music yesterday made off with 12 stereo tapes and a tape cake removed from a car belonging to Garry Harrington, 33 Catherine Street.

The theft occurred in broad daylight, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. while Mr. Harrington's unlocked car was parked on a service station lot at the corner of North Front and Moira Streets.

A personal hobby, not affiliated with any club, the boys' exhibit is one of almost 80 being prepared for today's judging at the 1971 Rotary Club of Belleville Science Fair and Hobby Show at the Belleville Armories. Dufferin Water Supply Situation Complicated

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities Commission meeting here today, faces a major decision on its program to service Dufferin Developments.

Although the PUC agreed Feb. 25 that it would extend water mains to the 200-home subdivision, no firm decision has been made on the route the water line will follow.

Initially only one route, an overland pipeline to service the new homes through Sunrise Developments, was being considered. However, to use this path may bring complications.

A letter from engineering consultants Gore and Storrie, received by the commission April 6, will be considered at this afternoon's meeting of public utilities commissioners.

The brief from the Toronto firm presents three options to the PUC . . . going through Sunrise, around it, or bringing the water line into Dufferin from the north off Dundas Street West.

The latter two possibilities would cost about $20,000 more than the original scheme, which was estimated at $103,000.

Hugh O'Neill, one of the principals of Dufferin Developments, said this morning he expects building of the first homes in the project to commence next week.

Heart Foundation $3,000 Richer

The Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation is $3,000 richer as a consequence of the opening of the Four Seasons Hotel here.

Murray Robertson, executive director of the Heart Foundation announced from Toronto today that $3,000 was the amount raised through sale of raffle and bar tickets at the reception Wednesday night to open the hotel officially. "We're delighted," he said.

An estimated 2,000 people attended the reception at the invitation of the Heart Fund official here. Hostesses circulated among the crowds, selling the tickets for drinks and for the four raffle prizes.

Mr. Robertson said today that the Heart Foundation received the proceeds of the sale of the raffle tickets and the profits from the bar tickets. The Four Seasons hotel chain contributed the use of its facilities and staff and 30,000 individual hors d'oeuvres made in the hotel kitchen.

Job 'Conditional'

TRENTON (Staff) — Public Utilities chairman D. James MacDonald told The Intelligencer this morning that the arrangement by which Doug Lahaye has become general manager of the commission, is conditional . . . drawn up on a six-month basis.

He emphasized that the PUC, or Mr. Manlew, may opt out of the arrangement within the period, if either party is dissatisfied. Speaking personally, he said the new setup looks good.

Used Buses A Bargain

Two for little more than the price of one is the current motto of the Belleville Transit Commission.

Earlier this year, the commission included in an amount of $22,000 in its 1971 budget for the purchase of a new small coach.

Since then, however, two 1967 used GMC 35 passenger diesel buses have become available at Cornwall and the commission wants to purchase the two units in place of the one new coach.

Total cost of the two units would be $25,000.

Council yesterday approved a request from the transit commission for a bylaw for $22,000 authorizing purchase of the two vehicles. Approval also has to be given by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The balance of $3,000 would be provided in the current transit commission budget and from the sale of three older buses.

The estimated cost of a new coach is $28,000. The Cornwall buses is $28,500.

Overflow Into River

Heavier than usual ground water conditions as result of the spring break-up are taxing the capacity of the city's west side sanitary sewer system.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said that many of the footing drains around residences lead into sanitary sewers and during heavy ground water conditions the pressure main leading from the river to the sewage plant cannot handle the load.

As a precaution to minimize possible sewer backups the sewer main across the river has a design overlow which allows the excess to go into the river.

To correct the problem an additional 24-inch pressure main from the river to the treatment plant is now being connected up at the Firemen's Park pumping station.

Quinte Mall Is Shaping Up

Quinte Mall at highways 401 and 14 will open in late summer with two "anchor stores" — Simpsons-Sears and Miracle Food Mart — and 35 local and national retail shops.

For the first time, the city will have a Laura Secord Candy Shop. It will be one more outlet in the firm's chain of more than 200 shops across Canada.

Western Saloon style dining and drinking will be featured at Sneaky Pete — a three-in-one restaurant and licensed bar.

Total Food Systems operates the Sneaky Pete outlets, a name symbolic of old western prospectors.

A fast service saloon bar featuring specialty sandwiches, hamburgs and hot dogs with seating in the rear, will be complemented by a 170 - seat, full service saloon featuring western burgers, and pizza. Third part of the outlet will be a soft ice cream parlor.

Famous Players, Canada's largest motion picture theatre circuit, is adding a twin - auditorium theatre to the mall.

"We already control two theatres in Belleville through our subsidiary, 20th Century Theatres Ltd.," said W. M. Murray vice - president and general manager of the chain. "But, we are confident the location and traffic flow provided by the shopping centre will make it a viable asset for us."

Cambridge Leaseholds, owner-developer of the mall, has announced the appointment of David F. Blandford as mall manager.

A bachelor of arts graduate of York University, Mr. Blandford has had extensive merchandising experience with the Hudsons Bay Company, and before joining Cambridge Leaseholds was assistant manager of a regional shopping centre in Toronto.

The $7-million shopping mall is expected to employ 300 full - time and 200 part-time local residents and have an annual payroll of $2 million.

Muskrats On Move

High water conditions in the rivers and marshes have got the muskrats on the move.

Within the past week, motorists have reported muskrats being killed crossing the highways, while the water residents are also making their way into areas of human habitation.

One day this week a muskrat was found seeking refuge in the shrubbery at the front of The Intelligencer building right in downtown Belleville.

A spokesman at the Tweed Lands and Forests said today it was not unusual for muskrats to travel, but suspected the reason for the current migration was high water levels in the marshes.

"The muskrat houses have been flooded out," he said.

The spokesman said this was particularly true in the upper reaches of the Moira watershed where water levels are now the highest in years.

The peak in lake levels — still ice covered — is expected some time this weekend.

Last Chance For Reduced Membership

The Belleville Community Concert Association has announced a bonus to all new members who join the association before April 17, 1971.

The new members will be entitled to attend the April 29 concert at BCIVS, for the fourth in the 1970-71 series of concerts. This event will feature American tenor John Stewart, an operatic artist.

Mr. Stewart has sung in operas across the United States, expanding his knowledge with advanced studies in theory and composition at Yale and Brown Universities before majoring in voice at the New England Conservatory in Boston.

The performance, scheduled for 8.30 p.m. on Thursday, April 29, will conclude a season which included Dorothy Warenskjold's musical theatre company in November, the violin and piano renditions of Masi-Hon and Tung Kwong in January and harpists Longstreth and Escosa in March.

Memberships are being sold to adults for $5 and students for $3. This bonus is in addition to the regular performances of the 1971-72 season, to commence this fall.

JOHN STEWART

Drug Counsellor May Locate Here

Garth Toombs, co-ordinator of regional programs for the Addiction Research Foundation, will visit Isidore Cooperman, director of the United Community Services, to discuss the possibilities of a drug counselling centre in Belleville.

Mr. Cooperman, while attending the seminars in Loyalist College, sponsored by the Addiction Research Foundation, said at that time that Belleville was large enough and had a great enough need for facilities of this sort.

Mr. Cooperman stated in a letter to H. D. Archibald, executive director of the foundation, that the splendid attendance and excited interest of the turnout for the drug seminars showed that the area needed an "ongoing, educational and emergency measures program."

Mr. Cooperman said one way of doing this would be to have a full-time community consultant to work in the neighborhood.

In a reply to Mr. Cooperman, Mr. Toombs explained a task force has already been set up to determine what kind of facilities would be the best for certain areas.

"We are quite concerned about the minimal services that we have in the Hastings and Prince Edward counties and about six other nearby counties," said Mr. Toombs.

Mr. Toombs will be meeting with Mr. Cooperman and a small committee in the opening days of May to discuss the plan in more detail.

Unemployment—and the Welfare State—Here to Stay?

Peterborough Examiner

The prime minister's whirlwind tour of the Niagara Peninsula resulted in the usual number of kisses for pretty supporters, autographs on the funniest places and enthusiastic handshakes in windswept heliports.

In fact, there were, so many kisses, handshakes and autographs that some of the things Mr. Trudeau said during his tour were hardly noticed, even though they concerned not only the present but the future of the country.

If one listened carefully, one couldn't help notice the deliberate, low-key treatment used in the prime minister's remarks on the prime minister's attempts to be very casual about our economic future.

What Mr. Trudeau said between kisses was, first, that he has more or less decided against using wage and price controls to correct the economic ills of the country, and, second, that unemployment will be with us for a long time, if not forever.

There is not much point in arguing with the prime minister's decision not to use wage and price controls because these are only methods, and he may have something better in mind.

But bearing the prime minister of the world's second (or is it third?) richest country says, in an easy manner as if he were talking about the weather, that if we want a highly developed "technological society," we will not easily get full employment", is a frightening experience, even if the full meaning of the words hits the listener only later.

What this means, in plain English, is that the prime minister has resigned himself to live with unemployment. It's hard to believe, but his words cannot mean anything else but that he has given up. Unemployment, in his opinion, is no longer just a necessary evil resulting from unavoidable fight against inflation, a temporary condition, but something permanent.

If that isn't bad enough, here is more, Mr. Trudeau then went on to explain, in his usual easy manner, that something will have to be done. But what will be done is not efforts to create more employment but to support the unemployed — somehow.

Among the measures he mentioned are a guaranteed annual income and, earlier retirement. Less emphasis on employment for people over 60.

So, instead of creating more jobs, the prime minister suggests creating fewer workers. At the same time, naturally, the smaller number of workers will have to support a larger number of non-workers.

Isn't it interesting that Pierre Trudeau is now preparing us for what the socialists (he so-called socialists) have suggested all along: Take from the workers and give it to the non-workers. The only difference is that the socialists' version calls the workers "the rich".

The only difference is that while the socialists call it a blessing, a revolutionary new policy, Pierre Trudeau calls it the price of being a "technological society."

Either way, unless the prime minister comes up with something better, or we come up with a better prime minister, we will end up with permanent employment to a greater or lesser extent and a fantastic tax load which will steadily lower our living standard.

The Ottawa Jet-Set

A recent Ottawa report noted in matter-of-fact fashion that Prime Minister Trudeau has travelled 97,000 miles with Government jet-star aircraft since the 1968 election — and on both government and vacation business. The trips were itemized in response to a question from Robert Coates (PC, Cumberland-Colchester North).

Four major vacation trips were noted in the report to the Commons and depending on whether he took a jetstar on his current vacation in Barbados that figure could now be five, and the total vacation mileage travelled more than 100,000.

Interesting. But why is the matter allowed to rest there? Why should Mr. Trudeau (who apart from his earnings as Prime Minister and as an MP is a millionaire in his own right) be permitted to jet-jet the jetset at the taxpayers' expense? He is well able to afford to travel first-class if he wishes, and presumably he does, on regular commercial flights.

When we read that on a trip to Mexico by jetstar in 1968 he had along with him "two guests," and that the following year he had with him State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and his wife on that trip to British Honduras, and that former Prime Minister Lester Pearson and his wife were hopped off at West Palm Beach, Florida, we can see that the taxpayer is a sort of unpaid travel agent.

Well it is not good enough. We can understand trips on Government business, but vacation trips no. And speaking of Government business, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien is back from Australia and New Zealand, and we recall the prior hassle whether wives of the Canadian party should be permitted to go along. We never did discover whether the wives went or not, but we understand a dozen or more people made the trip. Perhaps one of our MPs will make it his business to ask a question in the Commons about the cost to the taxpayer of this trip and whether the country stands to gain anything from it.

Total View

Former Loyalist College president J. K. Bradford has performed a useful service in drawing attention to the "tide of half information" on television news and which he rightly warns may be eroding North America's capacity for resistance and defence. It is something we have been concerned about for some time and have mentioned on many occasions in this space.

In television newscasts — Canadian and American — it takes the form of constant emphasis on U.S. and South Vietnamese setbacks in Vietnam, or in the case of Northern Ireland's violence, reference only to isolated riot incidents in isolated troublespots in Belfast and Londonderry. The true perspective of events is something else again, and the public should always bear this in mind.

Some television war footage even appears to be a put-up job, as with the scene Mr. Bradford mentioned of soldiers standing on an armored truck and firing up a bush lined lane. We saw that filmed scene also, or one very like it, and wondered how the soldiers could so expose themselves to enemy fire without being hit. Many cameramen risk their lives, and not a few have been killed doing a hazardous job, but occasionally, as in this case, some of what passes for a "fire-fight" is not the real thing.

More Vandalism

Vandalism and petty thievery are reaching disturbing proportions in Belleville. Weekends in particular are prime times for these senseless activities. Schools, service stations, even churches and private homes have been targets. A Victoria Avenue householder called this office recently to say that a statue and chain railings had been carried off her property, a home lot which once had impressed a passing Quebecer who later sent a complimentary postcard. The householder says she identified the railing thieves as local high school students by their jackets. The police cannot be everywhere and where public buildings are concerned we may reach the point where civilian security guards will be required. Meanwhile, the public should cooperate where possible by reporting any suspicious activity.

Young People Should Be Wary of Credit Plans

Almonte Gazette

The heat is on young people in the market-place.

Deceptively - complex credit plans carefully-designed but not always truthful promotional programs, and assorted goods neatly in tune with fad and fashion are often tailored specifically for this vulnerable market.

As the Registrar of the Ontario Consumer Protection bureau sees it, the answer to the problem is not necessarily more law, but more education.

"If young people are aware of the circumstances surrounding any particular sales pitch or aware of what they're buying, and how they're really paying for it, the over-all problem will diminish."

Mr. Walker's approach has been to balance the role of government with the responsibility of the individual.

In one speech to high school students, he put it this way: "Laws help us, but they do not relieve us of our personal responsibilities in doing everything possible to protect ourselves. Know your rights, keep well-informed, pass along to others the information you have obtained today."

He expresses concern over the tendency of many young people who want everything their first year out of school — and so go out and buy "just about anything," often on "easy-convenient" credit terms. Clothes, record players, cars and magazine subscriptions are some of the major items that result in commitments the young person discovers too late that he can't handle.

As an example of the kind of pitfalls young people can easily fall into, Mr. Walker cites one "pseudo-cheque" mailed to the home. A "lucky number pull tab" is located at the top right hand corner of the cheque, and the number beneath can mean a "free stereo" if it appears on the enclosed "entire list."

"Frankly," Mr. Walker told one high school audience, "I have never seen a number on any of those cheques that was not also on the so-called 'grand' prize list."

"But there is a catch. When presented, the cheque is presumably worth the price of the stereo — $299.50. All you have to do is pay for 75 stereo long play records at $5 each and sign a contract. In short, those records cost $375 but they could be bought retail for about $2 each — or $150. In this case, the "free stereo isn't really free," Mr. Walker observed. "Free items seldom are. . ."

Sieur de Roberval, France's first viceroy in Canada, sailed from La Rochelle for the New World 428 years ago today—in 1542 —with three ships and 200 colonists. They wintered at Cartier's camp at Cap Rouge, near Quebec, and explored the St. Lawrence as far as Montreal Island, looking for the legendary kingdom of Saguenay. The expedition was a failure and its survivors withdrew to France in 1543. Roberval was murdered in Paris in 1560.

Ottawa Drags Feet On Seal Hunt Issue

Kingston Whig - Standard

The federal minister of fisheries, Jack Davis, has set up a study group to look into the status of seal hunting in Canadian waters. This is his belated way of responding to the world-wide criticism of this country for refusing to end forever the annual killing of seal pups in the northwest Atlantic and Arctic oceans.

Just to make it clear that he is not looking lovard any Dogian future Mr Davis said that he does not foresee a complete end to seal hunting in Canadian waters. All he is doing is suggesting that not quite so many seals will be killed from now on. He mentioned a possible low figure of 150,000 seal deaths a year. Even this yearly figure, according to Humane Society and other studies which have been made of the situation, will eventually wipe out the seal population completely.

The federal Government has shown itself too light-listed, too unconcerned for the sanctity of life, too afraid of being accused of interfering in private commercial affairs, to wipe out this barbaric yearly slaughter and take the consequences. The consequences would be, mainly, a need to provide jobs for the men who, driven by their habitual poverty, go each year on the seal expeditions — many of them reluctantly.

The so-called task - force, which will be composed of six men, all of them closely connected with the seal industry, will decide nothing that has not already become public knowledge. All the studies which need to be made have been made — and ignored. Setting up a Government - sponsored study group is just a delaying tactic, a typical political gambit to lull the grumbling populace into the sleep of unawareness.

On his record in the seal controversy alone Mr. Davis should be relegated to some ministry where he can't do any harm and where his dollar-crippled mind can function without doing violence to man or beast. But Mr. Davis, after all, is only the fall-guy. It is our federal Government which is guilty of this shameless pandering to the most rapacious kind of commercialism. The Canadian people deserve more respect, more concern for their widespread wish that the rest of the world should no longer have reason to think of them and their Government as a set of ruthless, money-grubbing animal torturers.

Those Overhead Signs

Kingston Whig-Standard

One of the dreams of those who think Kingston could have a much more attractive main street than it has now is the disappearance of all those vulgar overhead signs on Princess Street.

For years the idea has been put forward but without having much effect. It appears, however, that a dynamic new element has been injected into the situation in the form of the imagination and energy of a local sign contractor, It may be that the fact that the sign code under the bylaw passed in 1970 calling for the removal of all overhanging signs by 1973 may have a chance of full and fairly painless success.

In a letter to the Kingston Downtown Business Association Mr. Gary Eskerod, proprietor of Eskerod Signs, offered to remove free of charge to the merchants any signs hanging over the sidewalk. The first to be removed under this generous and civic-minded offer was the Tip Top Tailors signs. Some merchants have done so already, led by the late R. W. Alford.

There are no strings attached to Mr. Eskerod's offer. Merchants need not order flush signs from him. Being in the business, Mr. Eskerod knows that the job must be done and the fact that his generous offer has undoubtedly prompted him in his decision to make this offer is no way detracts from its value.

We salute Mr. Eskerod for having had the vision to initiate this generous program. His work will, it is hoped, provide the impetus for a full - scale clean-up campaign on Princess Street.

Labor Council Replies To Remarks by Ald. Keegan

The Intelligencer.

A speech by Alderman A. Keegan at the Belleville city council meeting on March 29 causes this Labor council to reply.

We would not bother to answer it if it were not for the fact that the remarks were made by an Alderman of this City, consequently he has some say over the affairs of all of us.

It is impossible in this letter to deal with all the points in his speech covering the problems of Quebec Teachers' struggles, unemployment in Toronto, lotteries, the Japanese and radios, the welfare system, Canada Manpower, jobs to be work, to the Ten Commandments.

Alderman Keegan attempts to create the fear of strike in the Armed Forces, when all they want is a means to air their grievances, have a say in their working and working conditions and some degree of protection from arbitrary rule, is peace Canada's ability no different than the working man?

He attacks the teachers who are confronted with increased work schedule, larger classes and very little increase in pay. They are only fighting back. Lay the blame where it belongs. Place new provincial Premier, former Education Minister with an image of a great education leader, must appear a different sort of guy.

Mr. Keegan wants to put the people now on welfare back to work. If there were jobs, most of them would not be on welfare. Who persisted in fighting inflation by forcing unemployment but the Trudeau government.

His charge of Labor creating high inflation is a failure. Labor has always fought for full employment. They oppose the inflation of profits on our markets and are for a balanced trade policy.

The difference between price and wage control, but is for free enterprise. You cannot have it both ways. Government must put the unemployed back to work or put money into the hands of the working people so they can buy back the goods they produce and thus create jobs. The fight should be for restraint on Corporation profits, curbing land speculation, curbing high interest rates and restructuring the tax system.

Mr. Keegan should be seeking the causes and the solutions so the poor would not be evicted because they cannot pay their rent.

He accuses Labor of sitting on their backsides and having their hands out for yearly grants. The one main organization we think of that pleads for a share of the tax money each year is the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. We don't remember Labor ever doing it here. Perhaps they should.

We do not attack Mr. Keegan, but we do his beliefs and opinions. Perhaps some opportunity arises at the next elections he may not be given the chance to impose his anti-pro-

Do-Gooders at Fault: Guard

Prisoners Not 'Girl Scouts'—Hostages 'In Real Danger'

KINGSTON (CP) — The echo of a steel door slamming shut reverberated off the cold grey walls of Kingston penitentiary early today as a middle-aged guard, his face etched with exhaustion, paused to light a cigarette.

The guard had just finished a 21-hour shift on the inside, watching helplessly as 500 prisoners tore up Millhaven, of Canada's biggest maximum-security institution.

He was haggard, frustrated and angry.

Six of his co-workers, "my gang, my friends," were being held captive and there was nothing he could do about it.

The guard didn't want to talk to reporters waiting on the outside, but couldn't help himself.

In 10 minutes, he had spilled it all in an emotional flood.

"It's the do-gooders who got us into this, all those well-meaning reformers and civil rights people," said the guard, who didn't want his name used.

"Now look at the mess we're in. The guards knew it was coming. We always know. The only thing we didn't know was how or when. We found that out Wednesday night."

As far as he was concerned, the six hostages remained in real danger of being killed, despite assurances to the contrary from prison officials and the prisoners themselves.

Despite reports the trouble began, spontaneously Wednesday night, the guard insisted it was a carefully organized operation, involving at least two dozen men.

"These guys aren't girl scouts. This is a maximum-security institution. Murderers, thieves, burglars and rapists —that's who we're dealing with.

"I wish people would remember that. We know how to deal with the inmates, that's our job. That's what we've been trained for. Rehabilitation? We'll rehabilitate them, but we might have to hurt a few of them a little bit."

The guard said morale among the prison guards remains high, although most are extremely tired and bitter about the way the prison riots have been handled.

He said the army, called in Thursday night by warden Arthur Jarvis, doesn't have the knowledge to deal with prisoners and should be assigned a secondary role.

The guard was not optimistic that a five-man committee that negotiated with the prisoners Thursday night and early today would be able to get the hostages released and the men back in their cells.

The guard blamed the riot on the fact it was common knowledge that Kingston eventually will be closed and "they wanted to tear the place apart one last time."

He described the damage to the cellblock as "utterly incredible."

"We can see into parts of the cellblock and everything is all smashed up. There's debris everywhere. God knows how high the damage bill will be.

"In one of the chapels, they even smashed up the church organ. They pushed the organ over and it's in pieces now."

The guard remembered he had to be back on the job at 8 a.m. He turned up the collar on his dark overcoat, lighted another cigarette and trudged off into the night.

Anarchy in Prison

School Without Teachers

KINGSTON (CP) — The only man allowed to visit with the defiant prisoners controlling the main block of the federal penitentiary here Thursday said the anarchy inside reminded him of "a school without teachers."

Henry Champ, a television reporter for CTV, volunteered to enter alone after warden Arthur Jarvis vetoed a request from the prisoners for a tour by all reporters present. The prisoners approved Mr. Champ as a representative of all reporters under a special arrangement.

He was left by guards at one end of a 70-foot corridor off the hospital. Then walked to the other end where he was met by the prisoners—not a delegation but "all of them."

'At first it was a sea of faces all around me and as high up as I could see, tier after tier, but never at any time did they accost me or say anything untoward to me. Some even made the peace sign.

"When I first went in I was extremely scared, especially walking down the corridor, but after three or four minutes it became very congenial.

'They served me coffee and I even watched a little television with them."

He was guided at first, but when prisoners complained that all did not have an opportunity to talk to him, he was allowed to wander freely in all sections of the block except the chapels damaged the night before, or where committees were meeting or hostages being held.

"There were always 30 or 40 prisoners around me, telling me their complaints and asking questions. It was like a school without teachers."

He said he gathered that "once they achieved a certain freedom they went on a two-hour binge, but I was assured that nothing had been broken since."

"There's so much debris—glass, furnishings, . . . cans, bed springs, bars, steel pipe— it's incredible.

"Most of the damage was to the locking devices, which are wheels to activate the locks on the cells. They were broken beyond repair. It looked like they'd been smashed with crowbars.

"Every window in the cellblock was broken and it was cool in there."

Mr. Champ said apart from committees set up to draft a list of grievances and choose a 10-member citizens' committee to tour the prison, the convicts did not seem well organized.

But despite the apparent anarchy the men were all "very calm, very relaxed, very committed."

Among complaints he heard was the need for more activity because prisoners have too much time on their hands, and for fewer guards because they could not break out of the building anyway.

Another key factor appeared to be the opening of the new Millhaven prison a few miles away, intended eventually to replace the old penitentiary. Much of the prisoners' information about Millhaven appeared to be rumors, he said.

"Many said they were nervous about going to Millhaven. They were nervous about the maximum security there. KP is not good, but they believe Millhaven to be worse."

Power Boost Required

They are already short on power at the new Four Seasons Hotel on the city's waterfront.

This week Public Utilities Commission linemen are running heavier power transmission cable to correct a complaint of low voltage.

Utilities manager E. H. Burnham said the heavier cable was being run from the No. 2 sub station at the corner of Catherine and Sidney Street, down Wellington and Parent Streets to the new hotel.

Mr. Burnham said he expected the increased power requirement was from the Bell Telephone training school for wage tenants at the new hotel.

Kingston Convicts Win Parley Request

stitution at 6:30 p.m. EST. Within hours of their arrival there were definite signs of an easing in tension between prisoners and prison staff.

The soldiers jumped from the trucks wearing helmets and full combat dress, their rifles at the ready with mounted bayonets glistening in the setting sun. Officers formed them into squads and they jogged single file through a prison gate.

Inside, the troops surrounded a main cell block taken over by the prisoners where 16 of the guards are being held. Army spokesmen said the troops were there for "perimeter guard duty"—not to free the hostages by force.

The men, commanded by Maj. E. S. Richmond of Edmonton, are mainly senior non-commissioned officers at a Canadian Forces communication school here and members of the 1st Canadian Signals Regiment.

They have been training two days a month for almost a year in prison riot-control techniques and became familiar with the penitentiary here through guided tours.

The troops, requested by Warden Arthur Jarvis, have orders not to get involved in any direct confrontation that might lead to bloodshed.

As the soldiers entered the prison yard and took up positions around the prisoner-controlled cell block they were greeted by a thunderous chorus of boos and jeers from the prisoners.

The convicts rattled bars and slammed debris around. Then they sent a note to the prison administration warning against any attempt by the troops to storm the cell block.

The note said the six hostages had been split up and were herded into different sections of the building, meaning that an attack would have to fall simultaneously on six different parts of the cell block to ensure the safety of the imprisoned guards.

Appearance of the soldiers came about three hours after Warden Jarvis and John Moloney, regional supervisor of the federal penitentiary service, spent a half hour talking to three spokesmen for the prisoners

Another 110 soldiers from Camp Petawawa were ferried into CFB Kingston by eight helicopters shortly after its troops left for the penitentiary. These soldiers, from the 3rd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, are on standby and "immediately available if requested by penitentiary authorities."

An army spokesman said the troops were working in shifts, with some always on duty in the today. Mr. Martin, chairman of prison and others resting at the nearby Barriefield army base.

The convicts had earlier in the day requested that a "civilians' committee" of prominent Canadians be allowed inside to hear grievances and examine conditions.

Later in the evening five of those named by the convicts arrived in Kingston and went to the penitentiary. They are: lawyers Arthur Martin and Aubrey Golden of Toronto; Prof. Desmond Morton of the University of Toronto law school; William Deakin, legal aid director for York County, and Toronto Telegram columnist Ron Haggart.

They spent more than four hours talking to four prisoners and emerged exhausted from the penitentiary at 3 a.m. the committee, would only say "some progress" has been made.

The two sides resumed negotiations at 9 a.m. today. Mr. Martin added that any settlement the committee is able to work out with the prisoners would require approval of federal officials in Ottawa.

The six guards being held are Senior Keeper Ed Barrett, D. J. Flynn, D. A. (Dad) Dale, J. G. Bushell, G. A. Vallier and Percy W. Bennett.

Early this morning guards leaving shifts that ran as long as 16 hours spoke of the penitentiary, Canada's biggest, was "tense but quiet." The prison staff retain control of all areas except the cell block, including the kitchen and the psychiatric wing.

One solid sign of progress in the bargaining came late Thursday night when Warden Jarvis agreed to allow a shipment of milk and sandwiches in to the prisoners—the first feeding since dinner time Wednesday.

Food—or the lack of it—was the prison administration's major weapon. Prior to allowing the sandwiches in the prisoners were eating small amounts of canned goods and snacks purchased at the prison commissary before the uprising and hoarded by the men.

Peanut butter, bread and soda pop," said one prison official. "That's all they had when this thing started."

At 10:30 a.m. Thursday three prisoners met eight news media representatives and issued five demands. They asked for food and medical supplies and grave a blunt warning to guards to keep their distance.

The three men doing the talking were: Emmanuel Lester, 47, an American-born Torontonian serving four years for possession of stolen property (He is identified as the leader of the rebellion.); Charles W. Saunders, 23, of Chatham and North Bay, sentenced to five years for robbery with threat of violence; theft over $50 and escaping custody, and William Knight of Kingston and Dresden, serving three years for breaking and entering and parole violation.

Knight said the prisoners' decision to overpower the guards and take hostages was prompted by the transfer of 11 prisoners Wednesday afternoon from Kingston to Millhaven, a new maximum security institution 12 miles west of the city.

The federal government plans to close Kingston gradually, operating it only as a reception centre and hospital by August or September.

"We realize this is a once-in-a-lifetime chance for us," said Knight. "If we fail to get changes we go into Millhaven with the same system that exists now inside Kingston."

Riot May Speed Transfer

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The prisoners at Kingston penitentiary may have precipitated the very thing they are rioting to prevent—transfer to the new maximum security institution at nearby Millhaven.

Only hours before the 500 prisoners occupied the cell block and recreation area at the penitentiary here Wednesday at 10:30 p.m., the first transfer of about a dozen prisoners to Millhaven took place.

At a conference Thursday between prison officials and representatives of the prisoners, one of the main complaints was the imminent total transfer of Kingston prisoners to Millhaven, which the prisoners fear has been "bugged" with listening devices. They fear that while "the security at KP is bad at Millhaven it will be worse."

Now, because the locks on every cell at Kingston have been smashed, penitentiary officials are desperately attempting to transfer prisoners to every other maximum security establishment in the country.

"We're trying to arrange 150 to 200 transfers for as soon as things settle down here," said Deputy Warden Babcock.

"We have 650 men and not a cell to hold them in."

Asked whether this meant Kingston penitentiary was in fact useless as a prison now he replied: "Not at all.

"When I came here six years ago the whole west wall was down and we contained the prison. It's a matter of adaptation, that's all.

"But we're going to have to try to get 150 to 200 transferred as soon as possible."

Asked whether this meant acceleration of plans to activate Millhaven, he said:

"You bet your sweet life.

"The assistant deputy warden is trying to arrange for Millhaven to handle 100 men immediately—and more if necessary."

But, he explained, there are problems even in this.

Although the new establishment is the last word in modern penal reform, there now are only 75 guards assigned there.

"And they'll be stretched pretty thin with this many more men."

It was originally planned that following the initial transfer of 12 men Wednesday another 30 would move over next week and progressively more in succeeding weeks.

Babcock said that is out the window.

Mr. Babcock also made a rough estimate of the immediate damage to the cell blocks at the penitentiary as a result of the riot.

He said there are 600 cells in the establishment and that each cell cost $250 to build.

"Figure it out," he said.

When it was figured out, the cost to the cells alone as a result of a two-hour binge of destruction Wednesday night comes to $150,000.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

TWEED HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Horticultural Society was held on Tuesday, April 13, 1971, at the home of Mrs. J. Wilson.

The president, Mrs. Larry Wilson, opened the meeting in the usual way. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved followed by the financial report given by Mrs. Jane Hughes, secretary-treasurer.

During the course of the business, many suggestions and ideas were dealt with and it was decided to hold the next meeting, Tuesday, May 11, 1971, at the S. H. Connor School, in Tweed at 8 p.m. In the near future a flower display, films and a guest speaker are part of the plan.s.

Two important projects are in preparation, namely, attractive street planters for the village and the possibility of landscaping Tweed Memorial Park. For these, the members will need the co-operation and help of all citizens, so the general public is reminded that surplus plants or shrubs which would otherwise be discarded will be welcomed by the Tweed Horticultural Society who will be most appreciative if these are donated to the society to help beautify the village of Tweed.

Larry Wilson was moved a vote of thanks for showing two interesting films on soil resources and forest farming.

The position of Secretary-Treasurer was separated on the suggestion of Mrs. Jane Hughes. Mrs. Roy Parks will act as Secretary and Mrs. Hughes, as Treasurer. At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and a half-hour social time spent.

MOIRA BELLE TOPS

There were two new members on the executive at the recent meeting of Moira Belle Tops. (Take Off Pounds Sensibly).

It was noted that since the previous meeting, a gratifying total of 44 pounds was lost by the members. The leader reported that reservations had been made for those attending the Provincial recognition days in Ottawa in May.

Bracelets were presented to a number of members who had lost 10 pounds and a gem to each of the backsliders.

After the business part of the meeting a baggy dress and hat parade was held followed by an auction sale.

CNRA AUXILIARY

The regular monthly meeting of the Canadian National Railway Association auxiliary was held on Tuesday, April 13, 1971 at Club Canara with 26 members present.

Mrs. A. L. Storms conducted the business part of the meeting as usual. The monthly draws were won by Mrs. T. Reynolds and Mrs. H. Branton.

The social part of the evening was conducted by Mrs. A. Haley's group. The program started with a game of court whist followed by a lunch and numerous draws with everyone present winning a prize.

The next regular meeting will be on the second Tuesday in May.

Case Dismissed

PARIS (AP) — A pretty French secretary filed a $3,600 damage suit against a magazine that published a photograph of her in a topless swim suit at St. Tropez beach. She claimed the photo damaged her private life but the judge dismissed the case, saying the beach was hardly a private place.

Designers Bid for 'Civilized Look'

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuter) — Italy's fashion designers are promising to make a strong bid this week for a return to a conventional "civilized look," with hot pants given the cold shoulder in fashions for next fall and winter.

Ninety-three Italian designers of luxury ready-to-wear, knitwear, leather fashions and boutique clothes for men and women converged on Florence this Easter weekend.

About 600 French and Italian buyers and 200 fashion writers will be on hand to view the collections starting today and ending Thursday.

While the girls "in" Rome, Florence and Milan have not hesitated to adopt the short shorts look reminiscent of Lana Turner in the 1940s, designers are uncertain that the hot pants will survive the summer.

Fabiani, one of the potentates of Italian high fashions, will introduce a ready-to-wear collection today that will feature "a return to normal lengths"—and no hot pants.

"I foresee a return to conventional fashions, and skirts that reach just below the knee," he said in a pre-collection interview.

Boutique designer Mike La Mendola, one of several Americans who have successfully crashed the spaghetti curtain of fashion, said he will show "civilized dresses instead of hippie or kookie clothes."

Daytime dresses will be sheared off just below the knee, and there will be no trousers for streetwear and no shorts.

One prominent Italian designer confessed that the shorts outfits he showed for this spring and summer did not sell. While the chain stores reported good sales of hot pants, he explained, women who wear luxury-priced clothing just won't pay high prices for shorts.

City Members Visit Ad Club In Peterboro

A good representation of members of the Women's Sales and Ad Club of Belleville attended the 10th Anniversary party of the Peterborough Club on Wednesday evening, at the Rock Haven Motel.

At the event, president Jane Ann McCaw of the local club presented their president, Mrs. Jean Snape with a silver plated challice. This memento will be handed down from president to president and will be of use in toasting The Queen.

For the occasion, a most impressive speaker, Eileen Sonnin, gave a talk on a book which she had recently written, "Ghosts I've Known", and related a number of interesting stories along this line.

Ann Landers

Wife Covers Up For Hubby's Miscues

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a wonderful person. We've had 38 beautiful years together. I thank God every day for sending me this fine mate. But one of these days I am going to murder him if he doesn't stop writing cheques when he has no money in the bank.

Almost every week I get at least one phone call. The message is the same: "Your husband's cheque was returned marked 'Insufficient Funds.' What shall we do?" I reply, "There must be some mistake. Send it through again." Then I run myself ragged getting money from my brother or my father or a cousin.

ANN LANDERS

What burns me up is that my husband is always shocked to hear that he is overdrawn. When I ask to see his chequebook, I see he hasn't bother to subtract anything. He writes cheques as if his name were Henry Ford. I would appreciate any suggestions you might have. — MISERABLE IN NEW MEXICO.

* * *

DEAR MIS: You've created your own Frankenstein, Lady. Tell your husband you are through covering for him. Let him know that in the future when he's overdrawn, he'll have to scurry around and find the money to cover the cheques. A few such experiences and "Henry" will keep better books, I promise you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It seems to be the style these days to blame parents for everything. If a child is unhappy, unmotivated, aggressive, hostile, whatever the problem — blame the parents. I refer to the letter from "Sherry of Boise." — the girl with the unaffectionate father. Her dad never held her on his lap, never kissed her or showed any sign of warmth. She said she grew up so hungry for male affection that she was a pushover for any boy or man who looked twice at her. Instead of blaming her father, why didn't she take responsibility for herself?

My father was an iceberg, too, but I never confused love with sex. I am 34 now and I've heard just about every excuse from loose girls you can think of. (A) "My parents are so strict I'm getting even with them." (B) "I never had a father's love. I'm compensating." (C) "I was afraid I was a lesbian and I had to find out for sure." (D) "My mother always said I was too homely to be popular. I had to show her she was wrong."

I had about as rotten a home life as a girl can have. But I made it to adulthood with no psychological damage. Maybe I was lucky, but there must be more to it than that. Early life does affect people, I know, but how does it happen that some kids come through it unscathed and others are permanently damaged? What's the answer, Ann? — NANCY.

DEAR NANCY: You have just asked the 64 million dollar question. Perhaps the answer lies in this old adage: The same flame that melts the butter, makes the iron hard.

Successful Living

Unruly Granddaughter Poses A Problem

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I went to stay with my daughter's family for two weeks while she took a holiday with her husband. The girl of 17 goes out with the boys till all hours of the night. Then she is so tired she hates to get up. She seemed to think a lot of one boy who has not got a good reputation but he is away, supposed to be working. So though she is writing to him and he phones her she is going with another one.

When her parents came back she was mad because they had not been able to get this boy on the phone where he was staying. She told her mother one day she could hardly wait till she could get out of there. She is only pleasant when there is a boy around; then butter will not melt in her mouth.

While I was there this boy came five times for her. I did not tell her parents because this goes on when they are there. That is what I want to know, should I have told them, when they don't know what she is like? She is what we used to call boy crazy and I don't know what is going to happen to her. — Worried Granny

Dear Granny: So often we find grandmothers serving as substitute parents and then wondering how far their authority goes. Obviously your girl gets away with plenty whether or not her parents are at home.

Yes, tell them. Comparing notes may reveal considerable bamboozlement!

Perhaps when they see that it looks wrong to you, her parents will take another look at this over-indulged daughter. All the material things in the world can't make up for the feeling she may have that they don't care enough to impose limits.

* * *

Dear Doris: What am I to do with a steady boy friend who hates slacks? He says he wants me to be feminine, and if I wear a pant suit when I go out with him he is really miserable.

He is home only on weekends and when I wear dresses to work all week I like a change once in a while.

I have a mid coat and he says he won't be seen anywhere with me in it. Why should he make such a big deal of my clothes? What is so sloppy about a midi coat?

Are all boys like that when they get really interested in a girl? — Clothes Conscious

Dear Conscious: He might as well give in and get with it. Women like the pant suits for comfort and freedom, as well as to be fashion able. Isn't the important thing to be nicely groomed with pretty hairdo, attractive complexion and feminine ways?

I know women who would give their eye teeth to have husbands interested in what they wear. On the other hand, if your boy friend's objections reflect a general attitude of wanting to control what you do, there is no better time than now to let him learn that you plan to be your own person.

Dear Doris: I have written out "Two Little Orphans" just the way an aunt of mine taught it to me in years gone by. It is nice to see that some people stick with the older pieces. — E. M.

Dear E.M.: My thanks to you and to Mrs. H.P.; Mrs. B. O'H.; Mrs. A. S.; Mrs. L. E. H and many others, for sending in this well-loved old song Most of you have written it out from memory. Bless you!

Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You naughty girl. You've gotten dirt all over the rug. If it were an accident, it wouldn't be so bad, but you did it on purpose so I'm going to spank your hands."

Mother: "You must not dig in the dirt out of the flower pot. We don't want the house to look all dirty. You help me clean it up and after this don't touch the plants."

Children have to be corrected if they are to learn to behave in acceptable ways — but it doesn't always take scolding and punishment to get the message across. A kindly statement or simple explanation can be just as impressive, especially for minor misdeeds or for those that are not potentially dangerous.

Remember this...?

1970 was the year of the "Great Fire"! Just one year ago the Belleville Plaza was the location of a fire destroying several stores, and pouring smoke and soot, and afterwards water, into Cherney's Furniture World.

LADY CABBY — Diane Dunsmoor, 21, says she met mostly lechers, perverts and deviates since she started driving a cab in Vancouver. But she'd recommend the job to any woman who wanted to come face to face with reality.

Female Cabbie's Lot Not A Happy One

VANCOUVER (CP) — A female cabbie's lot is not a happy one, says 21-year-old Diane Dunsmoor.

Miss Dunsmoor, a former University of British Columbia music student, joined a Vancouver cab company this year and found herself facing what she calls "the lechers, perverts, drunks, deviates and hypes" in the hard-nosed world of cab-driving.

"I used to think cab-driving was a really respectable business—you know, directors, executives, old ladies—but 95 per cent of my fares were social outcasts, freaks."

Another of the city's lady drivers, Isobel Marshall, disagrees Mrs. Marshall said that in her 15 years of driving a taxi she met only 12 persons "who have been anything but nice to me, and they were the types who would get on with no one."

And 30-year taxi veteran Edna Gerow said you see the shady side of life and hear some sad stories when you drive a taxi, but it makes you realize how well off you are.

"People pour out their stories because they need someone to tell them to, and because they know they will never see the driver again," said Mrs. Gerow.

"This job has been good for a laugh and a cry every single day."

Miss Dunsmoor said she did not appreciate the tales of woe, and soon gave up providing counselling services to her customers.

"So many of them are just looking for a movable shrink," she said.

Amorous men are the least of Miss Dunsmoor's problems. She said she encounters more innuendos and outright propositioning from women.

After Miss Dunsmoor was interviewed by the Vancouver Sun, other woman cabbies protested.

"We girls killed ourselves laughing at the lesbian bit," said 51-year-old Mrs. Marshall, who works for a taxi company employing 11 female drivers.

"None of us had ever had offers from women."

Miss Dunsmoor said another problem with being a female taxi driver is that "people won't allow me to be a woman doing a job—they think I am doing a man's job."

But she recommends the job to other women.

"Damn right I do—to anyone who can face a little reality. It's the way to find out what's really going on."

Devilled Eggs Add To Shrimp Casserole

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I have received so much help from your column over the years that I hope this is the casserole you are hunting. — Freda F.

ANSWER: Freda, yours was the first response I had to my request for the Devilled Egg and Shrimp Casserole. I have others to try but tested yours last night for four of us and hope Mrs. J. O'B. likes it. I will test another in the near ciwill test another in the near future.

DEVILLED EGG AND SHRIMP CASSEROLE
(Serves 4 generously)

Devilled Eggs
8 hard-cooked eggs (medium size)
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. paprika
1-16 tsp. garlic salt
¼ cup mayonnaise

SAUCE:
2 tbsps. butter
2 tbsps. flour
One 10-oz. can frozen shrimp soup, thawed
1¼ cups (1 soup can) milk
1 cup grated cheese (I used Edam)
1 cup fine fresh bread crumbs

To prepare Devilled Eggs place them in pan in single layer, add cold water to cover, bring to boil, put on lid, turn heat to "low" for 5 min. Turn off heat and let stand covered in the water for 25 min. Cool in cold water, peel and cut in halves lengthwise. Scoop yolks from whites into bowl. Be careful not to break whites. To egg yolks add salt, curry powder, mustard, paprika, garlic salt and mayonnaise and blend until smooth. Refill whites and place in single layer in shallow baking dish.

To make Sauce melt butter, stir in flour, thawed soup, milk and cheese until thick.

Pour over cover with crumbs. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about ½ hr. or until bubbly and crumbs are golden.

I recommend this highly especially this spring with the price of eggs at an all-time low. All of us should be using eggs to the optimum degree to keep our budgets balanced — unless, of course, you are on a low cholesterol diet.

Little Criticism for Renewal Plan

Property owner acceptance of the city's downtown urban renewal plan will be a prerequisite if any of the major rehabilitation or redevelopment proposals in the private sector are to be realized.

This was emphasized last night at a meeting of the mayor's committee held at Centennial Secondary School when approximately 25 citizens and organization representatives turned out to offer suggestions on the urban renewal plan.

Allan Brass, town planner with Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, who prepared the city's urban renewal study report, said public acceptance of the plan was essential for its success.

Briefs from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the East Belleville Ratepayers' Association, the Belleville Downtown Association and from several private individuals were read at last night's meeting. None of them offering any serious objection to urban renewal proposals

Costs in the public sector (two new bridges) must be kept in mind, he said.

Mr. Deacon said the plan calling for rehabilitation of many of the present commercial structures was a "realistic approach" to renewal in the downtown area.

Roger Porter, president of the Belleville Downtown Association said his committee was in favor of the plan and wished city council to endorse it.

William S. Wills, said that as a layman he felt the concept plan was more realistic than the magic circle idea promoted a few years ago by the Chamber of Commerce.

However, he was interested in knowing whether, if the proposals were carried out, it would mean a larger tax base and if it would improve the economy.

Also, he wanted to know whether the redevelopment proposals would be costly for the private sector.

Mr. Brass replied that he was now investigating the feasibility of land assembly for use both by private enterprise and by the municipality.

The findings of this investigation would be included in his final report, together with project cost estimates and and recommended priorities.

To still another question, Mr. Brass said several downtown areas were "ripe for redevelopment".

He suggested possible construction of parking garages, the lower floors of which could be turned into retail use if future demands so required.

However, before advising implementation of such schemes it would have to be assured they would be to the city's economic advantage.

Carl Whittemore, former research head at Deloro Stellite, said he was concerned about the motivation for downtown rehabilitation.

He said fires had left gaping holes in the downtown area with owners generally inert in their attitude toward rebuilding.

Mayor Scott noted that up to 50 per cent of property owners in the downtown area were 'absentee landlords" and would have to be convinced of the benefits to be achieved through rehabilitation.

Fred Deacon charged that there had been a marked lack of rebuilding following downtown fires since policies to the erection of a number of new structures where fires had razed the original buildings.

Glencoe Thompson, parking authority member, said his organization accepted the plan.

"We are happy to be part of it," he said. "When money is available we intend to proceed with more parking.

Mayor Scott said that Mr. Brass will now consider any proposed amendments to the conceptual plan and, with the estimates and other information, will present it to council for approval.

If there were no serious objections he said the plan could be approved by council.

Poster Winners

Two Belleville honorable mention posters by Grade 5 pupils on fire prevention in the home won their creators $10 in cash in the annual contest sponsored by the Ontario Association of Fire Chiefs. Poster (left) — Look What a Match Can Do — was entered by Don Ferch, 10, 128 Jackson Ave., Park Dale School. The poster with the slogan, Fire is a Dead End, Prevent It, was the imaginative entry by Tracie Watson, 11, 12 Orchard Ave., of Prince of Wales School. The distinguished judges (left to right) were: Thos. Hansen, J. J. McGill, and Bord Stephens. Nearly 10,000 boys and girls competed in the contest.

Civil Rights Report

McRuer's Last Volume Urges Reduced Powers

TORONTO (CP) — Strict control and reduced powers of government boards and tribunals was recommended Thursday in the fifth and final volume of the report of the McRuer royal commission on civil rights in Ontario.

At a news conference following tabling of the report in the legislature, James McRuer said the intention is to provide "checks and balances in the exercise of the powers of decision." The one-man commission was appointed July 1, 1964.

A key recommendation in the report was that all laws relieving officers and servants of the Crown from liability for wrongful acts should be repealed.

Mr. McRuer, former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, recommended the repeal of many statutes which now give boards and tribunals exclusive jurisdiction with no provision for judicial review.

The 59-year-old lawyer recommended stringent limits on board powers of arrest, search and seizure, committal and expropriation and compensation.

The report also recommended new statutes to define more clearly the powers of boards and to make those definitions more widely known to the public.

The report covers commissions or statutes, ranging from the Air Pollution Act to the Proceedings Against the Crown Act.

The government had not had time to study the report.

At his news conference, Mr. McRuer said it contains a outline of three basic safeguards in relation to the operation of each board:

"One whose rights are being affected should have an opportunity to be heard.

"Where a decision is made affecting his rights, he should have a written report of the decision on request.

"If it is a tribunal decision, there should be the right of review by some body and, in most cases, by a court."

The report comments on the liability of government officers and servants. It says there are certain exemptions from present legal liability which ". . . deprive the victim of wrongful acts of any remedy."

It recommends repeal of those exemptions, adding that, should a government officer be relieved of liability by nature of his employment, the Crown should still be liable.

The report says the Liquor Control Board's power to levy taxation on manufacturers of regulation is "objectionable" and should be abolished.

It recommends the board should be required to give reasons for the refusal or cancellation of a licence, and that there should be right of appeal.

The report calls for the repeal of liquor legislation under which contravention of any provision constitutes an offence. If a section is intended to create an offence, it should say so clearly.

"There should be a complete revision of the offences created under the Act and the powers of arrest without warrant," the report adds.

Police powers under the Liquor Control Act to search a person should be repealed, it says.

The report suggests "consideration be given to completely revising the Liquor Control Act" so as to confine the board's powers to the administering of liquor, while transferring its regulatory and licensing powers to a separate body.

Jurist Took on Job When Most Are Retired

TORONTO (CP) — James Chalmers McRuer, former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, is a tall, slim, 80-year-old lawyer with a wealth of experience in governmental affairs and a reputation for straight talk when the occasion demands it.

He was the still chief justice when then premier John Robarts asked him to resign and tackle the biggest research job of his long career —a one-man, royal commission study of civil liberties and human rights in Ontario.

Seven years and thousands of words later, the fifth and final volume of his report was tabled Thursday in the legislature by Mr. Robarts's young successor, Premier William Davis.

The first three volumes, tabled March 5, 1968, totalled 1,331 pages and contained 538 recommendations on everything from coroners to police. A full shake-up of Ontario's judicial system was recommended because of "shocking abuses" of laws which infringed upon individual rights.

A plan for creation of regional ombudsmen, a special judicial council and an Ontario bill of rights were among the 1,733 pages of the fourth volume, tabled Oct. 28, 1969.

Mr. McRuer, born in Ontario's Oxford County Aug. 23, 1890, took on the task July 1, 1964.

Also appointed chairman of the Ontario law reform commission that year, he gave up that post in 1966 to devote full time to the exhaustive royal commission study.

Mr. McRuer's involvement with government investigations started in 1926 when he was a member of a royal commission appointed to inquire into Canada's penal system. He later was chairman of royal commissions on insanity as a defence in criminal cases, Christian marriage and the Christian home, and the law respecting sexual psychopathic offenders.

Educated at the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school, he was called to the bar of Ontario in 1914 and created a King's Counsel in 1929. He also is a member of the bars of British Columbia and Alberta.

He became assistant Crown attorney for the City of Toronto and the County of York in 1921. He was consul for The Netherlands from 1940 to 1943 and was sworn in as chief justice of the Supreme Court in 1945.

In 1954 he presided over questioning by United States Senate investigators of Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet cipher clerk who disclosed the existence of a Russian-directed spy ring in Canada in 1943.

One-Man Report Highlights

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the McRuer royal commission recommendations on civil rights tabled Thursday in the Ontario legislature:

All remaining statutory provisions relieving officers and servants of the Crown from liability for wrongful acts should be repealed.

Stringent limits should be placed on powers of government boards and tribunals relating to arrests, searches and seizures, committal for offences and expropriation and compensation.

Why Teachers are speaking up about 'Spending Ceilings': Here are the Facts

The Ontario Secondary School Teacher's Federation, representing 33,000 teachers in every corner of this province, has sought to make citizens of Ontario aware of grave consequences to the quality of education available to students if provincial government ceilings on local school board budgets are rigidly applied.

The result? The profession's concern has been interpreted by some as self interest in salary. Not so. The Federation's concern is that a fine school system may become the chief issue in a hard-fought election campaign, with damage that will take a generation to repair.

Let us make our stand clear in unmistakable language. The Federation's objective, and that of its member teachers, is to protect the quality of education available to all students in Ontario.

Spokesmen for the Province have argued that the ceilings will not harm education in any part of Ontario. Let's review the evidence and see whether a reasonable parent or citizen can reach the same conclusion:

What are the facts?

In widely separated parts of this province drastic cutbacks of education services have been forced by the provincial ceiling. The direct effects will be felt next fall by over 50% of secondary school students in Ontario. Question: can communities representing 60% of the province's secondary school students overlook what is happening elsewhere?

Some instances

- In Lincoln County, the range of secondary school programs—including special education—will be reduced greatly next fall as 52 teaching positions disappear.
- In Ottawa, 100 teaching positions will not exist next fall. Because of this, a sweeping list of options which include home economics and industrial arts will disappear for many students. Practically all classes will be larger—including science and others which demand individual participation and experiments.
- In North York, courses such as industrial physics, business correspondence, architectural drafting will disappear next fall. Again, class sizes will increase.
- In Carleton County—one of the hardest-hit areas—programs that existed even before the creation of its county board, will disappear. 130 teaching positions will disappear. Special remedial teaching will not exist at the elementary level. Space does not permit similar details for other areas such as Niagara South. But since the first statements of concern other leaders in the community have also spoken up.

What they say

Mrs. Joyce Harris, Chairman Carleton County Board of Education, Finance Committee: "Those reductions in expenditures have been severe in nature and extend to all facets of the system. Such action is bound to affect the total system and the educational excellence for which Carleton is noted has suffered a severe cutback."—March 17, 1971.

Bruce Bone, Chairman, Metropolitan Toronto School Board: "I don't approve of the way the Minister brought in the guidelines. To arbitrarily impose limitations across the province without any concern for local issues or local problems I think is wrong."—March 26, 1971.

Jim Forster, Metropolitan Toronto teacher: (commenting on special course options) "Every dollar that is saved will cost two dollars in future years because they (students) haven't been given the chance they deserve."—March 25, 1971.

Fiona Nelson, Toronto School Board Trustee: "I declaim against the arbitrariness of the situation. It's a refusal to think."

Mrs. Gwen Brodie, Chairman of the Parents Educational Committee, CNIB: ". . . Our children require special books and individual attention. A poor education is worse than any handicap."—10th February, 1971.

C. DeCosta, President of the Portugese community in Metro Toronto: "New Canadians contribute to this country's progress and it is unfair to make cuts that will reduce educational opportunities for us."—10th February, 1971.

Dante Society, speaking for the Italian community in Metro Toronto: "New Canadians need small classes and specialized teachers. We have already protested on the issue of cuts and we are ready to do everything possible. If the Government is going to cut education spending we will expect nothing less than an intelligent consideration as to where the cuts will come."—10th February, 1971.

What can be done?

The Province insists that its uniform ceiling will have no harmful effects. OSSTF feels that the above evidence paints a different picture for at least 200,000 students. Therefore, teachers believe that elected members of the Legislature should have the opportunity to assess the evidence through the appropriate standing committee—the Human Resources Committee of the Legislature.

What can you do?

As a concerned parent, taxpayer, or student, the time has come to ask your local MPP, your elected trustees and your local teachers:

What's happening in our community—both now and next year?

Blues Missing First Finals

MINNEAPOLIS (CP-AP) — For the first time since they entered the National Hockey League in 1967, St. Louis Blues find themselves out of the Stanley Cup finals.

In fact, after their 5-2 loss to Minnesota North Stars Thursday, they won't even make the semi-finals.

The North Stars, who bowed to St. Louis in one previous quarter-final and one semi-final, ousted the Blues from the quarter-finals 4-2 and advance against the winner of the Boston Bruins-Montreal Canadiens quarter-final now tied 3-3.

The North Stars captured their fourth game in convincing fashion Thursday, allowing the Blues a 1-0 second-period lead before scoring five consecutive goals.

And it was Minnesota's utility man, Louis Nanne, scored the winner in the North Stars' 4-2 win Tuesday, getting the winner again.

The Blues went ahead on Frank St. Marseille's goal early in the second period but midway through the period Ted Hampson and Nanne connected 24 seconds apart to give the North Stars the lead they never lost.

Hampson's goal came after Minnesota defenceman Ted Harris lofted the puck to the boards behind the St. Louis net. Hampson skated in and shot and the puck bounced off St. Louis goalie Ernie Wakely's leg and into the net.

Just 24 seconds later, Bobby Rousseau passed to Murray Oliver who fed Nanne with the go-ahead goal that touched off a deafening roar from the Minnesota crowd of 15,370, a playoff record for the club.

About three minutes later, with St. Louis a man short, Rousseau banged in Hampson's pass to give the North Stars a 3-1 lead.

And then with 31 seconds left in the period, and the Blues with two men in the penalty box, Doug Mohns notched his first goal of the series to up the count to 4-1.

Mohns counted again midway through the final period to put the game out of St. Louis' reach.

Garry Unger banged in his third series goal with less than three minutes remaining in the game to round out the scoring.

Minnesota goaltender Gump Worsley turned back 20 St. Louis drives while the North Stars peppered Wakely with 30.

Hungry Habs Force 7th Game

MONTREAL (CP) — Before Thursday night's sixth game of the Montreal Canadiens Boston Bruins Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff series, Frank Mahovlich, the Canadiens' high scoring left winger talked about the quick first period jump the Bruins had managed on Montreal in each of the five previous games.

"I don't know why, but we just don't come in ready for them," the Big M was saying.

But Thursday night, the Canadiens came out flying and went on to drub the reigning Stanley Cup champions 8-3 before 17,491 fans. The victory evened the best-of-seven series at 3-3, forcing a seventh game at Boston Garden Sunday afternoon.

The Canadiens outscored the Bruins 2-1 in each of the first two periods and then counted four times in the third to wrap up the win.

"Montreal really gave us a lesson in skating tonight," said Boston centre Derek Sanderson. "They were hungry. They scored eight goals and could have had 15."

Canadiens got two goals each from Peter Mahovlich and Henri Richard with others by Jacques Lemaire, Jean-Claude Tremblay, Marc Tardif and Jacques Laperriere.

Phil Esposito, Fred Stanfield and Sanderson scored for Boston.

"Everyone skated well and played together," said Henri Richard, who was shifted to right wing from his normal centre position for the game.

"Our defencemen were skating and carrying the puck well. This is something we didn't do in Boston the other night."

Richard received a standing ovation in the third period after his second goal at 5:14 put Montreal ahead 5-2.

But the crowd reserved a special ovation for Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden later in the period, when he was credited with an assist on Pete Mahovlich's second goal.

"It's the first standing ovation I have ever received," said the soft-spoken Dryden. "I was really surprised and sort of embarrassed."

Dryden had one of his quietest nights in the series facing 32 Boston drives while his teammates fired 43 at Gery Cheevers in the Boston goal.

The Bruins have taken a total of 250 shots at Dryden in the six games—an average of 41.6 shots per game.

Boston coach Tom Johnson said Cheevers was "usually sharper than he was tonight, but I didn't notice anybody particularly sharp."

Beliveau Adds Two

Jean Beliveau earned two assists to move into a fourth-place tie in the Stanley Cup individual scoring race, as Montreal Canadiens romped to an 8-3 victory over Boston Bruins Thursday night.

The Montreal captain now shares fourth spot with Chicago Black Hawk forward Stan Mikita—each with eight points on two goals and six assists.

Bobby Orr, the scoring leader in the playoffs, was held scoreless Thursday night. He has five goals, seven assists for 12 points.

Leafs Reach End of Road

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs stayed alive longer than anyone expected, but they finally reached the end of their National Hockey League season Thursday night when they fell 2-1 to New York Rangers on Bob Nevin's second goal of the game in sudden-death overtime.

The Ranger victory at 9:7 of overtime eliminated Leafs from playoff action, but ended a drought for the New Yorkers, who have not a Stanley Cup playoff round since 1950.

In taking the best-of-seven quarter-final in six games, the Rangers qualified for the semi-final against the rested Chicago Black Hawks, idle since beating Philadelphia Flyers four straight in their quarter-final.

Leaf defenceman Jim McKenny, caught out of position on Nevin's first goal in the second period as three Rangers broke in alone on goalie Jacques Plante, redeemed himself with the tying score with less than three minutes remaining in regulation time.

The victory ended for Ranger coach Emile Francis four years of playoff frustrations in which his team failed to get past the first round and, until this year, had a combined total of four playoff victories.

It also took the pressure off goaltender Ed Giacomin who, he said, had been shafted by some New York reporters as the cause of all New York's playoff woes while he has been with the team.

"At no time since we've had him has Giacomin let us down. There's no way they can pin that rap on him," said Francis in explaining Rangers' earlier let-downs.

Francis, who also serves as Ranger general manager, said that in the first two years he coached a patchwork club. In the third, Rangers had injuries at two key positions and last year they had six regulars on the sidelines but still managed to take two games from Boston Bruins.

The Bruins then won a record 10 straight playoff games including sweeps of Chicago and St. Louis Blues, to win their first Stanley Cup in 23 years. The Rangers haven't won since 1940.

Francis applauded the opposition.

"Both Jim Gregory (Leaf general manager) and John McLellan (coach) can be proud of what they accomplished. I'm sure if any team faced adversity it was them in October and November, and they came back really good."

McLellan, somewhat subdued after visiting the victor's dressing room, was not disheartened with the loss.

"They gave it a hell of a shot," he said of his team. "There's no shame in going out like that."

His sentiments were echoed by rookie Billy MacMillan, Leafs' rugged winger who along with defencemen Bob Baun and Rick Ley was one of Toronto's steadiest playoff performers.

"They played a strong defence; a good defence," said the 21-year-old Charlottetown native who was one of the big surprises in Leafs comeback this season after six years with Canada's National team.

"We've got a real good young club here. We'll be that much better next year now that we've got that experience.

Nevin, selected third star in the game behind Giacomin and Plante, was not the less the centre of attention in the dressing room.

"It was a wrist shot right along the ice," he described his game winner that got by Plante's outstretched leg.

Nevin broke away from a Toronto rush with team-mate Vic Hadfield with only Baun back to protect the Leaf goalie. Using Hadfield as a decoy, the Ranger captain rifled the shot along the ice.

"I knew I got it pretty good," he said. "I saw half an empty net."

His opener was scored under somewhat similar circumstances.

With Leafs converging on the Ranger goal, Hadfield intercepted an errant pass, fed Walt Tkaczuk and the Rangers—three abreast—sped unmolested into the Leaf end.

Plante made the initial save, but Nevin pounced on the rebound and lifted it into the open net with the goaltender still out of position.

After the game, Nevin absolved McKenny of even touching the puck when it appeared the Leaf defenceman might have cleared it. McKenny, caught out of position to allow the Rangers' three-man break, recovered and got back in time for the rebound but wasn't able to corral the puck before Nevin flicked it home.

Local Livestock Dealer not stymied by Western Rail Disruption

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Latchford spent a week in Alberta the latter part of March, enjoying a holiday with friends. While there Mr. Latchford purchased a carload of cattle, which is nothing new for Bill. When he returned home, he was informed of an embargo placed on the shipment of livestock, etc. in the western Provinces, due to the possibility of a rail strike.

Mr. Latchford got on the phone to Alberta and made arrangements for a Transport Company out there to bring his 33 head of cattle to the Manitoba border.

Having just taken delivery of a new Ford tractor from Stevenson Ford Sales, Mr. Latchford gave it a good initiation run to the Manitoba border. The big, 45 foot stock trailer handled the 33 cattle easily.

Mr. Grant Nicholson and Harold Latchford made the trip. The men left after midnight on Thursday night and arrived home on Monday at noon, with all 33 head of cattle in top condition — even feeling frisky. Bill was really pleased about this. Roy Stevenson was pleased that the new Ford tractor had lived up to its reputation which has made Ford Number One in sales in heavy duty trucks in the U.S. and Canada, a position Ford also holds in both Pick-Ups and Econoline series.

Settle Hoop Scores

Harmony and St. Michael's paid off old scores in the finals of Grades 7 and 8 boys' basketball tournaments at Centennial Secondary School, Thursday.

Harmony had lost their second game of the Grade 8 tournament to the Ontario School for the Deaf taking consecutive wins over Queen Alexandra and King George Public School to gain a berth in the grand championship where they upset OSD.

Other teams entered included Sir MacKenzie Bowell, Breadner, St. Michael's, Bayside and Harry J. Clarke.

St. Michael's travelled a similar route to the Grade 7 championship losing their second match to Breadner, but springing an upset in the final game over their previous victors.

St. Mike's had opened with a win over Sir MacKenzie Bowell and later added wins over Harry J. Clarke and King George Public Schools.

Rounding out the list of Grade 7 entrants were OSD, Harmony, Bayside and Queen Alexandra.

Marilyn Guay and Reg Christopher are hoping that they'll have to repeat this packing process for a trip to Washington May 28. The Belleville ten-pin bowlers are among the 36 competing in Brunswick's "Bowl Your Way to Europe competition." Local winners will travel to Washington for the chance to compete for the European trip with bowlers from across the United States and Canada.

Ten-pinners Could Travel

"Conversational French" could replace "Ten Steps to Good Bowling" as required reading for some lucky competitor in Brunswick's Bowl Your Way to Europe Competition.

Winners from local competitions throughout Canada and the United States will be vying for the right to represent their area in the finals of the competition May 29 30 in Washington. The top bowlers in this competition will then receive an all - expenses paid week long trip to Europe.

A total of 36 Belleville tenpinners will be attempting to earn the trip to Washington in a roll-off Saturday at the Brunswick Plaza bowl.

Each man and woman will roll three games with the competitor in each section bowling the most pins over their seasons average qualifying to make the junket to Washington.

Contestants for Saturday earned the right to compete by winning the high game of the month in their category during regular league competition.

Saturday's winners will receive an all - expenses trip to the American capital for a chance at the trip overseas. Almost 400 bowlers from across North America will be trying for top honors.

This year's competition will mark the sixth time that Belleville bowlers have been entered in the event.

Dogs Kill 33 Area Deer

Winter kill of deer by dogs in the Tweed district, Lafids and Forests, was not as heavy as first anticipated, Belleville Fish and Game Club members were told Thursday night.

Past - president Tom Holm quoting a Lands and Forests source, said 33 were killed by dogs, 24 by wolves, 16 by motor vehicles and 37 died of natural causes.

Tribute was paid to district hunters for co-operation in bringing out dogs after the hunt. The LF source said dog kills were made by area farmers and local animals running at large.

A complete survey will be made in May to ascertain the actual winter loss to the deer population.

The club heard a report that fishing licences for men may be discontinued before the June opening. These licences last year brought in a revenue of some $1,800,000.

The reason, it was stated, is that the males of the fishing species feel they should not be tabbed a fee, while their feminine counterparts are not obliged to secure a licence.

Another lands and forests report on the deer situation revealed some $40,000 had been spent on alleviating winter conditions.

Sixty men had been employed all winter operating bulldozers and other snow-removal machinery, cutting trees and in various instances supplying food for the deer.

Club president George Hammett announced the club will operate a snowmobile club next winter.

Mrs. Dolores Nelson, RR 5 Belleville won the main door prize.

The May meeting will end the club's program until September.

Proceeds for conservation work of the club are being raised through the sale of tickets on a rowboat or canoe, the winner's choice.

Homers Growing Shorter

Commercial Softball league hitters will be able to set their sights on a shorter home run target at the Alemite field this season.

The fence in right and centre fields has been moved in approximately 30 feet from last year, leaving the park with dimensions of 230 feet down each foul line and 260 feet to centre field.

The parks board reports that there are still some wet spots on the field which will have to clear up before it can be put into use.

Scheduled practices this weekend for Rollins Construction and the Ellis Juniors have had to be cancelled because of the wet grounds.

Parents are the target of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association's east - end Olympic Club when they hold a general meeting Monday night.

More than 140 have registered with the club, which draws from boys residing east of MacDonald Ave. in the city.

But Monday's meeting, beginning at 7 p.m. at Moira Secondary School's gymnasium, is designed for parents interested in lending a helping hand to the east city club's 1971 operations.

Details of the "club system", going into effect for the first time in the upcoming soccer season, will also be explained to those in attendance.

The Olympics are still hoping to attract additional registration from the 14-16 bantam age group.

Lacrosse Lined Up

It appears as though the Quinte Junior Lacrosse League will field the same lineup for this season after the second organizational meeting of the year was held in Campbellford Thursday.

Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Cobourg and Campbellford were all represented at the meeting, while a sixth entry from last year, Tweed had previously expressed interest in competing in 1971.

Hank Reitsma of Cobourg was named as secretary-treasurer for the league, which is slated to begin play May 30th.

City Bowling Teams Capture All Honors

Belleville junior ten pin bowlers captured both team titles in the annual Kingston-Belleville Home and Home Tournament this year.

The competition was arranged so that the teams bowling most pins over their seasonal average would emerge as winners.

In the 29 - team bantam division; a Belleville foursome consisting of Jane Crushie, Ann Kennedy, Robbie Mathews and Mark Deline, rolled 301 pins over their average to finish in top spot.

In the teen division Bryan Adams, Dwayne Windsor, Lornie Bradley and Larry Bradley bested their average by 347 pins to top the 19 teams entered.

Healy Pays Dues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al Downing labored for nine innings to earn his National League pitching credentials. Fran Healy paid his hitting dues with one swing of the bat.

Downing, who pitched for 10 years in the American League before moving to Los Angeles in a pre-season trade, beat St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 Thursday night in his first start for the Dodgers.

Healy, whose previous exposure in the majors consisted of 10 at-bats for Kansas City Royals two years ago, pinch hit a first-pitch home run in his first National League trip to the plate to give San Francisco Giants a 4-3 10-inning victory over Houston Astros in a day game.

In the only other league action, Chicago Cubs downed San Diego Padres 4-3.

Downing, the little left-hander who has migrated from New York Yankees to Oakland Athletics to Milwaukee Brewers to the Dodgers since December, 1969, picked up his hard-earned first National League victory when Maury Wills' run-scoring single in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 deadlock.

Downing went out for a pinch hitter in the ninth after yielding nine hits. In his debut with Los Angeles last week, he hurled scoreless relief for 5 2-3 innings.

Bill Russell, whose fifth inning single knocked in the Dodgers' first run, doubled with one out in the ninth and scored on Wills' single to centre.

Downing blanked the Cards until the eighth, when they scored on Ted Simmons', two-out single.

Healy, a six-foot-five reserve catcher, pinch hit for reliever Jerry Johnson with one out in the 10th at San Francisco and drilled Jim Ray's first pitch over the right field screen.

It was the second memorable initiation for the 24-year-old rookie, who singled off Denny McLain in his first at-bat for Kansas City in September, 1969.

Joe Pepitone, who cracked four hits, and Ron Santo each delivered two-run singles, leading the Cubs past San Diego.

Right-hander Bill Hands checked the Padres on eight hits in beating them for the fifth time in as many lifetime decisions.

Lockwood's Turn to Play King Kong

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Sometimes I feel like King Kong out there and sometimes like Aunt Alice," says Skip Lockwood, Milwaukee Brewers' pitcher. "But, however I feel, I have to keep bearing down because I don't have any tricky stuff."

Lockwood assumed the leading part Thursday, pitching the Brewers over Chicago White sox 4-1 with a four-hitter.

"I stayed with my best pitches—fast ball and curve," said Lockwood.

He was especially impressive in the sixth inning as Chicago threatened to cut into the Brewers' 3-1 lead with two men on base. He then moved down the power of the White Sox lineup—Carlos May, Bill Melton and Rich McKinney.

Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers defeated New York Yankees 3-2, Baltimore Orioles topped Cleveland Indians 6-4 in 10 innings, Oakland Athletics trimmed Minnesota Twins 4-3 and California Angels bounced Kansas City Royals 5-2.

Ed Brinkman's ninth-inning single scored Aurelio Rodriguez to boost Detroit over New York. Detroit had tied the score at 2-2 in the eighth as Norm Cash drove home Al Kaline from third base with a sacrifice fly.

Fellpe Alou, who joined New York this week in a trade, hit his second homer in as many games for the Yanks, a fifth-inning shot into the right field seats.

Paul Blair and Boog Powell walked with the bases loaded in the 10th inning, forcing in two runs for Baltimore's victory for right-hander Jim Palmer.

Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson laced two-out, run-scoring singles in the eighth inning to pull Oakland to a comeback victory over Minnesota.

Sandy Alomar drove home the go-ahead run with a two-out single and Jim Fregosi followed with a two-run single as California scored three runs in the 11th to beat Kansas City.

California starter Tom Murphy was sailing along 2-0 when in the ninth on Dennis Paeke's the Royals struck back to tie it two-out, two-run double.

Who Needs To Finish?

TORONTO (CP) — The opening race of the 1971 Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race series at nearby Mosport June 13 will have a total of $75,000 in prizes, the race sponsor announced Thursday.

A new prize formula will provide $20,000 for the top 10 qualifiers, even if they don't finish the race on the 2.45-mile Mosport track. The remaining $55,000 will be the actual race purse.

The Mosport event is the first of a 10-race series with total prize money of $800,000 and more than $200,000 in manufacturers awards.

The two other Canadian races in the series are at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant, Que., June 27, and at Edmonton's International Speedway Sept. 26.

The series is expected to be a season-long battle between defending Can-Am champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand, driving a Team McLaren car, and former world champion driver Jackie Stewart of Scotland in a Lola.

Canadian drivers returning to the series this year are John Cordts of Barrie, Ont., Roger McCaig of Regina and Gord Dewar of Ottawa.

The Can-Am organizers this year have changed their qualifying formula.

Previously, practice and qualifying laps were combined and the fastest lap counted as the qualifying time. Drivers now will be timed on three qualifying laps which are preceded by one warm-up lap and followed by a cool-off lap.

Frank Howard, NDP, One of Most Pugnacious Men in House

OTTAWA (CP) — It has been an up-hill fight for Frank Howard in the New Democratic Party leadership contest, but then the MP from British Columbia's Skeena riding is one of the most pugnacious men in the Commons.

Since arriving in 1957, the good-looking former logger has built a reputation for slam-bang verbal attacks on the government of the day.

Now he is one of five declared candidates for the NDP leadership to be decided here April 24.

Mr. Howard, 45, was born in Kimberley, B.C., quit school in Grade 10 and kicked around in mining and logging jobs until he started to rise through the ranks of the International Woodworkers of America during the late 1940s.

He was president of a 5,000-member IWA local between 1950 and 1957 and a member of the B.C. legislature from 1953 to 1956.

Mr. Howard, whose debating vocabulary belies his scanty schooling, has the public support of just one of his 22 NDP Commons colleagues—John Skoberg (Moose Jaw).

Deputy Leader David Lewis, who has been favored to succeed the retiring T. C. Douglas, has about a dozen and Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) has five.

The other two candidates, both non-Commons figures, are Toronto professor John Harney and another academic, James Laxer of Queen's, Kingston, who represents the militant left-wing Waffle force.

Mr. Howard's rambunctious debating style made headlines in 1961 when he accused then prime minister John Diefenbaker of underhanded and deceitful-ous remarks during a procedural dispute.

For that attack he was named by the Commons Speaker and dismissed from the day's sitting by a vote of 149 to 7.

Five years later he complained that J. W. Pickersgill, then immigration minister, was not telling the truth, a charge forbidden by House rules, for which he apologized.

His persistence and aggressiveness show best when he's dealing with his major interests in public policy, Indian and northern affairs and penal reform.

But his debating sword may be drawn anytime. In a recent House debate on economy, he dismissed Finance Minister E. J. Benson as merely "the former book-keeper for a used-car dealer."

He made more headlines in 1967 when he disclosed he had served 16 months of a two-year sentence for armed robbery in 1943 at the age of 18.

At a news conference, he said he had received an attempted blackmail letter threatening to publish the information. His revelation then—and in retrospect—did little to harm his political career, winning far more sympathy than censure.

The conviction had followed an unhappy six years in orphanages and foster homes.

He teamed up with Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) to block passage of Quebec and Newfoundland divorces succeeding after two sessions in the mid-1960's in having divorce cases removed from the Commons.

The blockade, which built a backlog of several hundred divorce petitions before it succeeded, won the goal of ending what Mr. Howard called the degrading practice of shoving divorces through the House.

During the leadership campaign, he has energetically attacked the NDP-nationalist Waffle faction as irresponsible, divisive and "out of touch with the realities of politics and common sense."

Wednesday, he called on the group to dissolve itself.

Across-the-board nationalization is a balloon that "has been exploded many times over," he asserted earlier.

"The Waffle group seeks to establish by noise what it cannot substantiate in reason," he said.

Instead, he has proposed a moratorium on future foreign take-overs of Canadian businesses, and discussions with individual industries aimed at gradually disposing of foreign control.

He has also scolded the Waffle for its sympathies toward the Quebec separatist Parti Quebecois.

With typical independence, he was one of four NDP MPs to vote in support the government's invocation of the War Measures Act during last October's crisis in Quebec.

Mr. Howard has set out his own ideal of a politician: He "has to have a hard head, a soft heart and guts."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"The 'R' rating stands for red—like Emily's face."

Sentence Suspended

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Raymond Langlois, 22, who pleaded guilty to seven charges of placing bombs and stealing explosives in 1968, was given a suspended sentence Thursday.

The former Hydro-Quebec employee was arrested in January and pleaded guilty to placing bombs around Montreal in September and October, 1968, culminating with an explosion at a T. Eaton Co. downtown store which injured two persons and caused $25,000 damage.

First in Leadership Race.

Broadbent Wants to Become New Top Bachelor in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Edward Broadbent, 35, wants to become the new leading bachelor in the Commons, as leader of a New Democratic Party official Opposition, now that Prime Minister Trudeau has wed.

Mr. Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby and former political science professor, was the first to declare his candidacy for the right to succeed T. C. Douglas as NDP leader at the national convention opening Wednesday. The selection of one of the five candidates comes April 24.

Since then he has won the support of five fellow MPs, the powerful General Motors section of the United Auto Workers union executive and executives of several other unions.

As well, he claims good relations with the NDP's nationalist Waffle group, whose more radical left-wing policies have earned the wrath of the labor-based majority of the party.

In November he published not merely a platform, but a whole book, entitled The Liberal Rip-off, in which he attacks the government's economic policies as failing to create economic equality.

Competing with him in the leadership race are Deputy Leader David Lewis, 61; John Harney, 46 York University; James Laxer, 29, the Waffle contender from Queen's University; and Frank Howard, 45, MP for Skeena.

First elected to the Commons in 1968, Mr. Broadbent was born and raised in Oshawa, Ont.

Holder of a PhD in political philosophy, he has studied at the University of Toronto and the London School of Economics.

He has taught political science at the University of Toronto and York University.

Mr. Broadbent has succeeded in solidifying the UAW support that he mustered in the 1968 election, when he defeated former Conservative Labor Minister Michael Starr amid the Liberal sweep powered by Trudeaumania.

That support will be crucial at the convention, where trade union will send nearly half the delegates.

On policy issues, Mr. Broadbent has generally toed the party's Commons line.

He advocates public ownership in such areas as the petroleum industry, but steers clear of whatle calls the anti-U.S. content of the nationalist Waffle.

He says the party should attract supporters of the Quebec separatist Parti Quebecois, half of whom he says only voted for the PQ to win reforms in such areas as housing and a fairer distribution of the tax burden.

He says his own polls show him running second in the leadership race, behind Mr. Lewis.

The main job he says he would have as NDP leader—and hopefully later as Opposition leader—would be to show the public Prime Minister Trudeau's "complete failure" in achieving political unity and economic equality.

WE'VE GOT ALL THE ANSWERS
If Your Problem Is CRABGRASS
Apply a pre-emergent chemical herbicide; a weed killer that acts on seeds as they germinate in the soil. Crabgrass is a summer annual weed, germinating in June, establishing as a mature plant in July, extremely aggressive in August, then dying out completely with the cool moist temperatures of September. Crabgrass fits the life cycle to the dormant cycle of all desirable lawn grasses.

The problem is that this particular weed can produce viable seeds in as few as 8 days from sprouting of the original plant. These seeds fall on the ground and despite cutting and raking, they lie dormant over the winter only to sprout and grow new plants in the first drought of the next season. Killing the mature plants in July or August is no good because the seeds are still planted ready for the next year's infestation.

The only way to control crabgrass is through the use of pre-emergent chemicals . . . thoroughly proven in farm use . . . which are applied as a protective barrier on the soil's surface during April and left undisturbed until the crabgrass seeds start to sprout in May and June. Apply as evenly as possible after the grass has been raked and mowed so that this barrier need not be disturbed again. Most popular crabgrass preventers are from 90 to 97% effective.

We recommend an application of regular turf fertilizer now, then a treatment of crabgrass preventer (it comes mixed with fertilizer for ease of spreading) as a follow-up application any time in April or up to May 15th.

Youth Will Back Waffle

OTTAWA (CP) — Youth at the New Democratic Party national convention next week will vote overwhelmingly for policies of the NDP's nationalist left-wing Waffle group, George Flowers, New Democratic Youth federal secretary, said Thursday.

"I'm sure 90 per cent will support the resolutions of the Waffle."

He predicted in an interview the youth bloc will number about 300 among the 2,600 to 2,000 delegates at the convention.

The 200 includes delegates for the NDY wing itself, along with youth sent by constituencies and labor unions.

Mr. Flowers said the "vast majority" of the young delegates will vote for Waffle candidate James Laxer, 29, on the first ballot in next Saturday's leadership election.

Here's where a little thinking can save you a backache... weeks from now.
There are two basic ways to fertilize a lawn. The standard heavy-weight, short-term method, or the long-term Lawn Green method.
Lawn Green contains a balanced formula with special UF nitrogen that releases slowly into your grass. That way it keeps on feeding your lawn for weeks after initial application. You get a greener, better nourished lawn. And you get to spend more sunny afternoons with a caddy cart than your fertilizer spreader.
Another thing to remember is that 22 lbs. of concentrated Lawn Green equals 40-80 lbs. of conventional fertilizer. And one 22 lb. bag of Lawn Green covers a full 5000 square feet. So Lawn Green makes light work of things.
It's your summer. Enjoy it.

LAWN AND PLANT CARE
Why a lightweight fertilizer?
If you were to put a "pure" fertilizer on your plants or grass, it would burn them badly. So all dry fertilizers are thinned out with a carrier or "extender". The choice of thinner is pretty important.
Sand vs. vermiculite
Sand is cheap. And it is used in many heavyweight fertilizers to provide bulk—at about 80 lbs. per bag. If you have the muscles for it, fine. On the other hand, fillers such as vermiculite do the same job (or better) at 20-25 lbs. a bag.
Easier to spread
In fact, most lightweight fertilizers are highly concentrated, with analyses like 20-10-5, and contain up to three times more nutrient than ordinary heavyweights. The reason is that lightweight fertilizers are easier to spread over larger areas.
Buy coverage
It's all very simple. Weight is not a good yardstick to use when buying fertilizers. Instead, go by convenience and the "coverage area" of the fertilizer.
Buy results, not dead weight.
For Flower Beds
After transplanting annuals, wait 2 weeks until they become well established, tie to remove any weeds, then treat with Cruzade Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Blood Pressure Still Mysterious

The diagnosis and treatment of high blood pressure is not a cut-and-dried affair. In spite of the advent of the new anti-hypertensive drugs, the management of hypertension requires imagination and patience.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In spite of what everyone is supposed to know about high blood pressure I admit it still remains somewhat of a mystery to me. For example, what maintains blood pressure?

Does hardening of the arteries cause it? Is it always the same? What is the most common cause of hypertension? Quite a few questions, I realize — but I'll appreciate it if you can squeeze in a few replies in your limited space. — Mrs. B.

* * *

COMMENT: — In answering your questions, which are good ones, is like crowding sardines into a can. But I'll try.

Nowadays we do not consider that arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) causes hypertension. In fact, we believe it's the other way around. Untreated high blood pressure puts such a strain on arteries over a period of years that they lose their elasticity and become arteriosclerotic. (One good reason for controlling hypertension early and treating it effectively.)

What maintains blood pressure? There are five main factors and changes in any of these factors may influence blood pressure. They are: (1) the pumping action of the heart; (2) resistance to blood flow in the smaller blood vessels; (3) thickness or thinness of the blood; (4) amount of blood in the arteries; (5) the elasticity of the arterial walls.

It is well known that pressure is not always the same, that it is influenced by emotion, digestion, exercise, etc.

* * *

As for the most common cause of hypertension we need not hesitate to light the darkness. In about 85 to 90 per cent of cases we don't really know the reason. In the other 10 to 15 per cent, specific reasons are changes in the blood supply to kidneys, trouble in the adrenal glands, or narrowing of the aorta (large artery from the heart) due to congenital heart disease.

So I hope you understand what I mean, Mrs. B., when I said that management of hypertension requires "imagination and patience". Treatment for hypertension may include use of proper drugs, proper diet to produce normal weight, operation (where we have discovered some physical reason for the trouble), and helping the patient find freedom from tension.

* * *

For the many who think that life ends at 40 rather than begins at 40, I believe the following statement will indicate that calendar age fails to curb the spirit of many who have reached or passed the Biblical age of 70. Recently a 80-year-old man said, "If I had thought I was going to live so long I would have taken better care of myself."

* * *

For Mrs. D.: The actual cause of clubfoot is unknown. I suggest you leave treatment entirely to your orthopedist. The treatment he suggests — application of a series of casts over a period of many months — may be the only therapy necessary to get good results. If, however, it fails—then corrective surgery may be the choice. Whichever method is used — early or late — will depend upon the bone specialist's judgment.

For Mr. P.: Bell's palsy is a neuritis (inflammation) of the facial nerve. Spegial electrical tests tell us whether medical treatment or surgical "decompression" of the nerve is the better treatment in such patients.

Ontario to Purchase Book Firm Debentures

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will ask the federal government to share equally the cost of acquiring debentures for one-third of the assets of McClelland and Stewart Ltd., Premier Robert Nixon told Commons Thursday.

He tabled the first interim report of the royal commission on book publishing which dealt with owner Jack McClelland's unsuccessful attempt to sell shares in the company because of insufficient capital.

Mr. Davis said the government "accepts the principles put forward in this interim report . . . to maintain McClelland and Stewart as a Canadian-owned company."

In the question period, Opposition Leader Robert Nixon asked whether McClelland and Stewart had promised not to sell to United States interests if the debenture financing can be arranged.

"I don't believe there have been any assurances from McClelland and Stewart . . . ," the premier replied.

The government will have the option to take control of the company during the 10-year life of the loan.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked whether Mr. Davis would go ahead with the financing exclusive of federal involvement.

"We intend to accept the principle of this report . . . with or without the federal government," Mr. Davis said.

In an interview later, Mr. McClelland said he was told a few days ago of the recommendation.

"I was tremendously impressed by this proposal," he said. He called it "one of the most imaginative and important proposals that has ever been put forth by a royal commission."

He said he would be "delighted" to stay on as head of the company if the financing is arranged.

SYDNEY J. HARRIS SAYS

Prison Is Place To Learn to Rob

Glancing through a batch of new books publishers have sent me this spring, I saw the title, "Are You Safe From Burglars?" written by a reformed house-breaker named Robert Earl Barnes.

Leafing through the pages, I didn't find much I didn't know before (on I'm not safe from burglars, and neither are you); but I did learn how Barnes became such a crack professional before he was 21.

Going to prison, that's how. When he entered for the first time, he was a raw kid who just knew how to throw a padded brick through a window and make off with a few transistor radios and wrist watches.

When he left, Barnes had a post-graduate course in breaking and entering, and became one of the most successful burglars in the nation. He received a million-dollar education in the various prisons he attended — the million dollars coming out of our hides.

He learned how to use a lever to crack a small pry bar, lining up the tumblers in a padlock so that it would snap open. He was schooled in "punching," "peeling," and drilling safes. He was taught how to tape windows, use glass-cutters and plungers to render skylights. And the fastest and easiest way to disconnect chain door locks and pry doors off their frames.

In the prison welding shop, which was run by an experienced burglar - safecracker, Barnes took a ten-week course in blowing safes. He practiced for hours on one-quarter-inch steel plates with an acetylene torch. He acquired a delicate touch in regulating the amounts of oxygen and acetylene to reach the most effective temperature, and at the same time avoiding the danger of an exploding tank.

His professors in prison also showed him how to burn a safe at the centre of its door, how far to measure from the handle to the combination dial before drilling a hole, and other esoteric techniques for tripping locking "dogs" — safes after holes have been punched in them.

Most of all, Barnes was given "connections" in prison — the names of reliable bondsmen, lawyers and fences who would defend and protect him when he got out. After 21 months in prison and just on his 21st birthday, he walked out a free man—and within a year burglarized a home in St. Louis County, proudly opening his first wall safe.

What the average ignorant citizen doesn't realize is that the more men you sentence to prisons such as this — and all prisons are much like this — the more trained and experienced criminals are released to society. There is little point in catching them, prosecuting them, sentencing them, and then jailing them, if all the prison does is turn a bad theif into a good one. There is no evidence it does anything else.

Macdonald Attacks Davis Who Says Committee Out of Order

TORONTO (CP) — Speaker Fred Cass threatened to suspend Donald Macdonald (NDP —York South) Thursday near the end of an uproar in the Ontario legislature over a committee that voted Wednesday to investigate educational spending.

Mr. Macdonald had been trying to get a ruling from the speaker on whether the government could declare a committee's work out of order at Premier William Davis suggested during the question period.

The committee on human resources at its first meeting Wednesday had passed a motion 6 to 5 that it identify waste and duplication in education programs, identify programs that should be strengthened in the 70s, call before it groups such as teachers and report by June 30.

The motion was introduced by Tim Reid (L—Toronto Scarborough East) and passed with support from Liberals, the New Democratic Party and John Smith (PC—Hamilton Mountain).

Mr. Nixon asked if Mr. Davis was going to stop the investigation or whether he thought the committee had this sort of investigative power.

Mr. Davis said committees are supposed to investigate matters as ordered by the legislature.

"I expect that there will be a number of motions emanating from the government benches related to the activities of the committee. . . ." Mr. Davis said.

Either he or Education Minister Robert Welch would introduce an all-embracing motion before the committee sits next Wednesday on the question of educational spending and how it might be assessed by the committee.

In reply, to Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) he said it would be "quite proper" for the committee to invite the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation or representatives of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education to appear.

When Stephen Lewis, NDP leader, pressed him to say whether the resolution the committee passed was invalid, Mr. Davis said it was "out of order."

Mr. Macdonald asked Mr. Cass for a ruling on whether the government could "unilaterally declare" the committee out of order.

Mr. Cass said he could not rule because he had received no report from the committee. He called it a "theoretical question" and when Mr. Macdonald continued to insist it was not, Mr. Cass said:

"The honorable member is out of order. If he wishes to appeal my ruling. . . ."

"Mr. Speaker, with respect you are out of order," said Mr. Macdonald.

"I will suspend the honorable member for the rest of this session if he does not resume his seat," said the speaker.

Mr. Davis said he had given "a personal point of view" in saying the resolution was out of order.

Mr. Cass said no binding statement that would affect committee policy could be made in the question period and promised he would try to provide a ruling.

McCarthy Will Assess Quality of Education

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. J. R. McCarthy, 58, will be replaced as deputy minister of education in Ontario by May 1 to begin an assessment of quality, priorities and spending in elementary and secondary school education, Premier William Davis announced Thursday.

The premier told the legislature the inquiry will include "submissions, open hearings and everything else."

The announcement was included in a statement Mr. Davis made to the house while tabling the first interim report on the royal commission on book publishing. Dr. McCarthy also has been appointed a consultant to the commission in the field of textbook publishing.

The decision to conduct this assessment—I don't like the word 'inquiry'—was made some two or three weeks ago," Mr. Davis told a news conference later.

Premier Davis said he would make a statement today or Monday on the terms of reference of Dr. McCarthy's inquiry.

He said it will not be a royal commission but it would not end when the legislature breaks for the summer.

In the house Tim Reid, Liberal education critic, asked if Dr. McCarthy would be in fact, investigating his own department.

Outside the house the premier said: "It's not the department at all."

The bulk of the money is spent at the local school board level, he said.

Court Reserves Decision on Denison Sale Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal was told Thursday the proposed sale of Denison Mines Ltd. shares in Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. was entirely legal at the time of an agreement made last year, and the government had no right to veto it.

The court reserved judgment on an appeal by mining executive Stephen B. Roman and Roman Corp., owners of Denison, seeking to renew an action against Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Energy Minister J. J. Greene and Hudson's Bay Oil.

They are appealing against the dismissal of the action Jan. 28 by Mr. Justice Lloyd Houlden of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The plaintiffs say they and Hudson's Bay did not complete their transaction involving about 36 per cent of the outstanding shares in Denison because of statements made by Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene.

Mr. Trudeau said in the House of Commons March 2, 1970 that if necessary his government would amend the Atomic Energy Control Act to prevent the transfer of substantial ownership interest in Denison into non-Canadian hands.

Later, Mr. Greene said certain kinds of transactions involving the uranium industry would be allowed, but that the sale by the plaintiffs to Hudson's Bay would not be approved.

The plaintiffs seek a declaration that the agreement with Hudson's Bay is a valid and existing contract and ask for damages of $104 million and costs of the action.

Ontario 'Chicken and Egg' Bill Finally Passed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government gained passage of its controversial "chicken and egg" bill Thursday night after the opposition had pecked away at it for more than six hours.

The bill, first piece of legislation passed through the house under Premier William Davis, now needs only royal assent before it becomes law.

On third reading, the ruling Progressive Conservatives beat back the combined Liberal and New Democratic Party opposition by a vote of 36 to 21.

The bill would empower local marketing boards to seize any agricultural product marketed in Ontario without a permit.

The intent of the legislation was to put teeth in the province's Farm Product Marketing Act and curb importation of farm products from other provinces, particularly Quebec which has been glutting the Ontario broiler-chicken market.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart said it was necessary to pass the Ontario legislation quickly because of the delays in Ottawa of getting national marketing legislation passed.

Civil Servants Are Shuffled

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis announced a major reshuffling of senior civil servants, including some in his department, in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Dr. J. Keith Reynolds, chief executive officer from 1964-69 for former premier John Robarts and secretary to the cabinet since 1969, has been named deputy minister of the premier's department.

Clare Westcott, 47, has been named Mr. Davis's special assistant.

Prison Rebels Phoned

KINGSTON (CP) — A federal penitentiary service official threatened Friday night to ban from prison property all news media representatives covering the Kingston penitentiary rebellion.

John Moloney, regional director of penitentiaries, said some reporters were surreptitiously using the penitentiary's internal telephone system, centred in the prison administration building.

Mr. Moloney said calls were being placed across the street to prisoners who have controlled the main cell block since Wednesday night.

Mr. Moloney did not specify any particular incident. But he said that if it happened again all newspaper, radio and television reporters would be evicted from the administration building, which has functioned as a press centre since the start of the disturbances.

Lewis Expects Vote April 26

CAPREOL, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, predicted Friday night Premier William Davis would announce April 26 that a provincial election would be held in June.

Mr. Lewis specifically mentioned June 17 or June 24 as a possible election date.

He told a Sudbury East NDP nomination convention in this town 25 miles north of Sudbury that Premier Davis will "soon have to call an election or he will never again form a majority government."

Mr. Lewis didn't explain why he picked April 26 as the date of the announcement.

MPP Elie Martel was acclaimed to represent the NDP again in Sudbury East riding when a provincial election is called.

Quebec PC Leader May Be Ousted

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir says Fernand Alie, leader of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, may be forced to resign because he has adopted a constitutional stand in favor of a "two nations" policy.

The newspaper says five members of the party's provincial council have organized a special meeting for next Tuesday approaching special status support Mr. Alie's call for a policy approaching special status for Quebec in Confederation.

If his stand is not supported at the meeting, Le Devoir says, Mr. Alie will be forced either to resign or defend his policies at the Quebec wing's next convention in May.

Mr. Alie sent a letter to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield last week calling on the party to adopt a bicultural policy if it wants to survive in Quebec during the next federal election.

Three Nations Plan to Merge

CAIRO (AP) — The leaders of Egypt, Syria and Libya signed an agreement today to merge their countries into a federal union, the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported. It will be called the Federation of Arab Republics.

In a report from its own correspondent in Benghazi, Libya, the newspaper said Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Hafez Assad of Syria, along with Libyan leader Muammar El Gaddafi, signed the "agreement early today after two days of intensive talks in Libya's twin capital.

Early Vote Considered

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature prorogued Friday night after a busy and controversial 44-day session with an election forecast but not called.

An election is not required until 1972, but Premier Ross Thatcher referred to several of the controversial issues introduced during the session as possible election issues. Most observers believe it will be called, probably in June.

The most controversial legislation passed by the 59-member house—34 Liberals, 24 New Democratic Party opposition members and one vacant seat —was a bill that authorizes the government to enter into financial agreements with Parsons and Whittemore of New York, developers.

The $117.7-million Athabasca Forest Products pulp mill was attacked by the opposition as "a bad financial deal."

Nixon May Renew Raids on Hanoi If Captives Held

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon has threatened renewed air strikes against North Vietnam if Hanoi keeps American prisoners-of-war indefinitely.

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer session Friday night with members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Nixon said:

"We have some cards to play and we will play them to the hilt as far as the prisoners are concerned.

"We will continue the American air strikes if they keep prisoners."

Nixon told the ASNE delegates that he will make another announcement on withdrawal of troops from Vietnam sometime in November—shortly before the current phase of the pullout will have reduced U.S. strength in Vietnam to 184,000.

But he said ground and air forces will be kept there until the Saigon government is capable of defending itself and Hanoi releases the prisoners.

Nixon said the rate of the new withdrawals to be announced in November will depend on the progress, if any, of the Paris peace talks, the progress of the Vietnamization program, and the intensity of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong battle activity.

The president also told the editors he is prepared to take further steps in trade and the exchange of nationals to improve relations with China, but that the next move is up to Peking.

Hoover Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has won a strong defence and a glowing tribute from President Nixon but not a firm commitment he will be kept on the job.

Labelling many of the criticisms of Hoover as "unfair and malicious," the president said at a news conference Friday night:

"He's taking a bad rap on a lot of things and he doesn't deserve it."

Asked if he would keep Hoover as head of the FBI, Nixon said:

"I'm not going to discuss the situation with regard to Mr. Hoover's tenure in office when the matter has not been raised by him or by me."

Five Guards Still Held

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)

Troops moved riot-control gear inside the walls of Kingston penitentiary for the first time today as 500 rebellious prisoners continued to hold five guards hostage.

Elements of the Royal Canadian Regiment, a combat regiment which had been on standby at a nearby army base, marched inside the walls carrying riot shields, three-foot oak batons and coils of barbed wire.

Meantime, a further meeting between prisoner spokesmen and a five-man citizens' group was expected later today. Two of the group, a lawyer and a newspaper columnist, visited Ottawa Friday and returned to tell the prisoners their demands were being considered by the solicitor-general's office.

The combat troops flown in from Canadian Forces Base, Petawawa, on Thursday were under the command of Maj. Ray Lanctot of Montreal and were believed to have been used as guards for politicians in Ottawa during the Quebec crisis in October.

It had been reported earlier that these troops already had been on duty within the prison walls, but such duties provisionally were given only to members of a Canadian Forces communication school and members of the 1st Canadian Signals Regiment, based here.

Tension eased slightly Friday afternoon when the prisoners released one of six hostages, guard Terrence Decker, 37, as "a sign of good faith" in the administration's willingness to hear convicts' grievances.

However, prison spokesmen said the five guards still held by the prisoners are in serious danger.

Their announcements about what's going on inside Canada's biggest maximum-security institution remained cautious and conciliatory, calculated to keep the prisoners calm.

At dawn the main cell block, a hulking, century-old structure that dominates the walled prison site on the shores of Lake Ontario, remained under the prisoners' control.

The interior of the building was a shambles. Almost all the windows had been smashed, broken furniture littered the corridors, and guards on nearby walls saw prisoners wading through heaps of garbage and debris. Plumbing and sewer pipes were damaged.

The rest of the penitentiary—hospital, workshops, walls, towers, and smaller buildings—had been secured by tig, 321-member prison staff and 130 soldiers in full battle dress.

The forces at the disposal of the prison authorities were split into shifts. At any given time, there were 40 soldiers ringing the cellblock building with bayonet-tipped rifles unslung and 20 guards patrolling the rest of the grounds.

The situation was a standoff. The convicts couldn't get out and the troops and guards couldn't charge the cellblock for fear that the convicts would carry through with threats to kill the hostages.

Mr. Decker and his five colleagues were among nine guards seized when the rebellion started Wednesday night. Three were released unharmed early Thursday.

"It's as quiet as a tomb in there," a prison spokesman said early today. "From the outside, you'd never know there was any kind of trouble."

Prisoners' Spokesman Millionaire from U. S.

KINGSTON (CP) — Emmanuel Lester, principal spokesman for prisoners participating in the Kingston penitentiary riot, is a 45-year-old United States millionaire convicted in Toronto last year of possessing $175,000 in stolen securities.

Lester, who has lived in both New York and California, was sentenced to four years in penitentiary by Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court last October.

The articulate U.S. millionaire had spent a year in Don Jail, Toronto, before his conviction because he had been unable to raise $150,000 cash bail—his bank accounts were frozen after his arrest.

The stolen securities were recovered when Lester was arrested at Toronto International Airport following a flight from New York.

A Toronto stock promoter, Charles Tritt, testified at Lester's trial that the U.S. man had approached him to help dispose of $9 million in securities.

Tritt said Lester gave him the impression that the shares belonged to "racket kingpins" who needed money to solve some tax problems in the United States.

The court was told the securities were stolen from Goodbody and Co., a S. Brokerage house.

Lester describes himself as an unwilling spokesman for the 500 prisoners rioting at Kingston.

Dufferin Water Supply Still Not Resolved

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities Commission's new part-time manager, Doug Manlow, and his technical staff will prepare a study on how to supply Dufferin Developments.

At Friday's meeting of PUC commissioners, decision was made that more information should be gathered into any scheme of water main extensions is ratified.

Representatives of two consulting firms, International Water Supply Co. and Gore and Storrie, will come in town April 19 to help Mr. Manlow and his staff find the answers.

"I would hate like hell not to know all the pros and cons . . . we must take a good look to find out what is going on," said commissioner Charles Hilton.

Anticipating problems with the original plan to service the 200-lot west end subdivision through Sunrise Developments from Dufferin Avenue, Gore and Storrie in a letter to the PUC dated April 6 suggests either rerouting water lines around Sunrise land or running a line into Dufferin from the north off Dundas West via Orchard View Drive — both estimated to cost about the same amount.

Asked yesterday how much the servicing options would cost, commissioners pointed out there are so many variables involved it is not possible to arrive at valid cost estimates at this time. However, it is known the two fresh possibilities are more expensive than the original.

Mayor Duncan McDonald, as ex officio commissioner, cautioned against ready acceptance of the Dundas route because he said the PUC may end up having to build the line from Dufferin afterward to accommodate westward expansion of the town.

"I think the study should be made . . . but I do not want to hold up the development," the mayor said.

The commissioners agreed that it should not decide on which course to follow — the original or the two new ones — before it gets more facts on the situation. After discussing the situation with consultant Mr. Manlow will recommend the route to be taken.

Council has asked the commission whether there is adequate water available to service the area but it appears the fact the Mt. Pelion reservoir runs dry occasionally.

Consultants Gore and Storrie say the basis of the problem is that the eight-inch main now feeding the reservoir is inadequate, but with construction of an 18-inch main on Victoria Ave. the problem of refilling Mt. Pelion reservoir should be greatly reduced.

A special meeting of the commission will be called when Mr. Manlow has prepared his report and is ready with a recommendation.

Wiring Fee Set

TRENTON (Staff) — Developers building subdivisions with underground electrical services will now be charged for installation work by the Public Utilities Commission at the rate of $200 per home.

In providing underground electrical service to Ontario Housing Corp. units here, the PUC levied this charge and at Friday's commission meeting decision was made to make the charge universal.

"If it is OK for Ontario Housing Corporation, it is OK for private developers," Commissioner Charles Hilton concluded.

High Water Marks Guide for Future

With spring water levels now reaching their peak on many upstream lakes and creeks, the Moira River Conservation Authority is asking the assistance of residents in establishing high water marks.

The information, it is stated, will be of help to future cottage owners in locating cottages and septic tanks.

Authority Resources Manager John Waite said it would be of great assistance if cottage owners and residents near streams and lakes would mark the highest water level reached this spring on large trees or rock outcroppings.

The marks could take the form of painted stripes about three inches wide, with the bottom of the stripe indicating the highest level reached. Also driving three large headed nails in a horizontal line into the trunks of large dia meter trees would form a more permanent mark.

These marks would be visible from the lake or river side.

It is asked that the location of the high water marks be forwarded to the Moira River Conservation Authority office at Cannifton.

"Believe"

God loved the world so much that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him should not be lost, but should have eternal life. You must understand that God has not sent his Son into the world to pass sentence upon it, but to save it — through Him. Any man who believes in Him is not judged at all. It is the one who will not believe who stands already condemned, because he will not believe in the character of God's only Son.

County Landmark Levelled by Fire

FOXBORO (Staff) — A historic landmark in Hastings County was completely destroyed by fire last night. Known as the Inn at Holloway, the former stagecoach hotel at the junction of the 5th Concession of Thurlow and the old Madoc Road, the dilapidated building dated back to the 1830's.

A stopover point for travellers going north, the inn was last used as a private house.

Thurlow Township Fire Department responded to the 6.21 p.m. call but concentrated on the protection of surrounding barns and buildings. A fire department spokesman said, "the heat was tremendous . . . we kept pouring water on the barns, that was all we could do."

Described by one neighbor as a "hippie - haven," the boarded up frame dwelling had been broken into by transient youth, whose refuse was still visible. Said the Thurlow Fire Department representative, "there were dead animals and junk lying around, left by the hippies . . . an awful mess."

Bill Yeates, 139 John Street, Belleville, joint owner of the building with his brother Louis and sister Mrs. Beatrice Schrab, said the old inn was uninsured. "It was becoming an eyesore and everyone concerned, neighbors included was glad to see it go. The fire was a preventive thing for the future . . . it could not care less, it was a big headache," said Mr. Yeates.

The Yeates family had purchased the 100-acre farm, with the buildings included, from the McMullen estate.

Moira Students Have Plan for Summer Jobs

A group of five Moira Secondary School students is seeking some of the federal government's Opportunities of Youth funds for a summer program at their school.

Their submission for funding for $3,000 to finance use of the school as a community activities and recreational centre, went to Ottawa before the April 15 deadline.

The five students, James Wibberley, Steven Bodley, Allan Bender, Elizabeth Bellhouse and Christine Thompson, believe 200 to 300 families in the east end of the city would benefit from a summery centre at the school.

They want to use the physical education and home economics facilities of the school, keep the library open and operate a student - run snack franchise in the cafeteria.

The committee's submission suggests cooking and sewing classes for all ages from elementary school age on, to adults, and a sports program run in conjunction with the city recreation department's basketball program.

Supplementary programs include a baby - sitting service for adults who take part in activities at the school, a referral program-in conjunction with the Y's Opus Teens Job agency and a roster of students willing to do volunteer work.

The summer 71 scheme would employ 20 to 25 students full-time and 10 to 15 part - time. The committee budgeted about $300 a student for the summer and allowed $700 for one supervising staff member. It allocated $200 to buy magazines, films and tapes for the library. The government has been asked to contribute a total of $9,000. Additional expenses would be met from the family fee of $5 and the individual fee of $1 or $2 for the program.

If enough students are interested, the committee in charge of Summer 71 will arrange a tutoring program, using teachers from the school who have volunteered to give a week of their summer holidays each to the program. The five students have turned them down, the five students hope to try to run Summer 71 on a smaller scale with local support.

The federal government announced March 16 that it would put up about $15 million for student summer activities directed toward the creation of jobs for young people. Deadline for submission of schemes was April 15. All the federal government money advanced by Opportunities for Youth must be spent on salaries. Groups running programs must finance cost of materials, supplies, insurance and all other expenses. Maximum grant per student has been set at $1,000.

Each scheme submitted by the thousands of individual students and groups across the country must be judged individually on its merits in the Ottawa office of Opportunities for Youth.

Students here have been given no idea when approval or a turndown will come through from Ottawa.

Science Fair Said Best Yet

The 11th Annual Rotary Club of Belleville Science and Hobby Show, opened at the Belleville Armories yesterday and is open to the public from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. today. It is considered better than any previous fair, according to chairman Dave Davey.

"Last year was a record year and we've beaten that," he said. "There are more entries in both the science fair and the hobby show."

Bob Craig, in charge of publicity, noted the entries came "from farther afield" than before. Exhibitors from Belleville were joined by Trenton, Picton, Odessa, Napanee, Ernestown, Madoc, Tweed, and Stockdale students and hobbyists.

The three grand prize winners, Jane Douglas, Centennial Secondary, Danny Dodge, Quinte Secondary, and Michael Barrett, BCIVS will receive an all-expense paid trip to compete in the Canada-Wide Science Fair at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, in May.

First place science exhibitor, Miss Douglas, 14 Mt. Pleasant Road in Belleville, has been developing her hobby play since Christmas. Various displays of plant mixtures were developed on Bonney Best and Gardener's Delight tomato plants to demonstrate the effects of tobacco mosaic virus. "This will possibly improve development of plants in agriculture in general," said Miss Douglas of her experiments.

Mr. Davey noted that there are a total of 100 competitive displays and 27 hobby entries and demonstrations.

The Rotary Club has been working intensely on preparation of the hobby show for the past six weeks, but plans were underway since last September. "We owe a real debt to the science teachers," said Mr. Craig. "The success and key to the fair has been their backing."

More than 250 students took advantage of the free admission Saturday afternoon and a crowd of a thousand or more jammed the aisles of the show.

Winners in the science fair in their various categories were:-

Biological Division I

Ross Smithrim, Prince Charles School; Linda Graham, Sir Mackenzie Boswell and Gail Shaver, Sir Mackenzie Bowell School.

Physical Division I

Siegbert Schell, Tweed-Hungerford School; Carl Deshane, S. H. Connor School and Herman Prinnun, Pinecrest Memorial Elementary School.

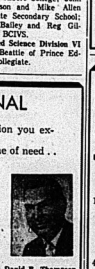
Overloaded Sewer Closes School

MADOC (Special) — The Madoc Public School was forced to close its doors to students Wednesday as the annual rush of spring waters pushed sewage back, causing a malfunction of the toilet system at the school.



Being situated on the lowest property in town, the school is subject to a backing up of the sewer on its west side and from the basin. With the high school pumping sewage into the piping on Elgin Street to the north, the pressure is put on the system of the public school from nearly all directions. Another cause for the backing up of the sewage is the fact that there are three nine-inch pipe lines going into the main sewer, while there is only one the same size leading out.

The present rush of the melting ice and snow in these pipes is more than they can handle — it has to back up somewhere. There seems to be very little the town can do about the situation, other than wait until it clears itself up.

Tuesday the students and teachers put in a very rough day, as the toilets were all out of order. Some of the pupils were taken over to the high school and allowed to use the washrooms there.

One of the biggest concerns is the presence of hepatitis in the school. A situation such as they encountered yesterday could prove very hazardous to the children's health.

New Children's Code Is Criticized

PICTON (Staff) — A new piece of legislation introduced in the House of Commons to replace the Juvenile Delinquents Act has been termed a possible reflection of "the very nature of the citizenry of our country."

Mrs. L. M. Ball, president of the Ontario Association of Childrens' Aid Societies told members of the Prince Edward County Childrens' Aid Society Wednesday night that the Young Offenders Bill rejects the existing label, "juvenile delinquent," Guest speaker for the annual meeting of th Prince Edward CAS, Mrs. Ball called this the keystone of the new bill's content.

She explained that the age of the child offender is raised to 17 years by the new act. Flexibility before a hearing is provided and can often lead to informal arrangements. The Young Offenders Bill furnishes opportunity to deal with a case so that it may be handled under provincial legislation, and separate offences, for instance against a municipal bylaw, from those violating the criminal code. Parents must appear in court with their children and these children will be provided with counsel, who may cross-examine witnesses.

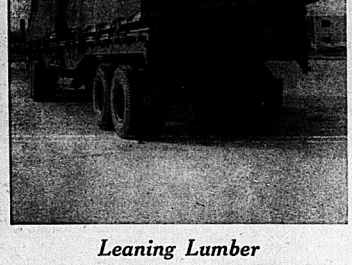
The Juvenile Delinquents Act, proclaimed in 1929, is based on the twin notions that a child should not be dealt with under the criminal code and that a child is a boy or girl under 16 years of age. A juvenile delinquent is a child who violates the Criminal Code, a provincial statute, a municipal bylaw, is guilty of sexual immorality or is liable to be sent to training school under another act.

Mrs. Ball stated that offenders are to be treated as misdirected and misguided young persons requiring encouragement, guidance and supervision. Care, custody and discipline of offenders is designed to approximate parental supervision. The Young Offenders Bill suggests similar principals but continues to state that young persons shall be dealt with as provided.

"Whether the care, custody and discipline outlined thereafter would be considered that which should be given by good parents depends upon who is doing the considering," remarked Mrs. Ball. She commented that if a young person is suspected of having committed an offence, procedures through proper channels can lead to an information laid, an arrest, and a deferred hearing in which the child can choose between admitting guilt or having the case proved against him in a trial. "If he is found to have committed the offence, he is subject to a broad range of dispositions. These are effective until he is 21 years of age or until they sooner expire," said Mrs. Ball.

The social worker stated that dispositions sometimes transfer custody outside the family and a predisposition report must be considered by the judge. "But the report, made by a probation officer or by the judge himself, requires only an investigation of the personal and family history and environment — pertinent certainly but inadequate and subject to misinterpretation," said Mrs. Ball. She added that the CAS would not make a foster home or adoption placement without "intimate knowledge both of the child and the adults concerned".

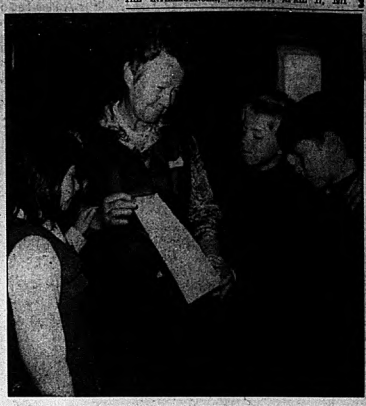
Mrs. Ball asserted, "The consequences of basing a disposition on a single item of behavior with little knowledge of the child make hollow indeed the stated 'philosophy of approximating care which should be given by the parents. The Young Offenders Bill proposes that the court, make such a decision for a child whose behavior has already signalled his need for help, guidance, encouragement and treatment."



The speaker suggested that if the state undertakes to guide and treat a child and not merely to punish him, it has an obligation to see that its legislation provides for this help. "Perhaps it would be more costly but the neglected child will collect one day what is withheld from him today," she observed.

Mrs. Ball stated that the Act assigns responsibility to the provinces for social disposition of the case but this is within the limits of judicia disposition. She predicted that unless present resources an programs are expanded by the provinces in preparation, the effect could be chaotic.

She said that she felt the legislation was being introduced before preparations are made because of "fear in the public mind of the trend of events, and of the prominent part young people play in precipitating them." Mrs. Ball discussed the Young Offenders Bill proposals for disposition of child offences and focused on what is "erroneously" termed double jeopardy. This proposal allows the offender convicted of a serious crime such as murder, if tried by indictment, to be committed to a training school until age 21 when he would appear in superior court and be sentenced as if he had then and there been convicted of the offence.



Mrs. Ball argued, "If there is such unbearable pressure within a child that he commits such a deed (murder) I submit that he should be dealt with in every case, as if he needed treatment. This is where the act should be most liberally construed." She stated that legislation should be directed only toward a child's nourishment and salvation. The social worker said that rehabilitation cannot be accomplished adequately under threat as a child sees it further and perhaps a worse punishment. "He must live in the most unendurable conditions of all — that of deferred, uncertain punishment," she commented. "It is not a deterrent now imposed on an adult under the Criminal Code. If we tolerate the life of children, what does it say of us?" she demanded.

Mrs. Ball urged those attending the meeting to carefully consider the new bill and to find out what it says. "Because once it is enacted, whether you intend it or not, it will act on your behalf and speak on your behalf and say that it is the best you could do on behalf of Canada's troubled children," she reminded.

Leaning Lumber

The nautical laws of equilibrium were almost upset by this truck which seems in serious danger of losing its load of lumber. The transport, owned by Rea Bros. of Mississauga, pulled off the highway at the North Front Street car wash — presumably to have its load straightened.

Thanked for Prayers

A proud moment in the life of a teacher was recorded at the Mildred Corke school at Albury when Mrs. Twilla Langman showed Grade 3 pupils the letter of thanks she received from the wife of the former British Trade Commissioner to Canada. The class offered prayers for the safety of James Cross and the apprehension of his kidnappers on a suggestion by Tim Ryan, right. Shown in the picture also are Bruce King and Jean Frost.

Mrs. James Cross Replies

AMELIASBURG - (Special) — The children of Grade 3 at Mildred Corke school at Albury prayed for the release of British trade commissioner James Cross and the capture of his kidnappers on a suggestion by nine-year-old Tim Ryant, one of the youngsters in the class.

Religious instruction teacher Mrs. Twilla Langman wrote a letter to the Cross family, telling them of her pupils' interest.

The reply, penned by the trade commissioner's wife Barbara Cross, was received a few days ago. It reads:

Dear Mrs. Langman,

My husband only recently received your card--no doubt the postal strike in Britain as well as the address contributed their share to slowing up its delivery.

Anyway, he was delighted to receive it, and asked me to write to you — asked me to give his warm good wishes to all the children in Grade 3.

He was very touched that they remembered him in their prayers and thanks them.

He is now back at his desk here in London and is very well. He has put the events of last fall rightout out of his head and thinks only with affection of the many happy times he had in Canada.

We both send you our regards and hope an early spring is in sight as I believe you have had a bad winter this year.

Yours sincerely,
Barbara Cross.

A photostat copy of Mrs. Cross' letter is being made to be framed and hung in the Grade 3 classroom. The original will remain with Mrs. Langman as one of her cherished possessions.

Liberal Contenders State Postions

PICTON (Staff) — Three liberal party members seeking the provincial candidacy Wednesday addressed members of the Picton Liberal Association.

Athol farmer Dan Nielsen accused the Conservative government of answering questions in the House "by talking around the bush." Mr. Nielsen, who unsuccessfully sought the candidacy nomination four years ago, remarked that at that time he was angry, "Four years is a long time to stay angry but there is still a little fire in me and sometimes it blows up," he said.

He was referring to his reaction to the presence of police officers now stationed on each floor of Queen's Park. "I don't know what the Tory government is afraid of. In spite of this (the guard) they are as arrogant as ever. After 29 years in power they take too much for granted. I say Mr. Davis should not take too much for granted in the next election."

Mr. Nielsen criticized the loss of cheese factories in Prince Edward County and the closing of Quinte Milk Products, Wellington. He recalled that Quinte Milk Products had folded despite a forgivable loan and added, "We didn't get our money out of that."

Mr. Nielsen blasted the Conservative government's spending policies, specifically mentioning the $27-million Ontario Place in Toronto. "They must stop this foolish spending but they are so used to it that they won't stop. We must return the government to the people and stop them ourselves in the next election," he asserted.

Candidate Allan Rally noted that cheese factories have closed in Prince Edward because of their quota systems which offer no room for expansion and problems connected with whey disposal. He said that their difficulties are the result of marketing boards and the OWRC. Mr. Ralley stressed that the three factories remaining in the county will also "go by the board" unless their problems can be corrected.

He stated that the present government is now doing the job given it by earlier premiers. "William Davis has to more or less follow Roberts who followed Frost," he observed. He declared that no new ideas or concepts are forthcoming.

"We all experienced the high spending of the Tory government. The Liberal government is preparing a whole new tax reform," he remarked.

Mr. Ralley, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, said that in four years the Liberal party, if elected, will take over the cost of education completely. "This puts the cost where it should be," he stressed. Property taxes pertaining to education will be eliminated.

The former South Marysburg township reeve said that he welcomed the delay in the upcoming election as an opportunity for Liberals to organize.

Third contender for the nomination, Napanee lawyer Barry Young charged that the government in Toronto "has stopped listening to the people of Ontario," and has a mandate to rule. He added that regional government is an impending possibility but said that relatively little is understood about how it will affect us, our taxes and our services. "We aren't getting any consultations before decisions are made," he claimed.

Mr. Young stressed that he intends to "give a good shot" at making his campaign a full time job and if elected he will represent his riding on a full-time basis. He noted that 50 per cent of the eligible voters turned out in the last election. "I think the other 50 per cent don't give a damn, so our taxes and our services "We aren't getting any consultations before decisions are made," he claimed.

Thurlow Requests Help With Main

CANNIFTON (Staff) — Thurlow Township council has approached Black Diamond Cheese, Ltd., Gulf Oil of Canada Ltd., and Holiday Inns for contribution of a lump sum payment of $15,000 each toward the capital cost of construction of a proposed water main for the Black Diamond Road.

This money would have the effect of reducing the amount to be borrowed through the issuance of debentures from an estimated cost of $161,000 to $135,100. The annual payments would be reduced from $10,307 to $14,480, and the amount required to retire the debt over a period of 25 to 30 years.

A study is being conducted to determine the possibility of raising the annual payments by increased mill rates and surcharges.

A mill rate of 10 mills would be applied on land assessment of $173,300 on properties with 500 feet of the proposed water main. This increase would raise $4,733.

A mill rate of 4 mills on a total estimated land value of $6,827,365, applied to the remainder of the township, would raise $5,462.

The surcharge would be $1 per 1,000 gallons applied on water consumption based on an estimated amount of 5.25 million gallons. This surcharge would increase revenue by $5,251.50.

If this proposal meets with the approval of those affected, council will approach the Ontario Municipal Board for sanction.

Communications 1

Technically, the means of communication in today's world could scarcely be bettered. We have travelled far since the days of Marconi and Alexander Graham Bell, and to the point where today our own community of Belleville is centre for a Bell Canada technical training school which will draw students of telecommunications from all over the world.

Yet if the techniques of communication are advanced, making possible virtually immediate contacts with peoples and with other countries, what about the quality of what we are communicating. We are thinking of the the whole gamut of dialogue between nations.

It is a vast subject, involving not only telecommunications but exchanges of information via newspapers and radio, not to mention increased use of them for both information and propaganda purposes by governments, pressure groups and the general public.

Culturally, we are limited, in the range of our thoughts, ideals and aspirations in a materialist environment often narrow. What we do know and learn daily in school, from the media and conversation with our fellow man must be recognized for what it is, a mere fraction of the whole. What we do absorb moreover must be observed and analyzed critically.

If then we have the means of communicating more easily than ever before, in an electronic sense, we must also strive for greater quality in the continuing dialogue between men and nations. We see something of the kind happening between ourselves and Communist China — and that has come about not because of our superior electronics but from a simple person-to-person invitation from Peking sporting representatives to Canadian, British and U.S. counterparts.

Thus, in our daily affairs, let us seek accord with our own, as well as with other peoples. Let us seek knowledge and pursue the truth.

Communications 2

Speaking of communications, the world is smaller today not only because of electronics but also because of the rootlessness of thousands of young people. The hippie phenomenon for instance is one that has spread across almost the entire face of the globe — North America, Britain, Europe, the Middle East and into remote fastnesses like Nepal — and wherever this shifting human sea sets down for a time (as often as not to be quickly moved on by the authorities) it has been as much by the hush-telegraph communications as to any other means.

Because of such easy links there are few places left today fostering much resemblance to earlier times. In the current issue of the National Geographic, in an article on the island of Maui in Hawaii, there is a picture of a young girl and the caption reads: "Free spirit meditates in the nude at sunset on secluded East Maui beach. To the consternation of many citizen's groups, easy-living youths have flocked to impromptu communes in Maui's isolated fastnesses, sleeping in rude shelters and eating the island's plentiful fruit and fish."

In the same issue is an article on the legendary Aran Islands off the west coast of Ireland where the strange ways of the permissive society have long been practised by fishermen there have the look of real men who know the rewards of work, constant exposure to a harsh coastal environment and family solidarity. Similarly, the most lasting impression of the look of people who are in tune with nature and its resources which the world outside, unhappily, seems to drain from many of its sons and daughters.

Inishmore now has an airstrip, and sea links with the mainland there have always been, but the strong sinews of island life remain. There are three policemen on Inishmore, or Big Island but crime is virtually unknown. An officer makes only a monthly visit to two smaller islands in the group. Each island has a nurse but there is only one doctor for the group and she is a petite young woman called Marie Keane whose modish clothes contrast with the traditional clothes of the island women. One does not think of miniskirts in Aran, but then as we have noted, communications here too are not lacking and Aran knits are known world over. We recall too that Marconi conducted some of his early transatlantic experiments at Ballycastle, a coastal resort in the extreme northeast of Ireland. And of course there was that other effort in pioneer communications, when Alcock and Brown first flew the Atlantic non-stop from Newfoundland, crash-landing in a bog near Clifden in the west of Ireland, back in 1919.

Communications can corrupt peoples, just as they can bring blessing and progress. It all depends on the people. It is as 26-year-old Dale Grant, of Toronto, a former speed-freak, put it in an article in Weekend last year: "Speed addiction, any addiction, is ultimately a failure of the individual, not of society . . ."

'It Is A Plus Factor' Says St. Thomas M.P.

Foreign . . Outside . . American Control and All That

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Commons had been caught up in another wrangle about "foreign control" of Canadian industry with the super-nationalists demanding restrictions on what they call "outside" investment.

By "outside" they mean American.

By "foreign control" they mean industry financed and developed by American investment enterprises in ventures on which Canadians, for some baffling reason, seem too timid to take a dollar chance.

The Daily Question Period — dominated by the nationalists — was over and the Honorable Members were spilling out of the House, through the Lobbies and into the rotunda of the Commons.

Newsmen crowded around as members of the Cabinet made their exits. The newspapermen asking their questions, the ultra-extremists mein waiting, impatiently, to lure the Ministers down the hall to the Commonwealth Room and a pitch before the TV cameras.

Out came Prime Minister Trudeau to dash up the stairs, three at a time, trailing a retinue of panting aides, to his office suite.

Out came Finance Minister Edgar Benson lighting up that pipe while he pondered answers to questions.

Out came National Revenue Minister Herb Gray who has been working on legislation on Government policy guidelines for "foreign" investment.

Out came most of the rest of the Cabinet, Treasury Board Energy Minister Joe Greene, President Charles M. Drury Public Works Minister Arthur Laing, and the rest, on the way to their Centre Block offices.

When slap!

It was the sound of a heavy file of papers on the polished stone floor of the high-vaulted, stained glass-ceilinged Commons rotunda.

Standing over the file was Elgin Liberal MP Harold Stafford, a nine-year veteran of the Commons from St. Thomas in Old Ontario's Elgin County.

It was his file.

He had slapped it down, dramatically, on the floor.

And it was an attention-getter.

But it had not been intended for that.

Rather it was an involuntary demonstration of pent-up irritation.

Harold Stafford had been annoyed beyond endurance by the bleating and the nagging, the small-mindedness and the financial short-sightedness of the growing band of super-nationalists back there on the floor of the Commons.

He had been sitting there in Parliamentary Committees where, of course, they are led by the socialists, the New Democrats, joined by some maverick Conservatives and supported even by some leftwarding Liberals.

And he has been fighting them — the Liberals among them — in his party's Caucus where an MP can speak his mind about the things he likes, and does not like, that his Government may be doing.

He was out of patience. He was concerned. And yes, he was just a little angry.

The super-nationalists had got him this uptight.

"If they keep it up," he rapped out to newsmen and some MPs crowding in around him and that file on the floor, "they will ruin the country."

But the nationalists had only been complaining, someone told him, that foreign investment was making a profit in its Canadian operations, and taking "wealth out of the country."

"I hope there are profits being made in Canada," he said, because jobs are being provided, thousands and thousands of them that would not be there were not for foreign — OK, call it American — investment."

He knew his stuff, understanding fully what he was talking about because he had seen American investment at work in Elgin County.

"Ford came in," he related, "and bought some 1,500 acres a few miles north of St. Thomas. Farm land it was, producing perhaps $25 to $50 per crop acre over a year."

And Elgin is good, rich farm country, on the northern south rim of a slope down to Lake Erie's shores.

"Ford put $65 million into a plant covering some 750 of those 1,500 acres," he related, "and hired a staff of 2,750 people at pretty good rates of pay.

"What is even more important than the economic upgrading of farm land by dramatic industrialization is the enormous technological fallout we get from Ford. Billions of dollars worth of patents no Canadian enterprise could afford. Industrial expertise built up from more than 50 years of experience.

"Now get this, 75 per cent of Canada's Gross National Product comes from wages and salaries.

"The Americans, unlike some other foreign investors, like say, the Japanese, do not just come in and take out raw material for processing at home to sell back to us.

"In the motor and a lot of other industries they operate in Canada, they process the raw materials here and sell the product to their own people over the border.

"I like Americans. I think their investment here is a huge plus. We cannot do without it. And neither can we cannot afford to discriminate against it with national restrictions. Canada is not Mexico."

Where Time Stands Still

Traces of ice linger in the channel as ferry traffic piles between Glenora and Adolphustown. Soon movement of people and vehicles will increase, but however busy the route there is a timelessness about this scene from Lake of the Mountain which remains unaffected by the madding crowd, pollution, exhaust fumes and all the rest of it.

Handicapped Suffer Discrimination

The Globe and Mail

Never mind South Africa . . . Canada, too, has its forms of apartheid. It may not be as openly enforced, but its sting is as real. As a man physically handicapped with cerebral palsy, I have felt that sting, have witnessed others like myself crumple under it and withdraw within the protection of resignation, or, to recover some identification, join ghetto organizations. It is only the ambitious and the angry who fight to become useful, productive citizens, but to do it, they must prove to be and be better than the "normal" fellow.

Simply, in a land professing equal opportunity, the physically handicapped are at best second class citizens.

Try if you will, to suppose you are confined to a wheelchair. You are out in a public place and suddenly you are in need of a public convenience. Unless the convenience is on the ground floor and the doors are wide enough, there is no chance of relief. You must go hunt out an especially marked lavatory for it. A public library is an equally formidable mountain. So is the gang plank. And the Court House . . . well, the law need fear the inroads made by wheelchairs!

Say you would like to be a contributing citizen and in pursuit of that idea you apply with Manpower. If you are lucky, your interviewer will ignore upon sight your obvious disability and promise you a position if not, you will be sent home to live off the taxes of the man who landed a job. Or, in pursuit of a higher education, you apply to a government agency for aid in tuition. If you are lucky there you will not be praised for your shoe-shine but recognized for your academic skills.

Finally, you need an apartment. You find one and pay the downpayment and await future occupancy. When you return, the downpayment is handed back with an apology that there is no room for you. You know discrimination has been practiced and so appeal to the Human Rights Committee. You are sorry to learn that nothing can be done simply because the state of your being is not listed in the Ontario Human Rights Code.

In England, all of these things are guaranteed to the handicapped, and are enforced by severe penalties.

I love my country but I suggest it first clean up its own backyard before it criticizes and condemns others.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

April 17, 1971 . . .

Anti-Communist volunteers landed in Cuba at the Bay of Pigs 10 years ago today in 1961—in an attempt to overthrow the Castro government. Early reports were optimistic but survivors of the force of 1,200 men surrendered within a few days and were ransomed in 1962 for medical and industrial supplies. The failure broke up the unified front of the revolutionary council in the United States and dominance of the CIA over Cuban refugees, but the effects were felt within Cuba, where political arrests increased and all political parties were amalgamated into one state organization.

1942—12 RAF Lancaster bombers attacked the M.A.N. diesel works at Augsburg by day; seven were shot down and Sqdn. Ldr. J. D. Nettleton won the VC.

1941—The Royal 22nd Regiment mounted guard at Buckingham Palace.

1941—The Yugoslav army surrendered to Germany.

1939—The French liner Paris burned at Le Havre.

1916—The Russians captured Trebizond, Armenia.

1917—Turkey declared war on Greece.

1676—Scottish writer Ian Hay was born.

1837—John Pierpont Morgan the elder was born.

1790—Benjamin Franklin died.

Southwest Ontario's 'Tropical' Climate

Windsor Star

This is the time of the year when it is possible to detect visibly the climatic advantages of Southwestern Ontario. One has but to drive from Windsor to Montreal to note the differences that the miles make.

Farmers can be seen at work on their land in Essex and Kent Counties while around Ottawa, there is still ice in the fence rows, and the frost is still coming out of the soil. One observer avers that in the favourable spring Southwestern Ontario is at least ten days ahead of Central Ontario in the matter of seeding and two weeks or more ahead of Eastern Ontario.

It isn't just that the climate is warmer hereabouts, or that the sun shines earlier and stronger in the springtime. It is also that there is less snow, so the sun has an earlier opportunity to get at the soil and dry it out. Up in the snow-belt the snow has to go before the sun can get at the soil — and the moisture from the snow means that the soil cannot be so done after the frost is out.

This of course, together with the fertility of the soil, is a reason why Southwestern Ontario is suitable to vegetables and crops. But it is worth a drive through the Ontario countryside in the first hand what the differences in climate and geography mean to man at this spring season.

Table-Tennis Thaws the Ice Between East and West

By CY FOX

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The sudden spurt of ping-pong diplomacy launched by the unpredictable Communist Chinese has set off worldwide discussion about the possibility that Peking is seriously interested in cultivating less-frigid relations with the West.

Canada and China now have announced the names of the ambassadors who will be formally implementing the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Last year's announcement about the inauguration of Canadian-Chinese ties proves to have been a pioneer development in the increasing tendency of Peking to lavish guarded smiles on the West.

The glittering reception given in the Chinese capital to table tennis players from the United States, Canada and other Western countries coincides with what seem to be related switches in various policy fields by Peking.

For instance, telephone contact between Britain and China is being resumed after a lapse of more than two decades.

And for the first time, the Chinese actually have offered London information about British ties with Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime on Taiwan, the island to which Chiang's Communist officials.

Premier Chou En-lai, in welcoming the table tennis visitors to Peking, spoke of "constant contacts" in future between the peoples of the U.S. and China.

Yet this in itself is not so big a change from previous Chinese policy as might at first seem to be the case.

Peking always has contended that it has nothing but admiration for the American "people" as opposed to the U.S. government.

By sticking with traditional terminology, the Chinese premier may have indicated the limitations of the present thaw in relations with Washington.

Nevertheless, an unprecedented degree of accessibility to the People's Republic of China is being granted to a number of journalists from the U.S.

Moreover, the Chinese, proddingly skilled at diplomacy, have gone out of their way to avoid overstressing their table tennis rivals from the U.S. or too unsightly a margin in the contests played in Peking.

However, grim members of political realities keep crowding in on this ostensibly heart-warming sector of the world news scene.

For one thing, fighting continues to be fierce between U.S.-backed and Communist forces in Parts of Indochina.

And it seems more than accidental that Peking is pouring on the unfriendlier cordiality at precisely the time when Washington is deciding both on its policy toward Taiwan's next bid for United Nations' membership and on possible resumption of trade with the supposedly inviting Chinese market.

For their part, the Americans may consider they have much to gain from warmer Peking contacts, so that their expressed surprise at recent Chinese moves should perhaps be treated as itself a carefully pondered move in the game of world power politics.

Oasis in Concrete Desert Aim Of Historic Toronto Churches

TORONTO (CP) — A gothic cathedral in a downtown business district can be a white elephant—big, expensive, taking up space.

It can, on the other hand, be looked on as an oasis in the middle of the concrete desert, with its graceful good looks, inviting park land, space to share.

That's the idea at two of Toronto's most historic churches. They are looking for ways to turn their liabilities into assets, for new ways to be an active part of the cement-encased community in which they now find themselves.

Rev. Clifford Elliott of Metropolitan United Church says their very attractions have been inhibiting.

"It is difficult to know what to do in a situation like ours, geographically and otherwise. It is very difficult to adapt a gothic cathedral, structurally and emotionally."

Metropolitan and St. James (Anglican) Cathedral are within a few blocks of each another, just to the east of Toronto's financial and shopping core, just to the west of an area scheduled for redevelopment.

St. James has been there for 174 years, Metropolitan for 100. Both have roots that reach even farther back into the life of the city.

The families that made up their original congregations moved away several generations ago. Their congregations now come from all over the city, largely on a Sunday-only basis. Their neighbors are business buildings. The only residents of the area are several thousand transients, mostly men, mostly loners.

The current efforts of the churches have taken several directions.

With St. Michael's (Roman Catholic) Cathedral, they are paying for a study of the needs and resources of the area to find out how, for the first time, they might work together.

Metropolitan has worked with social agencies which deal with the transients in an effort to get at the causes of their problems. It is probable the joint study will involve them.

In the meantime, St. James has appointed a renewal committee that includes a church and the community committee headed by Mrs. Stuart Mackay.

They are taking a special interest in the working community and the sterility of their daytime surroundings.

"Some of the community for us is a 9-to-5, Monday-to-Friday group," says Mrs. Mackay. "We need to enhance the quality of life for them—do something to make it pleasanter. The church has an historic interest in the arts, is trying to provide something for the whole man."

It has operated a program of free concerts, adult puppet shows, noon-time entertainment outdoors in fine weather to encourage people to use the cathedral's park and adjacent city land.

Metropolitan leases its lawn to the city for a nominal fee and the city maintains it as a public park.

Mrs. Mackay says: "A lot of what the young people are talking about makes sense—sensitivity to what's around you, de-emphasis of the use, enhancing the quality of living. Just having the basics is just existing. Living is a great deal more."

The St. James committee may set up a series of talks on plans for the surrounding area to give people the chance to know and understand what's happening to their city.

Dr. Elliott says he thinks a church should be used for that type of thing. The church was offered as a meeting place for the recent poor people's conference.

During the week it provides housing and some volunteer and staff help to a nursery school and after-school club for children who need them, therapy groups from a nearby hospital, a senior citizens' and a mothers' group. The church works with a phone distress centre and houses an interchurch counselling and training centre.

"It costs $50,000 a year to maintain the property, but the property makes the social work possible," Dr. Elliott says.

Dr. Elliott sees a revival of religious interest expressed in the arts and he hopes his church might lend itself to expressions with the arts and religion.

"We work in society now that doesn't think of community in purely geographic terms, but also in terms of a community of interest. The big downtown churches have to think of their community in metropolitan terms.

"There is dissatisfaction with technology, but the average man cannot relate to organized religion. It is not enough to tell him to come to church."

Toronto Dance Theatre Plays Missionary Role

TORONTO (CP) — The latest new kicks in the religious movement are those of the Toronto Dance Theatre, whose members are becoming the most muscular missionaries.

The avant-garde group has integrated its performance rites with the services in about a dozen local churches.

The movement began in 1968 with an invitation to dancer David Earle to dance in one church, and has since spread throughout the city.

"We usually receive letters from the officers of the churches asking us to perform within their services," Mr. Earle said.

He is a director of a company which initiated the inter-church dancing with his production of Fire in the Eyes of God.

"We never ask a fee," he said. "We leave that to the discretion of the church. But they generally send an honorarium which we apply to our scholarship fund.

"We don't want to give up our freedom. We have to be sure that our work remains uncensored and untouched; that just because we're physically working in the same structure doesn't mean we're subjects of its institutional laws."

Critics say it is obvious from the performance of the Toronto Dance Theatre that its intensity and individualism are no less serious or zealous than religious fervor.

Churchmen say they have found stimulation in its work and a chance to improve communication with the youth in the congregation.

Observer Backs Common Worship

TORONTO (CP) — A rebuke to ministers and others who claim it is not necessary or even helpful for Christians to gather together for common worship is given by The United Church Observer.

"We do not care whether they meet in a gothic cathedral or a basement recreation room, whether they listen to Bach chorales on a five-manual pipe organ, or sing folk songs to the accompaniment of five guitars," the magazine says.

"They may wear grass skirts, miniskirts or no skirts. We don't care whether ministers wear clerical collars, turtlenecks or hair shirts.

"What is important is that at least two persons who regularly make an offering of worship to Almighty God. . . . We do not mention as persons, we do not grow as spiritual beings, when we fail to unite with others in worship."

Ice 'Circus' Proved Highlight At Tweed

TWEED — There was a lot to enjoy at the recent revue "Circus, On Ice" staged by the Tweed Kiwanis Skating Club at Tweed.

The variety of the program consisting of 16 acts, a colorful stage decoration and delightful costuming contributed to the sophisticated atmosphere of this annual show.

The opening parade, with the most appropriate music was already a joy, promising an interesting program to follow. "Ponies", "Majorettes" and "Stars of the Future" made a grand entry and with the youngest performers being barely 3 years of age. "Four Little Ballerinas" performed well.

"Tigers" were a well organized group, depicting the discipline of pattern skating. "Fiesta Tango" and "Willow Waltz" were two of the compulsory dances well performed by eight senior girls. The "Two Monkeys" with quick steps and jumps thrilled the audience. The "Zebras" followed.

The pairs girls from Peterborough concluded the first part of the show. The audience was delighted by their precision in both figure and dance steps. It is felt their performances will certainly enhance Tweed skaters to similar achievements.

Part two was opened by the "Northern Lights" performed by four promising skaters. The fact that solo numbers should be given to promising skaters early, was well demonstrated in the act "Snow Men".

Senior coaches of the club and the guest skaters were presented with a token of appreciation from the 'Stars of the Future'. Mrs. MacAulay, of professional, was escorted by two "men" skaters who surprised her with roses in thanks from everyone for a most rewarding skating season.

"Penguins" were with us, organized in their act of routine skating. A newcomer to the club delighted everyone in the "Tweed Solo". Everyone had great fun watching the "Goat" which wasn't as easy to play as it looked.

The dances, "Dutch Waltz" and "Canasta Tango" were introduced by eight of the most promising novice skaters. The Eastern Ontario Novice Champion for 1971 from Kingston showed her excellent free skating skill.

The finale of the evening performance should be recorded as the most delightful impromptu of the show.

Synod April 20

St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society met on Tuesday afternoon in the church hall when Mrs. C. Hulser opened the meeting with a poem "Dawn".

Mrs. W. Mantle played the piano for the singing of the hymns. All were reminded of the Kingston Presbyterial Synodical meeting on April 20, 21, and 22. Plans have been started for a Coffee Break Party on June 23rd.

Mrs. W. M. Barlow led the devotions with Mrs. E. Shier and Mrs. A. Harris assisting.

Mrs. Barlow introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. Williamson, the president of the Kingston Presbyterial, who gave an interesting talk on the "Joys of Easter".

Mrs. H. Elvidge expressed thanks to Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Hulser closed the meeting.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

DIVISION MEETING

A meeting of the Belleville Division. Girl Guides, was held at the home of Mrs. R. Mason, Elmwood Drive. After the usual opening prayer and minutes Division Commissioner Mrs. T. Colden gave a area meeting and a special brief report of the recent meeting of District Commissioners. As camp time is approaching leaders were advised to get registrations in for the area camp at Waupoos, as soon as possible and registrations for Doe Lake by May 1st.

Mrs. Colden attended a reception held recently at Guide headquarters, Toronto for Mrs. Parker Bowles, British Commonwealth Commissioner. Mrs. Bowles brought greetings from Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother and Lady Baden Powell.

Advance sales of cookies have been promised and the cookies will be delivered May 1-8. Thunder Bay will be the location of the Provincial Annual meeting of Girl Guides, May 5, 6, and 7. Division Commissioner Mrs. Colden and District Commissioner Mrs. R. Schrieder and Mrs. M. Chartrand will attend from Belleville.

Mrs. J. E. Reid, ticket convener for the Guide and Brownie tea held in February prepared and presented an excellent report showing a net profit this year of $650.

Many worthwhile training courses including elementary and advanced blue and brown; and dance and drama will be held in Trenton in the near future. A blue and brown Guider's Pow Wow is planned for September at Waupoos.

The Scout and Guide Church Parade will be held this year on Sunday, May 16. This colorful service will begin with a parade of all Brownies, Cubs, Guides, Scouts and Rangers marching from the East Hill playground to the arena where a short service of worship will be conducted by Dr. H. Davis.

The resignation of social convenor, Mrs. T. Colden was accepted with regret, but she has accepted the position of international advisor.

Mrs. Colden thanked Mrs. Mason and the meeting adjourned.

THE LONG WEEKEND

"Monday holidays are seen by some as a partial alternation to the traditional summer vacation." — John B. Albright.

* * *

Do you look forward to or fear and dread the free time and leisure which long weekends offer?

There are those who declare a three-day weekend is a splendid way to catch-up on some sleep — take the phone off the hook, debelt the door bell, and snuggle down for a length of uninterrupted peace and quiet. Paradise!

Or cater, for those that are literary-minded, upon "Moby Dick" or "War and Peace"; for the music buffs play recordings of Beethoven, Wagner or beloved Rock selections.

Again, the day seems to make perfect timing for visiting relatives or friends — a day each to go and return with one day for pure visit and gossip, without danger of wearing out one's welcome or being bored.

However, if a long weekend stirs those has little appeal and money is of no concern, how about a trip to a place like Greece, as did one fellow vaccording to C. Bernard in Signature magazine) who arranged to purchase a lot on a Greek island and construction of a villa — all for less than $12,000, including transportation, food, lodging, taxis and a Flokati $50 rug to appease his wife.

If shopping isn't on the agenda, then why not have a flight around the world? It is possible, they say, for around $1,000, with time out for a real visit in a country like India, along with gathering an impressive list of airport stops: "London, Frankfurt, Istanbul, Beirut, Teheran, New Delhi, Agra, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu, Los Angeles and New York," for an example.

At any rate, it must be admitted, that the trend of more leisure with added opportunities for travel is encouraged by the long weekend. And perhaps such weekend trips around — the world will become quite common — place. And to do so in record time was of special interest back in the days of Nellie Bly, whose 1889-1890 trip around the world in 72½ days brought her fame and fortune.

An interesting sidenote is the fact that when a New York editor and owner of a magazine for which Miss Elizabeth Bisland was employed heard of Nellie's projected trip he had an inspired idea. On the very day Nellie was to leave for her trip around the world he summoned Miss Bisland to his office and asked her to leave for San Francisco that night for a trip around the world.

Tossing a half dozen light bodices, two cloth gowns, an evening silk and hair pins in her steamer trunk, she gamely set out on her "world-girdling" trip on the same day as Miss Bly on November 14, 1889. While vying with Miss Bly for public interest in this race against time, her observations of the Japanese and Chinese were keen and keen. She arrived in New York 76 days later and lost the race by three and one-half days. A classic example, says Betty Bandel who has done research about her, on how uninterested America is in losers, for she has been unheard of, since.

But in her book "A Flying Trip Around The World" (New York, Harper and Brothers 1891), Elizabeth Bisland speaks of those hurried hours before her trip, saying:

"In the masculine mind there appears to be something strangely exhilarating in the thought of a woman being abruptly torn from her home without sufficient time to put her wardrobe in order, and to ai menl responsible for this voyage the most delightful feature apparently of the whole affair was the fact that I should be forced to get ready in five hours for a 75-days voyage around the world."

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD G. MITCHELL

Mitchell – Johnson

Dr. Harry M. Davis officiated at the double ring ceremony in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, when Gail Louise Johnson, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Belleville, RR3, became the bride of Edward Geoffrey Mitchell of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Mitchell, Calgary, Alberta. Wedding music was rendered by Alec Gordon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of sculptured satin with a sweeping train attached at the waistline. Her cathedral veil of tulle net was caught to a bow headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Carol Johnson, sister-in-law of the bride as matron of honor wore a pale green empire waist gown of chiffon over taffeta featuring long sleeves gathered at the wrist. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations. Bridesmaids Miss Andrea Burke and Mrs. Diane Myers wore identical gowns to the matron of honor, but in mauve and carried identical nosegays of pink carnations.

Gary Myers attended the bridegroom, while Frank MacNeil and Blair Bennett ushered the guests.

For the reception at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a coral crimplene coat dress with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Due to illness the bridegroom's mother was unable to attend.

Leaving on a wedding trip to the Southern States, the bride donned a mauve pant suit with black wet - look accessories with a corsage of white gardenias.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside at 7 Ritchie Avenue, Belleville.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Dr. George Harold Craig and Mrs. Craig of Belleville announce the engagement of their daughter, Shawnee Lou, to Stephen Eugene Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Morton Spencer, also of Belleville. The marriage will take place May 22, 1971 at Hollaway Street United Church.

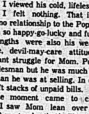
Mrs. Raymond Cooney, Stirling, RR1 is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Smith 87A Dundas E have returned from a two weeks' vacation in Daytona Beach, Florida and enjoyed various tours in the area during that time. While there they marked the occasion of their 58th wedding anniversary and a party was given in their honor.

* * *



Before her recent marriage Mrs. E. G. Mitchell (nee Gail Louise Johnson) was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Andrea Burke with Miss Gail Douse as co-hostess when the nursing staff of 7th Level Belleville General Hospital was attended, and at a pantry shower held at Mrs. Johnson's home Belleville RR3, with her aunt Mrs. William Johnson as hostess with co-hostess, Mrs. Dianne Wamboldt, her cousin.

Ann Landers
Gesture at Funeral Is Moving Experience

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Having suffered a traumatic experience in childhood, I have always had an abhorance of funerals and dead people. When my dad died I flew back East for the services. As I viewed his cold, lifeless body in the casket, I felt nothing. That inanimate figure bore no relationship to the Pop who had always been so happy-go-lucky and full of life.

His strengths were also his weaknesses. His carefree, devil-may-care attitude made life a constant struggle for Mom. Pop was a traveling salesman but he was much better at travelling than he was at selling. In death, as in life, he left stacks of unpaid bills.

ANN LANDERS

When the moment came to close the casket, my heart dropped as I saw Mom lean over and kiss him. Surely she didn't expect me to do that! Then I heard her whisper in his ear as she had done countless times before, when he had left for trips: "Bye, Pops. I'll be seeing you." She was sending him off on his final journey — with the promise that she would join him.

That gesture was a lifetime of education for me. It told more about my mother's love for Dad than anything I had witnessed in all my years at home. I would not have missed it for the world. — HIS DAUGHTER.

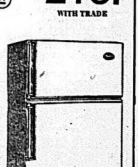
DEAR DAUGHTER: Thank you for sharing a moving experience. No one knows what a marriage is like except the two people who are involved in it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "Starving Barber," who described long hair as a hazard to safe driving, was just about as far off base as a person can get. It is not difficult to understand why a barber would hate long hair. The trend has unquestionably put a big dent in his business. But to blame the high accident rate on kids who can't see to drive is nothing short of lunacy.

The real danger to life and limb is alcohol. At least 50 per cent of the automobile accidents are directly related to drunk driving. And that figure is blithely along, accepting booze as part of our social structure. Not only is it legal, but downright fashionable. I read recently of a thriving new business called "Need a drink." It seems that a hostess need only to call a certain number and they will send over a drunk whose presence will insure the success of her bash.

I'm sorry the barber wants to eat regularly. I suggest he be a bartender, or an undertaker. Booze is going to be with us forever — and it will help to keep the undertaker busy. — OBSERVER OF THE SCENE.



DEAR OB: I would say your observations are quite accurate. And while we're on the subject, I'd like to add another thought. Pot can, in some instances, distort the vision, and loose up one's sense of timing and ability to judge distances, much in the same way that alcohol does. This is only one of the reasons I am opposed to the legalization of marijuana. We don't need any more goofed up people running loose in our society. We have too many now.

Early Carriage Clocks Rare and Expensive

The clock illustrated belongs to Mrs. A. Halstead of Strathmore, Alberta. It is seldom possible to give a direct reply to a reader's enquiry and from those thousands of readers who have written without a reply, forbearance is requested.

This clock comes under the general heading of carriage clock, a portable striking or alarm clock. The antecedents of the carriage clock go back to the 18th century when bracket clocks were fashionable. Bracket clocks (or shelf clocks) were adapted for travelling and the carriage clock resulted.

Credit for the development is generally given to Abraham Louis Breguet, a Swiss born in 1747 who emigrated to Paris and began manufacturing there. The fame of the family was perpetuated by famous clockmakers of the same name in France throughout the 19th century.

Breguet occupied a number of official positions in France, mainly in the Department of the Marine. He was asked by Napoleon to design an accurate travelling clock for his officers.

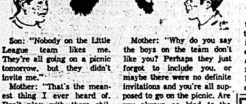
Breguet designed a "pendule d'officeur" with a brass and glass case and handle on top. A little later the clock was enclosed on all sides in glass and called a pendule de voyage or carriage clock. All have collapsible or folding handles.

The clock illustrated is marked HALL-PARIS and on the back the word FRANCE

Picture Credit: Mrs. A. Halstead

is imprinted. It is marked F and S for fast and slow and is therefore intended for the English-speaking market. The stamp "France" probably indicates a date after 1800 when the McKinley Tariff Act was introduced in the USA. It required that a country of origin be stamped on any imported article. Foreign manufactured as well.

Pictures with a large trade stamped all articles in case some were shipped to the States.



The mark, Hall-Paris might indicate a Jeweller in Paris, Ontario; Paris, Ohio or any other Paris and doesn't necessarily relate to the manufacturer. Its quality of work is much superior to the Waterbury model available at the same time.

Early carriage clocks were valuable in their day and are rare and expensive now. By the end of the century they were being mass - produced mainly by the Waterbury Clock Co. in Connecticut. The price dropped steadily during the century until 1900 when Eatons charged $2 and Sears-Roebuck charged $1.65 for the same clock, listed as a "Fancy Nickel Alarm Clock, height six inches, glass sides, gilt front and movement". It was also available as a chiming clock with a musical alarm.

Carriage clocks are collectible and expensive. If in working order, in a fine quality case with chime and musical alarm and original key, they fetch at least $100. Waterbury carriage (or alarm clocks bring less but are col-

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "Nobody on the Little League team likes me. They're all going on a picnic tomorrow, but they didn't invite me."

Mother: "That's the meanest thing I ever heard of. Don't play with those children if they can't be nice. Just ignore them."

An unpopular child is not helped by encouraging him to fight back or even worse, to withdraw from social life. The wise parent will help him face the fact that his problems may be partly of his own making.

Mother: "Why do you say the boys on the team don't like you? Perhaps they just forgot to include you, or maybe there were no definite invitations and you're all supposed to go on the picnic. Are you always as kind to the boys as you want them to be to you?"

Youth in Madoc Area Enjoy Social 'Happenings'

MADOC — Social get-to gethers are a rarity among the youth of today and two capable adults in Madoc Township decided to do something about it. Mr. and Mrs. Wilf Smith of the Saleboma Ranch north of Madoc began holding meetings every second Sunday night a few weeks ago.

At the last meeting, 21 interested young people came out for the evening. The executive for this year was elected as follows: president, Rick Lees; vice - president, Nancy Blackburn; secretary, Ann Roubson; treasurer, Sandy Smith; lunch convener, Janice Rollins. A press reporter is still to be chosen.

These meetings are held in the various homes of the members. Following a short meeting, the evening is spent in a time of social chatter and interesting games. Any teenager or young adult in the communities of Madoc, Madoc Township, Eldorado, Queensboro and Cooper are welcome to come along.

An interesting program is planned for this Sunday night at the home of the Councellors, Mr. and Mrs. Smith around eight o'clock. This is to be an organizational meeting to plan the year's activities. Mr. Smith will be showing movie pictures he took on a trip to the West Coast and down the shoreline to California.

Insurance Firms Take Dim View of Marijuana

By DORIS CLARK

Twenty-four out of 27 insurance companies surveyed in Toronto said they would refuse outright to insure users of marijuana. Two of the remaining three said they would insure only the "best" cases but would charge an extra premium because of the increased chances of their dying. The remaining company would either reject or charge an extra premium to the under-30s who used marijuana.

Not only does the marijuana itself bode ill for its users because of accidents and accidental deaths which happen where it is. There is the more important fact that many marijuana users advance to more dangerous drugs such as heroin. This results in a definitely higher than normal death rate, which is what life insurance companies base all their rates on.

It is definitely bad business to have any traffic in marijuana.

Dear Doris, I never felt secure in love in my 19 years of married life. We never had enough moments of our own. My husband is a very kind and handsome man and is one who works until exhausted.

Most of the evenings he reads. I am lonely sensitive and need moments of love and care, which I don't get. But when we have company he talks with ladies with a great interest and a big smile, and ignores me.

Often I have discussed this with him. He says this is my imagination and says he loves me and then keeps quiet again. Somehow or other I can't believe him. I think love is far away. — Confused

Dear Confused: For what comfort it is, I have seen the most reticent man gradually loosen up and become conversational, with the years. Of course you need him to talk with you!

With the other ladies he puts on a front; with you he is relaxed. I'd suggest you read what he is reading; enter into the world of his thinking or doing; by doing things with him.

Right now he may not be giving you credit for having a brain to think with.

* * *

Dear Doris: Recently I met a guy who is the same age as me. This coming week I will be seeing him again.

I was wondering if it is proper for a girl to ask a guy for his phone number and address? I really like him and if we did go together we wouldn't be going steady. We'd just be friends. We are both 15. He hinted that he liked me but did not go out and say it.

How do I know if he likes me? Should I tell him I like him? — What Do I Do?

Dear What: Right now, play it cool. Act like you couldn't care less about his phone number! Not unfriendly, mind you, but perfectly confident that he will be phoning you. Make no declarations. If he is interested, he won't mind letting you know it.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Candy Recipe is Easy One for Children

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would you please send me the recipe for children's candy—really made fudge. — Mollie W.

ANSWER: We were puzzled by your request, Mollie, for we do not have a recipe in our files called children's candy. So I am compromising and repeating our Cooking Lesson on Fudge given here three years ago which I hope your children can make. I am mailing other children's recipes for confections.

BLOND FUDGE ("maple cream" with chocolate variation)

3 cups granulated sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 cup light cream (10 per cent "cereal cream")
½ cup milk
¼ cup corn syrup
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tsps. vanilla
½ to 1 cup whole or coarsely chopped walnuts

In a heavy large saucepan combine sugar, salt, cream, milk, corn syrup and butter. Stir constantly with wooden spoon over medium heat until mixture boils. Remove spoon and rest it on a saucer near to hand. Insert thermometer and boil steadily, with bubbles all over top, to exactly 238 deg. Fahr. but stir it well twice during this boiling period. Remove from heat as soon as mercury reaches 238 deg. Fahr. mark. Add vanilla and stir, then cool, without stirring until heat subsides to 110 deg. Fahr. Beat fudge. This requires a strong arm. Beat until fudge loses its shine and has only a dull gloss. At once add nuts and scrape into buttered 8 x 8" pan, working as quickly as you can, scraping fudge from sides of pan with knife and from bottom with metal spoon. (Soak pan and thermometer in cold water.) Chill fudge until set.

This fudge is slow to set to familiar fudge texture but is worth mastering because of its unusual creaminess.

VARIATION:

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

Follow the recipe above for Blond Fudge but add 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate (or 2 pkgs. "Choco-Bake") to ingredients in saucepan before starting to cook.

Committee Urges End to Property Qualifications for Voting

TORONTO (CP) — A committee report on municipal election laws that attempt to sweep away what were described as archaic property qualifications for voting and holding office were proposed Friday in a report tabled by a select committee of the Ontario legislature.

The proposals are set out in the fourth report of the committee on election laws, headed by Edward Dunlop, minister without portfolio and Progressive Conservative member for Toronto York-Forest Hill.

It calls for:

—Elections for all local government purposes, including council, school boards and other elected boards, be held on the same date throughout the province, the first Monday in December.

—Byelections for the filling of offices on councils and school boards be held when the vacancies occur in a non-election year.

—Any person residing in Ontario since Jan. 1 of any year should be eligible to run for office in any municipality, not necessarily the one in which he resides.

—Persons who own property in a municipality in which they do not reside should be eligible to vote in that municipality.

—The term of office for council and all other elected boards be set at two years, except for the regional governments of Ottawa-Carleton and Metropolitan Toronto where the term is fixed in special legislation at three years.

The report must still be reviewed by the government, which will decide whether the proposals will be introduced.

Mr. Dunlop told a news conference the reforms are aimed chiefly at the "explicitly archaic, property-qualification" requirements for voting or holding office. It would change the philosophy that the "sole route to the municipal franchise was the ownership of property."

Under his proposals, the franchise would be extended to all Canadian citizens "and other British subjects" of voting age who have resided in a municipality since Oct. 1 of any year.

A special advisory committee of the municipal affairs department recommended in March, 1970 that the franchise be given only to Canadian citizens, excluding "British subjects." Mr. Dunlop said this proposal would disenfranchise 300,000 Canadians who are naturalized British subjects.

He said the uniform December date for elections should increase voter interest and participation at municipal elections. At present, councils can choose their own election dates, although most call elections for the first Monday of December.

Another proposal was that voters listed be prepared by enumerators, and not by assessment rolls, which Mr. Dunlop said change too rapidly because of people moving or dying.

Giving the vote to non-residents who own property in a municipality, such as cottage owners in recreational and resort areas, recognizes the stake they have in that municipality.

In other business:

—Labor Minister Carton said the department of labor is considering making it illegal for an employee to be fired because he or she refuses to appear in "an improper, indecent or lewd manner." Two waitresses in London, Ont., had complained early last month that their employer insisted they wear transparent blouses.

—Treasurer Darcy McKeough said the bond market in New York is "more receptive" than in Canada, so Ontario Hydro is negotiating a $100 million bond issue there. The money will be used to purchase equipment and coal in the United States.

—Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, said the government paid $1,630 an acre for "exceedingly good" recreation land in Caledon Township in 1970. The land was valued at about half the price, $726.75 an acre in 1968 when it was first recommended the government purchase it to help preserve the Niagara escarpment.

—The government introduced a motion that would permit the standing committee on human resources to examine educational spending and invite teachers and other groups to meetings. Premier Davis said new rules for committees make it necessary for their orders to come from the legislature.

Halt Called to Posting Mercury Warnings

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario department of lands and forests said Friday night the provincial government has stopped posting sign warning sports fishermen that certain lakes and rivers contain fish with potentially-dangerous levels of mercury.

The official said he had no knowledge of what new policy was being considered by the government in regard to mercury pollution.

He added that the "fish for fun" signs antagonized fishermen and fishing-camp operators last year.

He was commenting in an interview on a speech made in Kenora Friday night by Leo Bernier, minister of mines and northern affairs.

Mr. Bernier told the Kenora District Camp Owners Association that he believes mercury pollution has been overrated seriously by many people and that the signs posted last year were being discontinued.

The signs had warned sports fishermen not to eat fish from lakes and rivers where fish samples showed levels of mercury above 0.5 parts per million.

The department official said about 120 bodies of water have yielded fish with high mercury levels, and fishermen can obtain the names of these rivers and lakes from the department.

Stanfield Fails to Get Robarts to Enter Federal Field

HALIFAX (CP) — Former Ontario premier John Robarts says Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield has been unable to persuade him to enter federal politics and he is satisfied to remain with his law practice.

In a news conference Friday prior to a $100-a-plate party fund-raising dinner, Mr. Robarts talked about constitutional change, separatism and his plans for the future.

He said Mr. Stanfield had approached him about entering federal politics after he resigned as leader of the Ontario PC party. But there was "no way" he would run in a federal election if one was called for this fall because he would not go "from one world of utter and absolute pressure to another."

Asked about work on Canada's future since Mr. Robarts said it was necessary first to repatriate the constitution and then amend it.

He said separatism was far from dead in Quebec and although he did not think the province would leave Canada it would have "lots of problems" and "this story isn't told yet by any means."

He said Ontario had nothing against distribution of revenue by the federal government to underdeveloped provinces, but cautioned that Ottawa should be careful that it "doesn't kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

"Give us some elbow room and don't spoil our capacity to produce," he said.

Mr. Robarts said centralization of economic and social policies in Ottawa was a fundamental and underlying cause of many of Canada's problems.

Vitamin-enriched Foods Can Kill

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A leading London pediatrician said that vitamins shouldn't be given children without first consulting the family doctor.

Dr. C. E. Rathbun, chief of pediatrics at War Memorial Children's Hospital, was commenting on a warning issued recently by the Canadian Pediatric Society about the overuse of vitamins that can lead to vitamin poisoning.

The society warned against the use, except on direction from a family physician, of Ascorbic Acid (Vitamin C) in the treatment and prevention of the common cold.

Dr. Rathbun said certain vitamins are being added to various foods, among them are Vitamin D and Vitamin A. He said large numbers of persons are on the verge of receiving those vitamins "in large amounts from many sources."

There is "good clinical evidence of poisoning" occurring with these two vitamins, and he said there have been instances where Vitamin D poisoning has been fatal.

Spock Warns

Civil Disobedience Becoming More Dangerous

TORONTO (CP) — Benjamin Spock, the noted United States baby doctor, said Friday that civil disobedience in the U.S. "is becoming more and more dangerous."

Dr. Spock told 250 Toronto college students that the United States has "a reactionary government that is willing to back up police with troops."

He said the shooting of four students by the National Guard at Kent State University was "a brutal example of the way the United States protests dissent."

He was critical of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war. "Our government is carrying on a war which is a titanic illegality. We went into a country to steal it. We had no invitation from anyone."

In January, 1968, Dr. Spock and four other men were charged with conspiracy to counsel young men to evade the draft. He was found guilty that July and sentenced to two years in jail. A year later, the U.S. Court of Appeals reversed the conviction.

The 68-year-old doctor now is speaking on behalf of the Civil Liberties Defence group, which is providing funds for legal defence in cases involving the military or the selective service.

Abortions Rise 1300 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Therapeutic abortions at hospitals in the 10 provinces and the Yukon totalled 11,200 in 1970, representing three per cent of live births in the same areas, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

The number of abortions increased from 169 in January, 1970, to 2,361 in December, DBS said.

Harper Is Confident Habs Will Be Playing After Sunday

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Terry Harper of Montreal Canadiens is confident he and the rest of his teammates will still have some hockey to play this season after Sunday's Stanley Cup quarter-final game in Boston Garden.

The Canadiens evened their best-of-seven series with the Bruins Thursday night with a convincing 8-3 triumph, prompting Harper to quip:

"Do you think the reports of the Bruins invincibility might have been slightly premature?

"I just think we have a better team. If we play our best, even if they play their best, we will win."

Harper, always strong in pressure games, says the Canadiens have just as much talent provided they can nullify Bobby Orr.

"Orr is the key to their team, but if we put on the pressure by skating and forechecking, he is as vulnerable as anyone else."

The Canadiens skated and forechecked from the opening faceoff in Thursday's game and Orr had to rush his plays.

"When the forwards are forechecking, it's much easier on the defence," said Harper. "Instead of feeling half dead we're ready to go another shift or two.

"If you have to run around your end chasing the opposition, it's hard to get the puck out."

While Harper is confident his club will win, Phil Esposito of the Bruins feels his team will win because of the home-ice advantage.

"They've got to come to Boston. They won't beat us at home," Esposito said Friday.

"It's a one-game series now," added Ken Hodge. Esposito's right wing. "After winning that way they did in Montreal, Canadiens will be flying. The only way to stop them is to do what we haven't so far—hit them."

But, as far as the Canadiens are concerned, the home-ice advantage doesn't really mean that much at this stage of the series.

"We're both after that fourth game," said centre Henri Richard. "The home ice really won't matter that much."

Coach Al MacNeil doesn't plan any lineup changes for Sunday's game, which means Bob Murdoch, called up from Montreal Voyageurs of the American League to replace Phil Roberto, will be dressed.

Roberto, a right winger, suffered a bruised back in the first period of the fifth game last Tuesday in Boston, won by the Bruins 7-3.

MacNeil still will not reveal the Montreal goaltending choice for Sunday, but it is likely that rookie Ken Dryden will get the call.

Dryden, a former all-American at Cornell, has faced 250 shots in the first six games of the series, an average of 41.6 per game.

Bruins coach Tom Johnson will go with Gerry Cheevers in goal Sunday despite his performance Thursday.

Johnson said Cheevers wasn't sharp Thursday, but neither was anyone else.

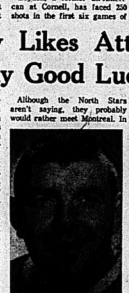
Worsley Likes Attendance Of Family Good Luck Charm

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Gump Worsley and Minnesota North Stars are considering a petition to the Canadian Forces so that Lorne Worsley can extend his furlough from the air force.

Gump, the 41-year-old Minnesota goalie, claims he has never lost a National Hockey League game when his son, eldest of three children, has been in attendance.

"I can't remember how many exactly," said Worsley, "but I know I've never lost when he's watching.

"The team's lost when he's been at our games but I wasn't in goal."



The younger Worsley was on leave this week and watched pop tend goal in Minnesota's 5-2 victory over St. Louis Blues Thursday night that gave the North Stars the Stanley Cup quarter-final four games to two.

"He's my good luck charm," said Worsley, who was in the nets as the North Stars swept the last three games of the series and extend next week's semi-finals against the winner of the Boston Bruins-Montreal Canadiens quarter-final which ends Sunday

A Montreal upset against Boston would make quite a homecoming for Worsley and several other former Canadiens.

The North Stars obtained Worsley, defencoman Ted Harris, winger Danny Grant, centres Jude Drouin and Bobby Rousseau and reserve goalie Gilles Gilbert from the Canadiens.

Although the North Stars aren't saying, they probably would rather meet Montreal in regular-season games, the North Stars were 0-5-1 against Boston and 1-3-2 against Montreal.

'GUMP' WORSLEY

"I would rather not say anything at all about it," said Rousseau, a playoff hero this year for the Stars with two clutch goals.

Regardless of which team they face, the North Stars are up against East Division tradition. West teams have never beaten an established club in the playoffs, losing 18 straight.

St. Louis coach Scotty Bowman knows better than anyone. The Blues reached the finals each of the last three years against the East and lost all 12 games.

This is the first year of a division crossover in the playoffs. New York Rangers will meet Chicago Black Hawks in the other semi-final starting Sunday.

The North Stars won the series against St. Louis with their top goal scorer, Bill Goldsworthy, on the bench in five of six games with a knee injury. He is expected back for next week's games.

Hawks Make Middle Changes

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks, fearing New York Rangers' centre strength, will have a new look at his attacking lines Sunday night when the two teams open their Stanley Cup semi-final.

"We're going to have to be tough down the middle against the Rangers," said Reay. "They're using Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle and Pete Stemkowski almost exclusively at centre during the playoffs and all three are awfully good."

The big switch in Reay's plan finds Pit Martin moving up to centre for Bobby Hull and Chico Maki, with Danny O'Shea moving from left wing to centre with Eric Nesterenko at left wing and Jim Pappin at right wing.

The Stan Mikita line will remain intact with Dennis Hull on Mikita's left side and Cliff Koroll at right wing.

Reay arrived at his conclusion after the Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 in overtime Thursday night to take their National Hockey League quarter-final series four games to two.

While the Hawks are trying to strengthen their centre play, the Rangers will have to keep a special eye on Bobby Hull. Despite a slight hip injury, the Golden Jet scored six goals as the Hawks swept Philadelphia Flyers in four straight games.

"He may be hurting a little," said Reay, "but he loves to skate and once he gets rolling he forgets his pain."

The second game of the series will be played here Tuesday night with the series moving to New York for games Thursday night and Saturday.

Baby Hawk Flurry Works

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks and Ottawa 67s both attempted third-period rallies in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff games Friday night, but only the Black Hawks were successful.

The Black Hawks scored six goals in the final period en route to an 8-3 trouncing of Montreal Junior Canadiens and a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven, semi-final series.

Toronto Marlboros edged Ottawa 5-4 to take a 2-0 lead in the other semi-final, despite a final-period flurry by the 67s. Ottawa trailed 5-2 entering the final period, but Murray Wilson scored twice within 10 seconds midway through the session.

Ottawa coach Bill Long lifted his goaltender in favor of an extra attacker with 65 seconds left, but the 67s couldn't muster a dangerous shot on the Marlboro net.

Both semi-finals resume Sunday, with Ottawa visiting Toronto and St. Catharines travelling to Montreal.

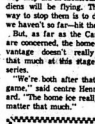
Marcel Dionn and Mike Bloom scored two goals each for St. Catharines. Single goals went to Bob Peppler, Bob MacMillan, Clyde Simon and Brian McKenzie.

A crowd of 2,321 at St. Catharines saw Dionne also add an assist to bring his playoff record to 15 goals and 12 assists in eight games. MacMillan added four assists.

Coach Ponders Big Egg Order

DETROIT (CP) — Coach Carl Lindstrom of Detroit Junior Red Wings chuckles about goalie Steve Miskiewicz jealously guarding a "lucky" Easter egg "like the family jewels."

Wings blasted Ottawa Rangers out of eastern Centennial Cup hockey play four games to two, and Miskiewicz's netminding was a major contribution to the four-game blitz Detroit unleashed against the Central Junior Hockey League champs.



Now the coach jokes that he may get at least a dozen more hardboiled Easter eggs for the rest of the team.

Lindstrom has other reasons to smile as he looks forward to a seven-game eastern final series starting Sunday against Charlottetown Islanders at Charlottetown.

Not every coach can claim the sons of veteran NHL right-winger Gordie Howe as star players. Fifteen-year-old Mark Howe, a leftwinger, was voted the most valuable player in the Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league after finishing the season as leading scorer with 37 goals and 70 assists in a 44-game season.

Mark's older brother Marty, 17, plays a hard defence and came up with nine goals and 33 assists while being one of the key set-up men on a team which finished second in regular play and skated home with the league title in playoffs.

Wings are the youngest team in the league, with an average age of just over 17, and most are still in high school. Lindstrom feels the youthfulness will work to Wings' advantage.

Racing Vet Pools Resources

WHEATLEY, Ont. (CP) — Dr. L. S. McKibbin, a veterinarian, received a few horse laughs when he said he was going to build a swimming pool for horses.

Thursday, he opened his heated, 80,000-gallon pool here which he hopes will help lame race horses recover from injuries in the same way that injured athletes benefit from water therapy.

Dr. McKibbin is widely known in turf circles for helping lame horses race again.

He said horses tend to favor injured legs by supporting their weight on their other legs. This causes the injured legs to weaken or deteriorate. By swimming, injured legs receive necessary exercise without having to support the horses' weight.

Esposito's Horoscope: Don't Make Plans!

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Terry Esposito, 14, has given up keeping a scrapbook on her famous brothers — Phil and Tony—it became too big a job.

Tony, goalie for Chicago Black Hawks, broke the National Hockey League record for shutouts last year; centre Phil of Boston Bruins this year became the greatest single-season scorer in the history of the league.

And while astrology is no big thing with her, she looks up the brothers' horoscopes just before a big game.

Well, this family's games are about as big as they come. Phil, a Pisces, leads his Bruins out against Montreal Canadiens in the contest to decide which team makes it to the semi-finals.

And Tony, a Taurus, will be in goal as Chicago opens its semi-final against New York Rangers.

A random sampling of horoscopes for Phil for Sunday:

"Don't make plans today. Go where your sense of adventure leads."

"Love blooms all of a sudden. Avoid hasty, impulsive actions."

"You can be difficult, irritable, grouchy. Showing that you do not care for others or their interests can be disastrous. . . . A gift offer may come your way and accepting it is wise."

One listed his "best time" for Sunday between 2:10 and 4:18 p.m. Sunday's is an afternoon game.

For Tony, things stack up this way:

"Another fine day for making plans, new arrangements, perhaps concerning distant place."

But his best time was listed at 12:20 to 2 p.m. and the Chicago-New York opener is at night.

Players Who Visit Tiger Stadium Like What They're Seeing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A visit to Tiger Stadium really opens your eyes. Look what it's done for Reggie Smith.

"I see the ball well here," says the Boston Red Sox outfielder, "I just like hitting in this ballpark."

Smith had a look at the Detroit pitching again Friday, liked what he saw, and drove in two runs with a home run and sacrifice fly in the Red Sox' 5-3 American League triumph.

"Tiger Stadium has a good background," said Smith, "and I know there are certain pitches I can get in the air for a home run.

"Those kind of things psych me up, I guess."

The Smith blasts back up Smith's tigerish penchant: Last year, he topped the Red Sox hitters against Detroit with a .375 average.

Elsewhere, California Angels stopped Minnesota Twins 4-1; Oakland Athletics defeated Chicago White Sox 5-1 in 10 innings and Baltimore Orioles whipped New York Yankees 6-1.

Gary Peters, the Boston lefthander who picked up Friday's victory, also paid homage to Tiger Stadium.

"This is one of the parks I feel good in," said Peters, who pitched eight strong innings but needed ninth-inning rescue work from two relief pitchers. "I just seem to have good stuff against the Tigers."

Peters, however, knew it on the occasion he didn't—when he served up a gopher ball to Ike Brown with one on in the sixth.

Like Smith, Peters is a Tiger lover, too. He's beaten them 16 times in 23 lifetime decisions.

Smith spanked his first homer of the year, a fifth-inning shot off Joe Niekro.

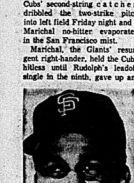
Peters was cruising along with a 5-2 advantage, and got the first out of the last inning before a double by Al Kaline and single by Willie Horton. Ken Tatum and Sparky Lyle came in to put down the threat.

California, held hitless for 6⅔ innings by Minnesota's Jim Perry, broke up his no-hit bid with Alex Johnson's seventh-inning single, then rattled off five more in a three-run eighth.

Rudy May struck out nine Twins in nailing his first victory of 1971.

Reggie Jackson, reversing last year's sluggish start, banged a two-out home run, his third of the year, in the 10th inning for Oakland.

The White Sox scored three runs in the eighth to take a 4-3 lead, but Rick Monday led off the ninth for the Athletics with his third home run of the season to send the contest into extra innings.



Pat Dobson pitched a four-hitter and Dave Johnson, Frank Robinson and Brooks Robinson knocked in a run each in a three-run sixth to carry Baltimore over New York.

Rudolph Finds Hole in Juan

Juan Marichal was slinging merrily in the rain until he hung a ninth-inning screwball out to dry.

Ken Rudolph, the Chicago Cubs' second-string catcher, dribbled the two-strike pitch into left field Friday night and a Marichal no-hitter evaporated in the San Francisco mist.

Marichal, the Giants' resurgent right-hander, held the Cubs hitless until Rudolph's leadoff single in the ninth, gave up another single by pinch hitter Jim Hickman and then wrapped up a 9-0 victory in a game delayed twice by rain in the early innings.

Chicago's first hit was the first for Rudolph in 18 trips to the plate this season.

"He looked real bad on a screwball," said Marichal, "so I threw him another one. It just hung too high."

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals drubbed San Diego Padres 7-1 behind Bob Gibson. New York Mets stopped Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 on Tom Seaver's three-hitter, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Houston Astros 6-5 in 10 innings and Atlanta Braves held off Philadelphia Phillies 4-3. Cincinnati's scheduled game at Montreal was rained out.

Marichal, bounced back to his old form after a disappointing 12-10 winding last season, when plagued by ailments and injuries, issued a single walk in handcuffing the Cubs for eight innings.

After the hits by Rudolph and Hickman, a double play helped the 32-year-old Dominican ace seal his third 1971 victory without a loss.

Rain held up play for 32 minutes in the third inning and seven minutes in the fourth, with the Giants leading 5-0.

Cubs' manager Leo Durocher, apparently disenchanted with the continuance of the game and the Giants' hurry-up tactics, lifted his first five hitters—Don Kessinger, Glenn Beckert, Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Joe Pepitone—in the sixth.

Marichal mowed down their replacements until the ninth, when Rudolph spoiled his bid to duplicate a 1963 no-hitter he tossed against Houston.

Gibson scattered seven hits, struck out nine and drove in three runs with a homer and single on the way to his seventh lifetime victory over the Padres in as many decisions.

Donn Clendenon's fourth-inning homer off Dock Ellis carried the Mets past the Pirates as Seaver struck out 14 while extending his early-season shutout string through 20 innings.

The Dodgers overcame a 5-3 deficit with two runs in the eighth, then floored the Astros on Bill Buckner's pinch-hit single with two out in the 10th.

Felix Millan poked a pair of singles as the Braves prevailed for seven runs in the second inning but they barely stayed off a Philadelphia comeback, with reliever Cecil Upshaw surviving Tim McCarver's two-run homer in the ninth to post his third victory.

Knicks Survive Without Willis

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As Lew Alcindor goes, so go Milwaukee Bucks. Not so the case of Willis Reed and New York Knicks.

Alcindor celebrated his 20th birthday Friday night with 31 points as Milwaukee crushed Los Angeles Lakers 117-94 for a 3-1 lead in the National Basketball Association semi-final.

Reed, last year's MVP now hampered by injuries, managed only six points but the defending champion Knicks clipped Baltimore Bullets 89-84 to take a 3-2 edge in their semi-final.

Alcindor, the seven-foot-two former all-American and the NBA's Most Valuable Player, also hauled down 20 rebounds as he and his team-mates, controlled the game except for a brief period early in the third quarter.

At that point, the underdog and crippled Lakers pulled to within one point at 68-67.

That brief rally ignited the 17,505 fans at the Forum, but also did the same for the Bucks. Milwaukee finished the period outscoring the Lakers 24-7

WBA Considering Ali's Status

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The executive committee of the World Boxing Association, meeting here Friday was to reconsider the status of Muhammad Ali, whom they stripped of his title as heavyweight champion in 1967.

Officials said the Ali issue is expected to come before the group, along with an appeal from Bob Foster, no longer recognized as light heavyweight champion.

"I think the WBA would have no alternative but to reinstate Ali if he were exonerated by the Supreme Court," said Bill Brennan, WBA president.

All has been off the WBA rulings since he was indicted in 1967 for refusing induction into the armed services. His lawyers argue his case before the U.S. Supreme Court Monday, but a ruling is not expected before the court term ends in June.

The WBA withdrew recognition of Foster's title last December after he did not take on a challenger in the required length of time.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Vancouver men representing the Canadian Challenge Syndicate, which has bid to compete for the America's Cup in 1973, will attend a meeting of international challengers in London.

Syndicate spokesman Brian McDermott, Ken Reid, past commodore of the West Vancouver Yacht Club, and George O'Brien, owner of the 12-metre yacht Endless Summer, will attend the meeting April 26-27.

The meeting was called by the Royal Thames Yacht Club of the cup holders, New York Yacht Club, told the various challengers to come up with an organization plan by June 1 or the NYYC will select a single challenger for 1973 cup races off Newport, R.I.

McDermott said the NYYC has strongly hinted that there should be only one challenger from each country.

Canada has issued only one challenge. But two Australian syndicates, which are not expected to attend the London meeting, two British and two French groups have been mentioned as challengers, he said.

O'Brien's Endless Summer, formerly the Australian challenger Dame Pattie, arrived in Vancouver this week.

WATERLOO (CP) — The old Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association was reconstituted as the Ontario Universities Athletic Association Friday.

The new organization, meeting at the University of Waterloo, extended playing privileges to the following universities:

Brock University, St. Catharines: Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and York University, Toronto; Waterloo Lutheran, Laurentian University, Sudbury; Trent University, Peterborough, and Lakehead University, Thunder Bay.

The OUAA board of governors also voiced its opposition to athletic scholarships being offered by universities.

If armed groups outside a university such as Hockey Canada could offer scholarships but they must go through a university's awards office to ensure a recipient has a good academic standing.

HAMILTON (CP) — Petrolia Jets struck for four third-period goals Friday for a 5-2 win over Hamilton Bees and took a 2-1 lead in a best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B semi-final playoff series.

The fourth game in the series will be played in Sarnia Sunday.

Winner of the series meets Dixie Beehives in the finals.

Rule Breaker Started Game

LONDON (CP) — Canadian and American football may or not know this but they owe their style to a player who broke the rules in England in 1823.

During a game of soccer—no hands allowed—William Webb Ellis of Rugby school picked up the ball and ran with it.

He launched a new style of football and now is regarded as the originator of rugby.

This early form of football spread throughout Britain and with the growing demand for standard rules, the strictly-amateur Rugby Football Union was formed in 1871.

Today rugger is one of the most popular sports in the world with clubs in 50 countries, including Canada.

As the RFU marks its centenary its main character is its constant link with amateurism. It is one of the last strongholds of people who pick up a broken jaw or leg for fun.

"This enables a large number of people—160,000 altogether—to play."

Sir William Ramsay, the RFU's president, explained at a centenary celebration held at the union's first home in London's Pall Mall.

"Playing is what the game is all about," he said. "With a professional game the spectators' enjoyment is of prime importance. With Rugby Union, on the other hand, people just play for enjoyment."

After the RFU was founded, the game surged forward. Within weeks the first international, between England and Scotland, was staged. Other unions were formed in Ireland, Wales and Scotland and touring teams from Australia and New Zealand visited Britain. Final adjustments had been made to the rules with the number of players reduced to 15 from 20 a team.

Rugby Union faced a crisis that year when players from the north of England insisted that clubs should be compensated for lost working time.

Sticking to its amateur principle, the RFU refused and the split gave birth to what is known today as Rugby League, played on a professional basis.

The other fundamental difference between league and union is in the play.

League's vital move is the pass along the back line to gain ground. Union has a rougher format with the opponents' touch line neared by a series of scrums and individual—often perilous—breaks.

Bought for $5,500 ($13,750) as a huge cabbage patch in 1907, London's Twickenham has become a field on which every union player in the world longs to play. As the centre of Rugby Union in this country, it holds more than 70,000 enthusiasts.

"Twickers," as it is known, is also the game's best investment—its value today is well into millions of pounds.

Bill Ramsay is convinced that Rugby Union now is in its healthiest position. Its popularity has increased in recent years as a school-sport while at top level more and more international games are being played here and abroad.

Rugby Union, Ramsay suggested, shows that an amateur sport can thrive even in today's professional sporting climate.

No Trouble Signing Players

If professional baseball clubs had as easy a time signing their players as the Belleville Minor Baseball Association does, they'd save a lot of time, not to mention money. Last year's opening night registration figure was more than doubled Friday night at the Recreation Centre. Here BMBA president John Emerson and executive member Lorne Cronkwright sign up Billy Russell and Brian Cronkwright.

Rams No Longer One-man Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Future operation of the Los Angeles Rams franchise in the National Football League remained a topic of speculation Friday after the death of the founder-president, Daniel F. Reeves.

The Rams have been a virtual one-man operation under Reeves since he overcame innumerable obstacles to move the team to Los Angeles from Cleveland in 1946.

He had been the majority owner since he acquired 51 per cent of the stock for $7.1 million from his former partners in a private auction in 1962.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Larry Wood had never before been in this position, leading a tournament going into the third round, but he took a calm, detached view about it all.

"Maybe the pressure will bother me," he conceded Friday after posting a one-under-par 70 for a 206 and the 36-hole lead in the $150,000 Monsanto open golf tournament.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gus Bodnar, General manager-coach of Salt Lake Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League, will not be signed to a new contract, owner Day Meyer said Friday. Meyer said Bodnar, 47, would scout for the Eagles Until his one-year contract runs out in June. The Eagles placed last in the WHL.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Top-seeded Australian Ken Rosewall won the men's singles title Friday in the South African National open tennis championships when he beat countryman Fred Stolle 6-4, 6, 0-6, 6-4. Rosewall won $7,000 and Stolle earned $4,200. Australians Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong won the women's doubles final in straight sets. They beat South Africans Brenda Kirk and Laura Rossouw 6-3, 6-2.

LONDON (Reuter) — The International Rugby Union Board decided Friday to raise the value of a try to four points, instead of three, as an experiment. The new value will be in force in Britain and Ireland for the next two seasons, and overseas in the summer of 1972.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Sauer, wide receiver for New York Jets of the National Football League, is retiring at 27 because he thinks "the whole structure of football is ridiculous." Toronto Statistician Does Own Play-by-play

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Graham carries a lesser-known tradition at Maple Leaf Gardens every time Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League play a home game.

Seated in the front row of the west side "Greens," Graham is an odd sight, apparently talking to himself as play progresses. As the official NHL statistician for Toronto, Graham is simply creating his own play-by-play commentary to aid his awarding of scoring points.

"I've found it'll stick in my mind this way," the veteran figure man says, "... if I don't say it to myself and just rely on remembering a mental picture of the play, I can't recall it as easily, if at all."

Graham is in the middle of his 24th NHL season handling statistics. He got his feet wet as an aide to his father, Bill Sr., in the 1931-32 season, and inherited the main job when the elder Graham died in 1947.

The statistician formerly sat at rinkside, where it was handy to talk to the referee, who once had the final say in the awarding of goals and assists. Now that the power of final decision has been shifted to official statisticians, Graham moved up to his current location "so I could see the corners better."

The electronic age is beneficial to Graham's task. A his side, available for video-tape replays, and a telephone connection with the rinkside timekeeper and public address announcer.

"The videotape often helps," Graham says, "and I can still go to the source—the players themselves—or to the referee for advice. But my sheets have to be sent to the head office in Montreal right after the game, so I'm limited in the amount of research I can do."

Graham stresses concentration and memory. He admits that expansion means a tougher job. "When there were six teams in the league I could recognize all the players, Now I have to use numbers most of the time.

"A lot of things have made it a tougher job today. The emphasis on forechecking and the fast player changes complicate it tremendously. Also the increased use of the big shot from the blueline.

"The game is faster now and the pressure never lets up. In the old days, teams used to drop back to their own zone when they lost possession. Now they keep the heat on and you'll have 11 men inside the blue line."

Graham has had to adapt to the many rules changes and additions over the years.

"If you go back far enough, you'll find a time when they would give three assists on a goal. At one point too, you couldn't give an assist to the original shooter when a rebound was put in. And when my dad was on the job, you could only give one assist."

At present, NHL scoring rules say an assist may be granted any man who touches the puck during a play which leads to a goal—except when the opposition gains the puck before the goal. But a player can bounce the puck off an opponent to the goal scorer and draw an assist. Possession is the key to correct scoring.

"It's a difficult thing at times," Graham says. "On the Boston goal (Feb. 14) the puck changed hands five times. Everybody but the goaltender could have had an assist and who's to say which pass was the most important? But only the last two who handled the puck could get assists."

The Toronto statistician admits he is well aware of his involvement in individual scoring races.

"I find myself getting up for it a little more, if I can use that word, when a top scorer is here, because I dogg want to give him anything easy nor do I want to deprive him of anything he's legitimately earned."

Nobody has what Volkswagen has:
A 25 year headstart.
All this time we've been refining it. Improving it. Then refining our refinements and improving our improvements.
Nobody has the horde of inspectors. The 16,000 individual inspections. Or the grinding tests.
Nobody has our kind of paint job: all 35 pounds of it.
Nobody builds a car the way we do: airtight.
Nobody builds in what we do. An extra heater.
A solid sheet of steel underneath. A rear seat that folds down.
Nobody has the service. The electronic diagnosis system. The 2 year 24,000 mile warranty.
When the new small cars came out, everyone thought they were going to make the bug look bad.
But they forgot that it takes time to turn out a car that won't turn out to be a disappointment.
So instead, the new small cars are actually accomplishing something quite remarkable.
They're making the bug look beautiful.

Maple Seed Stamp Is First in Series

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Symbols have long played an important role in man's history. Coats of arms, shields, buildings and official seals bear the images of lions, eagles, unicorns, roses, thistles, even snakes.

All of these images represent real or identifiable strengths or beauty, from the lion's strength coupled with the beauty and grace of the mythological unicorn.

Present on Canada's coat of arms, national and provincial flags, are such symbols as the maple leaf, the beaver and the blue waters of the bordering oceans. Images such as these stand for the undeveloped regions and natural resources of Canada.

The maple leaf, which in 1868 became part of the coats of arms granted to the provinces of Ontario and Quebec by Queen Victoria, became part of the Canadian Coat of Arms in 1921. Six years ago, on Feb. 15, 1965, the maple leaf became the central design for Canada's national flag.

Traditionally shown in full leaf, the maple tree goes through four stages of development during a year. First in a series of four seasonal changes for the maple, the Canada Post Office released a 5-cent commemorative on Wednesday, April 14, designed by Miss Alma Duncan of Gatineau, Ontario.

The winged seeds or samaras, the fruit of the maple tree, commonly known as keys, mature and fall to the ground in late spring. The birth of life after winter hibernation is illustrated in this delicate drawing similar to the illustrations in the Beatrix Potter children's books.

Not only is the maple known for its beauty and shade, but the sap drawn from the trees at this time of year produces the unique North American crop of maple syrup and maple sugar. Native Indians in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River regions are known to have tapped the maple prior to the arrival of white settlers.

From the wealth of Indian legends, a story was passed down that an Indian woman discovered the peculiar qualities of maple sap when she accidentally used it instead of water to boil venison. Today the clear sap is either drawn from the tree in the traditional pioneer method of a small spigot and a drip-catching bucket, collected by horse-drawn kegs mounted on sleighs, or the more modern use of plastic tubes which gather the sweet liquid at a central point.

Principal provinces for maple syrup production are Ontario, Nova Scotia, Quebec and New Brunswick, with an annual value of between $10 and $12 million.

Three other commemoratives to be released during the appropriate seasons, will mark the changing face of this cited symbol of Canada. The complete cycle, when released, will illustrate the maple in seasonal colors of spring, summer, autumn and winter.

The first stamp, 26 million in all, is colored in green and varying shades of brown. Regular philatelic service can be obtained from the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Confederation Heights, Ottawa KIA, OB 5, Ontario.

Another Nomination For Scott

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — George C. Scott, who says he abhors acting awards, finds himself with another honor. He has been nominated for an Emmy along with his wife, Montreal-born Colleen Dewhurst, for their performances in The Price.

The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences nominated Scott Monday for the best single performance by a leading actor. Scott was cited for Stanley for the Andersonville Trial, Hal Holbrook for A Clear and Present Danger, Richard Widmark for Vanished and Gig Young for The Neon Ceiling.

Scott also has been nominated by the Motion Picture Academy as best actor of 1970 for his role in Patton. He tried to have his name stricken as a candidate, but the academy refused.

Andersonville Trial, which Scott directed, also won an Emmy nomination as the outstanding single program of the 1970-71 season. Its competition: Hamlet and The Price, both by Hallmark Hall of Fame; They're Tearing Down Tim O'Reilley's Bar from Rod Serling's Night Gallery; and the four-hour Vanished.

Scott was not available for comment on the Emmy nominations.

Hamlet took top honors in the nominations announced of 13. Oddly, Richard Chamberlain, who played Hamlet, didn't get a mention.

For the outstanding dramatic series: The First Churchills, Ironside, N.E.T. Playhouse, Marcus Welby, M.D. and The Senator—The Bold Ones. Nine nominations went to the latter show, which has been cancelled by NBC.

Other nominations included:

Single performance by leading actress: Miss Dewhurst, The Price; Lee Grant, The Neon Ceiling; Miss Grant, Ransom for a Dead Man.

Leading actor in dramatic series: Raymond Burr, a native of New Westminster, B.C., Ironside; Mike Connors, Mannix; Hal Holbrook, The Senator—The Bold Ones; Robert Young, Marcus Welby, M.D.
